CONNECTICUT VS. ILLINOIS

An interesting contrast in methods used is furnished by the manner in which highway construction is carried on in this state and in Cook county, Illinois. Connecticut believes in and practices the plan of paying as you go, while out in Cook county the bond idea prevails.

There is need of street widening, highway construction, necessary road connections and bridges. This work will call for many million dollars, but the existing conditions have apparently convinced the people that there should be no greater delay. The proposal to issue bonds to the amount of $15,000,000 in order to do this work was submitted to the voters at the last election and as the result of that referendum approval has been obtained. That means that an important decision has been reached concerning this work and that it can be expected to go ahead.

Even at a straight flat rate of 4 per cent a year such bonds would involve an interest expense of $600,000 a year. If the bonds run for 20 years it will mean a total expenditure for interest alone in that time of $12,000,000 and should this issue run 30 years it would mean $18,000,000. This means that through the bond issue plan the highway improvements will cost not only $15,000,000 but from $27,000,000 to $33,000,000 or should by chance the issue be for 25 years it would mean the expenditure of just twice the amount which has been approved by the voters in a referendum.

Illinois is one of those states which has no gasoline tax. Should it adopt the Connecticut policy of pay-as-you-go and devote the auto registration fees to highway construction and add thereto the proceeds of a reasonable tax on gasoline, there would be the provision of these highway improvements by those who are directly benefited and there would be no necessity for piling up bond issues which carry with them as much again in the way of taxation.

Connecticut has good reason for being thankful that highway work and other state business is not being carried on along the lines prevailing in Illinois.

MAINE'S SECOND SENATOR

Already more than the usual amount of attention is being given to the election which will be held in Maine November 29 for the purpose of electing a successor to the late Senator Fernald. This is because of the close alignment of parties in the United States senate for the next congress.

Ordinarily there is no doubt what Maine will do at a regular or special election. There is no reason to believe that other than a republican successor will be chosen, but there is substantial reason for impressing upon the republicans of that state that this is a time when no other party representative should be elected in the upper house of congress.

This is due to the fact that there are now 47 republicans, 47 democrats and one farmer labor member of the next congress, and it is important for Maine and the country that the vacancy in that state should be filled by a republican thus giving that party one more member than any other.

It is realized, of course, that of the 47 republicans already elected there are some who have such strong insurgent inclinations that they might almost be classed as democrats. They are nevertheless listed and elected as republicans. They must naturally be expected to act as republicans, but whether they will depends upon them and what happens between now and the opening of the 70th congress. Holding the balance of power they can strike up a coalition with the democrats and cause all kinds of obstructions, delays and trouble. But the democrats have had one experience with such an arrangement without operating to their credit, and it is a question whether they could afford to assume the responsibility of allowing themselves to be led into such a combination and shouldering the blame that would go with it.

Maine is a republican state. It is a safe bet that it will go republican in the coming election, but it would be folly to ignore the importance of voting at that time and permit the opposition to win through disinterestedness. The 48th republican member of the senate may not be able to insure full control but Maine is going to be impressed with the importance of sending a second republican senator and it is only what should be expected.

TROLLEYS AN DAUTOS

For the most part it is found that the motormen on trolley cars show much consideration for the motorists. By their action they do much to prevent accidents but it is evident that there are many instances when too much dependence is placed upon the expectation that the motorman can stop his car in order not to strike the machine of the chance taking motorist. Frequent instances of this kind indicate that the motormen is not getting the same consideration from the drivers of autos that he gives to them, when as a matter of fact there should be nothing one sided about it. In the interest of safety and the avoidance of accidents and congestion it is only right that neither should attempt to impose upon the other.

Concerning this problem the superintendent of the street railway company in Indianapolis declares, "There is a growing inclination on the part of motorists to depend upon the ability of the motormen to stop or to slacken speed when they turn in front of a street car. Motorists will round intersections directly in the path of fasty moving street cars and they will pull from the curb in front of street cars where the only possibility of avoiding collision lies in the ability of the motorman to stop his car."

From the results that would seem to have been the policy that was pursued by the driver of the bus which collided with a trolley car in Providence. He had plenty of room on the right of the street but was running in the trolley tracks and failed to turn out until it was too late, knowing of course all the time that the car couldn't turn out and that continuance in the right of way of the electric meant a collision.

Trying to do the unreasonable, trying to force the other fellow to assume all the responsibility and trying to encroach upon the rights of others can operate only to increase highway dangers, accidents and deaths. There is enough confusion caused by those who do not intend it, without making conditions any worse by deliberate and dangerous chance taking.

VOTING MACHINES

Providence is the latest city where the idea of adopting voting machines is gaining ground. The common council has adopted a resolution calling for the creation of a special committee to consider the advisability of such a step, and it has developed from the fact that there were many and serious errors in the last election.

In many places throughout New England, to say nothing about elsewhere there have been recounts because of dissatisfaction with the announced results. Recounts have disclosed the same state of affairs that can be expected as long as the old system of marking and counting ballots is adhered to. It is a system that invites confusion and mistakes. It is a system that opens the way to crookedness, and certainly the many instances of changes because of corrected figures, through work of regular election auditors or through recounts authorized by courts, call for its replacement with something quicker and more accurate.

When voting machines are used the voter knows that his vote is going to be counted the way he cast it. It is not left to the merciless interpretation of one or two political counters. The voting machine works with that same accuracy that adding machines do and it is but a short time after the polls close before the results are known and thereafter there is no chance of someone else throwing part of them out. There's no redemption of those thrown out for nothing of the kind is possible.

Providence is acting promptly as the result of recognized conditions. It is taking a step that some Connecticut towns should follow.

"UNCLE JOE" CANNON

The death of "Uncle Joe" Cannon has removed a nationally known political figure, a member of congress whose name has been on the lips of the people from one end of the country to the other.

When he retired four years ago Mr. Cannon had established a record in the service of his country, and certainly a period of 46 years in such work indicates the recognition that was given to his ability by his constituents, changing as they did during those many years.

He was a politician of the old school and a virile leader who had his own method of handling the house, so much so that he became known as the "czar of the house." From his early days until his departure from Washington he was held in high esteem, his counsel was given weighty consideration and by his personality and his activities on the floor as well as speaker he made himself a national figure. He was always in the limelight. When it wasn't through his tactics and his speeches, it was through the pen of the Washington correspondents and the cartoonists. Age tempered his activity but it hardly lessened his interest. As is frequently the case with a person of such prominence what he was constantly credited with were frequently great exaggerations. He unquestionably wielded a stiff control during his years as speaker, but that didn't affect the admiration for him as a companion and friend.

He was favored with a long life of four score years and ten over half of which was served in public office, and the country has gained much as the result. His was an unusual career and it will not soon be forgotten.

There are still many cities which are tolerating recounts and experiencing revised election results which don't seem to know when they need voting machines.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

"Our homes today are too seriously lacking in the upholstery of good Christian literature." These are the words of the editor of The Congregationalist in a recent issue. He is here speaking in praise of Dr. John H. Finley's great work, recently completed, An Outline of Christianity. It is published in five volumes, probably the best work of its kind in existence. Many who have examined this masterpiece will agree with what the editor says, "We suggest that fathers and mothers spend a little less on the study chair, the living-room table, or even the library bookshelves, and embellish some room of the house with a set of the Outline. "Is it not true in many fine houses that furniture and even bric-a-brac must be considered at the expense of the most important books? The effect that a library of the best books will have on the growing boys and girls is simply incalculable.

While many forms of trade are not booming, it is quite noticeable that the little corner grocery store is on deck and constantly increasing in number. If the population was increasing at the same ratio there would be at least in our city at present about 100,000. The explanation is that potatoes, turnips, onions, carrots and the like are more profitable in the hands of the new dealers than the old. As so many of them are foreigners, possibly their methods of salesmanship are more businesslike than those of the past generation. We have not heard that scarcity is the cause of this great boom in the grocery business. Wherever you see a 4 by 6 building on the corner with a shelf of canned goods there you will find the proprietor with smiling face with four or five happy well-fed children. "Nothing succeeds like success."

As to the relative merits of religion today compared to what it was years ago there is a wide divergence of opinion. It is a question that can be only hinted at—much less answered—in a single paragraph. No satisfactory answer can be given until this previous question is settled; exactly what do you mean by religion? If religion is to be identified with extreme dogmatic creeds, such as were in vogue in Puritanic times, then we must conclude that religion has greatly degenerated. If on, the other hand, your conception of religion (and, of course, the Christian religion is meant) is cultivating the spirit of the Master, and following his example going about doing good, and bringing cheer and light into erring and discouraged souls, then religion today is incomparably better than it has been since the age of the apostles. If it is religion to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, and shelter the outcast, then this is the superlative age of Christianity.

There is an old sayings "Don't count chickens before they are hatched." This wise saying applies to other things fully as valuable and far more elusive than chickens. Wouldn't it save out politicians from a good deal of sarcasm and ridicule if they would stop piling up majorities in print until there was at least the ghost of a majority in sight? And they are never in sight until they are tabulated. It is easy for the astronomer to figure out that Orion will be in conjunction with Andromeda, three seconds past four on the 23d of March 1931, because he has something solid to work on. It is easy for the Cloud Digger (and those who don't dig) to tell us that it will probably rain at the next equinox. It would puzzle the very angels to tell one day beforehand how any bunch of imperfect mortals are going to vote. The element of uncertainty has not breached since the 19th amendment was put into the Constitution.

"If fame be the last infirmity of noble minds," it has been said, "ambition is often the first." But why call either an "infirmity?" If a noble mind is perfectly normal when it functions it produces high grade action. The just reward of such action is fame—fame of a noble character and as such cannot be infirmity. The praise that men give to the deeds of a noble mind is something quite distinct from that mind itself. Fame is the reputation a man gets from what he is and does. He cannot prevent others from putting an estimate upon his worth. An infirmity is a weakness—a personal defect, which possibly he himself can govern. If a man goes through life playing to the galleries, making popular applause the end of action he is a vain man and shows an infirmity. But this is begging the question, for we are speaking of "noble minds" and they never play to the galleries.

The same process of reasoning applies to the rest of the sentence: "ambition is often the first (infirmity) of noble minds." There is more than one kind of ambition. The ambition to be noticed, to be talked about, to be in the limelight, quite irrespective of one's character, is the ambition of little minds, and puny personalities. Ambition of this sort is most emphatically an infirmity, even if it bears a high-sounding family name and has passed through college. Merely being the alumni of a great university does not always save men from weaknesses. Such an ambition is of course a weakness. But to start out in life to do high and honorable things is a noble ambition and is worthy of any man's endeavor. Society is bound to put its stamp of approval upon it and no man need to be ashamed of such deserving fame.

Perhaps it is not too much to say that before the majority of people the real goal of life is happiness. It is, however, an historical fact, that if the main object of living is the attainment of happiness, we shall just miss the goal. The highest possible object in life is worthiness of God's approval. This is what the older philosophers called the summum bonum, or the highest good. Happiness is not in itself a tangible object to be reached either by mental or moral effort. It is the resultant of action, and the greatest happiness can only come from highest action. The only way to be really happy is to be conscious of standing in right relations with men and God. It is about the last thing a man needs to think about whether or not he is going to be happy. Let him dedicate himself to the performance of the noblest things and happiness will take care of itself.

For great inventions and labor-saving devices we have to pay the price. It is a good illustration that we cannot get the fruit of another's muscle or brain for nothing. When the first edition from movable type came from the workroom of The London Times, workmen when they came to work were first amazed and then indignant to find, for many of them, their occupation gone. It was not at all strange that a riot was started that called for the police to quell. It was a wonderful advance over the old way of printing, and no disinterested person would think of going back to the old way, still the price had to be paid. The writer was in a home the other day and wondered why they had the radio in the cellar; it was not the radio playing jazz but an oil burner. If this becomes general the coal dealer's business is gone.

EASTERN CONNECTICUT'S CENTENNIAL

To eastern Connecticut of today the sesquicentennial of 1926 is the celebration of a historical event. But to eastern Connecticut of the 1870's the centennial of 1876—The original celebration of the same event—was a family affair. It was something that father and mother had had a hand in. Eastern Connecticut then was full of men and women, who were in sober, literal truth sons and daughters of the Revolution. Eastern Connecticut men touched the heights and the depths of Revolutionary spirit; for eastern Connecticut was the home alike of Nathan Hale and Benedict Arnold. So the interest roused hereabout by the Revolutionary centennial was interest of the deepest kind—personal interest.

Mrs. Lucy E. Burbeck of New London furnishes an instance showing how personal this Revolutionary interest was. She was the widow of Henry Burbeck, a general in the Revolutionary war. In The Bulletin of Dec. 31, 1875, she appears as "the oldest pensioner on the roll of the Hartford pension agency. Mrs. Burbeck is 94 years of age, but is still able to sign her name to the quarterly vouchers. She receives $150 pension money each quarter."

So it came about that eastern Connecticut was determined not to let Philadelphia do all the celebrating. An editorial in The Bulletin of Nov. 10, 1874, put the case thus:

"Who was the brave old veteran who planned and saved the battle of Bunker Hill, and was the main reliance of Washington at Boston? Israel Putnam of Pomfret! Who saved the Colonial army from overwhelming defeat at Bunker Hill, but Knowlton of Ashford, Colt of New London, Durkee and Huntington of Norwich and their sturdy followers? Who was Washington's dearest friend and counsellor in the early trying days of the war? Wise, zealous, hardworking old brother Jonathan Trumbull of Lebanon!

"The hero of Ticonderoga, Ethan Allen, was a son of Connecticut. Connecticut sent more troops, and more ships to the infant navy of the nation's aid than any other colony in proportion to her resources. She held up the arms of the brave and weak in Massachusetts, and saved New York from the Tories.

"From the Thames sailed dozens of privateers that captured stores for the people and the continental army. And it was a Norwich captain and crew that ran the only one of the six vessels safely into a French harbor with the treaty between the United Colonies and Louis XVI.

"Does the blood of Trumbulls, of Huntingtons and Turners, of Perkinses, Lesters and Bills, of Durkees and Tracys, of Lathrops and Colts, run in our veins? Are we not thrilled at the very thought of Connecticut's share in trials and labors, the losses and glories of that memorable era? And can our hearts here in Norwich be calm in the midst of this movement to honor the heroes and statesmen of that day?"

After reading that, the first impulse of the subscriber was to dig up. And he did dig up—relics (coal), that is now, was another matter. Carter's jewelry store showed an elaborately chased watch, brought to town by G. L. Norcross, whose grandfather bought it in England, that was a duplicate of the one which Washington gave to Lafayette, and which Lafayette lost. It was identified as such by means of the carrying on the back, which shows "an allegorical scene in relief, representing the god of war placing a wreath on the brow of the goddess of peace, with a cherub playing with the thrown-off sword of the grim-visaged Mars, and other personages in the background."

On May 13, 1875, The Bulletin announced:

"The cane carried by Stephen Hopkins, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, is in the possession of the Hopkin's family of this city, who are his direct descendants."

Sunday, June 27, 1875, was the 100th anniversary of the appointment of the squadron operating on the waters around Ticonderoga. Mr. Halsey was the grandfather of the Hon. Jeremiah Halsey of Norwich. On June 28, The Bulletin reprinted the document, which was still in the possession of the family.

Here it might be said that he capture of Ticonderoga was planned and in large part led and financed by eastern Connecticut men, especially those of Preston. There is a full account in the Bulletin files of 1875.

The relic was found on the east bank of the Mystic river in Groton, on the lands of John Burrows, near the foot of the hill on which the Pequot fort stood. There used to be a ferry at that spot. It is conjectured that the clasp belonged to an officer who died on his march either to or from the defense of Boston.

Even trifles were worth recording, for their association with great events added to whatever of value they possessed in themselves. And that, of course, is what makes a souvenir of a relic. Thus Joseph Chesebro, Jr., of Stonington, doubtless did something of interest when he plowed up an old-time button bearing the date of Washington's first inauguration and stating that it was made with others in commemoration of the event. The Bulletin told about that on Jan. 15, 1876.

Two Revolutionary coat-buttons were brought in by George Pierce, whose visit was recorded on Feb. 24. They were of copper, as large as the old-fashioned cent but thinner, and bore the initials G. W. and the inscription, "Long live the president." One had around its outer edge the design of a chain of 13 links, each containing the initial of one of the colonies.

Mr. Pierce also had with him an unredeemed lottery certificate, issued under act of congress Nov. 15, 1776. The government wasn't so virtuous about gambling in those Revolutionary days when it needed the money, as it is now in its sesquicentennial when it doesn't.

With such a miscellany of antiquities coming to light—some important, some illuminating, all interesting—it was no wonder that the idea occurred to some one to have a Centennial exhibition. This was held in Steiner's hall on Nov. 21, 22 and 23, 1876. It was a loan exhibition, of course; but then, so was the big one at Philadelphia, only more so.

Among many other things noted by The Bulletin man were:

A case of Indian relics from H. V. Edmond, a noted collector of Norwich.

An old map of Connecticut, without date, in which Norwich Town is laid down as the prominent settlement and the city as "Shelburne or Norwich Landing."

A notice signed by Ingoe Breed, Dwight Ripley and James Huntington for a meeting to celebrate peace in 1815, and a grosgrain vest made specially for Mr. Ripley to wear on that occasion.

A dress worn by "a lady" (how by the Bulletin of those days could be about mentioning names!) when she danced with Gen. Washington, and a miniature of the lady herself.

Two chunks of cadiron brought over in the Mayflower.

A clock—a goliath piece of mechanism for such purpose—said to have been used by Gov. Trumbull in his tent during the Revolution; also china and silver once owned by him.

A letter from Israel Putnam, dated 1768, to "Mr. Coit, marchant," inquiring about the trade of a horse for a quantity of West India rum.

The proceeds of the fair were turned over to the Norwich Provident association, a forerunner of the United Workers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The South Coventry Trolley Line

Mr. Editor: The writer does not share the opinion of the local authorities and others in regard to the removal of the South Coventry trolley line from the city limits, and we believe that the exchange of said line in the city for the convenience of building a sewer underneath the track or road-bed of said trolley line will be directly and indirectly a bad trade for the city of Willimantic, as well as a severe loss to the people of South Coventry and those patrons of the road residing along the line at intermediate points.

Already several families have removed from South Coventry and others state that it will be necessary for them to do so, if the trolley company is forced off Main street in Willimantic by unwarranted requirements on the part of the city, at this time.

There are but few cities in the state whose Main streets the electric car does not pass through, coming in and going out "majestically" through its principal thoroughfares and it occurs to the writer that Willimantic will appear more rural than ever if the tracks is torn up and the company is ordered out of the city, if it does not do so, involving large expense, which, under the present conditions the company would not be justified in meeting.

Many people come from the territory along the line and from South Coventry to work and trade and the merchants, business men and theatres should get busy and protest against the unreasonable requirements of the city at this time. Willimantic will surely suffer loss if its trolley line is taken away. School children will not be transported so cheaply or so safely as they now are, and nothing will be gained by forcing the trolley company to abandon its track. The expense entailed in complying with the requirements of the city would be, it is estimated, $5,500.00, and the patronage on the road will not justify this expenditure. However, if the city will be obliged to do the work and pay this sum itself, and at the same time lose the trolley. Action should be taken at once and both parties—all parties—should get together and, in some way compromise, and agree upon some plan to avert the loss of a valuable service. More time should be required and the public utilities commission should be given more time to fully consider this matter before giving the company the right to abandon its track.

The trolley car has four special advantages for the public over the bus line; it is safer, it is more comfortable, it maintains a better schedule and its charges are lower than the bus line. The charge for transportation to and from South Coventry at present is 20c per person. The bus charges 50c. At the recent meeting held in the chamber of commerce rooms, the New England Transportation representative stated that, if the bus line were placed in operation, the rate to South Coventry would be 25c.

A bus line can be operated with less expense than the trolley car, but its charges, despite the logic of economy, will be greater and people who do not own automobiles and who are too poor to own them will not come to Willimantic to the stores and theatres and elsewhere any oftener than is absolutely necessary. It is likely, too, that real estate will depreciate all along the line.

Is Willimantic in the right current?

When Flag is Carried Flat

Mr. Editor: May I put a letter in your paper to enlighten the people of Norwich. Three different societies of ladies marched in the parade Thursday with flags carried flat. It is against the rules to carry a flag flat in the first place. But if they are bound to do it why don't they carry them right? Always when a flag is carried flat or hung so that it shows flat against a house, or any building or plazza, it should have the Union to the left, that is so that people looking at it see the Union in the left always, except on a coffin of a soldier or sailor, then it is on the right. I know what I am talking about and only one of the societies had it right. The other two had it wrong. The flag etiquette has been in the paper enough times for the people of Norwich to know how it should be used. Thanking you for your courtesy

Peter Has a Dreadful Fright

When you feel safest, have a care;
Of danger then you should beware.
—Mother West Wind.

There is a great deal of truth in that saying. No matter how safe we feel, unseen and unsuspected danger may be very close to us. Peter Rabbit learned that long ago. For that matter, most of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows have learned it. That is why you will always see a bird constantly looking this way and that way. That is why the heads of birds are constantly bobbing. There may be no danger in sight, but that makes no difference. They will take no chances.

Peter Rabbit was over in the Green

"Pooh!" said Peter. "There's nothing to be afraid of"

Forest. He had gone over to call on Mr. and Mrs. Grouse. It took him some time to find them, and when he did find them he found that Mrs. Grouse was feeling very anxious. You see, it was the hunting season.

"Pooh!" said Peter. "There's nothing to be afraid of. No one can shoot us over here in the Green Forest. You know Farmer Brown doesn't allow any hunting over in the Green Forest. There will be no terrible guns over here. We are as safe as though there were no guns."

Mrs. Grouse sighed. "I wish I could feel so," said she. "I do indeed. I wish I could feel so. But when the hunting season opens I never feel safe a minute. I never know what is going to happen. I certainly shall be glad when this dreadful hunting season is over."

"Well, it's foolish to worry," said Peter. "I don't worry. You know, it is just as I've said, Farmer Brown doesn't allow any hunters here with their terrible guns. I don't know what they want to hunt for anyway. But as long as they don't come to the Green Forest I am not going to think about them."

Peter sat down behind an old log. It was a favorite place of his. He often sat there when he was over in the Green Forest. Sometimes he took a little nap when he was there. He did that now. He was tired and everything was so quiet that he just dozed off. He awakened very suddenly. What awakened him he didn't know. His eyes flew wide open. The very first thing he saw was Mr. Grouse standing with head stretched up, listening. There was a startled look in the eyes of Mr. Grouse. Then he saw Mrs. Grouse doing the same thing. Peter opened his mouth to ask what the matter was, but before he could do so, both took to their wings. Up into the air they shot, and what a racket their wings did make! Both Mr. and Mrs. Grouse are wonderful flyers. In a jiffy Mr. Grouse had dodged behind a young pine tree. Mrs. Grouse was just behind him, and she turned to dodge this same tree. At that very instant there was a crash. Peter was so frightened that he almost turned a back somersault, for that crash had come from right back of the very old stump behind which he was sitting. He knew what the crash was. It was the noise of a dreadful gun! Yes, sir it was the noise of a dreadful gun! There was a hunter in the Green Forest.

Of course Peter took to his long legs. But even as he dodged he caught a glimpse of Mrs. Grouse coming down to the ground. She wasn't coming down in the way she usually did. Peter knew right away that something was wrong. He knew that something was wrong with those stout wings. He saw the hunter with the dreadful gun start to run forward. He knew that hunter would shoot again at the first opportunity he had.

"Oh, dear," sobbed Peter under his breath, "this is the end of poor Mrs. Grouse. She hasn't a chance in the world, not a chance! How I hate these hunters with these dreadful guns."

Just then the dreadful gun banged again and Peter saw the hunter run forward.

Sunday Morning Talk

A BETTER COUNTRY

What has been and is now one of the strangest feelings in the human heart? Is it not to find some better place, some lovelier spot than we have now? Is it for this that men are seeking everywhere and they can have it if they will; but instead of looking down they must look up to find it.

As men grow in knowledge they vie with each other more and more in making their homes attractive but the brightest home on earth is not to be compared with the mansions in the skies.

What is it that we look for at the decline and close of life? Is it not some sheltered place, some quiet spot, where if we cannot have constant rest, we may at least have a foretaste of the rest that is to be? What was it that led Columbus, not knowing what would be his fate, across the unknown western seas, if it were not the hope of finding a better country? This it was that sustained the Pilgrim fathers, driven from their native land by persecution, as they faced an ironbound savage coast and an unexplored country beyond. They were cheered and upheld by the hope of reaching a free and fruitful country, where they could be at rest and worship God in peace.

Somewhat similar is the Christian hope of heaven only it is not an undiscovered country, and in attraction cannot be compared with anything we have known on earth. Perhaps nothing but the shortness of our range of sight keeps us from seeing the celestial gates all open to us, and nothing but the deafness of our ears prevents our hearing the joyful ringing of the bells of heaven. The sky is studded with bright worlds of eyes have never seen. Little as we know of this beautiful land, glimpses of its beauty come to us now and then.

It is said by travelers that in climbing the Alps the houses of far distant villages can be seen with great distinctness, so that sometimes the number of panes of glass in a church window can be counted. The distance looks so short that the place to which the traveler is journeying appears almost at hand but after hours of climbing it seems no nearer. This is because of the clearness of the atmosphere. By perseverance, however, the place is reached at last. The tired traveler finds rest.

And so sometimes in high altitudes of grace, heaven seems very near, at other times, the clouds and fogs caused by suffering and sin cut off our sight. We are just as near heaven in the one case as in the other, and we are just as sure of gaining it if we only keep in the path that Christ has pointed out to us.

You know when a man is going up in a balloon, he takes in sand or a ballast, and when he wants to mount a little higher he throws out some of it; and the more he throws out the higher he gets, and so the more we throw out the things that hinder us in the upward way the nearer we get to God.

Let us not set our affections on them, but lay up for ourselves treasures in heaven.

"We may not know how sweet its balmy air,
How bright and fair its flowers.
We may not hear the songs that echo there,
Through these enchanted bowers."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Aroostook county, where the potatoes come from, has furnished the republican nominee for the seat in the United States senate made vacant by the death of Senator Bert M. Fernald last August. Arthur R. Gould, whose name will appear as the republican candidate on the ballots at the special election late in November, is an Aroostook county man and one of the foremost business men of New England. Born on a farm in humble circumstances, Mr. Gould received a common school education and then started on his career as a farm laborer. Experience as a clerk in the village store aroused his ambition for bigger things and at the age of 30 he embarked in the lumber business, shipping the first carload of lumber from Aroostook County, Boston. With the accumulation of wealth he broadened his activities and in time came into control of railways, power plants and other utilities throughout a large section of Maine.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Classification of Books

The multitude of books impresses on us the shortness of human life, and immortality never seems more desirable and necessary than in the presence of a library.

The national library of France contains about 3,000,000 books and the British Museum requires 40 miles of shelves to accomodate its 2,000,000 volumes. The room which contains the card catalogue of the 900,000 books of the Boston Public library is as large as the entire space of many a village library.

According to the purposes for which they have been written books may be divided broadly into three classes. In the first place we have books intended to convey information. This class is very numerous as it includes histories, biographies, travels, text books and works on technical subjects.

The second class comprises those written to amuse, and consists mainly of works of fiction. This is also numerous, for it constitutes the chief mental nourishment of the greater number of readers. It is estimated that novels form fully three-fourths of the books issued by circulating libraries.

The last class is composed of books written to inspire, to which belong works of the sacred writers and of the great poets. Such books are comparatively few in number, but they include much of the noblest work of the noblest men whom the world has known.

These three divisions are not separated by hard and fast lines; Hawthorne's Marble Faun, for example, at once entertains, informs and inspires, while, fortunately for us all, the number of books that amuse and at the same time instruct is sufficient to supply pleasure and profit for the longest life and the most varied tastes.

JUDGE DENIES WIFE'S PETITION FOR ALIMONY

Judge Allyn L. Brown presided here Friday morning at the superior court short calendar day, hearing a number of matters that were on the motion list.

Motion for alimony pendente lite was denied without prejudice in the divorce suit of Rose D. Schwartz of Front street, New London, vs. Nicholas Schwartz of 109 Golden street in that city. Schwartz informed the attorney for his wife that he had $50 and 5,000 German marks to his name, adding that "I don't think they are worth very much." After the motion for alimony pendente lite had been argued, Judge Allyn L. Brown suggested that the plaintiff, whom he said was an able bodied woman, should work and help contribute to the support of the three minor children and then come into court and present the motion again.

Mrs. Schwartz claimed on the witness stand that her husband had been convicted of selling liquor in Mystic and that it was the prime cause of their separating. He admitted that the selling liquor conviction was true but denied that it was the cause of his separation.

"She told me that she had another man and told me to get out," testified Schwartz.

Mrs. Schwartz said that her husband was making between $38 and $40 a week as a dress weaver but he said that he only averaged $25 a week.

It was brought out that the defendant was now paying $10 a week for the support of two of the children who were away in school and that the third was being cared for at the home of the plaintiff's mother.

Judge Brown took the papers after hearing the arguments on a motion to expunge and a demurrer in the suit of Audrey A. Palmer vs. Theodora Palmer and others, administrators, an appeal from probate.

Attorneys John T. Barry for the plaintiff and Arthur F. Libby for the defendant argued on the defendant's motion to set aside the $400 verdict given by the jury in the suit of Joseph Sella vs. Kate Takmon, both of Jewett City. Judge Brown reserved decision.

On a motion for foreclosure judgment in Winfield and Field S. Pendleton, Jr., and vs. Alexander Shipping Co., Inc., of Stonington and Max Levinson of New York, the court directed that judgment of foreclosure by sale be entered as soon as the stipulation is filed as to the amount of the debt. The debt claimed is $7,415.24.

Feb. 12 was set as the date of sale by public auction and Attorney Thomas E. Troland was appointed a committee to conduct it. The appraisers named were Ambrose Cassara, John W. Phillips and Thomas F. McGarrity. The foreclosure was on a mortgage on the plant, which is located mainly in Mystic, and it secured a $7,000 note.

In the divorce suit of Elizabeth R. Ethier vs. Lionel R. Ethier, both of this city, an allowance of $50 to prosecute was granted, $25 to be paid in two weeks and $25 at the time of trial.

Alimony in sums of $15 a week was also allowed. The custody of a minor child was given the mother with the exception of the second and fourth Thursdays each month from 2 to 7 o'clock and first and third Sundays of each month from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

Matters that were postponed were disclosure of defense or judgment in State Finance company vs. Richmond et als; argument of motion for more specific statement in L. E. McLaughlin, Inc., vs. Novogroski; allowance to prosecute and alimony pendente lite in Rose F. Fournier vs. Henry J. Fournier.

Two matters went off the list, viz: Judgment by default for failure to plead in Amherst Brick Co. vs. 323 State Street corporation, and others; and judgment on default entered in Gaveh vs. Mattiassa et als.

NORTHFIELD CLUB MEETING EULOGIZED MISS HALL

The fall meeting of the Northfield club was held in Westerly, with Mrs. Edward W. Smith at her home, 59 Granite street. A bountiful and delicious luncheon was served after which a business meeting was held, Mrs. Harry E. Langworthy and Mrs. Thomas C. Chadburn assisted Mrs. Smith in entertaining.

Miss Blanche V. Smith, president, conducted the meeting at which the secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and it was decided to hold the next meeting Feb. 14th, 1927 with Mrs. George H. Lincoln, 32 Crystal avenue, New London.

The remainder of the afternoon was given to the memory of the late Miss Evelyn Hall, beloved by Northfield students.

A brief sketch of Miss Hall's life was given by her sister Miss Mary Hall, who resides in Westerly at the Hall homestead. Miss Mary Hall read selections from a book on Miss Hall's life which was published a year after the latter's death. Pictures were shown of Miss Evelyn.

Mr. Cathcart read an article by Miss Mary E. Silverthorne on the fifteenth anniversary of Miss Hall's death, April 14, 1926.

Miss Hall was a lover of nature and human life. Her life of twenty-five years of service, highest ideals and personal ability, gained the victory and glory for Northfield seminary.

"Miss Hall embodied in herself what she wished all of her girls to be, beauty, service and victory."

A letter from Miss Sarah L. Ayer, (faculty) was read, containing a message of Northfield today.

Those present were Miss Maude E. Allen, Miss Mildred Zabriskie, Mrs. Emma Oehl Harding, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery of Norwich; Miss Nellie J. Starr, Uncasville; Mrs. George Lincoln, New London; Rev. and Mrs. Dwight C. Stone of Hanover; Miss Blanche V. Smith of Franklin; Miss Mary Hall, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Cathcart, Miss Fannie E. Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith, Mrs. Harry E. Langworthy and daughters Betty and Evelyn, Mrs. Thomas C. Chadburn and Mrs. Ralph B. Catlin of Westerly.

A vote of thanks was given the hostess and the Westerly club members for their entertainment and hospitality.

DENIES BOTH APPLICATIONS MADE BY JAMES E. SMITH

Judge Newell Jennings, in a decision handed down in the superior court denies the motions of James E. Smith, former president of the Uncas Paper Board Co., for compensation for services rendered to the receiver of the Uncas Paper Board Co., and for payment of $3,500 to reimburse him for paying for oil, which he claimed was used for the benefit of the receivership of the paper board company.

In his memorandum of decision Judge Jennings says:

The salient points of this rather complicated state of facts are as follows:

On April 21, 1921, the plant of the Ironsides Board corporation was leased to the Kolb Carton company.

On May 26, 1922 the latter was bankrupt.

On December 4, 1922, the property of the Ironsides Board Corporation was sold in foreclosure proceedings to James E. Smith.

On January 10, 1923, the latter sold the property so purchased by him to the Uncas Paper Board company, a corporation organized on that date.

On March 16, 1925, a receiver was appointed for the latter.

On February 19, 1926, the receiver's sale of the property was approved.

At the time when the Kolb Carton company went into bankruptcy, it owned 2,500 barrels of fuel oil of the value of $3,500. This oil was in a tank on the premises of the Ironsides Board corporation. When the petitioner purchased the property at the foreclosure sale, this oil was still there. There was a cold snap at the time, and as this was the only fuel immediately available, he used a part of it to prevent freezing and consequent loss. The remainder of this oil was mingled with later supplies obtained and used up by him and the Uncas Paper Board company.

Early in 1923 the receiver of the Kolb Carton company started proceedings in the United States district court to recover the value of the oil and certain other property claimed by him. During these proceedings there were frequent, almost frantic, disavowals by both James E. Smith and the Uncas Paper Board company of any claim to this oil. At one step of the proceedings the special master dictated the following agreement into the record. (See page 259 of exhibit A):

"It is agreed by the parties to this reference that the 2,500 barrels of oil in question have been used by Mr. James E. Smith and the Uncas Paper Board company, and that all of said use was prior to the institution of the proceedings on which the rule to show cause was based, January 26, 1923. The said oil was commingled by James E. Smith and the Uncas Paper Board company with other oil of theirs and by them so used."

Again on page 185 of Exhibit A Mr. Keefe, representing the Uncas Paper Board company and Mr. Smith, said: "I object to it. It has nothing to do with spare parts, but simply refers to an offer to pay a certain price for 2,500 barrels of oil. You understand on the record here we make no claim to the oil."

The matter eventually reached the circuit court of appeals and on page 708, of exhibit C-1 (Advance sheets March 11, 1926) that court dealt with the matter as follows:

"An offer has been made to pay for the oil, which was used only after a request for its removal, and when it became necessary for the Uncas Paper Board company to run the boilers of the plant and use their tanks by refilling them with oil. In this way there was a mingling of their own oil with that of the trustee. Since the Uncas company has offered to pay for the oil, no costs in this proceeding will be awarded against it, but it will be directed to make payment therefore."

This order was subsequently modified as fully set forth in paragraph 16 of the respondent's answer and exhibit A annexed thereto, directing payment to be made jointly and severally by James E. Smith and the Uncas Paper Board company.

After securing this order, the trustees of the Kolb Carton company elected to proceed against James E. Smith and has since succeeded in collecting practically the entire amount from him.

This proceeding is an attempt on the part of James E. Smith to secure an order requiring the receiver to reimburse him for this payment. His claim, as stated by his counsel on page 27 of the transcript is as follows:

"My claim, and the basis of it is, there was a trust; further, an intermeddler in trust holds that property as trustee. This was trust property belonging to the Kolb Carton company in bankruptcy, and the minute the Uncas Paper Board Company went in and used it, it became a trustee or rather it held the property in trust for the benefit of the trust estate."

The receiver claims that the oil was converted by James E. Smith and the Uncas Paper Board company; that they are therefore joint tort feasors; that the trustee having recovered from one of them, Mr. Smith, Mr. Smith cannot enforce payment to him by the trustee because there is no contribution between joint tort feasors, citing Wise vs. Berger, 103 Conn. 29, 32.

While the situation as outlined above may give rise to considerable sympathy, for Mr. Smith in his unfortunate predicament, it is the case so common in receivership and bankruptcy proceedings where one of two parties have to pay for something which did neither of them any good. Under these circumstances the only way out is to apply the strict rules of law to the facts.

The first result of this application is to throw out of consideration the happenings subsequent to the original conversion. The next is to subject the facts surrounding this original conversion to careful analysis.

James E. Smith undoubtedly acted as promoter and organizer of the Uncas Paper Board company. His interest was not that of a mere agent, however. When the smoke of re-by-ganization cleared away he emerged as the holder of sixty per cent. of the common stock. Had the venture been successful, he would, of course, have been the chief beneficiary. Therefore it was just as much of a trustee of this oil as the Uncas company and the circuit court was right in holding that they were jointly and severally liable. Being, technically, joint tort feasors, there is no contribution and the application must be denied. It is denied.

The application for compensation for services was not seriously pressed, and it is unnecessary to review the facts in connection therewith. It is denied.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON
Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.
Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

ACADEMY AND BULKELEY MEET TODAY IN ANNUAL GRIDIRON CLASSIC

The climax of the Academy football season is reached today when the Bulkeley eleven will be met on the campus in the annual gridiron classic. An Academy victory over Bulkeley means a successful season in any sport regardless of the record at the first part of the season. To defeat Bulkeley is a delicious antidote for the poison of defeat administered by other teams. Bright skies and crisp cool weather, an ideal football day, is predicted for the game today and it is expected that a record crowd will witness the struggle. Already close to 300 tickets have been sold to the Bulkeley students alone and by game time at 2 o'clock it is expected that close to 4,000 people will be gathered at the field.

It is hard for any of the local doesters to predict the outcome of the game and those who have seen both teams in action forecast a close battle but that is as far as they go. Both the Academy and Bulkeley have powerful high school teams with fast and driving backfields. The Academy will outweigh the Orange and Black on the line and it will be difficult for Bulkeley to penetrate this wall. It is expected that the Bulkeley attack will not be concentrated on the line but will be a more open form of attack with Capt. Gray, a sprinter, carrying the ball around end. Gray is Bulkeley's main threat, being a speedy back and a kicker and passer of ability. His broken field running during the season has been one of Bulkeley's chief means of scoring. A liberal use of the forward pass is also anticipated in Bulkeley's offensive but the Academy has been drilled on this for the past two weeks and has worked out what is thought to be an almost certain defense.

The Academy is taking not the slightest chance on the breaks of the game and are out to make their own breaks. Heads-up football will be the order of the day and with two complete sets of backs and the exceptionally heavy line, the Academy is well equipped to launch most any kind of an attack against the Orange and Black. Coach Brigham has no definite plan of attack and has drilled his men in plays that give no warning of where the play will be centered. He has in the back field men capable of skirting the ends, ripping through the line or hurling the forward pass. The backfield to start in today's game will probably be Williams at quarterback, a triple threat man and fast; McGlone at left half, who is a good passer and can hit the line with tremendous force; Brewer at fullback, the hardest line-plunging back in the state and a wonderful defensive player; and Labenski at right half, a kicker, passer and slippery broken field runner. The other set of backs include Billy Tirrell, quarter; Vitilano, half back; Marks, a halfback, and Courbois.

The line that will start the game today will probably be Schwartz, center, Gulomb and Fox guards, Kahn and Fidell, tackles, Greene and Moore, ends. This line is noted to be one of the best lines in interscholastic football and no team has yet made any material gains through it, and it is unlikely that Bulkeley will have any better success.

The team that wears the Orange and Black colors of Bulkeley in tomorrow's important tussle will be the best that Coach Canty has been able to put on the field to date this season. The Whaling City eleven has practiced hard during the last week in preparation for this supreme test. Most of the work during the drills of the week has consisted of strengthening the line both offensively and defensively. The forward pass is to be used quite a bit by Bulkeley and this form of attack has also come in for its share of attention.

The probable starting Bulkeley backfield for the fray finds Marshall, fullback, drop-kick artist, on the sidelines as the result of a bruised side received in the Central high of Bridgeport game in New London last Saturday. Locke will be at the quarter back position with Allen and Mengil at halves and Northrup taking Marshall's place at fullback. Marshall, however, will see service during the game although it is not known how long he will be in active combat. Watterson will be at center with Davis and Rathbun pivoting him at guards and Feeney and Pendleton at the tackles. Bertha and Capt. Gray and Brown at the wings. Bulkeley has a strong second team and can easily fill with capable players any vacancies which may arise.

The Bulkeley student body and supporters, of whom there are many, are conspicuously displaying badges with the words, "Be-at Norwich", as a means of bringing the interest in the game to fever heat. Like the Academy, Bulkeley has been holding rallies during the past week in order to stir up enthusiasm for the annual classic. A monster rally was held at the school on Friday and speeches were made by Coaches Canty, Capt. Gray, Headmaster Homer K. Underwood, James G. Hammond, Judge C. C. Costello and Walter A. Towne. All speakers pointed out that New London was back of the team and a victory would be theirs. The various speakers deplored the present Harvard-Princeton relationship and hoped that Bulkeley and Norwich would never come to a break.

From advance reports it is anticipated that Bulkeley will send up nearly a thousand to uphold her in the annual classic between two of the oldest school rivals in the state, whose games in the past have thrilled many time and time again.

Cross-Country Run

An added feature of the day's program will be the annual interscholastic cross-country run to be staged between the halves of the football game. Chapman Tech, Stonington and the Academy will all enter strong teams but the Academy should win although a hard race from the starter's gun can be expected. Westerly and Wheeler were also slated to enter teams to represent the respective schools but the former were forced to withdraw because of the lack of financial support and the latter because of the small number of candidates.

The Chapman Tech and Stonington cross-country squads will be running their first meets of the season today Saturday. Tech has been practicing since the last of September, and will be represented by the following: Penn, acting captain; Kerr, Fanio, Rando, Ungerer, Green, Dimmock, Palmer, Lanzalotta, Zito and Senkow.

Stonington, who was champion of the meet two years ago in the first race, but who lost last year to Westerly, will send a strong squad of hill and dalers to the Rose of New England to compete for honors. Capt. Merrill of Stonington who recently covered the course in 11 minutes and 34 seconds should give a good account of himself.

The Academy will be running their second race of the season, having lost to Suffield Prep at Suffield earlier in the season. Sullivan, who finished first in that run will carry much of the Red and White's hopes in the meet. Clinton Robinson, recently elected captain of the team will also give a good exhibition. In addition to the above two the Academy will be represented by J. Sadinsky, Greene, Dynon, Sadinsky and Carpenter. Coach Sheridan has been training his charges hard in preparation for this meet and the Academy should show up well before the large crowd expected to jam every nook and corner of the field for today's contests.

Game To Be Photographed

The Academy-Bulkeley game and also the start and finish of the interscholastic cross-country run will be filmed by Joseph Reed who shot the Armistice day parade which is being shown at a local theatre. A special stand has been erected for Mr. Reed and his camera and it is expected that every play of the game will be recorded to be shown later in Norwich and also in New London.

To preserve order at the game this afternoon a squad of nine officers under Sergeant Matthew Delaney will be on hand to handle the enormous crowd.

TRADITIONAL RIVALS MEET TODAY AT STORRS FIELD

(Special to the Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 13.—The nineteenth annual football game between the Connecticut Aggies and Rhode Island State will be played at Storrs tomorrow in what will be the feature event of alumni homecoming day at the State college. The largest crowd of the season is expected to return to Storrs to see one of the Aggies' best football elevens meet Rhody.

Connecticut's preparations for the contest were completed with a light session of signal practice this afternoon. Practically every man on the Aggie squad is in excellent condition, and Coach Dole will be able to muster Connecticut's full strength for tomorrow's battle.

Tomorrow is "Walter Camp Day" at Storrs, also, and part of the gate receipts will be forwarded to the committee in charge of the project to erect a memorial gateway to the late Walter Camp, at the entrance to the Yale athletic field.

WCAC, the Connecticut Agricultural college radio station, will broadcast a play-by-play account of the game, beginning with the kickoff at two o'clock. Randolph Whapies of Newington, prominent football official in Eastern Connecticut scholastic circles, will do the announcing.

Connecticut will have a weight advantage over Rhode Island. The Aggie line averages 175 pounds from end to end, and the backfield quartette averages 175 pounds. The averages for the team as a whole is 175 pounds. Compared with this Rhode Island's line averages 163 pounds, the backfield 163 pounds, and the entire eleven 161 pounds. Thus far, Rhode Island has failed to show anything that would indicate it enjoys any advantage in speed, and it is doubtful if the Engineers have anyone in their lineup who can equal either Eddy or Williams in that respect.

Following practice this afternoon Coach Dole announced that his starting lineup tomorrow would be Wilson and Kennedy, ends; Longo and Sayers, tackles; Lorentzsen and Zollin, guards; Captain Daly, center; Schofield, quarterback; Eddy and Knaut, halfbacks; and Williams, fullback.

Rhode Island's starting lineup will be Intas and Blake, ends; Wardo and DeBucci, tackles; Gannon and Walker, guards; Conroy, center; Barber quarterback; Stevens and Brown, halfbacks and Townsend, fullback.

Officials selected for the contest are Williams of Wesleyan, referee; Dorman of Columbia, umpire; and Hadleton of Brown, head linesman. Time of quarters will be fifteen minutes each. The game will begin promptly at two o'clock.

HARVARD JUNIORS DEFEAT YALE SOPHOMORE TEAM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 13—(AP)—For the first time in four years a Harvard football team today won a victory over Yale. The victors were the Harvard junior class team who vanquished the Yale sophomore eleven Soldiers field, 13 to 0.

It was in 1922 that a Crimson football eleven last was able to down the Blue. In that year the varsity team captained by Charlie Buell turned back the Elis.

The Harvard junior eleven won the interclass championship of the university last week and the Yale sophomores had won similar honors at New Haven. Today's game decided the Yale-Harvard class title.

SEVERAL COLLEGES FAVOR AN EASTERN CONFERENCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—(AP)—Expressions of approval from two leading universities and a receptive attitude prevailing at three others today have added impetus to agitation for the launching of an eastern football conference as an outgrowth of the Princeton-Harvard break.

Taking the lead in the movement, Pennsylvania and Brown flied up in favor of organization. The position of the Philadelphia university was described to the Associated Press in a canvas of sentiment as approving the conference idea "provided all members have the same scholastic and athletic standards."

While no official statement was forthcoming from Brown athletic officials, the Brown Herald saw "no objection to an eastern conference composed of such colleges as Pennsylvania, Yale, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Army, Princeton, Navy, Columbia and Brown."

Taking the stand that the Harvard-Princeton break "clears the way for conference proposals," the Herald considered it "very possible to arrange some sort of 'round Robin' affair."

Undergraduate feeling at Columbia, Cornell and Dartmouth was described a sfavorable to the conference plan. This trio, together with Pennsylvania, already are committed to the organization idea in virtually all the other college sports.

Army and Navy athletic authorities, while indicating their readiness to discuss the projected league, were unwilling to express opinions, although word from the Naval Academy athletic office conveyed the information that Coach Bill Ingram "may consider the matter with other officials in New York" this week end.

West Point officials announced that "if such a proposal were made Army would of course take up the matter for discussion. The Army attitude, however, was that opinion would be reserved until the question had been officially presented.

OHIO-MICHIGAN IS TOP LINER IN WEST CONFERENCE

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—(AP)—A crowd which may turnout to be the largest in American football history will watch Ohio State battle Michigan tomorrow in the most important game of the western conference season, and Northwestern's biggest crowd will watch the Wildcat-Chicago tilt which is the other featured contest.

More than 80,000 spectators have been provided for at the Wolverine-Buckeye spectacle and there is a possibility that the figures will show an attendance greater than the 85,000 who saw Red Grange play his farewell college game in the Ohio State stadium a year ago. That game holds the present western conference attendance record.

Forty-seven thousand persons will crowd into Northwestern's unfinished stadium for Chicago's annual civil war between the Maroons and the Purple.

The Michigan-Ohio battle will eliminate one of three surviving contenders for conference honors, unless it ends in a tie, while Northwestern must conquer Chicago to keep its record clean. The former tilt is a toss-p with both teams employing a strong running and passing attack capable of spectacular football. Northwestern is a heavy favorite against the much beaten Chicago team, though it has won offly a single game from the Maroons in a dozen years.

Another big crowd will see Iowa meet Wisconsin at Madison, but the title race will not be affected by the outcome for both teams are trailing the pack.

CHAPMAN READY TO BOX ANY FEATHERWEIGHT CONTEND

BOSTON, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Red Chapman, Boston contender for the world's featherweight boxing championship, is ready to meet Benny Bass or any other opponent the New York state boxing commission may select for him. This announcement was made Roday by Charley Cardio, manager of Chapman. Cardio took the opportunity to deny emphatically a report that has been circulated, to the effect that Chapman would not fight in New York.

The New York commission on Tuesday recommended an elimination bout between Chapman and Bass and that the winner be pitted against the victor of the bout in Boston on Monday between Chick Suggs of New Bedford and Dick "Honeyboy" Finnegan of Boston. The featherweight title was relinquished several months ago by Louis "Kid" Kaplan.

Cardio said today that he had been in Maine and that upon his return he learned that rumors had been circulated to the effect that he would not sign Chapman to fight in New York.

"I will let Chapman box anyone who the New York boxing commission selects for him," he asserted. "Whoever sent that report out had no authority to do so. Chapman stands ready to box anybody in the world that the New York commission selects."

Cardio said that he would take up the matter with the New York commission at once and would send that body a denial of his reported unwillingness to match Chapman.

AMHERST TEAM TO BE CLAD IN SILKS TODAY

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 13—(AP)—Amherst football warriors will fall into line with the latest dictum of gridiron fashion-mongers when the backfield and ends start tomorrow's Little Three tilt ame against Williams clad in "silks."

Coach Harry White tonight announced that because of the cumbersome weight of the ordinary football pants the players in the speed positions on the Amherst eleven would be equipped with silken nether garments. The regulation pants weight five and one half pounds per pair, while the silks weigh but fifteen ounces.

Carney Gets Verdict.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 13—(AP)—Tony Carney, of New Bedford, was awarded a decision over Lew Parfetti, of New York in their ten-round bout tonight.

SPORTING NOTES

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—

Tod Morgan has three pounds to work off before he enters the ring at Madison Square Garden, Nov. 19, to defend his junior lightweight crown against Carl Duane of New York. The Seattle fighter today began tuning up at the garden.

Pauly, Washington & Jefferson's husky guard, Andal Lassman, Giant New York university tackle, have the support of Foster Sanford, advisory Rutgers football coach, as candidates for all-American honors. Lafayette, which beat Rutgers by 27-0 and has conquered all opposition so far, is regarded by Sanford as the strongest team in the country.

The Yale Bulldog and the Princeton Tiger will receive about $5,000 per minute for each of the sixty minutes of the annual scrap Saturday. The seating capacity of Palmer stadium is 60,000; the price of each ticket is $5, and even the best of football games only consumes an hour of actual competition.

CLIMAX OF EASTERN FOOTBALL IN MANY GAMES IS REACHED TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—(AP)—The conflict along the eastern football front reaches its grand climax tomorrow in as imposing and spectacular a series of engagements as ever have been slated for a single November afternoon.

No group of gridirons in any sector has held forth prospects of more stirring or colorful strife than that which finds Princeton fighting against Yale for the last championship on the "big three". Army's stalwarts meeting the flashy Notre Dame eleven in a battle of unbeaten teams involving national honors; Navy and Brown fighting to keep undefeated records intact against Georgetown and Harvard, and such traditional rivals battling as Cornell and Dartmouth, Colgate and Syracuse, Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson, Columbia and Pennsylvania, Williams and Amherst.

Close to 400,000 spectators will witness these nine games, an all-star assortment of skirmishes that blends historic rivalries with championship aspirations of national as well as sectional importance. More than 70,000 are expected to pack the Yankee stadium for the Army-Notre Dame battle, intersectional classic of the year, while crowds of from 50,000 to 60,000 each will likely witness the Harvard-Brown, Princeton-Yale, Pennsylvania-Columbia and Pitt- W. and J., contests in widely scattered stadiums.

These colorful combats hold the major share of interest but there will be no lack of enthusiasm over a host of other games, five of which will see unbeaten teams in action. Of these Boston college, facing the invasion of the Haskell Indians, figures to encounter the strongest opposition. The others find Maine favored to ship New Hampshire, Lafayette facing secondary opposition in Susquehanna, New York university expected to trim Davs-Elkns and Holy Cross rated superior to Catholic university.

Notre Dame's first and only eastern sorite this year finds New York whipped to an unusual pitch of excitement, it is also the Army's only appearance in Gotham this fall and the colorful maneuvres of the Cadets provide an additional magnet, although none apparently is needed for what promises to be a spectacular tussle of east and west.

Army has the same veterans who overwhelmed the Hoosiers last year, 27 to 0, re-inforced by two new backfield stars, Cagle and Murrell, "but Rockne has brought east a much more experienced and resourceful outfit than he directed in 1925. Army's seasoned brawn, well handled and versatile, is conceded an edge but Notre Dame's speed and passing attack may offset the driving power of the Cadet machine.

Princeton, apparently having found itself last week in its last skirmish with Harvard, is favored to top off its "big three" farewell with a triumph over Yale. The well-knit Tiger forward wall, supported by the all-round work of Jake Slagle, appears too strong a combination for the Elis, who have been handicapped by injuries from the start of the season and lost their last three games without scoring a point. If Larry Noble is able to carry a fair share of the attack Yale may show such a reversal as Princeton did upon Slagle's return but the chances do not favor it as the Elis gather at old Nassau for the fiftieth game of the Tiger-Bulldog series.

The Navy, like the Army, is serious to keep its slate clean preparatory to the annual service battle at Chicago but, it probably will take the full strength of the midshipmen to overcome Georgetown. Fresh from a triumph over Syracuse, the Hilltoppers are anxious to check Navy's rush but it will take an exceptional offensive to break through the middle forward wall and an unusual defense to stop the versatile drive of the sailor ballcarriers.

Brown's rugged cast, having conquered Yale and Dartmouth in a march that has placed the unbeaten Providence team around the top of the eastern heap, expects to take Harvard's measure, if the Crimson employes its full forces, with the Yale game only a week off, it figures to give the Bruins their stiffest test. Brown is the favorite but not by an overwhelming margin.

The twin classics of New York state's gridirons, Cornell-Dartmouth at Ithaca and Syracuse-Colgate at Syracuse, appear to be toss-ups. All have tasted adversity this fall and all are anxious to recoup prestige.

Washington and Jefferson opposes Pittsburgh in the Panther lair in another tilt that promises to be close and hard fought. The Presidents have the more impressive record but Pitt has a habit of upsetting forecasts. Pennsylvania, likewise, is a favorite over Columbia in their battle at Franklin field but the New Yorkers, having upset Cornell, are thirsty for more gridiron glory. West Virginia appears too strong, in spite of recent reverses, for a Centre team that fails to measure up to the standard of Bo Macmillan's palmy days while Penn State is expected to trim Bucknell.

The climax of another sectional classic, the New England "little three" finds Amherst favored to down Williams and keep the title another year. Principal games tomorrow and last year's scores:

Yale at Princeton 12-35.
Dartmouth at Cornell 6-13.
Brown at Harvard 0-3.
Colgate at Syracuse 19-6.
Georgetown at Navy, no game.
Williams at Amherst 7-13.
Haskell Indians at Boston College 6-7.
Maine at New Hampshire 0-0.
Bowdoin at Wesleyan 14-6.
Catholic University at Holy Cross, no game.
Columbia at Pennsylvania, no game.
Susquehanna at Lafayette 0-47.
Dickinson-Muhlenberg at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. 0-0.
Rutgers at Lehigh 0-7.
Washington and Jefferson at Pittsburgh 0-6.
Bucknell at Penn State, no game.
Centre at West Virginia, no game.
Davis-Elkins at New York university, no game.

HARVARD WINS "BIG THREE" CROSS COUNTRY

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 12.—(AP)—No evidence of friction between Princeton and Harvard harriers was apparent as Harvard, for the second successive season today defeated Yale and Princeton in the annual triangular cross-country run. The Crimson hill and dalers had a total of 25 points Yale was second with 31 points and Princeton third with 64.

The first two men in were Captain Smith and Briggs of Yale. Smith's time was 27:57 2-5 and Briggs trailed by 200 yards in 28:18 2-5. Then came Reid, Captain Haggerty, Flaxman, Novogorod and King, of the Crimson, Hayes and Ingham, of the Blue and Mayhew of Harvard. Wells, first Princeton man in, was twelfth, trailing Gordon, of Harvard.

The race was over Yale's new five and a half mile course. Just before the starting gun, Captains Myrick, of Princeton and Haggerty of Harvard shook hands before the camera, then both shook hands with Captain Smith of Yale.

COLLINS IS GIVEN AN UNCONDITIONAL RELEASE

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Eddie Collins, deposed manager of the Chicago White Sox, hopes that he will be given his unconditional release by President Comiskey.

Collins received formal notification tonight at his home in Landdowne of his release. He said his financial relations with the White Sox had always been satisfactory and that he would leave the club "without any malice." He added that he had made no plans for the future.

"I was formally notified by the White Sox tonight of my release," said Collins, "and they also declare that they had asked waivers on me, and that I would be made a free agent if the waivers were granted. I only trust that all clubs waive on me so that I would be fre to deal with any club that I desire."

"I wish to say that I have no idea of what my future in baseball will be and that I have not negotiated with any club."

LORD BEATS DAY FOR STATE TITLE

WATERBURY, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Eddie Lord, of Meriden, won the mythical state lightweight championship here tonight by defeating Georgie Day, of New Haven in the feature 10-round bout of the Sedgewick Guards card.

The bout, hard fought, found Lord the aggressor throughout and the verdict of Referee Young McAuliffe, was a popular one. Lord weighed 131, Day 134.

Johnny O'Keefe, of Hartford, won the decision over Mike Genaro, of Waterbury in another eight-round bout. O'Keefe weighed 128; Genaro 129 1-2.

Baby Doll won the verdict over Red Garren in the opening bout of the night of six rounds. Both boys are graduates of the local amateur ranks. Doll weighed 128 1-2, Garren 131 1-2.

SILVERS OUTPOINTED FRIEDMAN IN ANSONIA BOUT

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Herman "Kid" Silvers, of Ansonia, outpointed Felix Friedman, of Germany in the feature 8-round bout of the Acorn A. C. card here tonight. Silvers weighed 121 pounds and his opponent 122. In the semi-final Steve Culver was given the decision over Johnny Mason after eight rounds of fast fighting. Both boxers are from Bridgeport.

In the other bouts, Willie Mack of Stamford, outpointed Kid Dube, of Lewiston, Me.; Henry Di Julio, of Bridgeport won from Frankie Cavanaugh, of Fairfield and Eddie De Mosko, of New Haven was awarded the decision over Jack Dess.

N. Y. COMMISSION BARS SHARKEY-LYNCH BOUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)—Efforts of Joe Lynch and Jack Sharkey, well known New York bantams, to renew the oldest rivalry in pugilism between boxers of national reputation have been checkmated by New York boxing officials.

Although both are only 23, the state athletic commission has decided that neither is now fit for ring action.

The feud dates back ten years, the pair clashing in their first battle under the old no-decision Frawley law. The bout went the limit but later Lynch stopped sharkey in fifteen rounds.

Lynch held the bantamweight championship in 1920-21 and 1922-24.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

There are five Keith-Albee acts scheduled featuring Joe Jenny and his Famous Comedy Four, America's funniest quartette in their original comedy creation.

"The Belle of Broadway," a Columbia Pictures' film feature based on the Broadway stage success, "Adele," which will open at the Broadway theatre on Monday presents Betty Compson as the star of the production and Herbert Rawlinson as leading man.

The production according to reports has a pleasing vein of comedy in which the noted character actor, Tom Ricketts, plays a prominent part. Albert Roccardi, Armand Kalis, Edith Yorke, Wilfrid North, Edward Warren, Edward Kipling and Auguste Tollaire compose the balance of an excellent cast.

Broadway Theatre

A line used in conjunction with the announcement of "The Earth Woman," announced as the attraction at the Broadway theatre for one day, Sunday only, is particularly descriptive of the character of the story. The line is: "A Photoplay Tribute to Valiant Mothers of Fighting Men."

"The Earth Woman" has to do with the heroic struggle of a sturdy pioneering woman upon whose shoulders has fallen the terrific burden of winning a living for herself and family from the stubborn western prairies and fighting to insure the future happiness of her children.

Mary Alden has the title role. Priscilla Bonner is the winsome daughter of the family about which the juvenile love interest centers. Johnnie Walker is the hero of the story and William Scott the deep-dyed villian.

"The Great Sensation" is the title of the newest Perfection production released by Columbia which will be seen as the second feature Sunday only. It is a fast action speed drama dealing with the adventures of a girl who seeks for thrills. Starring in "The Great Sensation" is the popular actor-athlete, William Fairbanks, in one of his favorite roles. Co-starring with "Big Bill" as the fans know him, is lovely Pauline Garon, filmdom's favorite flapper. Others in the cast are: Lloyd Whitlock, William Franey, Winifred Landis, Adelaide Hallock, William McLaughlin and Pauline Pacquette.

Strand Theater

Those who enjoy rattling fast melodrama well spiced with comedy and cooked to a nice brown turn in the scorching sun of the Arizona deserts will find in The Arizona Streak a dish distinctly to their taste—and they better partake of it now, before it disappears from the menu of the Strand theater Sunday. The Arizona Streak has as its star the personable Tom Tyler, who is cutting a swathe in feminine hearts as wide as the Mississippi river. Tom has risen almost overnight into a proud position among western luminaries, and he richly deserves his prominence. He is fortunate in the choice of his vehicles. Born to Battle was a corker, and his latest production, written by F. A. E. Pine, is equally as good if not better.

William Fairbanks is the co-star of The Great Sensation, Columbia's Perfection series release in the latest group of high-powered thrillers. The popular young athlete is on his toes from beginning to end in all his features and this role of a crook-chasing society hero disguised as a chauffeur should prove exciting. Pauline Garon has the feminine lead in The Great Sensation which comes to the Strand theater on Sunday as the second feature. A new comedy will complete the program.

Palace Theater

For years Broadway claimed Eddie Cantor as its own. A million and a quarter people saw the musical comedy star in Kid Boots during its three-year New York run.

Now, Paramount, through the medium of a superb motion picture version of Florenz Ziegfeld's Kid Boots, has brought the much lauded show and its star to the screen. Kid Boots opens at the Palace theater Sunday evening.

Cantor himself is authority for the statement that the screen offers far greater comedy possibilities than the stage. The critical public has acclaimed Kid Boots enthusiastically wherever it has been shown, lauding the film as the year's most convincing laugh compeller.

Clara Bow is as subtly impertinent and refreshing as ever as the swimming instructress, and Kid Boots introduces the heroine of Mantrap in a new surprise to her fans—a bathing suit. Other featured players include lovely Billie Dove, and handsome Lawrence Gray. Frank Tuttle directed from Tom Gibson's screen play.

Under no circumstances should you miss Rin-Tin-Tin's latest Warner picture, A Hero of the Big Snows, which opened at the Palace theater.

In this Ernest Agamson story, so perfectly directed by Herman Raymaker, Rinty reaches the highest point in his successful career as the canine star of the films. Never has he given a performance that so rivaled that of any human star in its intelligence and force.

There are some beautiful shots of the Canadian snows and enough thrills to satisfy the most jaded of picture-goers.

Complete pictures and scenes and various views of the great Armistice day parade and celebration, taken specially by a Pathe camera man for this event will be shown Sunday night, in addition to the regular program, starring Eddie Cantor in Kid Boots.

Connecticut College Concert

The name of Lucrezia Bori has come to mean the ultimate in musical artistry, in perfect singing, in the embodiment of all we imagine the most beautiful and charming songstress to be. As W. J. Henderson wrote in the New York Sun: She is a vision. This gracious and glowing figure, (Juliet) with all the illusions of southern girlhood bursting into flower of womanhood, radiant of hair, lustrous of eye, supple of form and vocal with the passionate utterances of sudden love, is one of the most beautiful the Metropolitan stage has ever known.

Connecticut college has done a great service in bringing this wonderful artist to the New London state armory next Tuesday evening.

Wonderful Poem In Pictures at Y. M. C. A.

At 4 o'clock Sunday at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. one of the choicest poems of Edgar Allan Poe will be portrayed in a five reel feature moving picture. The title of the poem is "Annabelle Lee."

This is an exquisite production of a great poet, and the theme that carried throughout is that sincerity must win over pretense; it depicts in a most marvelous way the undying affection of one person for another, and withal impresses a lesson that people need to learn. Critics say that this is a poem more highly characteristic of the gifted and lamented author than some others he wrote. The original of the poem is now in the J. Pierpont Morgan collection in connection with its portrayal the poem will be read and brief remarks made. Hugh Rhoder will furnish the music. Both men and women are invited, and boys and girls fourteen and over will be admitted.

A history of the development and growth of Westerly waterworks was presented in a paper by Thomas McKenzie, superintendent of the Westerly waterworks. He traced the history of that department, so essential to the health and comfort of the citizens of the town, from the earliest days to the present when the new beds opened at White Rock are beginning to supply water to Westerly.

Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion observed its annual Armistice day ball on Thursday evening at the Westerly town hall, when dancing was enjoyed from 8 o'clock until midnight by the large number in attendance.

Westerly chapter of the American Red Cross on Friday began its annual roll call which will continue until Thanksgiving day, in the national campaign, while in Westerly plans are underway for its culmination in a week's time.

On Friday morning Mrs. C. Byron Cottrell, who has the assistance of Miss Elizabeth Haswell in the supervising of the women's teams, announced the following teams and captains:

The team organizations were not all completed today, but it is expected that by Saturday or Sunday, at the latest, they will be. The teams already formed started work Friday. Headquarters have been established, through the courtesy of the Colonial club, in the music room of the club, and here the officials will hold forth each day from 3 to 4.30 o'clock, during the intensive part of the drive.

Added impetus is given to the drive this year because of the shrinking condition of the treasury of the Westerly chapter. Each year Westerly has done well, even above the average of other towns of its size, in collecting names for membership, but even with the glory of past seasons, sufficient funds have not been obtained to counteract the expenses of local work each year. Of course, as has been started, 50 cents of each membership fee must go to the national headquarters, the remainder being devoted to local work.

Burial of Jacob Catte, former Westerly stone cutter and who resided, corner of High street and Railroad avenue, who died a year ago last month in Breno, Italy, while on a visit, took place Thursday in River Bend cemetery. Mrs. Catte accompanied the body from Italy and arrived here with it at 3.34 a. m. Thursday on the New York to Boston express. The committal service at the grave was read by the Rev. Fr. Henry Bruno.

Rev. Henry Bruno, M. S., read the committal service. The bearers were Victor Gervasini, Arthur Fraquelli, Charles Fontana, Thomas Fontana, Angelo Parnigoni and Joseph Monti.

A continuation of the series of bridge matches between the teams of the Westerly Masonic club and the Mistuxet club of Stonington was won on Thursday evening by the former team in their club rooms on High street by a margin of 2275 points.

The scores follow:

Mistuxet, Hyde, Carson, 3233; Masonic, Chapman, Stahle 2816.

In a recent economy driving test in Chicago 1308 contestants averaged 31.8 miles per gallon . . . the winner averaged 47.2 miles per gallon. And scores of Whippets were sold as the result of this demonstration.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

The election in Norwich 50 years ago was a victory for the republican party. The local republicans carried the entire national, state and local tickets. A despatch received here at 10 o'clock election night announced that the New York Times had viewed Hayes' election as certain. Excitement in Norwich ran high over the results of the election. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Bulletin of November, 1876, are as follows:

Monday, Nov. 6, 1876—The republicans of Taftville have a grand celebration tonight, and have invited the Norwich Boys in Blue to assist them. Taftville hospitality is well known and everyone who goes there will have a good time.

John Luca, at the Falls, an active democrat, had prepared some seventy torch lamps for the cavalry trots Saturday and piled them on his porch. His boy got to fooling with them and set them on fire. They all blazed up so that the fire department was called out. Nearly all the lamps were spoiled for further use and the boy got a tremendous trouncing. No wonder. The democrats had hard work to get torches Saturday night.

The Norwich Rifle club has received a special invitation to participate in the matches, of the Connecticut Rifle association, to take place in Willowbrook range, Berlin, Saturday, November 11th. Many valuable prizes are to be given.

Tuesday, Nov. 7, 1876—We are informed that Mr. Waller is trading votes in the lower part of the county, giving representatives for one, Col. Loomis for one and the state ticket below him for one. But the last indications are that he can't carry even his own town.

Political excitement has been kindled among the students of the Free academy. Of the 70 or more young ladies in the school, all but seven are pronounced republicans. Who now dares to say that Hayes will not be elected?

The republicans have evidence that democratic fraud is intended. Let every democrat voting fraudulently remember the penalty of the law!

The republicans made a fine parade in Taftville last night. Three hundred men went up from the city by special train and enjoyed Taftville hospitality.

Wednesday, Nov. 8, 1876—The election passed off very quietly in this city. Of course several little altercations occurred which were nipped promptly, however, before reaching the dignity of arrests. The result of the election in Norwich will be found below:

Thursday, Nov. 9, 1876—The Election—The democrats had arranged for a great demonstration but later news caused them to cancel their engagement with the band they had secured.

At 10 o'clock the following despatch was received:

Hartford, Conn., 9:55 p. m.

Silas T. Stanton,

The New York Times says Hayes is certainly elected. H. T. Sperry, chairman state central committee.

In connection with the new city by-laws the saloon keepers were notified yesterday morning by the police to close at 11 p. m. to which most of them responded.

Friday, Nov. 10, 1876—Excitement over the election ran high all day yesterday and every despatch was received with great demonstrations. Durink the evening Main street was crowded in the vicinity of the telegraph offices, the sidewalks being almost impassible.

The New York Comedy company, said to be one of the best traveling will appear in Breed hall on the evening of November 18th.

The water in the city reservoir is seven feet and 10 inches below high water mark.

The Ledyard representative is Noyes B. Allen, republican.

The Rev. C. C. McCabe of Chicago and familiarly known as "Captain McCabe" will lecture in Breed hall Monday evening next on the subject "Sunny Side of Life in Libby Prison."

Saturday, Nov. 11, 1876—The annual meeting of the Norwich Provident association will be held at the mayor's office in this city Monday evening, November 13, at half past seven o'clock. The meeting is for the purpose of choosing officers for the ensuing year.

It is currently reported that the ballot box in Canterbury was carried out to an old gentleman to enable him to vote. Wouldn't it be well after this to run a carriage from door to door?

The excitement over the election continued yesterday. The democrats were jubilant in the morning and the republicans in the afternoon. There was no expression of hard feeling however, but a general feeling that a fair election would be accepted.

The Old Folks

Somewhere they are sitting—thinking. Resting in some quiet place, off the main road of life—waiting. Thinking of the good old days—thinking of you—wondering what you are doing. Waiting to hear from you. Wondering how you look now. Wishing they could see you.

Have they a good portrait of you? But when was it taken? Not recently. Imagine them, with trembling hands, opening a big flat package and taking out a splendid likeness of you!

It's such a little trouble, and it would mean so much to them at Thanksgiving. Now is the time for an appointment.

When the Year Grows Old

I cannot but remember
When the year grows old
October, November
How she disliked the cold,

She used to watch the swallows
Go down across the sky
And turn from the window
With a sharp little sigh.

And often when the brown leaves
Were brittle on the ground
And the wind in the chimney
Made a melancholy sound.

She had a look about her
That I wish I could forget
The look of a scared thing
Sitting in a net!

Oh! beautiful at nightfall
The soft spitting snow!
And beautiful the bare boughs
Rubbing to and fro!

But the roaring of the fire,
And the warmth of the fur,
And the boiling of the kettle
Were beautiful to her!

I cannot but remember
When the year grows old,
October, November
How she disliked the cold!

A Legend

There has come to my mind a legend,
a thing I had half forgot,
And weather I read it or dreamed it,
ah well, it matters not.
It is said that in Heaven at twilight,
a great bell softly swings,
And man may listen and hearken to the wonderful music that rings.
If his puts from his heart's inner chamber all the passion, pain and strife,

Heartache and weary longing that throb in the pulses of life,
If he thrust from his soul all hatred,
all thoughts of wicked things,
He can hear in the holy twilight, how the bell of the angel rings.
And I think there lies in this legend,
if we open our eyes to all,

Somewhat of an inner meaning, my friend to you and to me,
Let us look in our heart's and question, can pure thoughts enter in
To a soul if it be already the dwelling of thoughts of sin?
So then, let us ponder a little—let us look in our hearts and see
If the twilight bell of the angels could ring for us—you and me.

FOR THANKSGIVING DINNER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The Thanksgiving dinner has always been an important affair, and, although it is not in its modern form as ponderous in character as it used to be, it still retains much of its ceremoniousness. Perhaps it will be of interest to housewives everywhere to know just the main points of difference between the old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner and the modern one.

We first cite the old fashioned New England dinner because of its simplicity, because of its heartiness, because of its bringing the family together and still more because of its abundant and generous hospitality. Invitations were sent out some months in advance. It was a day for the old folks when the children and grandchildren, some living a distance away, were sure to be "at home," as they called it. Knowing what a gala time they would have during holiday week. The house was fairly turned upside down for the much wished for guests who were sure to be on hand for the festal occasion. At that time, in New England, Thanksgiving day was given as much consideration as Christmas and looked upon with as much favor. The menu for a Thanksgiving dinner of that period ran something like this

Oysters on the Half Shell
Beef and Vegetable Soup
Roast Turkey
Giblet Sauce Oyster Sauce
Mashed Potato Boiled Onions
Cranberry Sauce Celery
Pumpkin Pie English Dairy Cheese
Fruit Nuts Raisins
Coffee

In preparing the various dishes of this menu one may proceed as follows:

Every one knows how to prepare oysters on the half shell.

Beef soup with vegetables: For this highly nutritious soup the shin of beef is the best. To make a generous quantity two pounds, including the bone, will be needed. Wipe with a damp cloth and put in the soup kettle with two quarts of water and a teaspoon of salt. Let simmer gently and slowly for five hours until the meat is cooked to shreds. Strain let stand in a cool place over night. In the morning remove all the fat and return to the soup kettle with one can of tomatoes and the following vegetables peeled and cut in dice: One turnip, two carrots, one parsnip, (all medium size), one celery root, two onions and one large potato. Cook very slowly for about an hour, or until the vegetables are tender; then season to taste and serve.

The shin of beef is 20 cents a pound, which of course makes an inexpensive soup. It serves eight people.

Roast Turkey: For the turkey a young hen is the better. Make the stuffing with two large cups of stale bread crumbs, two tablespoons of melted butter, two tablespoons of parsley and salt, pepper and poultry seasoning to taste.

Giblet Sauce: Put the giblets in a sauce pan with cold water and simmer until thoroughly tender, then chop fine by grinding through chopper, using finest cutter. Thicken the liquor when they are boiled in using one tablespoon of flour for 1 cup, and mixing the flour with a little cold water until very smooth. After the turkey is removed from the oven, add this sauce and giblets to the fat, stir until the mixture boils and serve in a gravy boat.

Oyster Sauce: Take care that the oysters are freshly opened and are the best quality. For 25 oysters allow 1-2 cup each of cream and of milk, 1 tablespoon of butter and 2 tablespoons flour. Separate the oysters from the liquor and place the liquor in a granite kettle. Heat and strain, then return to the fire, add the oysters, then remove with a skimmer. In another sauce pan cook the butter, and flour, until smooth, then add the cream and the milk and continue stirring until the mixture boils. Add the oyster liquor and when all is smooth and well blended, add the oysters and season with salt and white pepper.

Cranberry Sauce: Wash and pick over cranberries, put them in pan with 2 tablespoons salt and water to cover. Let stand 2 hours, then pour off water, rinse and with every 1-2 cup of sugar allow 1 cup of the berries and 1 cup of water (boiling) to each cup of berries. Cover and let boil gently until berries are soft and well cooked. Remove all the scum from the surface. Serve when cool but not cold.

Pumpkin Pie: Choose a pumpkin of a good weight for its size. Pare and cut into small pieces about an inch square, place in a steamer and steam until done. Then pass through a fine sieve. To 1 cup pumpkin add 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs well beaten until smooth, 1 cup cream, 1 teaspoon each ground cinnamon and nutmeg, 3-4 teaspoon mace. Line deep pie plate with a rich crust, fill with mixture and bake in a moderate oven. Serve cold with the cheese cut into cubes.

KITTY LOU.

AN APPRECIATIVE PIGEON

Dear Social Corner: A November greeting to all the Cornerites.

Well, we have had four rainy Sundays, this past month and I hope to see the bright sunshine next Sunday morning. We are on our last fall month and winter will soon be with us, but we haven't had our Indian summer yet. Then we may get a few warm sunny days. I hope so anyway, for it has rained about every other day the past month.

Now I am going to tell about a carrier pigeon that is making his headquarters at Smith Home corner of Union and Masonic street. He was picked up on the grounds in a disabled condition. There were lacerations under both wings and the feathers were torn from his neck as though his head had been caught by some animal. That was the sixth of last Sept. It was some time before he could fly, but since he recovered so he could fly, he has had his liberty and goes away for two or three days and then comes back to be fed. He is all right now. He has a silver band on one leg with letters and figures on it and anyone who can tell what they are can claim him. He is taken around the house about once a week for the old ladies to pet him and seems to like it. He will sit on the caretaker's shoulder and is very tame. He evidently feels grateful for the kind treatment he has received in his adopted home or he would not go away, and return to it as he does. He is a dear little fellow, and all are fond of him in the home.

A duck, a frog, and a skunk went to a circus and had to have a dollar to get in. Which got in and which didn't? The duck got in because he had a bill, the frog got in on his greenback, but the poor old skunk couldn't get in because he only had a scent and it was a bad one.

Theoda: I am wondering why you did not have the picnic at Ocean Beach this summer as you have in several seasons past, I missed it because that is the only one I could attend. All the others are too far away.

Good luck to all the writers and friends of the Corner is the wish of DOM PEDRO.

LONG ENJOYED THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Friends: While I have enjoyed the Social Corner for many years it was only after I had been invited to attend one of the meetings and met several old friends that I decided to write and also become a member.

I enjoyed the letter by Ma of Greene Gables and her interesting story of the old church at Brooklyn. I have long admired that little church and was glad to know some of its history.

Black Eyed Susie: You see I have written at last. My invalids are better, thank you.

Nanny Lou: Love to you all.

Amy: I am sending these recipes for brown sugar frosting, hoping they will suit you.

Nut Caramel Frosting: 1 1-4 cups brown sugar, 1-4 cup white sugar, 1-3 cup water. Whites of two eggs, one will do but it isn't so nice, 1-4 cup nuts, vanilla. Boil sugar and water until it spins a thread. Pour gradually, beating constantly on beaten egg whites. Beat until nearly cool. Set pan containing mixture in pan of hot water on range, cook, stirring constantly until it becomes granular around edge of pan. Remove from hot water heat until it holds it's shape. Add nuts and vanilla.

Opera Caramel Frosting: 1 1-2 cups brown sugar, 3-4 cups rich milk or thin cream, 1-2 tablespoon butter. Boil ingredients together in smooth saucepan until a ball is formed when tried in cold water. Beat until of right consistency, it takes about 40 minutes for boiling.

MUCH TO BE THANKFUL FOR

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: What funny weather we are having! Thanksgiving will be here before long now and I think we all have a good many things to be thankful for. Let us all pray for peace the 11th of this month.

Speaking about cats I have a picture of a cat that belongs to a lady in Winthrop, Mass., called Micky and he is 23 years old. I am very fond of cats. A sister I live with has a coon cat. He is yellow and white and his name is Fluffy.

Rhody Louise: Sorry to hear such bad news. Hope to see you later.

Kitty Lou: How are you these days? Eat a good Thanksgiving dinner.

Aries: Received card. Thanks for the card and also for the address of the Humane society. Think I will join the society some day when I can.

Best wishes to Social Corner editor and sisters.

ANENT MEMORIES

Dear Editor and Friends: Eulieka has written on Memories. What a blessed word! Some are sad and some are glad memories. While pondering this subject, in my mind rose images of good women who used to teach us children in day school and Sabbath school. Such patience they had. How grateful to them I am today for the seed planted in our minds over 40 years ago. I wonder what has become of some of my school instructors. There were Miss Clark, Miss Arnold, and Miss Dale from New England who taught at Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Brangdon in the training school of Normal college at New York city. Do any of our number know of any of these ladies?

It seems to me we do not fully appreciate the influence our school teachers have on the minds of our young people. I send a poem I read recently and hope our editor will print it while we have this subject in mind.

CATS ONCE MORE AND THANKSGIVING

Dear Social Corner Friends and Editor: For a week I had on hand, with the intention of including it in a letter to our page, a clipping telling an incident in which a cat is the chief action, when one of the sisters (I think Dom Pedro) told the very interesting story of her cat and the canary. This clipping tells a story very similar, but the cat is quite a hero, a bird-saver, stead of the treacherous creature those who dislike cats would have us believe them to be.

I quote the little story just as it is printed in I Record Only Sunny Hours department of the Christian Science Monitor. Under this heading, only true stories, sent in by special correspondents in different parts of the world, are given. This one comes from Newton, Mass.

"A canary and a big black cat lived in the same home in an unusual and happy companionship. Their mistress was accustomed to let the bird out of its cage, and it would fly about the room at will, while the cat dozed on a rug or couch, or eyed it benevolently as it flitted here and there.

"One warm day in early spring the bird was flying about in a room, the outside door of which was slightly ajar. The cat was lying on the floor near the mistress who sat sewing at the farther end of the room. Suddenly the cat gave a jump, and before the horrified mistress could intervene, he had pounced upon the bird and grabbed it in his mouth. Could it be, the mistress thought, that he had proved treacherous at last, as the neighbors had so often prophesied would be the case?

"But no,—for walking over to his mistress, the cat gently laid the bird in her lap, unharmed, and then turned to chase out of the room a strange cat which had slunk in through the open door."

This certainly shows what loving and intelligent treatment will make of a cat.

For my part, I think a home is not complete without a cat, purring before the kitchen fire, with the tea kettle sending forth a column of white seeming to say, "Come it's time to prepare tea. The folks'll be here in no time now." And Madame Cat chimes in, "Yes, they'll soon be here, and there'll be a nice saucer o milk for me and maybe a bit of salmon if I'm in luck."

And while we fussy people (I'm one) may not like to get our clothes all hairs, or have pussy's feet, that have been in the coalbin, a half hour before, on our favorite easy chair, still, which one of us that has a cat for a friend, has not said, on seeing puss curled up a soft furry ball, sound asleep in our best-loved arm chair, "Now it's a shame to disturb this friend of mine," and sometimes we don't, and sometimes, tired, we do, with a slight qualm of conscience.

As I look back to earliest childhood days, I see one cat friend after another, a procession of humble but faithful and cherished friends.

In a few weeks all good "haustraus" will be in the midst of preparations for the Thanksgiving feast. May it be a day of plenty for all, a day of thankful hearts, a day when those, who are themselves lonely and longing for their loved ones far away, may yet rejoice in spirit at thought of the many happy gatherings throughout the land, silver-haired men and women sitting down with their sons and daughters and grandchildren, rejoicing that all the family are once more together under one roof. That there may be many such gatherings among the Cornerites and that the most lonely among them may find good cheer and causes for thankfulness is the sincere wish of

PEDESTRIAN.

GREETINGS FROM KOCHIE

Dear Social Corner Friends: Some time since I have written. Today (Sunday) seems much like Indian summer and I want to say I have not forgotten some of the dear writers.

Peggy Alder: What's the trouble? Do not hear a word from you way up in East Killingly. Trust you are not ill.

Grandma Gray: Certainly did enjoy your last letter on your delightful trip at Quonocontaug. So many pleasant vacations I have spent at that beach and many changes and improvements have taken place since my first going there.

Joan: I wish I could play the piano as you can, and some day before many moons I will make myself better known to you, so you wont be in such a suspense as to whether I am he or she, or she is he.

Cretia: A short time ago I was in your city on my way to Springfield and it never rained, I don't think, any harder than it did that day. So it was no time to call.

Balsam Fir: Received your card; many thanks. Your daughter and her friend Anna were out a few days ago and spent the afternoon. We had a great time, and did we do any talking? I should say not.

What has become of the one who signed her name Flat Rock? I hope they did not explore that cave up there and become lost.

Historian: They tell me you have installed a lighting plant, and now the mansion on the hill sends forth the beacon light to guide the weary traveler on his way.

Rural Aunty: How are you these days? Trust you are in the best of spirits and enjoying every minute of this wonderful life of ours.

RECIPES TO TRY

Dear Corner Members: Are you looking for some good recipes to try?

Warm Apple Pudding for Thanksgiving: 1-2 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 1-2 cup flour, two eggs, 1-2 cup sweet milk, 2 teaspoons B. P. Method—Beat sugar with butter, add flour, sifted with baking powder, eggs, milk, grease dish, sprinkle with bread crumbs, pare, core and slice apples and lay over bread crumbs. Then pour the previous batter over all and bake, 30 to 45 minutes.

Mammy's Cooked Rice: 1 cup rice, 1 1-2 teaspoon salt. When water is boiling sprinkle in salt, when salted water is boiling sprinkle in kernels so they will dance, 25 minutes. Drain by pouring through strainer and rince by pouring cold water on it. Put sieve with rice over a kettle of boiling water. Every kernel will steam and be separate.

Prize Cherry Pie and Pastry: Sift together three times three cups of flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar. Then work in one cup of lard with this until like meal, wet up with one-half cup of milk. When rolled go over the top with one teaspoon of milk and butter, melted together. Have had three prizes for this pastry.

Filling for Mock Cherry Pie: Delicious: two cups cranberries, two cups maple syrup, one-half teaspoon butter. Put this between two crusts and bake until brown.

Oeuf Mollet Flamanade: Pink salmon one can, one soft-boiled egg, one teaspoon melted butter.

Timbale cases ready to fill: Three-quarters cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar, two egg yolks, one tablespoon melted butter, five-eighths cup milk. Sift flour, salt and sugar three times, add yolks and butter, strain, stand over night. Dip hot timbale iron into butter, lower into deep fat, cook until brown, drain.

Take salmon, warm up with butter, chop fine, fill cases, place peeled egg diagonally across the center. Surround with roser of cervel puree. It costs 50 cents, takes 25 minutes and will serve six people.

GREETINGS FROM MAVIS

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: I have been trying to write a letter for several weeks but sometimes I don't get time to sit down and write after I get my paper Wednesday and I like to read the letters before I write of course. I have to get my letter mailed on Thursday or it will not get into the Bulletin the week I write it.

I was very glad to note that Amy was able to preside at Club No. 1's meeting Oct. 12, also that sister Betty T. is getting along so nicely.

Lucille, Wild Rose, Theoda and Whirlwind: Where have you been that you have not written for so long a time?

Forgive: I am still in the "land of the living" but have been pretty busy helping get ready for our O. E. S. fair which was held in Odd Fellow's temple last Saturday afternoon and evening. Supper was served from 5:30 to 7 o'clock after which we had a fine entertainment.

Crimson Rambler: We do not hear from you very often. I suppose you are getting everything fixed up snug for winter. How have you been, is your rheumatism better?

How is Delilah Deal? Do any of the sisters see her occasionally?

Antenna: How are you since your fall? I hope you are all right by now. I was glad to see your recipe for quince honey. I used to make it but had forgotten how much sugar to use. I was told to put the whole quince through the food chopper, skin, seeds and all but my folks do not like the seeds in the honey so I cook them separately and strain, measure the water and add to the other ingredients. It makes the honey look clearer. I have made peach honey the same way of very ripe peaches.

When I was at the New England exposition at Springfield this fall I picked up a booklet on using certo.

As one of the sisters asked about using paraffin I will tell her what this booklet says about it. As soon as the jam or jelly is poured, cover with a coating of hot melted paraffin right on top of hot jam or jelly. After the jam is cold add another coating of paraffin and roll the glass to make the hot paraffin run around the edge and seal the crack formed by shrinkage.

Club No. 1 had a nice day for their meeting this month. I hope to be able to meet with you again before cold weather comes. With best wishes to all Corner members.

I am,

MAVIS.

REGRETS DEATH OF NAT

Dear Corner Friends: I have had great pleasure in reading the letters from you all but think the writers in Club I are rather delinquent so I will set you a good example; also for Hopeful who I trust will follow my example by writing to the Corner, and frequently, as those who write often get in the limelight. It was an added pleasure to see again a letter from Billie, one of our earliest, faithful writers; and Samantha, who has had more than her share of trouble during the last year. We hope she may escape further incapacities.

A great and inexpected pleasure was the presence of Balsam Fir at our large annual summer gathering, and it is with regret that we have not been able to get a snap shot of her as she stood in those long rows of magnificent flowers, which grew to such perfection under uncle's expert care. Answering an inquiry as to who took the picture, will say, a friend of Priscilla from Hartford, and she or Olive can tell you about it. That was a remarkable day. I surely expected to see Crimson Rambler, Ready, Calla Lily, Biddy and many others there, but probably they were as disappointed as me. I had the good fortune to attend Brooklyn fair and among the mass of strange faces in a strange place, the benefit of the Corner were evident, as every now and then a dear familiar face would come in view, the smiling face of a Social Corner sister. Didn't see me did you, Ma of Greene Gables? But we were not in speaking distance. The Bluebirds and Butterflies were out that day and I am sure there was more than one Rural Aunty there, too. I wonder if any one can tell us if G. H. O. is still in the Johnson hospital in Stafford Springs.

It is with great sorrow that I speak of the death of one of our earliest writers, one of our most gifted writers whose letters always contained a rich vein of humor and clearly portrayed a certain type of human nature. As has been said "her letters were good for the blues" as they were always full of mirth provoking expressions. This writer with the unusual gift was Nat in the Corner, but Mrs. Edward McCall in Goshen where she lived. Her letters were unique and different from any other and were written for fun, but she told me the spell was broken when it was found out who the author of those letters were. We, who have followed the writings of this page from the beginning remember, with pleasure, her occasional contribution to it.

Jennie: Did you have a white dahlia blossom? The pink was lovely.

PICTURE BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

Dear Editor and Sisters: There are many attractive advertisements and booklets sent out by different concerns, and they have such charming covers. Take these, with discarded calendars, blotters, etc., and in a short time you have enough to make a pretty picture book.

Dark green cambric makes a good back ground for a majority of pictures. I think if folded 13 by 16 it makes a desirable size. Stitch thoroughly through the centre with silkateen. I pink the edges as I have a pinker.

If you are making a book for a particular child whose characteristics you know you can make it doubly attractive to him by having many of the pictures along the line of something in which he is much interested—the sea, animals, etc.

There are quite a few uncolored advertisements that when you take time to color them make a very pretty picture and make them more attractive to the little ones than when left uncolored.

I saw this idea in the New England Homestead some time ago and the scheme worked out wonderfully.

ETHELYN

APPROVES THE CHANGE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I enjoyed the last meeting of the Social Corner Club No. 1, as I had not attended a meeting for quite a while. We had a nice dinner and every one seemed to enjoy all the good things we had for dinner. I think it will be much better to meet at the Buckingham for our next meeting which will be on the second Tuesday in Dec., the 14th, as it will be more convenient in every way. Hope we have a goodly number. I wonder why Yellow Pine never comes to our meetings and Crow Hollow where are you? Come and join us at the Buckingham at our next meeting. Greetings to all who are in trouble or sick.

SAMANTHA 3RD NOW IN WISCONSIN

Dear Social Corner: I have the memory of some very pleasant times at the Social Corner club.

Six years ago I left Willimantic for Long Eddy, N. Y., where I spent three weeks in my sister's home. Then with my brother and family I left for Lynn Haven, Florida. Lynn Haven is near beautiful St. Andrews bay.

There is a charm about Florida near the bay o rthe Gulf of Mexico I never found in any other state. I have visited. Lynn Haven is 30 miles from the Gulf of Mexico. We used to go for excursions out to the gulf and pick up sea shells and take pictures and watch the waves roll in on the snow white sand.

The live oak trees with the gray green Spanish moss trailing from the branches, the cabbage palms and the magnolia trees with their beautiful wax like blossoms and evergreen leaves are very beautiful. But I would much rather live in the north.

I met and married a man from Iowa while in Lynn Haven. We lived at Brandon, Iowa nearly a year, then came to Wisoonsin to live, where I like it very much.

There is a great deal of rye raised and hundreds of bushels of potatoes in some parts of the state peas are raised for the canneries. Cucumbers are raised for Heinz company for pickles and corn and beans are also raised. We are about 175 miles from Milwaukee and Lake Michigan.

Some of my friends will recognize me as

CORA BUSH or SAMANTHA 3RD.

THE BEAUTIES OF THE COUNTRY

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: My son's bride and I went for a long walk through the woods and fields recently and I am going to try and tell you a few of the lovely things we saw You who can't get out into the country at this time of the year are missing a great deal. God and nature combined certainly are wonderful artists. We started at 9:30 a. m. going over west of where we live. As we walked along we noticed and talked about the new houses that were being built, then we came to what used to be the canal and I have heard my mother-in-law tell how they used to drive mules along its bank and thus pull the boats or scows that were the only means of transporting merchandise from Northampton, Mass., to New Haven, Conn., years ago. We stood on the bridge, watching the water ripple over the stones and as it looked so inviting which ever way we looked, we decided to walk along the bank northward yesterday—and southward next time. We climbed the fence and started following the water. The reflection of the trees, especially the red oak leaves was gorgeous. There were rocks and cows and horses in the pastures, stone walls and birch fences and trees in all stages of foliage—some bare and dreary looking, some partly bare, with yellow or red leaves, and some scarcely leaved at all. The birches were so lovely and reflected so clearly along the bank in the water, my little daughter-in-law just wanted to climb every one she saw.

We sang and romped like a couple of kids and I know you never would think if you could have seen me, that I was old enough to have a married son. We were so happy calling each other's attention to the lovely things. We saw heaps of birds and the crows made such a wild noise with their constant caw, caw, caw. I saw a blue bird, but he was gone before Eleanore could locate him. The cows looked so peaceful and I know I was more afraid of them than they were of me. We came to another road and followed it along inside the fence through the sweet fern, milkweed pods all white and cottony, everlasting and bittersweet berries. All at once we came to the water again. Then we climbed up the bank. Then Eleanore found a turtle, I picked him up to see whether he was a snapping turtle or a box turtle so I could show him to Eleanore and what do you think? He was just plain common box turtle. We waited to see him walk and he was contrary and wouldn't. Again we went through the lots, over the hills and through the woods. Looking off in a distance we saw cows and horses grazing in some very green fields. I thought of the passage in the Bible, "The cattle on a thousand hills are His." As we came back Eleanore picked red berries and green pine branches to bring home. As we neared home again we looked for miles across fields and meadows of different shades leaves of which were all shades and the grandeur of it awed me and made me realize how good God was to his children to give us such glory. It was such fun to look for squirrels, chipmunks, etc. I never realized before just how much beauty one could find in a walk through the woods on a bright autumn day. We are going again soon. I wish I had the power to make every shut in see the country as it is just now. Spring and autumn are to me the best times of the year.

KEEP THE BIRTHDAYS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Keep the birthdays religiously. They belong exclusively to, and are treasured among the sweetest memories of home. Do not let anything prevent some token, be it ever slight to show that it is remembered.

Birthdays are great events to children. For one day they feel that they are heroes. The special pudding is made expressly for them; a new jacket, or pants with pockets, or the first pair of boots are donned, and big brothers and sisters sink into insignificance beside "little Charlie," who is "six today," and is soon "going to be a man." Fathers who have half a dozen little ones to care for, are apt to neglect birthdays, they come too often—sometimes when they are busy, and sometimes when they are nervous," but if they only knew how much such souvenirs are cherished by their pet Susy or Harry, years afterward, when, away from the hearthstone, they have none to remind them that they have added one more year to the perhaps weary round of life, or to wish them, in the old fashioned phrase, "Many happy returns of the day," between them and a parent's privilege.

GREETINGS FROM JOAN

Dear Social Corner Friends: We had a good number of letters last week. I do enjoy reading them so much.

Cretia: I have a little book with several poems of Mrs. Heman's in it and enjoyed your letter about her very much.

Red Rose: Reached home safe with all my load, but thank you just the same.

I. J. B.: Thanks for the "sweets" you sent me.

Apple Blossom: It was a surprise to get a letter from you. I could hardly believe my eyes. Shall expect to see you often now that we have changed the date of our meeting.

Hope the sick are improving. Best wishes to all.

JOAN.

CORNER HAS HELPED MUCH

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Twice Twenty is calling for one letter writers. I wonder if she meant me. My mother would say if the coat fits put it on, so I will and try and write before I am called a slacker.

I was much disappointed not to attend the gathering at E. K. but illness in the family prevented.

It is worth a trip there to enjoy the scenery and then to greet our Social Corner sisters and enjoy their entertainment but may be I can go next time.

I spent quite a lot of time this summer hunting for the 25 Courier, but I finally had to decide I hadn't it but I arranged all my Couriers and with this year's I have five years of Social Corner Couriers. I don't remember how long it is since I joined but it must be longer than that. Now when my "ship comes in" I am going to have a book printed of all the wise and beautiful sayings of the editor with his permission of course. I know you will all want one.

Theoda: Did you try the cake yet? The Corner has done a great deal for me. I enjoy all the letters and hope some time to be able to attend meetings of the other clubs.

LORETTA. (Club No. 4.)

BALSAM FIR GOES SIGHT SEEING

Dear Social Corner Friends: Last week I spent night seeing for I was visiting at Portland, South Portland and Proute Neck and had a fine time motoring from place to place. Company came home with me and so I have been busy ever since.

Wednesday morning rain fell in torrents, but as the optimistic club was invited to Auburn for the day all the members were busy getting together. There were nine ladies and three gents. We soon found 20 Myrtle street and a very warm reception for our hostess Mrs. Charles Roberts was to furnish the dinner which you may be sure was very welcome. There were several kinds of sandwiches, cakes, fancy cookies, several kinds of pies, also oranges, grapes, fudge that would melt in your mouth, several kinds of candy beside salted peanuts and such delicious coffee.

After every one had eaten their fill, a vote of thanks was given our hostess. And Blest Be the Tie That Binds, was sung. The oldest in the party a Mrs. Jones from Litchfield, Maine, 85 years young enjoyed the party quite as well as the young people. At a business meeting plans were made for an amusement social to be held with our president the next Wednesday evening. As she is getting ready to close up her home for the winter for she is going out west.

We have had several flurries of snow which melted as soon as it touched the ground. Just at the present time the law is off of deer and the woods are full of hunters. So far some have been very successful.

I want to thank the Corner sisters for their many nice letters and gifts. Most of all I enjoyed a letter from Mrs. Ninnette Lowater, Linton, North Dakota. Pleased to learn she was able to write. Pleased to learn Joan enjoyed her birthday.

Rural Delivery celebrates the 5th and I see in my book many others have birthdays in November. I surely enjoyed all the nice poetry and letters in last week's Corner.

Kochie: Surely the price of eggs are some high much more so than in Maine and potatoes are dearer in your town. Those doughnuts will keep. If not know your Mother will make some expressly for me, won't you mother?

I trust those that are ill will be better soon or more comfortable if it's the Lord's will.

Crimson Rambler: Are you so busy getting ready to go south you cannot find time to write?

Lorna and Maple Leaf: If you do not write you may get writers' cramps and then you cannot write at all.

Ever the same.

BALSAM FIR. (Jan. 23.)

A CAMPING TRIP

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I have started to write at last for I sure have been a long time getting ready. I thought I would tell of my week's experience camping. Our destination was the White mountains. August 16 we awoke early to start out on the road before the traffic. It was a new experience to us all and we were wondering if we were going to like it. We left the house five minutes past eight to be exact and started on our great adventure. Our first stopping place was Hartford for there we were to buy our tent, camping stove, etc. When we left Hartford any body seeing us must have thought that we were moving.

As we were going over a bridge in Springfield there was a signal that was new to my husband and looking up he saw a policeman who my husband thought motioned him to go but the policeman being quick tempered, I guess, started to give my husband a call down. But later on our trip we found out that others coming by the same route also were called down. We enjoyed our lunch after we had passed the road leading to Mt. Tom. When we were arriving in South Deerfield and then to Greenfield the scenery was wonderful with the mountains in the background.

Past Brattleboro, a few miles, we came to a little place called Dummerston where we camped that night in a grove of pines set out by hand. They were in orderly rows where a car could be driven through. It was just a little past four but as my husband was not used to putting up a tent we thought it best to camp early. My daughter and I helped with the unpacking and it was not long before savory scents of cooking came from the tent. We all were hungry and did justice to the supper. We did not sleep well the first night due to the unusualness of it all. We awoke next morning and as it was cloudy we waited till after dinner when we packed and started on our way again. My husband drove slowly and it did not seem that we could see and enjoy it all as we went along. At Bellows Falls we crossed from Vermont to New Hampshire; across the beautiful Connecticut river at Charleston we crossed a toll bridge and were back again in Vermont. Half the time we didn't know whether we were in Vermont or New Hampshire. We passed White River junction, and even Hartford, and after Hartford to the left of us was Norwich. At Woodsville we camped for the night.

Next morning we started out bright and early expecting to see Crawford Notch before the day was over. We passed Littleton and Bethlehem where there were large golf courses. We could see Mt. Washington in the distance. At Bretton Woods we kept going down till we came to the wonderful Crawford Notch. Words can't express the wonderful sight we saw. Mountains all around us. We ate our dinner there and vowed that we would come next year and see it again. Leaving Crawford Notch we went. It seemed, downward to Bartlett and Glen. The mountains still seemed to loom up high. We passed Conway and Chocorua and Whittier then to Moultanboro where we reached Lake Winnepesaukee. This is a large body of water that is very beautiful. As we rode along we were hoping to find a camping place. About midway between Weirs and Laconia we found a camping place and camped there from Wednesday night till Friday morning. The time went by very quickly and it did not seem possible that we had traveled all that way.

Friday morning we left Lake Winnepesaukee travelling through Franklin, Andover, New London, Newport to Keene which is a very pretty place. After we left Keene we went into Massachusetts, to Fitchburg, to Worcester where we were held up by traffic by the people from the mills. We went to Auburn Center where we stayed with some friends. Saturday morning we left to reach home in the afternoon going by way of Webster, Putnam, Jewett City, Norwich and home.

Joan: Well you see I have written at last. Will try and write oftener.

REAL FRIENDS

Dear Social Corner Members: You started a subject Melissa, that brought out many replies. There are many kinds of friends, many for fair weather, few when you are short. Then there are those who are your friends until they are fortunate enough to grow more prosperous than you and very often they are one who have not ambition enough to create their prosperity but have had it given to them. They always make one laugh, so they do a little good in the world after all. Then there is the friend who sticks through thick and thin and we can all say we have some of these.

This fall I had a chance to go away for a few days, but where was a housekeeper to be found! Money was no temptation. One day I met some one who said, "Have you got any one to keep house?" I said, "No." Well I'll come rather than to have you lose your chance of getting away." Now

PARENTS OF BOY WHO PLAYED TRUANT WARNED BY NEW LONDON JUDGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 13—Judge Prince and Attorney Hollandersky read a lesson to the parents of a boy who has habitually dodged attendance at school, during the session of the police court this morning. The lad was given advice that will be most beneficial to him if he heeds it. There was evidence that he would so regard what was said. John Hutchins, th son of Herbert and Janet Hutchins, has caused Principal F. L. Newton and the probation officer much annoyance, in that he has been habitually away from his studies. The lad is a likeable boy, but he is determined that he will work outside the school room rather than in it. He has a desire to work though he receives no pay for it, a notion he will abandon as the years come to him. His parents were arraigned for failing to enforce the boy's attendance at the Jennings grammar school, but the statement was made by teachers and by attorneys that John was incorrigible in that respect and that he failed to obey the commands of his parents. School officials dealt kindly with the lad and his parents for they were ordered into court and failed to appear. In fact the parents took the boy outside the geographical limits of the city. A warrant for their arrest brought them to the court this morning. There they received their lesson with the result that the boy promised to return to school when the wisdom of that course was impressed upon him. The case was continued a month, with the boy on probation.

FINAL HONORS ARE PAID JEREMIAH D. CRONIN FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 13—The funeral of Jeremiah D. Cronin, a former resident of Norwich, held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, was attended by a large assemblage of mourners among whom were delegations of Seaside council, Knights of Columbus and St. John's Literary society, together with representatives of the city government which Mr. Cronin had served several terms as alderman under the municipal form of government. The floral tributes were unusually beautiful.

The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Michael Reagan, with Rev. William J. Fox, of Groton, Rev. Raymond J. O'Callahan, subdeacon and Rev. Philip J. Mooney of Colchester, master of ceremonies. The honorary bearers were Edward S. Neilan, John C. Geary, William T. May, James F. Johnston, Margo O'Neill, Patrick L. Shea, Arthur T. Keefe and John F. Murray. The active bearers were members of the New London police department, Sergeants John Cavanaugh, Nelson Smith and William T. Babcock, Traffic Officers John Courtney and Frank Linehan and Patrolman Braxton Hill. The committal service in St. Mary's cemetery was conducted by Rev. Father Reagan and Mooney.

New London friends have been bidden to the marriage ceremony at Waterbury next Monday that will make Miss Marie Bauby the wife of William Buckley. Miss Bauby is well known here, where she has been heard in the choir of St. Mary's church. She has many friends here where she is highly esteemed. Mr. Buckley is an automobile salesman who has been successful in that calling.

If New London boys and girls are to have a skating pond provided by the city it is time preparation was being made with that purpose in view. The lot used as a ball ground in the Montauk avenue section has been available for the purpose in years past and the upper Williams park has also been used as a skating place in past winters, but that they will be to used when ice forms is not known. They are absolutely safe spots, in that no drownings can occur there.

The wholesale price of hogs has reached a record figure in minimum in the western markets, so consumers of pork are looking for a drop in price in the retail market.

The temperature reached the lowest mark of the winter last night when the mercury touched 20 degrees.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Mitchell, widow of William H. Ryley, who was accidentally asphyxiated at her home on 38 Ocean avenue, last night, is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Henry H. Keeney and Mrs. Charles Avery of this city; Mrs. Otto Cone, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mrs. Jennie E. Church of Providence and by a son, Dr. Harold Ryley of Rutherford, N. J.

The condition of William Nixon, 6, of Quaker Hill, struck by an automobile on Washington street, near Brewer street, yesterday afternoon, sustaining a fractured skull is reported as being slightly improved at Lawrence-Memorial hospital this afternoon. The child is still in a critical condition.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles R. B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of Charles H. Woods, 38 Jefferson avenue and Elmer Bissonette, 335 Huntington street. Woods, who is a locomotive engineer, employed at Midway by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was recently fined in the police court on a charge of driving his automobile while under the influence of liquor.

Frank A. Comstock today sold a tract of land on Williams street to Connecticut College for Women. The plot adjoins other property owned by the college.

FELLA CONFESSES MURDER— CUT HIS WIFE'S THROAT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 13.—Fortuna Fella, 52, awaiting trial at the county jail on a charge of first degree murder at the criminal session of the superior court next January, has made a complete confession of slaying his wife Rosa. In making his confession Fella identified a pocket knife that was displayed to him by County Detective William Lewis, as being the weapon with which he struck down his wife, as she walked through Bank street on her way home from her employment. The knife was picked up in a driveway near the location of the stabbing by Vivian Goode, a chief petty officer, a witness of the murder.

Fella had been estranged from his wife the greater part of ten years and when he was informed of the intention of his daughter, 16, to be married Fella awaited the appearance of his wife on Bank street, near Howard and after remonstrating with her for consenting to the proposed wedding, he pulled the knife and slashed his wife's throat, severing the jugular vein and windpipe. The woman died as she was being carried into Lawrence hospital by the police. In obtaining the confession of Fella, Detective Lewis was assisted by Patrolman John Sullivan, who arrested Fella as he fled after the murder. Sullivan was off duty, but happened to be near by, was acquainted by a pedestrian of what had occurred and arrested Fella as he was endeavoring to escape through Howard street, which street he had reached through back yards.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel this afternoon ordered the driver's license of John Hamilton, 294 Main street, suspended.

Gentilella left the wheel on the street and during his absence it was stolen and then left in another part of the city. Gentilella failed to report his loss to the police and did not know that Patrolman John Sullivan had found the cycle and had brought it to police headquarters. He ascertained this afternoon that the bicycle was at police headquarters and went there and claimed it.

Joseph Bergeron was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Arthur Feeley, charged with violation of the traffic laws in failing to reduce the speed of his automobile when passing intersecting highways. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

Michael Powers and George J. McGuire, strangers in New London, were arrested this afternoon by Patrolman George Cockell. Powers was charged with vagrancy and intoxication and McGuire was accused of vagrancy. Both were arrested on North Bank street and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning.

The chapter development committee of the New London chapter of American Red Cross is to give a luncheon in the Dutch room of the Mohican hotel tomorrow to the branch chairmen and their roll call chairmen to stimulate interest and to assist them in the annual roll call which is going on at present in all the branches. Miner also filed his list of expenses, the report revealing that Mr. Miner expended $100, received in contributions from members of the democratic party.

Several continued cases will be called in the police court tomorrow. Other than these cases, there are but three others to claim the attention of the court and they are of a trivial nature.

to one who has not missed one morning in over two years of getting up at 6:30 or missed getting one meal in that time, and there are four to be got each day at this ranch, it meant a great deal. it meant Friendship. She had a good husband to be willing to get his own breakfast, pack his own lunch and then get his own supper when he got home from work that she might do this. These I count real friends and you may like to know the lady in question is called, by some, Cosmos. The other half and myself just loaded up the car and went on a four days' camping trip and such a good time as we had. We attended Brockton fair and visited many places that were new to us.

Some years ago another friend did the same thing for me leaving a family of four at home, and another one stayed by me when sickness and death entered our home. We can give to these friends money or gifts but that does not pay them for the kindness of heart that prompts them to do this. It is something we can't pay for and that we won't ever forget. Let us be thankful for such friends and forget the other kind.

On November 3 Cosmos and I spent a very enjoyable day with Club No. 2. There was an abundance of good things to eat, the program was fine and best of all every one was so friendly. We met several sisters from Club 5 on the street and they invited us to visit them but we told them members from both clubs visited us so we had to take turns in visiting them and they thought that was a very nice thing to do. Cosmos and I were very glad when we heard it announced that hereafter Clubs 2 and 5 will meet on different days. Now every one will have a chance to go visiting.

Hoot Owl: I am thinking how delicious those cakes looked.

Ora: Such good reports I hear from you, but don't get too smart.

Crimson Rambler: Where were you? I thought sure you would be there, now the rush is over. In our club our members are all good workers and loyal members in every way but I do think some of them are a bit lazy with their pen. Hope you are not taking pattern after them in that respect as we miss your good letters in the Corner page.

Maybux: That recipe is good, I often use it.

Maple Leaf: Was glad to meet you. I have heard of you many times.

Beth C: Hear you are soon to go into your winter quarters. I am glad because then you will attend our meetings. How about those beans?

Lucille Drew: What a time you had making jelly! One can laugh about it afterwards but at the time it seems a real tragedy. The old saying is "misery likes company" so you may like to know some one else had a like experience. Recently I called on Milky Way and there she sat waiting for her fire to go down so she could clean up her stove where the jelly she was making had taken a trip over the sides of the kettle on to the stove. Friday morning I put a nice fresh ham in the oven to roast for my Sunday dinner. I had some one helping me clean house that day so was very busy. At 11:15 I opened the oven door to put in a pan of fish and whew! such a smell. It was a good bye fresh ham. That is not the first time I have burned up meat either.

Mrs. M. of Gardner Lake: I am keeping the picture of your house in my mind and if I ever go that way again will stop and say hello. Why don't you join the Corner?

November 21 next Tuesday, Shore Line Club No. 9 will hold its meeting in Vet's hall on West Broad street Westerly. We have a new crew of workers for this meeting so every one come so they will feel repaid for their trouble. Don't forget your dishes and something good to eat.

GOING TO THE EXPOSITION

Members of the Social Corner: Upon reading in Social Corner, Graves of a Household, first verse second line, "They filled one home with glee," I knew the one I committed read, one house with glee. Having two books I looked them over and the one published in 1835 is printed, "They filled one home with glee" while the other is written, "They filled one house with glee." This book came out in 1850. Many times we blame the printer.

Lois: Would be glad to loan you one of these books to renew old acquaintance. Your verse about friends is fine, new to me.

Rural Aunty: Some of my schoolbooks which I've never disposed of contain the lines you've mentioned excepting "that's just and true." Mine reads, When you find one kind and true, How little we at the age these verses were written know their true meaning. "Prosperity makes friends, adversity tries them." "A friend in need is a friend indeed." Friend is one thing, acquaintance another. Must not expect too much of our friends, self reliance if possible at the present time. It is hard to stand by the friend of our youth when we see them loosing their own self respect as to cleanliness and personal appearance in our public places.

Hope many of you visited the navy yard on Oct. 27. I enjoyed so much our visit there a year ago. Went down in a submarine and after seeing the interior, well understood how those men on the S. 51, as was said, "drowned like rats in a trap." You are given a book of interest to all. Saw a diver go down. So much to see and kind sailors to answer your questions and help you on and off the mother boat and sub. Can see all this for nothing, only your time and getting there. Visit things near home once in a while.

In August, Virgil, wife and two boys came home remained one week, rainy most of the time deprived them of seeing all relatives. They intended to go to Nova Scotia but it was so cold they gave up the trip. Instead we left our city on Friday at 10 a. m. had dinner at Wilcox at Savin Rock, called on Mr. and Mrs. Charles Peck in New Haven natives of Westminster, then on, remaining over night at New Parker hotel in Perth Amboy, N. J. We spent a few hours at Asbury Park which we liked—neat and clean and met some O. E. S. people there. Reached Atlantic City on Saturday afternoon and remained there over Sunday. Saw million dollar pier and seven miles or more of board walk which was well used, riding in chairs and walking especially over Sunday. The cigarette sign near the pier is one of the prettiest electric signs I becomes to be read by some people, "While there's sight there's hope."

Nature repeatedly sends out signals in the form of headache, dizziness and so on, as warnings of more serious troubles ahead.

But so long as they can see at all, many people think it is not necessary to seek relief.

Much suffering and distress could be avoided if, at the first of these warnings, an examination were made of their eyes. We are here to relieve ocular troubles whenever glasses will do such good work.

Have your eyes examined TODAY!

RISE IN STOCK PRICES HALTS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Resumption of the upward movement in today's stock market was checked just before the close by the marking up of call money rates. With the exception of General Motors, which showed a net loss of nearly a point at 148 1-4 the reaction was only of technical proportions, final quotations disclosing a long list of net gains ranging from 1 to over 5 points. Trading showed a marked expansion in volume, which was construed in some quarters as an indication of increased public participation.

General Motors rallied nearly 3 points in the early trading on buying presumably influenced by the declaration of an extra cash dividend of $4, but lost all its gain as a combination of profit-taking and bear selling influences by the belief that the last quarter will show a material falling off in earnings, and that stockholders cannot hope to continue to receive such generous distributions as have taken place this year. Mack Trucks sold off over a point and Jordan touched another new low, but some of the other motors, particularly Chrysler and Hudson received excellent buying support.

The weekly mercantile reviews continued to report irregularities in the business situation, but stressed the fact that there was as yet no definite sign of a general let-down in business. Mill operations in the plants of the United States Steel corporation are reported to have increased slightly during the past week, and the Baldwin Locomotive company announced a couple of substantial orders during the day. U. S. Steel common closed 2 points higher at 150 3-4 after having sold a point above that figure and Baldwin was run up over 5 points to 136 1-2, or just below the record high price of the year.

The marking up of the call money rate from 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent was regarded as incidental to the withdrawal of funds for mid-month payments. Indications that there was no strain on the credit situation were seen in the increase from 60.1 to 64.8 per cent in the reserve ratio of the New York Federal Reserve bank this week, and the shading of the time money rates, making the shorter maturities available as low as 4 5/8 per cent. The prompt sale of about $50,000,000 in new bond offerings and the heavy advance inquiries for the prospective issue of debentures of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in connection with the plan to retire the preferred stock indicated the presence of a huge investment demand. Standard of New Jersey directors took no action to retire the preferred at their meeting today, but admitted the plan was still under discussion.

More than a score of issues attained new peak prices for the year, the list including Kennecott, Erie Steam Shovel, Federal Light and Traction, Coca Cola and Commercial Solvents B. Outstanding strength also was shown by American Agricultural Chemical preferred, Southern Dairies issues and Woolworth, all up 3 points or more.

Heaviness of Chesapeake & Ohio, which sold down 3 1-2 points to 162 1-2 was inspired by the belief that coal shipments would show a sharp falling off on the settlement of the British coal strike, which appears imminent. Most of the other rails pointed upward, Rock Island 6 per cent preferred touching another new high.

A sharp break of 3 cents a bushel in wheat prices on selling inspired by bearish foreign crop news contrasted with a rally of over $1 a bale in cotton prices. Raw sugar advanced 1-32 of a cent a pound, but coffee prices eased slightly.

A rally of about 10 points in French francs, which again sold above 3.30 cents, and a further rise in demand sterling to just below $4.84 3-4 cents featured the firm foreign exchange market.

WATERS' ELECTION EXPENSES REPORTED AT $402.50

Prosecuting Attorney Warren B. Burrows of Groton spent $125.86 in his successful effort to get elected to the state senate from the 13th district comprising New London and the town of Groton, his expense account filed with the secretary of state at Hartford shows. J. Edwin Brainard, republican candidate for lieutenant-governor spent $400 while his opponent Mayor Milo R. Waters of this city spent $403.86.

Joseph W. Wellington of Baltic who was defeated by former Representative to Jams Floyd of Waterford, spent running for the senate in the 20th district on the democratic nothing according to his report. The same applies to Joseph A. Vargus of Stonington who was the democratic candidate for county sheriff.

State Central Committeeman Alton T. Miner of New London filed a report showing that he had received $100 and had spent the same in the interests of the democratic party. William H. Smith, chairman of the Old Saybrook republican town committee received $85 and spent $84.05.

Billings F. S. Crandall of Ledyard, William Marvin of Lyme, and Frank H. Hinckley of Stonington, candidate for judge of probate in their respective districts had no expenses, their reports show.

DR. PLUNKETT ELECTED IN ELECTION IN DERBY

The recent city election in Derby kept that city in the democratic column and a former Norwich boy, Dr. Thomas F. Plunkett, was elected chairman of the board of education, defeating his republican opponent, Dr. M. A. Parsate, by a majority of 771.

After election the Ansonia Sentinel says:

"Next to the mayoralty, the battle for chairman of the board of education was of great interest. Dr. Plunkett, the democratic nominee, emerged with an exceedingly big vote, running far ahead of any other democrat on the city and state tickets. Dr. Plunkett got the biggest vote in the city and many republicans split their tickets to accord him a vote. Dr. Plunkett carried the first ward by 190 votes, the second by 434 and the third by 147 giving him a majority of 771 and incidentally the biggest majority for any candidate in the city."

DAVIDSON TO CLOSE BROADWAY THEATER AT END OF TWO WEEKS

Abe Davidson, lessee of the Broadway theater, where he has been conducting high class moving pictures and vaudeville, confirmed the news Friday night that he is to close the theater in two weeks and transfer the business to the Strand theater, which he also holds under a lease.

Mr. Davidson's lease on the Broadway theater does not expire until July 15 next, but he stated that generally poor business conditions had led him to the conclusion that it would be advisable to close up the Broadway at the end of the next two weeks, transferring his business interests to his nephew, Max Levine, Jr., who will manage the Strand theater. This will leave Mr. Davidson free to take a trip which he is planning and to locate elsewhere. Where this may be he has not determined yet, but it may be that he will go to Los Angeles, Cal., where he has a brother.

Mr. Davidson said that the orchestra and the stage force at the Broadway would be transferred to the Strand and the high quality moving pictures and which have been the rule at the Broadway will be continued at the Strand theater where changes are now being made to adapt it to the present plans. After a time Mr. Levine will go to Winsted to manage Mr. Davidson's new theater there which is doing a most successful business and another manager will be put in charge of the Strand.

Mr. Davidson has been in the theatrical business in this city for nearly ten years and it will be with regret that many will hear of his intention to locate elsewhere. As long as he has been connected with theatrical productions here, he has devoted his experience and skill to securing the best in pictures, vaudeville and road shows for his house, but the patronage has fluctuated. At the beginning of this season, he made an attempt to revive interest in the legitimate drama, bringing William Hodge and William T. Tilden, Jr., with their companies, to the Broadway, but the response of the public was not such as to encourage him to continue the attempt, and without an occasional well supported big show he does not consider it worth the effort to continue to operate the theater until his lease expires.

While the Broadway will remain dark, Mr. Davidson said, however, that it will be available for any local use that may arise.

THANK OFFERING MEETING BY WOMEN'S FEDERATION

The missions department of the Women's Federation of Park Congregational church held the annual thank offering meeting Friday afternoon in the parlors of the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial, with Miss Alice Coggswell presiding for the opening exercises.

The minutes were read by Mrs. John W. Hinckmar and the devotional exercises were led by Mrs. S. H. Howe with Miss Mary A. C. Avery at the piano for the "Service of Thanksgiving", during which the thank offering was taken.

Miss Edith Bliss, the chairman, brought reports from the 59th annual meeting of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions which had just closed its three days of sessions at Plymouth church, Worcester. She showed a photograph of Mrs. Edwards, the first missionary sent by the Woman's Board to India, who at 97 years is still in the field.

Mrs. Allan Latham told of the plans for reorganization and merging the American Missionary association the three national branches of the Woman's Board and the Home Missionary association into one organization to be known as the Unified American Board.

Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley gave a resume of the addresses of several missionaries and mentioned the first missionary sent to Uduvil, Ceylon, in 1824, who was Miss Harriet Lathrop Winslow of Norwich. Miss Fannie Bliss mentioned the hospitalities extended to the delegates and of the social evening when opportunity was given to meet the missionaries. Miss Edith Bliss gave a resume of the impressive closing service on Friday morning with student volunteers pledging themselves for service and the commission service for Dr. Anna M. Otto, who goes to the hospital at Madura, India.

Mrs. Aurin E. Payson announced that the program for the parish house department would be a lecture on Home Economics, by a professor from Connecticut college. The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Dr. Howe.

Afternoon tea was served by Miss Alexandrine Trumbull, assisted by Mrs. Harrison T. Gray and Miss Annie E. Vaughn, with Miss Cecil Crowell and Mrs. Neville Bliss at the tea table.

PORTLAND FILLED WITH GRANGERS FOR CONVENTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 11—The 60th annual convention of The National Grange is being held here with large delegations from the New England states and the other near-by states. Portland is called America's Sunrise Gateway, the metropolis of Maine. The present population is over 70,000. Portland boasts of a wonderful harbor the most easterly one in this country. Last year the grange met in Sacramento, Cal. so that not much was heard about it here, but this year the granges in the eastern states have kept it before the members making an effort to have the class taking the 7th degree the largest ever given. The grange headquarters are at the Congress Square hotel which accommodates 600. The meetings are held in the municipal auditorium and the 7th degree will be conferred in the Strand theatre, Friday all day and evening. Hon Ralph O. Brewster, governor of Maine, is a friend of the grange, an orator and a welcome from him was a great pleasure and rare treat. Maine has a worthy state master of commanding appearance and a voice that can be heard by every one.

Every Granger receives a warm welcome and quickly feels at home. Nothing has been left undone for the comfort of the Grangers. The streets are thronged with automobiles, so many making the trip by auto while all the trains are crowded. Certainly every one who has been here will have something to relate to their home granges.

From 12.30 to 1.30 will be the social hour when basket lunches will be supplemented by tea and coffee furnished by the Westminster hostesses.

It is expected that the closing address of the afternoon will be by Rev. J. W. Higgins of Packer on Lights and Shadows in the life of an ambassador for Christ.

This is the last meeting of this conference this year, and it is expected that there will be a representation from each of the six churches of the fellowship. Brooklyn, Canterbury, Central Village, Ekonk, Wauregan, Wisconsin.

The convention scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 14, provides for the registration of delegates and visitors throughout the day. In the morning there will be a pre-convention session of the board of managers, whose members will be entertained at luncheon by the board of the Washington section. The afternoon will be devoted to an institute for council section presidents, of which Mrs. Marc J. Grossman, president of the Cleveland section, will be the convener; and an institute for presidents of state and interstate conferences of council sections, with Mrs. Charles Long of Wilkes-Barre, president of the Pennsylvania state conference, as convener.

A public meeting will take place on Sunday evening, with addresses by Mrs. Leonard B. Schloss, president of the Washington, D. C., section; Mrs. Hannah G. On the return trip a stop will be made at Philadelphia where the delegates will have an opportunity to visit the sesqui-centennial where the council has a booth in the educational hall.

RETURNED MISSIONARY WILL SPEAK AT BAPTIST CHURCHES

At the Central Baptist church on Sunday morning a young missionary, home on his first furlough, will be the speaker. Rev. Chester F. Wood will tell of his work in Yachow, West China, one of the most difficult of the Baptist mission fields. He will have a thrilling message. Yachow is in an isolated and troubled portion of China and his message will glow with the spirit of romance.

In the evening the story of "Ann of Ava," Ann Hasseltine Judson, first wife of America's Baptist pioneer missionary will be told by Mrs. David A. Pitt. This story of the hardships endured and victories attained by a frail New England girl during her life in Burma will appeal as no story in fiction could. The service will be held in the prayer meeting room, with accommodations for any overflow in Bushnell chapel.

The missionary will speak in the evening at the First Baptist church.

SPRINKLER SYSTEM WORKED AT GILMAN MILL FIRE

In an early morning blaze Friday Gilman Bros' mill at Bozrah was damaged to the extent of $5,000. The flames were discovered about 5 o'clock by a resident of the neighborhood and a call was sent in to the Yantic fire department for help.

The fire started in the garnet room of the mill where four machines are located. The sprinkler system held the fire in check and the Yantic department laid 350 feet of hose to extinguish the blaze. The loss is covered by insurance.

Trustees of Vassar college have authorized voluntary attendance at chapel.

The performance of Balkite "B" has yet to be equalled

The first Balkite "B" purchased by a radio set owner nearly four years ago, is still rendering satisfactory service. It will continue to do so for years to come, for it has no tubes nor anything to replace. Since that time over 75,000 Balkite "B"s all based on the same principle as the first, have been purchased. Of these, to our knowledge, not one has ever worn out. This record has yet to be equalled by any other "B" device. To be as good as Balkite "B," a "B" power device cannot be an experiment. It must have stood the test of time.

Balkite "B" is offered in three models to serve any set: Balkite "B"-W for sets of 5 tubes or less requiring 67 to 90 volts—$27.50. Balkite "B"-X for sets of 8 tubes or less including power tubes, capacity 30 milliamperes at 135 volts—$42. Balkite "B"-Y for any standard set, capacity 40 milliamperes at 150 volts—$69. POETRY

From Lees Avenue

With apples comes the smell of burnin leaves
Mixed with the spice of fallen fruit, an hot
And hurrid with the shary wings of yo low wasps.
With apples comes the memory of skies Benevolently blue, and dusty lanes Where cattle raise about their hun feet
A restful haze at evening. With th come
The thoughts of homely and familiar things—
New milk, the crowing of the shining cocks,
The blushing of a happy country girl.

But pears bring fancies of a different sort:
Long arbors shadowing to a patterned blue
The limbs of statues, and high bright walls,
Where, stiff as an infants in his jewels,
The pleached trees take the sunshine, dropping leaves
Upon some peacock's coroneted head.
With pears come thoughts of all things reliquary—
Old ivories, laces, gowns sumptuous and frail,
And families worn, by the slow rub of ages
Down to the rigid skeleton of their pride.
—Elizabeth J. Coatsworth in Harper's Magazine.

Twilight

Spirit of Twilight, through your folded wings
I catch a glimpse of your averted face,
And rapturous on a sudden, my soul sings
"Is not this common earth a holy place?"

Spirit of Twilight, you are like a song
That sleeps and waits a singer,—like a hymn,
That God finds lovely and keeps near Him long.
Till it is chorused by barcoled cherubim.

Spirit of Twilight, in the golden gloom
Of dreamland dim I sought you, and I found
A woman sitting in a silent room
Full of white flowers that moved and made no sound.

These white flowers were the thoughts you bring to all,
And the room's name is Mystery where you sit.
Woman whom we call twilight, when e night's pall
Ye lift across our Earth to cover it.
—Olive Custance.

Noises deemed uncivilized are now taboo in Angora, the new Turkey's mushroom capital. Recent edicts of the prefect put a stop to the immemorial custom of advertising for lost articles by means of a public crier, and also forbid shepherds cowherds and goatherds from uttering their usual cries as they drive their flocks and herds through the city streets at dawn and evening.

Patriotic members of the old Hungarian nobility have created a fund to support former Queen Zita and her family of eight children, who are now living at San Sebastian, Spain. Out of this fund the widow of former King Charles is assured an allowance of $50,000 a year, which, with the income she derives from her private properties in Hungary, puts her about $100,000 a year. Hungary as a state is forbidden to pay any government funds to the former queen. Hence, the wealthier members of the old Hungarian nobility, like Count Apponyi and Count Andrassy, have helped her out of their own funds.

Once upon a time—as fairy stories are wont to begin—Ray Bird, of Rockland, Me., lost his fishing pole in Crawford pond; in fact, it was two summers ago. And now, while Mr. Bird was taking his usual morning swim off the float at Crawford pond, he felt a line run across his body and become fouled with his leg. He swam to the shore, towing the line with him. On one end of the line was the very fish pole that he had lost. On the other end was a three-pound salmon, still well and happy after two years of dragging the rod and line around. A gash two inches long was torn in the mouth of the fish by the continual jerking of the heavy rod.—Boston Globe.

KING ASKS QUEEN MARIE TO RETURN BY CHRISTMAS

The Queen Has Cancelled Most of Her Southern Tour in Order to Sail From New York on December 11—Yesterday the Queen Spent Half an Hour in a Rumanian Jewish Synagogue in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.— (AP) —King Ferdinand has asked Queen Marie to return to Bucharest by Christmas and she has cancelled most of her southern tour in order to sail from New York on Dec. 11 instead of Dec. 24.

At the same time Colonel John H. Carroll, in charge of the special Rumanian train announced tonight that he had invited Henry Ford to place a representative aboard the train to accompany it through the remainder of the journey. The representative would replace J. E. E. Ayres, who had provided motor transportation for the royal party until it reached Seattle, where he was put off the train when Colonel Carroll took exception to newspaper stories quoting Ayres as saying Ford money was financing the trip.

Colonel Carroll explained that it would be more convenient to have a Ford representative aboard the train to handle the situation and that he realized that under Ford's contract with the Rumanian legation the representative was entitled to accompany the train.

The revised itinerary for the eastern and southern tour cancels the Florida trip and makes doubtful her probable visit to North Carolina. It includes a two day stop at Washington, beginning Nov. 24 and a visit to Atlantic City on Nov. 27.

Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas will attend the Army-Navy game at Chicago Nov. 27. The party will go to Richmond, Va., to spend two days possibly motoring to nearby points. A visit of one day may be made in Boston either by motor or by train.

En route to Washington the special train will stop at Harpers Ferry for one and one half hours so Marie can inspect the battle grounds. A visit to Winchester may be added.

QUEEN MARIE ATTENDED SYNAGOGUE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—(AP)—For half an hour today Queen Marie was transported to her own country when she sat in a Rumanian Jewish synagogue.

Tired and drawn by a day's vigorous activities, Marie seemed cheered by the spontaneous and sincere reception of 2,000 persons who jammed the first Rumanian congregation's house of worship, and thousands more who had stood in rain outside for hours.

The synagogue services were of a welcoming rather than religious nature. After Cantor Theodore Kittay and a choir intoned psalms, B. J. Braustein, president of the United Rumanian Jews of Illinois, greeted the royal visitors, as did Mayor Dever. A gold-covered testimonial book was presented to her majesty in behalf of the organization by Henry Friend, who wore a decoration given him by King Ferdinand.

The audience, with its male members wearing their hats as it customary, was in contrast with the usual uncovering in the presence of majesty. Silk hats dotted the congregation and the dais where the official party gathered about the queen. Only Prince Nicolas and Mayor Dever were without the formal top pieces. They wore derby hats.

KING PLEASED WITH QUEEN MARIE'S RECEPTION

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The imposing manifestations which have marked Queen Marie's visit to America were referred to with great gratification by King Ferdinand in his speech opening parliament today. The monarch's address was most optimistic. Rumania, he said, never had stood so well in her relations with foreign countries, and the situation at home was steadily improving.

The king announced that a solution had been found for the difficult problem of reconstruction the petroleum industry destroyed by the war.

"CHRISTIANITY AND SOCIETY" TOPIC OF SERMON

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 14—(AP)—The church has failed to give a practical demonstration that a Christian fellowship is possible, Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, of Boston, said at the university public worship in Battel chapel at Yale this morning, speaking on "Christianity and Society."

"A nation at war," he said, "will commit acts which many individuals in the nation could never perform. A nation at peace will exploit a weaker nation. These things cannot be explained by saying that the individuals composing the nation are selfish and utterly un-Christian.

'A lynching party, incredible as it may seem, will be composed of many men who are ordinarily kind fathers and husbands. We have seen, in our industrial life, a board of directors composed of apparently kindly gentlemen approve a course of action which has brought untold suffering. Religion has to do with the individual, of course.

"There are those who say that Christianity is only for the individual. They claim that Christian ethics do not apply to the group if that be true, then Christianity is not practical for life today, when we are faced by great social forces and problems.

"How can we have a Christian social morality? * * * We must give a practical demonstration that a Christian fellowship is possible. There comes the necessity of the church—there is our greatest failure. The church must show that people of all kinds and conditions, the poor, the rich, the learned, the ignorant, of all colors and races and tongues can be be fused by the love of Christ into real fellowship."

FINAL FIGURES OF THE RECENT GREEK ELECTION

ATHENS, Nov. 14—(AP)—Final election figures of the recent national election were announced by the government today, showing a republican majority of thirty. A coalition cabinet of moderate republicans under former Premier Kafandaris and M. Michalakopoulos and the moderate royalists under General Metaxas is generally expected as a result.

Party successors follow: Moderate republicans 108; advanced republicans, 14; independent republicans, 30; communists9; agrarians 3; royalist under P. M. Tsalikaris 63; moderate royalists under Metaxas 54 and independent royalists 11. Nearly one millions votes were cast at the elections.

The new parliament has been called to meet November 26.

A coalition government in Greece has seemed probable since early returns indicated a republican victory. General George Hondylis, the premier has said that he would turn over the premiership to M. Kafandaris in the event of a republican success.

NEGOTIATION FOR LOANS TO RUMANIA

BUCHAREST Rumania, Nov. 14—(AP)—Negotiations for various foreign loans to Rumania were reported in rapid succession the past week. The series began with a reported loan of $100,000,000 from an American group, then a £30,000,000 in London from an Anglo-American consortium.

Leading financial circles in Bucharest profess to know nothing about an American loan, and declare that obtaining a British loan would be difficult, inasmuch as the consortium was demanding a guarantee based on state monopolies and petrol royalties and receipts, with the consortium having supervision over the monopolies, receipts and royalties.

FIERY METEOR SEEN IN SKY WEST OF ALBANY

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 14—(AP)—A ball of fire, believed to be a large meteor, blazed a path across the sky west of Albany at 6:30 o'clock tonight. Newspaper telephones were kept busy soon afterward answering many calls for information. The phenomenon was not seen by the Dudley observatory.

CHARGED THAT MAN WAS BEING KIDNAPPED

STAMFORD, Nov. 14—(AP)—Although Charles H. Watson, Brooklyn, N. Y., lawyer, persuaded local police that two men from Maine were taking Joseph P. Lang, of Brooklyn to the Pine Tree state against his will, and that they were spending the night in a Stamford bootelry, the police saw no reason to interfere.

Lang was sued in Maine recently for alienation of affections, Watson told the police, and was released under bond of $15,000, furnished by friends of his attorney, pending hearing.

The action was heard, a judgment for $23,000 rendered against Lang, and he left the stateor without paying, leaving his bondsmen "holding the bag."

A detective and another man were deputized by the bondsmen to bring Lang back. They went to Brooklyn yesterday, Watson said, kidnapped Lang, and on their way to Maine stopped at Stamford overnight. Watson, Long's New York attorney, followed and sought the arrest of the men, charging abduction. The police would not interfere, and today Lang left in custody of his captors for Maine.

"Joseph T. Lang has been kidnapped by two men from Brooklyn, and is being held at the Hotel Davenport." Watson is quoted as having told the police. "I want you to arrest them."

The Stamford police could not see that any criminal offense had been committed in Stamford, and considering it a purely civil matter, did not make the arrest.

RUM RUNNERS FLED WHEN SHOTS WERE FIRED

EAST DENNIS, Mass., Nov. 14—(AP)—Several shots from his service revolver on the Shore road here early today left Boatswain Charles G. Morse of the Woodshole Coastguard base in undisputed possesion of one rum-running sloop, two automobile and 300 cases of scotch whiskey and champagne.

Stopping to investigate the sound of cars heard through a fringe of trees as he drove by, Boatswain Morse, who commands the CG 131, charged into a clearing to discover eight men and one woman busily engaged in transferring the liquor.

His shots scattered the runners into the bush and attracted the attention of longshore residents. State police officers sent to investigate the shooting took charge of the spoils. The sloop is the Ave Maria, registered out of Boston.

SIR CONAN DOYLE SEES GROWTH OF SPIRITUALISM

LONDON, Nov. 14—(AP)—An impressive belief in spiritualism was registered at the spiritualists annual armistice service in Albert hall today.

Sir Conan Doyle, leading the services, suddenly appealed to his hearers, shouting:

"I ask all who are sure that they have been in touch with their dead to rise and testify."

More than 5,000 men and women of all types quietly rose and this brought from Sir Conan this fervent statement:

"Thank God there are so many. I prophesy within five years that to such an appeal every man and woman will rise.

"We are not testifying to faith but to fact."

LONDON DRINK NAMED "HOLBROOK AND SALTER"

LONDON, Nov. 14—(AP)—Dr. Alfred Salter, labor'te M. P. who recently scandalized the house of commons by accusing its members of drunkenness, and Sir Arthur Holbrook, the conservative, whose motion of censure of the doctor for "letting the cat out of the bag" was carried by the house, are all unconsciously going down to posterity as the joint namers of a new drink, or rather an old drink in a new guise.

From the day Dr. Salter's charges were made the subject of a debate, members of the house of commons bar have been calling for a "Holbrook and Salter."

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

CASA BLANCA, Morocco, Nov. 14—(AP)—Two French postal airplanes which made a forced landing near Cape Bojador were attacked by roving Moors. The Moors burned the airplanes and mailbags and took the pilots, Court and LaSalle prisoners.

ROME, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The international institute of Agriculture announces that the Australian wool clip is estimated at 700,000,000 pounds. The clip is well grown, sound and broad-fibred except in Queensland, where it is short-fibred. The 1924-25 estimate was 685,000,000 pounds.

TRENT, Italy, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Twelve peasants ranging from 18 to 20 years old, including three women, were killed and two were seriously wounded by the explosion of a shell left over from the World war. One of the peasants accidentally struck the shell with a spade.

HONG KONG, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Twenty six pirates boarded the French steamer Hanoi at Kwang Chouwan, south of here, shot and killed a guard, ransacked the steamer, robbed the passengers and then abandoned the ship taking $50,000 worth of bullion, $20,000 in loot from the passengers and a large quantity of guns and ammunition.

PARIS, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Expulsion of Ricciotti Garibaldi and Francisco Macia, who were allegedly involved in the recent unsuccessful Catalan plot, is understood to have been decided upon by the minister of justice, Louis Barthou. It is planned to put the men over the Belgian frontier. M. Barthou is said to consider this the best means of getting rid of the whole disagreeable affair.

MAN SHOT THROUGH HEART JUST NORTH OF HERRIN, ILL.

HERRIN, Ills., Nov. 14.—(AP)—The body of Claude Craig, 35, shot through the heart with revolver bullets and through the right side with buckshot, was found early today just north of the Herrin City limits near a roadhouse operated by a man known only as "Big Swede". Authorities believe that the slaying has no connection with recent gang warfare here, as Craig was not known to be affiliated with any faction.

No witnesses have been found who can throw any light on the identity of Craig's assailants, although persons living in the vicinity report hearing shots. The shooting apparently occurred outside the roadhouse.

HOLDS ALOOFNESS ROAD TO WAR INSTEAD OF PEACE

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Aloofness by the United States in its relations with Europe is the road to war instead of one to peace," the Rev. O. Everett Wagner said in a sermon at the West Side Methodist Episcopal church today.

"It creates general fear and hatred among the nations, even though meaningless pious affirmations of friendships are spoken," he asserted.

The Rev. Dr. Wagner referred to President Coolidge's Armistice day address in which he asserted this country would not enter the world court unless the senate reservations were accepted.

PLAY JURY TO DECIDE ON FITNESS OF "THE CAPTIVE"

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Members of a play jury, who have separately attended performance of "The Captive" which has been running here for a number of weeks, will meet in the office of District Attorney Joab Banton tomorrow to decide whether the play is offensive to public morals. The jury will hear a defense of the play, but no argument will be permitted.

"The Captive" is an adaptation of the French play, "La Prisonniere", by Edouard Bourdet. It deals with the abnormal attraction of one woman for another.

POLICE SERGEANT WAS SHOT DEAD IN CORK, IRE.

CORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—Sergeant Fitzsimmons, in charge of the civic guard barracks at St. Lukes, a populous residential district of Cork, was shot dead tonight by a party of armed men. Three other police barracks were raided, and there are rumors that others in Cork were visited by raiding parties and bundles of documents removed.

Cark has been aroused by the incidents. The city is being patrolled, soldiers and police are questioning pedestrians and the occupants of motor cars.

BODY OF MAN WAS FOUND HANGING IN THE WOODS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 14—(AP)—The body of a man believed to be Peter McVary, 65, of Brockton, Mass., was found hanging by a strap from the limb of a tree in Brown's Woods, near the city line here today. Discovery of the suicide was made by a hunter.

A note scrawled in pencil on a scrap o' newspaper read:

"If found, Peter McVaVry, Brockton, Mass., small property left behind."

MORE THAN 6,000 PASSED BIER OF UNCLE JOE CANNON

DANVILLE, Ills., Nov. 14—(AP)—More than 6,000 friends of "Uncle Joe" Cannon passed his bier today. Some wept and others murmured a prayer, then continued through the sitting room and out a south door. The body will lie in state tomorrow.

Eight past commanders of the Curtain Selden post of the American Legion, who will be pall-bearers at the funeral service Tuesday afternoon, formed a guard of honor about the casket.

Volume of Industrial Production is High

Statistics Show That Consumers Are Maintaining a Demand For Products.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Industrial production in the United States is at a record high level, it was reported today by the federal reserve board. The volume of activity has been higher every month this year than in either 1925 or 1924.

Moreover, the board said, statistics showed that consumers were maintaining the demand for the record production with the purchasing power of industrial workers and farmers alike being continuously higher than last year.

The rise of production to a new high level in September was attributed to "exceptional activity for this season of the year in bituminous coal mining, and to a recent marked increase in the manufacture of cotton and wool textiles.

The English coal strike was assigned as the cause of the domestic mining increase, while the recent drop in cotton and wool prices was said to have stimulated the textile manufacturers.

Distribution of the record production has been maintained through wholesale and retail channels and stocks on hand at the end of September were generally below the level of a year ago.

WOULD ABOLISH AVIATION BOTH MILITARY AND CIVIC

LONDON, Nov. 14—(AP)—A surprising view of aviation is attributed to Sir Hugh Trenchard, air chief marshal, by Professor Philip Baker, of London university. Prof. Baker, addressing a peace conference at York Saturday, said it was not generally known that Sir Hugh Trenchard had declared that if he had his own way he would abolish aviation, both military and civil, altogether, because he believed that the evil wrought by it was incomparably greater than any good it could bring.

Sir Hugh Trenchard has been chief of the air staff since 1918. He was principal air aide de camp to the king, 1924-25. He has served in many wars, has been decorated for valor and mentioned in despatches innumerable times, and is holder of the American distinguished service medal.

REGARDED AS VICTORY FOR THE UNITED MINE WORKERS

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 14.—(AP)— A distinct victory for the United Mine Workers of America is seen by officials of that organization in the voluntary return to the wage scale terms of the Jacksonville agreement on Nov. 1 by certain West Virginia and Pennsylvania operators who departed from the contract scale more than two years ago.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, says that the return to the Jacksonville scale is a recognition by these operators of the economic sanity of its terms.

COMPLAINT TO GOV. PINCHOT OF POLICE RAIDS ON HOMES

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP)—Investigation by Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania into police raids on homes of workers in Woodlawn, Pa., was urged in a telegram sent by the American Civil Liberties union.

The raids upon three homes in Woodlawn, according to the Civic Liberties union, took place on the night of November 1. Twelve workers, said to have been peacefully assembled in private homes, were arrested. The houses, it is reported, were ransacked in search of literature.

ROYALISTS AND FRENCH FASCISTS EXCHANGE SHOTS

PARIS, Nov. 14—(AP)—Revolver shots were exchanged tonight between royalists and French fascists at the office of the royalist newspaper L'Action Francaise. A band of fascists had gone to this place demanding to be received by the editor so that they might obtain retraction of an article published by this paper. They were barred out, and proceeded to break the windows of the building. An exchange of shot followed, and one of the fascists was wounded.

Last year most of the French fascists seceded from the L'Action Francaise group and there has been a violent press controversy between the two groups.

EARTH SHOCKS CAUSED PANIC IN SANTIAGO, CHILE

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 14—(AP)—Four years ago on November 10, 1922, a terrific earthquake brought ruin along the coast of Chile in the vicinity of Coquimbo, Serena and Vallenar, with the death of more than five hundred persons. Yesterday the region was shaken by an earthquake, and while its effects were not so disastrous, the trembling was severe enough to cause panic among the inhabitants. So far as known, there were no casualties and only little damage done.

Believes Mathematician Will Replace the Traffic Policeman.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The city of today has outgrown its usefulness in the opinion of Thomas A. Edison, who in an interview by Edward Marshall in the current issue of the Forum magazine visualized the scientific city of the future.

In this city of the future, as foreseen by the noted inventor, time saving will be of prime importance and traffic congestion will be solved by the mathematician who will supplant the traffic policeman; crime will decrease before the advent of the scientific policeman and taxes will become astonishingly low with government of the cities by experts.

Noise in the city of the future, however, in the opinion of Mr. Edison, will increase rather than decrease, but the human being will become sufficiently deafened by nature so that his nerves will be able to withstand the increased din.

Two methods of regulating traffic are advanced by Mr. Edison, the one being creation of express and accommodation streets and the other the depressing of cross streets. But solution of the traffic problem he holds, lies in the mathematician with his labors supplanted by that of the architect.

The skyscraper, originally built as a time-saver, will in the belief of Mr. Edison, eventually have to be restricted to prevent it from becoming a loser of time, due to the huge masses of people who will be leaving and entering the buildings at the same time.

The roofs of buildings, now generally unused, says Mr. Edison will, with the perfection of the helicopter and the airplane that can rise vertically into the air, be converted into landing fields. This will bring on an era of new catastrophies, he foresees, but believes even this will not prevent the general use of air craft.

The loss of acute hearing foreseen by Mr. Edison will be a benefit, rather than a handicap, to the city dweller, he believes. He points to his own almost total deafness and says it has given him steady nerves which even the greatest noise of the cities cannot jar.

RAISES IN PAY FOR 82,466 EMPLOYES OF FORD MOTOR CO.

DETROIT, Nov. 14—(AP)—Raises in pay to offset the reductions brought about by the five day work week have been granted to 82,466 employes of the Ford Motor company, and are gradually being put into effect throughout the entire organization, officials of the company announced today.

The number to whom the increases so far have been granted represent about one-third of the employes of the motor company branch of the Ford organization. By spring, officials indicated, they expect that every employe in the organization will have been brought under the new work plan.

Officials indicated they were satisfied with the success of the new five day week.

It is the contention of the Ford organization that with two days leisure each week workers turn out more and better work, and in addition point out that this leisure time helps the automobile business.

Mr. Sorenson denied reports that the Ford company had been hard hit by competition especially by the General Motors corporation and for that reason had not been publishing production figures. He also denied that there had been large lay-offs of men.

We have 11,000 more men in our employ now than at the peak of employment of previous years. Also we have been producing 6,500 cars a day this year on a five day basis.

WOULD HAVE MILITARY COURT DEAL WITH GANGS

HERRIN, Ills., Nov. 14.—(AP) —The setting up of a military court is the only way to cope with the gang situation in southern Illinois, Mayor Marshall McCormack of Herrin told Governor Len Small of Illinois in a recent letter which was made public by the mayor today.

The letter was addressed to the governor prior to last Friday when the Illinois executive conferred at Springfield with the mayor and national guardsmen regarding the situation. Governor Small would make no recommendation for military action.

"The gangs have reached such proportions," the mayor wrote, "that no sheriff regardless of his efforts, can meet the condition. The prosecution of these outlaws is equally impossible, as no citizen will produce evidence while these gangs are at large for fear of their own lives being taken and no prosecuting attorney could live who attempted it.

"I, knowing that every civil agency has failed, yet realising the embarrassment it brings to you, to me and our state, am frank to tell you that the only solution as far as I can see is the setting up of a military court, so that arrests may be made, that evidence may be submitted without witnesses being intimidated."

HOPEFUL DEVELOPMENTS IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—(AP)—No significant changes in the business or financial outlook came to light last week. Receding tendencies in several important lines of trade and industry were checked and there were a number of other distinctly favorable developments, but the long-range view was centered on the prospects of reduced activity over the next few months.

Whatever the nature of the readjustment that must take place, it is not expected to result in any general bjusiness depression. Certain industries which have expanded operations rapidly in the past year or so have already felt the pinch of reduced buying and have curtailed production accordingly, others are finding it more difficult to strike a satisfactory balance.

One of the country's largest industrial companies—the General Motor corporation — attested its confidence as to the future course of business by authorizing the payment of nearly $35,000,000 in extra dividends to its common stockholders, bringing total disbursements for the year to more than $100,000,000 surpassing all previous corporate records.

The anticipated decrease in steel operations has been smaller than expected. Unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel corporation fell below trade estimates, although orders increased more than 90,000 tons in October. Steel ingot output for the entire industry was the highest on record in October.

The movements of freight in October was the largest in the country's history, assuring another monthly increase in railroad earnings, which are already far ahead of those for any previous year.

HOTEL CORPORATION MAY SUE STOCKHOLDERS FOR PAYMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 14—Court action threatens between 100 and 150 subscribers to Community Hotel corporation stock for the construction of the Nathan Hale hotel who are delinquent in making payments on their shares. The corporation has faced an unpleasant problem through the non-payment of some of the hotel stock since subscriptions were accepted on March 2, 1925, and after a series of personal pleas for collection legal measures were first resorted to last week when eighteen writs of attachment were placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff John H. Fitts. Of these eighteen it is understood that all but one subscriber arranged for settlement. There are now considerably over one hundred stockholders who are claimed to be in arrears. Current rumor has it that the hotel corporation has instituted civil action against these delinquents and that in the event of non-payment within a few days writs will be served. Attorneys Frank H. Foss and Harry S. Gaucher are retained by the corporation. The cases will be returnable before the Windham county superior court.

In its action the corporation sets forth that the times for payment of subscription have expired and although demand has been made upon the defendant for the amount, the sum has not been paid, and in some cases, no part thereof. One share of common stock was given with the purchase of a block of two shares of preferred at $100 par value. Despite the present difficulty, however, the corporation is in excellent financial standing, having no outstanding bills. The hotel for which stock was subscribed is now doing business under the management of the American Hotels corporation.

A wonderful new product
BEAN HOLE BEANS
Named after a Maine logging camp custom of baking beans in an out-of-door ground oven called the "bean hole"

One of the most precious things inherited from pioneer days is the skill to bake beans, beans with an appetizing flavor—plump, tender beans, prepared with molasses, brown sugar and delicious sugar-cured prime pork.

Since that time different ways of preparing beans have become a fad. Chefs, culinary experts, food scientists, have evolved countless new flavors.

Maine alone held to old traditions and the wonderfully appetizing flavor of Maine baked beans is celebrated the country over.

There only, for the sake of having the old time fragrant flavor of baked beans, would they take the time and go to the trouble of baking them in the outdoor earthen ovens.

Beans as baked in the ground in the Maine woods have not spread because, while the recipe is simple, the method of preparation is hard to follow; and then, too, modern city folks don't live under conditions which make it possible to bake beans the "bean hole" way.

Many attempts have been made to equal the flavor of Maine "bean hole" beans but until now no modern way has matched the result of the old-fashioned earthen oven.

The new product, Bean Hole Beans, for the first time exactly reproduces all the eating qualities of "bean hole" beans as baked in the Maine woods. If you enjoy baked beans that are really appetizing you will like Bean Hole Beans.

BROOKLYN FAIR NETTED STOCKHOLDERS PROFIT OF $1,000

(Special to The Bulletin).

DANIELSON, Nov. 14—Members of the Windham County Agricultural society met in Unitarian hall at Brooklyn Saturday at 11 a. m.—the annual meeting—to hear reports covering the past year's activities of the society and to elect officers for another year.

While agricultural societies in many sections of New England have had difficulties the past few years in keeping a balance on the right side of the ledger, the Windham County Agricultural society, oldest in the United States, continues virile and successful.

Not only did the society arrange one of the best fairs in its history for September of this year, adding special attractions and paying additional premiums, but it made money in doing it. Secretary Marshall J. Frink said Sunday afternoon that when the state aid of $500 for the fair association is received and some other money due comes in the profit for this year will be between $800 and $1,000. Exclusive of what is due the society, the report of Treasurer J. Dyer Potter shows that there is at present a treasury balance of $2,068.81, a gain from $1,901.64, on November 1, 1925.

Buildings at the fairgrounds are in first class condition. First and last, the Agricultural society is in about the best condition, financially and otherwise than has been its lot for a great many years, which is a matter of satisfaction to the thousands who flock to the annual exhibit from all parts of southern New England each September.

Of special interest to officials of the society this year is the fact that Red Chief, winner of the free for all, trot or pace, event at the fair this fall lowered the track record to 2.14, after a mark of :19, set in September, 1916, by Mary Ann, had stood unchallenged for a decade, and when Mary Ann reduced the record it had been standing without change for approximately 10 years.

The newly elected officers of the society are: President, Archie H. Gallup, Scotland; first vice president, Earl Andrews, Woodstock; second vice-president, Lester Williams, Brooklyn; third vice president, Dr. P. W. Page, Danielson; secretary, Marshall J. Frink, Brooklyn; treasurer, J. Dyer Potter, Putnam; auditors, Judge Oscar F. Atwood, Riley B. Witter, Fred Miller, all of Brooklyn; executive committee, Brooklyn, Arthur House; Scotland, Harry Chesebro; Hampton, William P. Spaulding; Pomfret, F. W. Cunningham; Canterbury, Christian Kerr; Chaplin, W. E. Gallup; Eastford, O. B. Carpenter; Windham, George A. Cook; Plainfield, Walter Lathrop; Killingly, Rev. C. A. Downs; Putnam, Luther M. Keith; Sterling, George H. Gallup; Woodstock, W. C. Child; Eastford, Fred Wright; Thompson, Charles A. Whitney.

The ladies' department elected these officers: President, Mrs. Earl Andrews, Woodstock; first vice president, Mrs. Horace Covell, Pomfret; second vice-president, Mrs. J. Dyer Potter, Putnam; third vice president, Mrs. Helen Palmer, Brooklyn; secretary, Mrs. A. E. Williams, Brooklyn; executive committee, Miss Helen Witter, Brooklyn; Mrs. Hiram Hawes, Canterbury; Mrs. A. A. Milligan, Plainfield; Mrs. Winslow Gallup, Chaplin; Mrs. S. P. Humphrey, Danielson; Mrs. N. C. Cleveland, Hampton; Mrs. Archie Gallup, Scotland; Mrs. Wendell Witter, Putnam; Mrs. Mary Gallup, Sterling; Mrs. John Weatherbee, Pomfret; Mrs. C. F. Whiting, Thompson; Mrs. Frank B. Martin, Windham; superintendents of buildings, Mrs. Eva Tripp, Killingly; Mrs. George Witter, Brooklyn; entry clerks, Mrs. Addie C. Hyde, Brooklyn; Mrs. A. E. Williams, Brooklyn.

A dinner for those attending the annual meeting of the society was served by the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Brooklyn Congregational church under the direction of Mrs. Clark G. Lawton and Miss Della Lawton.

At the home of her daughter in East Killingly Saturday afternoon the death of Mrs. Mary F. Nye, 70, occurred. Mrs. Nye was a native of the town of Killingly, born at Dayville, a daughter of Benjamin and Anna Moffitt Withey, and had lived her life within its confines. Mrs. Nye leaves a daughter, Mrs. William Smith of East Killingly, at his home she died, and a son, Raymond Nye, of Oxford, Mass. Mrs. Ardelle Kennedy of Danielson is a sister of Mrs. Nye's. Mrs. Nye was a woman of splendid Christian character and all of her friends will hold her in loving memory.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Pluse, Carter street, Saturday afternoon about 1:30 the death of Walter Perigrine White, 66, for the past 32 years a resident of Danielson, occurred. Mr. White had been in failing health for several years and of late very feeble. The end was forecasted when he collapsed a few days ago and thereafter was confined to his bed.

Mr. White was born in Putnam, May 17, 1860, a son of Warren W. and Catherine N. Kennedy White. He studied in the schools of that town and eventually became one of its foremost citizens, at one time being elected to the office of first selectman and during his administration a recently removed iron bridge was built over the Quinebaug river.

Mr. White came to Danielson to engage in the business of soda manufacturing and continued in that capacity for approximately a quarter of of century, his products being favorably known and liberally sold throughout northeastern Connecticut. He retired from business after his health had become seriously impaired.

Mr. White, who traced his American ancestry back to the original company of the Mayflower, was for years a member of the National guard of Connecticut and, in competition, won numbers of medals and insignia for marksmanship.

He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Catherine Pluse, at whose home he died and who tenderly cared for her father during his declining years, and Mrs. Caroline Hargraves, of Miami, Fla. Mrs. White died a number of years ago.

W. H. BACKUS FOUND DEAD AT HIS HOME ON SUNDAY

DANIELSON, Nov. 14—William H. Backus, 63, descendant of an old and distinguished Killingly family, was found dead in bed at his home on North Main street Sundya morning. Mr. Backus was 82 years of age last July. Aside from the infirmities due to his advanced years, he had been more or less as usual practically up to the time of his death. Mr. Backus for years was musical critic for Boston newspapers and relinquished his calling only after his hearing began to fail. The younger generation of Danielson people knew little of him, as he was of a retiring disposition and had few intimate affiliations. A cultured gentleman, an especially fine musician and student of and authority on music, the pursuit of his chosen profession was his largest interest in affairs. He was the last of his family.

A Danielson delegation that rode over to Storrs Saturday afternoon took great delight in watching A. W. "Pop" Williams, fullback of the Connecticut Agricultural college football team and a former Killingly High school player batter down the defense of the Rhode Island Agricultural college team and blast his way to touchdowns that spelled hopeless defeat for the visitors, Williams was the outstanding star of the game, and nothing Rhode Island had in its bag of tricks or in prowess could avail against him. Also playing a marvelously good game for the Connecticut Aggies during a part of the contest was Antonio Longo, one of the brilliant linesmen of the Connecticut team and also a former Killingly High school player. The Danielson people that saw the game gathered a satisfying eyeful.

Rev. Antiheime Mollard, M. S., speaking to the people of the St. James parish on the first Sunday of his pastorate here, made a splendid impression, and it was to be inferred from some things that he said that one of the chief objectives of the year will be the building of the new parochial school for which the parish has been gathering funds for several years. Father Mollard comes to Danielson from St. Joseph's parish at Fitchburg, where his administration was an outstanding success. Father Mollard in a gracious talk pertaining to his predecessor here, the Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., told his congregations at the various masses that he hoped for the same cooperation taht has been a means of making the great development of the parish properties, possible during the last score of years. For himself and for the new curate, Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., who has been in a position of responsibility at LaSalette college at Hartford until recently, he expressed his desire for a parish enthusiasm that will mean a great deal in the important missions to be carried out.

At East Killingly Saturday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Jennie B. Darling was held from her home with services at the Union Baptist church at 2 o'clock, Rev. W. D. Hetherington officiating. During the service Mrs. W. D. Hetherington and Mrs. Andrew J. Potter sang Lead Kindly Light, and It Is Well With My Soul. Another vocal number, We Shall Meet Bye and Bye, was sung by Miss Elizabeth White. Burial was in the Bartlett cemetery. The bearers were Claude Moran, Jesse Smith, William I. Lewis and Arthur Carroll. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Here is something to pop up the hunters who look forward with regret to the close of the hunting season on November 23—there is a wild cat over in the town of Pomfret. Deputy Game Warden Gurdon E. Withey said Saturday that he had learned that a hunter who was out on Friday of last week, seeking game birds, saw the big cat bounding along in territory known as Bark meadows. The hunters emptied both barrels of his gun, carrying bird shot, at the speeding animal but did not bring him down. It will be recalled that another big cat was killed in an outlying section of the town of Pomfret, something over a year ago—an animal weighing 42 pounds—so it is not at all strange that another of the tribe has made his appearance, as the legend is these animals will do in country where deer abound, as they do in Windham county.

Harry C. Young, 20, remained seriously ill at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam sunday, when his case was considered by a specialist and by attending physicians. The young man became seriously ill Monday of last week and has been at the hospital since Wednesday.

PUTNAM

BURGLARS GET $200 IN MEAT MARKET BREAK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 14—Beausoliel Brothers meat market on Providence street was entered and a drawer pried open in an apartment of an unlocked safe and about $200 in cash taken. It is thought that some one familiar with the market and the habits of the proprietors is responsible. Entrance to the store was gained through a small cellar window under St. John's hall and from there the burglars entered the Beausoliel cellar by forcing open a door. They also forced open a door at the head of the stairs leading into the Beausoliel market, and once inside the store room the safe was easily accessible.

The following special has been received from Washington, D. C., concerning the delay to the Putnam postoffice:

"Because Putnam is not agreed on a site for its new postoffice there is delay in going ahead with the project. The department is making progress on many other projects, authorized, like the Putnam one, back in 1913, and bids for the new Branford postoffice will be advertised for soon. Bids for two new offices in Massachusetts are already advertised for, as is one in Maine. All such projects, like the Putnam one, were held up for lack of funds until the new public building bill last session gave money to go ahead with."

The impression is gathered that if the people of Putnam were not disagreeing over the site the bids for its new post office might now be in the process of submission.

Mrs. William H. Shippee is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital suffering from a broken wrist as the result of being hit by a motorcycle in Danielson. She was alighting from her automobile when a boy riding a bicycle ran into her and knocked her down.

The paper starts out with four columns of advertising, which should be encouraging to the enterprising Scouts.

The members of the First Baptist church of this city will hold a reception to their new pastor, Rev. Henry E. Hodge and Mrs. Hodge at the church parlors on Tuesday evening, November 16 from 8 to 10 o'clock. The members and congregations of all of the church in the city and community are expected to be present.

Mr. Hodge became pastor of the Baptist church during the past summer, having come from charges in Winchester and Everett, Mass. Rev. and Mrs. Frank Lockwood of Watertown, Mass., will be the guests of the evening. Mr. Lockwood served as supply minister at this church for a number of months when the church was without a pastor. It is hoped that many people of the community will take advantage of this opportunity of meeting and welcoming Mr. and Mrs. Hodge to the city.

BORAH AS PEACE MAKER

Is Senator Borah setting himself up as a peace maker within the republican party? It might seem so as the result of his recent statement and his plea in behalf of Senator Frazier. For a number of years there has been a group of insurgents who have stood in the way of party efforts and even thrown their support to the democratic party when it was possible for them to exercise the balance of power. They represented what were republican states but where sentiment had turned to non partisan league and farmer-labor activities. There has been a disappearance of that sentiment and a getting back to republicanism.

Because of their opposition to the republican party there was a group of insurgents who were read out of the party. Since then death and a return to the republican fold has brought them or their successors back in the republican ranks with the exception of Senator Frazier. He lost in committee rank and chairmanships because of the position in which he was placed. But times have changed and with Brookhart, LaFollette, and Nye elected as republicans there is perhaps no reason Frazier should be kept outside the party any more than there is why some of the others shouldn't be read out of it.

It would be interesting to know what the attitude of Senator Frazier is? Inasmuch as Senator Borah has proceeded to speak in his behalf it is to be supposed that he would welcome a return to the republican party, and that on return he would be a republican. It may therefore be good political strategy for the party leaders to consider the Borah proposition and consider whether the good effects of solidifying the party would not be preferable to keeping the breach open, especially when in the next congress there is going to be such a close division in the senate.

Of course there are times when Senator Borah seems to have been quite out of harmony with the republican party as have some of the insurgents, but it is significant that a member of the party in good standing and holding one of the most important committee chairmanships should speak in behalf of the North Dakota senator. It would seem that the latter has been on the outside looking in long enough and is desirous of ending the unenviable position.

CONNECTICUT VS. INDIANA

It takes time to bring automobile legislation up to the point where it will most satisfactorily meet the situation. In this direction it is interesting to note the contrast between the views taken in Connecticut and Indiana relative to dimming of automobile lights.

There is no law in Connecticut against the dimming of lights, but it is the view of the motor vehicle commissioner that when dimmers are used it is taking a chance on providing the proper amount of light as required by law to insure safety on the highway at night. Thus it approaches the point of being a violation of the law.

Out in Indiana dimming is required. "Every person operating or driving a motor vehicle on the public highways shall, when approaching and about to pass any other person operating or driving a motor vehicle and traveling in the opposite direction, dim, or reduce the front lights on his motor vehicle so that the rays projected therefrom will not blind or confuse the person whom such driver is approaching and about to pass," reads the Indiana law.

Indiana in endeavoring to avoid the trouble that comes from glaring headlights and that trouble is a serious one, Connecticut meets it, however, in a much more effective way by requiring the rays of the lights to be thrown downward so that they will light the highway without bothering drivers going in the opposite direction. If observed the Connecticut method is far preferable to the Indiana plan. It is true that many drivers fail to have their lights properly focused and therefore overcome the efforts to prevent the glare, but the relief from the necessity of dimming lights is a welcome one for the change from the bright light to a dim one affects the vision of the driver seriously at times, especially if by chance he happens to turn his lights off completely instead of dimming them, and too frequently it is the case that the dimmed lights do not show objects a sufficient distance ahead or sufficiently clear to insure safety. Indiana would do well to look into the question of proper lenses and focusing of lights.

LYNCHING INCREASING

The lynching spirit seems to be contagious. When there is a strong effort made to prevent lynching, to decry it and to make those who participate therein pay the penalty for their crime there is more or less opposition created and lynchings show a decrease. When it breaks out again there seems to be an ambition on the part of some to equal or exceed what is done in other states.

Just now the tide seems to have turned toward more lynchings. The extremely bad example that was recently set in Aiken county in the state of South Carolina has been equalled if not excelled in the state of Texas not far from Houston where three Negroes were killed, two of them, a man and woman, being burned alive.

This is of course civilized Texas, but the state where burning at the stake is nothing new and where atrocious crimes are committed by those who undertake to administer the law.

This state of affairs deals a harsh blow to those ambitions to bring about a lowering of lynchings this year. Instead there is going to be a large increase over last year and so far it doesn't appear that those who are responsible for it are going to be made the least uncomfortable for the disgrace which they bring upon their state through the open and intentional defiance of the law.

Whatever these two states may have done in the past in the way of trying to shape a new course against mob rule, all has been knocked in the head by their latest reversion to their overpowering inclinations. The better sentiment of the people of these commonwealths may not be represented but apparently that sentiment isn't able to bring about and maintain a proper respect for the law.

Are these triple lynchings going to be the signal for similar outbreaks in other states in the lynching belt? Are others going to make themselves conspicuous in their backsliding just because South Carolina and Texas have? These two states might do much to stamp out such activities if they would impose the proper punishment upon those who are responsible for such affairs, but just as long as they refrain from doing so they are giving that encouragement which amounts to an invitation to others to go out and do likewise.

CANADA'S MINISTER

The appointment of Hon. Vincent Massey as Canada's envoy to the United States marks a new period in the relationship between this country and Canada and this country and the British empire. This difference is because while matters pertaining to Canada have hitherto been handled by the British ambassador, or had to have the sanction of London, they will henceforth be under the guidance of Canada's own representative who has full authority to handle them, who will have a separate legation from Great Britain and will not be obliged to submit to British review.

This idea of a Canadian minister to the United States has been in the works for a long time. There have been obstacles in the way to be removed but all were apparently eliminated at the recent imperial conference at London and the Ottawa government has proceeded to make its appointment. Hon. Vincent Massey is a man in whom Canada placed full confidence, but he shares the same confidence on the part of London, even though questions arising between this country and the dominion can be settled between them without being referred to the British cabinet.

Even though this is going to be a new experience there is no reason why it should not work out well. The relationship of the neighbor on the north to this country has been of the best, and as friends it can be expected to continue in the future. The appointment of a minister to Washington gives promise of even better relations, better understanding and quicker action. It is pointed out that there might be complications in case of war but that is a situation which there seems to be no reason to anticipate. At least it can wait until such a break is threatened.

HIT AND RUNNERS

"Hit and run" is all right when it comes to baseball, but it is all wrong when it comes to a motorist striking a person in the highway and then disappearing.

That at least is the view a Philadelphia court takes of such an affair for it has just sentenced one of those hit and runners to prison for a period of not less than six and not more than 23 years.

This was a case where a motorcycle policeman, a man who got his living, or was supposed to, from upholding the law, took his automobile for a pleasure drive while off duty. During that trip he struck and killed one pedestrian and injured two others and disappeared without stopping to see what harm he had done. Fortunately it was possible to trace him and his arrest, trial and conviction soon followed, and he now has a chance to think over what he should have done but what he refused to do.

Think of the example that was set by this representative of the law. Here he was engaged in directing all in the observance of the various laws and yet when he had a chance to apply them to himself he was found to be among the worst of the dangerous highway users. The person who knowingly runs away from an accident shows himself to be a coward but when a motor cycle policeman disappears after causing death and injury there isn't a chance for an iota of sympathy, and that is apparently the view the court took of the case. It should be a telling lesson to the hit and runners, from whom the big cities are great sufferers. This particular policeman will probably do no more of it, but how many others will profit from his experience?

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Always pare fruit with a silver knife, as steel discolors it and stains the fingers.

Heat the potato chips in the oven for a few minutes. Then you will know they will not be soggy when served.

You can give linoleum a lovely finish by waxing it after the surface has been cleaned and thoroughly dried.

In making jam remember it is essential to cook a small amount at a time, and cook it quickly over a hot fire, stirring constantly.

A tablespoon of minced parsley, celery or green pepper may be advantageously added to creamed vegetable soups just before serving.

Creamed or scalloped vegetables may be prepared with evaporated milk diluted with meat stock if the supply of cream or milk is limited.

When you have lost the knob from a tea kettle or pan, make a new one by inserting a corkscrew from the underside and screwing a clean cork on top.

A delicious salad is made by combining cold fish and diced fresh or cooked vegetables, and pouring midsummer meat dish.

Use a perforated-top aluminum clothes sprinkler to moisten pastry evenly and not make parts of it too wet.

Dip your scissors into very cold, preferably iced water, and marshmallows will not stick while the scissors are wet.

Hanging shelves, so very popular with interior decorators, are very attractive in the kitchen or breakfast room to hold jellies, marmalades and the little special luxuries.

Fresh fruit, used as a trimming for a frosted cake are much to be recommended. Raisins, canned pineapples, dates or oranges can always be spread over a whipped cream base to glorify a very simple sponge or loaf cake.

To clean a white raincoat cut up two ounces of good yellow soap and boil it in a little water till dissolved, then let it cool a little and stir in half an ounce of powdered magnesia. Wash the raincoat with this, using a nail brush for the soiled parts; rinse off the dirty soap and dry with a clean cloth.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

The new coffee-pot is made of heat-proof glass or china with an aluminum compartment at the top. After the coffee is made this is removed and the pot looks just like an ordinary coffee pot. Much is claimed for the excellence of coffee made this way.

JUST WHEN TO USE IT

If you want to economize and use a vegetable oil in place of olive oil in salad dressing, use it in mayonnaise, not in French dressing. Along with the other flavors of mayonnaise and the egg, the vegetable oil is not noticeable, but in French dressing one would know it in a minute.

FLAVORING DRESSING

A tablespoon of tomato catsup added to the French dressing, will give it an unusual flavor. Minced chutney is also an addition.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Never leave medicine or any kind of a drink uncovered in a sick room.

If you should be so unlucky as to have a fish bone catch in your throat, cut a lemon in halves and suck them slowly. The lemon juice will dissolve the bone and bring relief.

If you have any difficulty in giving children powders, take a banana and cut it in half lengths. Scoop out some of the middle. Put the powder into it, place together again, and give it to the child to eat.

If everyone ate an entire meal of vegetables just once a week the spring tonic might be dispensed with forever. The real vegetable dinner should include three vegetables at least, besides potatoes. One vegetable in the dinner should be raw, such as spinach, beets, carrots and tomatoes. One or two may be cooked with eggs, milk or cheese. A vegetable dinner may be planked on the plank used for meat and fish. Heat the plank in a hot oven and rub it with butter.

LEFT-OVER PASTRIES

After the pie has been made the housewife often finds that she has enough left-over pastry to convert into shells or tarts. But even small amounts of pastes may be utilized in several ways. A suggestion: Roll whatever paste is left into thin sheets, no matter how small. Spread on sheet with marmalade. Cover with the other sheet, cut into strips and bake in a hot oven. An even simpler method is to roll the paste into a thick sheet, brush with or white and cover with sugar. Chill and bake in a hot oven until well browned and serve with salad at your afternoon tea.

PRESERVES LINOLEUM

If the linoleum is plain or inlaid simply wax it. No scrubbing. No hot water. Spread a little wax, either in paste or liquid form, between the folds of a piece of cheesecloth. Rub the floor thoroughly with this, applying the wax sparingly. Then polish it, for this part of the job use a weighted brush made especially for this purpose or make a similar polisher yourself with a heavy brick wrapped in a soft cloth.

If your linoleum is printed then you should varnish it with a good, clear waterproof varnish. This protects the printed design from being scuffed.

GOES WITH GOOD HOUSEKEEPING

The housewife who has a great deal of unexpected company always has a head of lettuce and a jar of mayonnaise in her refrigerator. Then a dainty salad is always forthcoming to garnish her dinner.

CUT FLOWERS

The department of agriculture says that nothing is better than fresh, cool water for cut flowers. The water should be changed daily and the stems of the flowers clipped.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Black moire slippers for evening are strapped and trimmed with gold leather.

Chiffon neckerchiefs in printed chiffon give a touch of loveliness to the sombre frock.

Cherry red and the very deep shades of rose and pink are very popular for evening wear.

Metal embroidery is very much liked as a trimming for colored velvets, particularly on wraps and coats.

Gold cloth makes very stunning linings for velvet wraps, and often gold embroidery appears on the outside of the garment.

Ostrich feathers in pastel shades are very much liked for collars on evening wraps.

An exotic evening wrap is of ermine, tinted yellow and collared and cuffed with white fox.

Double faced ribbon, satin on one side and moire on the other is used to make charming little hats and toques.

Hindu turbans of rich brocaded fabrics and velvets are being introduced in Paris as a new departure in millinery.

The neckline and armhole of youthful frocks is effectively outlined with French flowers in many colored velvet and chiffon.

Flowers of flame colored velvet are appliqued on a gown of very thin gold cloth to make an attractive trimming for an evening gown.

A charming dancing frock is made of rose colored taffie with a short pleated skirt, plain bodice and very wide gypsy girdle of cloth of gold.

Crystal bugs, more or less realistic, and bugs and animals composed entirely of brilliants much glorified, are very popular for hat trimmings and corsage pins.

VELVET IS FAVORED FOR FALL COSTUME

The renaissance of velvet in fashion was one of the outstanding phases of the modes of last winter. For years velvet had played a little part in fashion and its re-entrance into the sartorial scheme of things was the occasion of much rejoicing on the part of designers who realized the possibilities of this lovely and flattering material.

This season one finds an even more extensive use of velvet. Many of the smartest hats from the most famous French milliners are developed in velvet, and new and interesting ideas are revealed in details, lines and color combinations. Velvet takes precedence of almost any other fabric in the fashioning of formal dresses, and one also sees it put to charming use in the making of simple little frocks of most informal character.

The vogue for velvet has brought about an increased interest in velvet ribbons. The narrower widths are employed as decoration on frocks as well as hat, while ribbon of wider proportions is selected to fashion frocks of amazing chic.

PEARL JEWELRY

Pearls continue to be the jewels favored by smart women. A novel version of the familiar pearl string has a pendant composed of pearshaped pearls in the form of a bunch of grapes. Others have clusters and tassels which hang down the back instead of the front of the frock.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

Use silk thread when basting on silk, velvet or cloth. It will not leave an impression under the iron. Cotton thread does.

In making tatting or crocheted lace to keep it clean so it will not have to be laundered before using, wash the hands and dry well, then dust a small amount of talcum powder on them. You will find that the thread slips more easily and is perfectly clean when finished.

A test for linen is: Remove a thread from fabric, hold one end upright, wet it and hauten with fingers. If in drying the thread revolves anti-clockwise, it is linen. It isn't linen if it revolves clockwise.

Place a three-arm towel rack above the right end of the sewing machine. On this rack may be placed measuring tape, pieces of unfinished goods and scissors that usually fall to the floor. This is especially useful if the machine may be kept in a permanent position where the rack will always serve it.

NEAT WORKBASKET

Keep in your workbasket several large-sized safety pins and use them to string loose buttons, hooks and eyes. Keep those of the same size on the same pin, black hooks on black pins, white eyes on white pins, etc. By doing so you will never have an untidy workbasket or be delayed by not being able to find at once what you are looking for. Fasten the safety pins to one side of the lining of your basket and your method of securing neatness will be complete.

WHEN INK IS SPILLED

Immediately after ink has been spilt take a sponge and mop up as much of it as possible. Have two bowls containing clear cold water beside you, the one to squeeze the inky sponge into, the other to dip it into when cleaned. Continue soaking the soiled spot with clean water until as much ink as possible is removed. If the stain is persistent apply to it a little oxalic acid or salts of sorrel or even a weak solution of ammonia. You will find that these prompt remedies will prevent a very nasty stain.

GLASS JARS

Glass jars are the best sort of containers for tea, coffee, spices, etc., as they are airtight and one can see at a glance just how much is on hand.

MOIST HEAT

A double boiler is splendid for warming biscuits, rolls and muffins, particularly those a trifle dried out.

ON WITH THE PICNIC

An ordinary corn popper is a splendid article for the picnic or camp as it forms an ideal roaster for "doggies". The wire basket keeps them safe and the long handle prevents burned fingers.

TIP TO PLANNERS

When building a house, or when remodeling the interior, remember to allow plenty of space for sink and table room. This saves breakage and lightens labor generally.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Great numbers of girls in the Near East are being instructed in callings which hitherto have been open only to men.

Great Britain has 10,000 women engaged in mining and about 225,000 in engineering.

Edith Badgley, aged 19 years, of Topeka, Kan., has established herself in the racing world as a fullfledged jockey.

Selma Fjelstad, recently elected county clerk of Dane county, Wis., is the first woman to hold a public office in that county.

Margot Zachert, 17-year-old German girl, is serving as an apprentice mason with a view of becoming the first woman mason in Germany.

Miss Victoria Drummond, a goddaughter of the late Queen Victoria, is the first woman ever to obtain a British board of trade certificate as a fully qualified seagoing engineer.

Dr. P. F. Elfield, recently appointed director of the women's wards of the Farnhourst (Del.) hospital for the insane, is the first woman physician to be named for a state institution.

SAUCE FOR FISH

Delicious egg sauce for fish is made by adding two finely chopped hard-boiled eggs to cream sauce.

IN CASE OF ACCIDENT

If vegetables cook dry and you are afraid they will taste a trifle scorched, set the saucepan in cold water and let it stay there about five minutes. It will take away any slight scorch.

RECIPES

Glazed Carrots: Young, tender carrots are most delicious prepared in this way: Scrape, and cut in halves if large. If very small leave whole. Boil until tender, then drain and place in a baking pan with a heaping tablespoon of butter. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, paprika and a little sugar to induce browning. Bake for about 30 minutes. When boiling the carrots, it will be well to prepare a sufficient quantity of them to furnish a salad for the next day's dinner. For this they may be mixed with green peas, string beans, lima beans, or used alone as one desires. The combination makes a very pretty, colorful salad and should be dressed with a plain French dressing.

Corn Dumplings: Prepare a light dough, roll it thin, then cut it in three-inch squares. Have ready some corn which was cooked on the ear and seasoned highly with salt and pepper. Put one tablespoon of the corn into each square of dough with one-fourth teaspoon of butter. Draw the edges of the pastry together and steam the dumplings for 20 minutes. Serve as a garnish for stewed chicken.

By James Mosher Penniman, Litt. D

Sincere Books Do Us Good

The verdict of time is never wrong. Books that delighted generations of men have done so because of real merit and these are the books that have embodied the life thought of great men. Shadow books no matter how brilliant they may be are short-lived. The best thoughts of the best men endure in books that are true to human experience irrespective of the century in which they were written. An author is great in proportion as he perceives the universally true in life.

The books which do us good are the sincere books, those which are true in the highest sense of the word, which give noble and cheerful ideas of life, which make us respect human nature, books written by men who have a helpful message for their fellow strugglers.

There are books which mark epochs in the progress of the world just as the discovery of America and the invention of printing do, and the reading of a book sometimes marks an epoch in life. Great is the joy of meeting a real book by a thoughtful man. Keats wrote on first looking into Chapman's Homer:—

"Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When a new planet swims into his ken
Or like stout Cortes when with eagle eyes
He stared at the Pacific—and all his men
Looked at each other with a wild surprise—
Silent, upon a peak in Darien."

YOUR HEALTH

HEALTH-SUCCESS; DISEASE-FAILURE

By J. McCree Dickson, M. D., Gettysburg, Pa.
Member Corgas Memorial Institute

Journeys into strange places are made with greater safety and comfort, in the present day of automobiles, through the use of carefully charted highways. Business failures are prevented by the far-sighted men who study market conditions; who study the business needs of their own community and anticipate and provide against future business depression.

How seriously do you regard the sign boards of health along life's journey? Do you know that such sign boards are well distributed along the way to guide your path. You may not recognize or be able to read them, but those signs can be interpreted by your doctor to your great advantage, in preventing serious disease and premature death.

The prevention of diseases by careful periodic health examination of bodily resources is just as sure to prolong health and happiness in life's journeys for you as the inventory of trade enables business men to prevent disaster.

The business man employs competent workers to audit his accounts, to take inventories, and to advise with him on new projects. He accepts the audits and advice only of those known to be well fitted by education and experience to speak with authority on their particular subject.

The same business man, seeking advice concerning his own health, all too frequently drops into the nearest office that flares forth a doctor's sign. He forgets his carefully chosen business principles and accepts "medical" advice, with the least investigation of the "Doctors'" education, experience, and ability. He forgets that all doctors who would treat the body are not doctors of medicine.

A "Bucket Shop" is not a broker to this business man. Successful business avoids the "Bucket Shop." Why, then, submit your body investments to the care of advisors whose experience has been gained in medical "Bucket Shops?"

The various cults, many of which are more forms of quackery, are now flourishing upon the ignorance of the public, or through lack of investigation by the public, in hundreds of cities and villages. They have found "short cuts" in education and training which omit the mastery of subjects demanded of those who would qualify as a doctor of medicine.

Choose well your health advisor! He will give you sign boards to watch along the way. He will advise means by which mind and body will be kept keenly alert.

Health in body brings a keen, clear brain, one able to reach a momentous decision, a decision that may bring success or failure. The sign boards of business and of life require keen judgment and prompt decision.

Peter Is Very Sad

Sadness is the lot of all;
The rich, the poor, the big, the small.
—Old Mother Nature.

This is true. It is a part of life. Not one can avoid it. No one can be shielded from it. Perhaps it is that we may the better appreciate happiness.

Peter Rabbit was very sad. Ever since he was a little fellow he had known Mrs. Grouse. They had been the best of friends. And now, a dreadful thing had happened. A hunter with a terrible gun had shot Mrs. Grouse. Peter had seen her fall at the bang of the dreadful gun. He knew she had been shot. He knew she hadn't been killed, for when she struck the ground she jumped to her feet and ran. Then the hunter had shot once more and run forward to pick her up. Peter didn't wait to see more. Mrs. Grouse was dead. Peter was sure of that. If she had not been, of course that hunter wouldn't have run forward to pick her up.

"Aren't you home early, Peter?" she demanded

So Peter was filled with a great sadness. He didn't wait to see anything more, but took to his long heels, lipperty-lipperty-lip, as fast as he could go. He didn't want to be where that hunter might see him. He was badly upset, was Peter. It was not only the sadness of having Mrs. Grouse shot, but it was also the shock of finding a hunter with a terrible gun shooting in the Green Forest. It was a long, time since a gun had been fired in the Green Forest, for the Green Forest was on Farmer Brown's land, and Farmer Brown's Boy had put up signs all about, saying that it was against the law to shoot on Farmer Brown's land. So, because there had been no shooting there for so long, all the little people believed there never could be, and never would be any shooting there, and were unafraid.

Peter hurried home to the dear Old Briar-patch. Little Mrs. Peter looked at him with surprise when he arrived. "Aren't you home early, Peter?" she demanded.

Peter looked a little foolish. You see, it wasn't this greeting that he usually got. He was home early. "I-I-I-I have some sad news," said Peter.

"What is it?" demanded little Mrs. Peter, beginning to look anxious.

"Did you hear a dreadful gun over in the Green Forest a little while ago?" Peter inquired.

Mrs. Peter nodded her head vigorously. "Were you over there?" she asked.

"Yes," said Peter, "I was there and a dreadful thing happened. A hunter surprised Mr. and Mrs. Grouse. When they took to their wings he fired that terrible gun, and I saw Mrs. Grouse fall. He didn't kill her, for I saw her run. The hunter saw her too, and once more he shot. I couldn't see her, but the hunter ran forward with his hand out to pick her up."

"Oh, Peter! Isn't it dreadful!" cried little Mrs. Peter, looking very sad indeed. "And just think, Peter, it might have been you. Yes sir, it might have been you. Now, I do hope you'll learn to stay at home. You are safe in the dear Old Briar-patch, and this is the place where you belong. Promise me, Peter, that you will never, never leave the Old Briar-patch again. If you do, I shall be worried to death. You've told me over and over there was no danger over in the Green Forest, but now you know better."

"Yes," replied Peter, "I know better," and he said it very sadly. But Peter didn't promise that he never would leave the dear Old Briar-patch again.

FINDS 60 OIL BURNERS, MOSTLY DOMESTIC, IN USE IN NORWICH

The United States department of commerce, bureau of mines, is making a national study of the number of oil burners in use according to the following classifications: Domestic burners, commercial burners, industrial burners. A request to Chief Howard L. Stanton for this information results in the following survey of oil burners in use in Norwich, November 1st, 1926 and has been forwarded to Washington; domestic burners 47, commercial burners 12, industrial burners 1, or total of 60 burners.

It may be of interest to those having installed oil burners and those considering the installation of this type of heating appliances that since 1918 when the first oil burner was listed by the underwriters only 9 had been listed at the end of 1923. In 1924 the list had increased to 14, in 1925 to 30 and at the present time, or October 1st, 1926 the list shows 56 domestic oil burners listed. All of these listed burners will, no doubt, bear the underwriter's label by January 1st, 1927. More than 300 oil burning devices had been submitted for listing three years ago and only 56 have been approved by the underwriter's laboratories to October 1st.

Sergt. Matthew Delaney saw the bottle thrown and sounded his police whistle as a signal for the driver to stop. He kept going in spite of the fact that the whistle was blown several times. Sergt. Delaney then chased them in a machine toward Main street and finally collared them. The five or six young men in the machine were escorted to police headquarters.

At police headquarters one of them, Philip Gingerella, 17, admitted throwing the bottle into the street, but claimed that it landed near the gutter and not in the center of the street. He was held in $25 bonds on a charge of breach of the peace and his case is scheduled to come up before the city court this (Monday) morning. They are elaborately illustrated with charts and diagrams. Mr. Filene, after telling how these reports have been compiled, sketching their significance and suggesting research policies for future years, will call on various speakers to give short talks illustrative of the value of research to their various endeavors—manufacturers who have used research methods and can tell what it will do, etc.

Keynote Merchandising

Friday afternoon will be devoted to what is really the keynote meeting of the conference—merchandising. Men representing various fields will tell of successful examples of the merchandising of New England products—there will, in fact, be a whole array of representatives of successful New England businesses. Just a few of the many who will give short addresses at this time are Louis K. Liggett, president of the United Drug company and chairman of the Friday afternoon session; Colonel Frank Knox of the Manchester, N. H., Union, who will branch off into a discussion of public relations and what community organizations are doing to boost New England, and E. M. Statler, president of Statler Hotels, Inc.

ELIZABETH STREET AND GREENEVILLE SCHOOL WIN

The two silver cups offered by The Bulletin for prizes for the school floats in the Armistice day parade were awarded to the Elizabeth street school, first prize, and the Greeneville school, second prize, according to the announcement made Saturday by the committee of seven judges: Miss Annie L. Ruggles, Miss Mary A. Aiken, Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins, Mrs. Edmund W. Perkins, Mrs. W. B. Birge and Mrs. Charles H. Haskell.

The Elizabeth street school float was entitled "To the Winners of Peace" and the Greeneville float "What Price War."

In making the final awards the committee issued the following statement:

"The committee of awards for the floats in the Armistice day parade wish to state that the votes were greatly divided, many floats failing just short of the number of votes necessary for the award.

"The committee was unanimous in the feeling that the floats were unusually beautiful and well carried out, showing originality and much hard work.

"Norwich has reason to be proud of the work of the different organizations and of the very beautiful and interesting school floats, as well, showing in each and every case that much thought had been given to the design.

"The patriotic cooperation of the selectmen of the town of Lisbon and the school committee of the Pitchville school was especially appreciated.

NO MEDICINAL VALUE IN RADIOACTIVE WATERS

The medicinal value of radioactive spring waters is all bunk says the weekly health bulletin issued by the state department of health. The bulletin says:

Since it was discovered in recent years that spring waters contain radioactive substances, these waters have been charged with the "elixir of life," and thousands of unsuspecting people have pinned false hope in their medicinal value.

To find out to what extent waters are radioactive much research has been carried on of late years. It is reported by the chief chemist of the United States geological survey that all natural waters are radioactive, and that the famous springs, though they have much in common as to their beneficial effect, differ considerably in their radioactive properties. Furthermore, it has been found that these substances gradually disappear after waters are bottled, and are entirely lost at the end of a month. While it is true that spring waters taken at the source do give benefit, this is due in large part more to the healthfully regulated regime which prevails at these famous spring resorts, than to the radioactive property of the water whether taken internally or for bathing purposes.

To be of benefit medicinally it would be necessary to take daily 2 micrograms of any radium solution, as no smaller dose than this is accepted by the council on pharmacy and chemistry of the American Medical association. To obtain this amount from spring waters the radioactivity of the water would have to be 500 millimicrocuries (a millimicrocurie being the one-billionth part of 1 gram of radium per liter), and one would need to drink at least one gallon daily. Not only is this a difficult achievement, but waters have not been found to be radioactive to this degree.

In a study of the Yellowstone Park springs none were found to contain more than 2.68 millimicrocuries per liter and springs in Virginia, Wisconsin and Massachusetts not more than 1.1 millimicrocuries per liter. Some extensive work was done by the state geological survey in Colorado, with the results that 178 mineral springs studied ranged in radioactivity from 2.5 to 94 millimicrocuries per liter.

Thus it is evident that the radioactive properties of natural spring waters are not sufficiently important to become a factor in the treatment of disease. (Abstract from "The Radioactivity of Mineral Waters, U. S. Public Health Service Weekly Report Sept. 10, 1926).

BULKELEY BEATEN BY ACADEMY IN THRILLING AND HARD FOUGHT GAME

After waiting and struggling for five long years toward that much coveted goal, a gridiron victory over Bulkeley, the Academy on Saturday afternoon bore the Red and White across the Bulkeley goal, the lone touchdown being the margin of points by which the Academy defeated their ancient rivals, 6 to 0. Missing victory by a single point in 1925, the Academy tore into the Bulkeley stronghold with all the venom accumulated in five years of defeat. It was all Academy, the Red and White warriors putting the invaders on the defensive from the start and kept them there with the exception of a few brief flashes when Bulkeley threatened but not seriously.

Bulkeley although beaten did not submit to the superior force of the Academy but fought every inch of the way and went down to defeat only after the final whistle had closed as hard-fought and brilliant football game as has ever been seen on the Academy campus. The Academy had no individual stars, every player functioning in most approved style in a spirit of teamwork that brought results. It fell to the lot of Jimmy Williams, however, to take the ball across the line for the lone score that beat Bulkeley.

Logically it was Williams' honor for he had brought the ball to the Bulkeley two-yard line on a beautiful pass from Pete Labenski. The score came in the second quarter after a march from midfield. With this score tucked safely away the Academy boys fought as they have not battled this season, they fought with a determination to hold this advantage, and several times came within an ace of scoring twice more, and it was only Bulkeley's superb defensive playing under the shadow of their own goal posts that prevented it.

Record Crowd Attends.

One of the largest crowds ever to attend an interscholastic event in this city was present at the campus Saturday afternoon and close to 5,000 witnessed the great Academy victory. It was, for the most part, a wildly enthusiastic gathering with the various cheer leaders keeping their respective sections loudly acclaiming their heroes, who were giving their all on the field of combat.

The Academy outplayed their traditional rivals in all departments of the game throughout the entire contest. The ball was well in Bulkeley territory throughout the major part of the contest while the invaders had the ball inside the Norwich 20 yard line but twice during the whole game, the first time, after they had recovered a fumble on the 21 yard line in the second quarter and then advanced the ball to the 17 yard line only to lose it on downs, and the last time in the third period when Menghi got loose on the longest run of the game when he galloped 20 yards to the Academy 12 yard line. But, as in the other case this went for naught, when the Academy line stiffened and held for downs.

Bulkeley came nearest to scoring in the third period when Marshall attempted a field goal by dropkick from the 43 yard line. The attempt was high and far in the air but was on the wrong side of the posts by inches.

The Academy had a decided advantage in the first quarter with the play being quite deep in Bulkeley territory. A punting duel took up much of the time in this period with the Academy, Pete Labenski kicking, having the better of it.

The Academy won the toss and received, defending the south goal. Labenski took the kickoff and ran it back 15 yards to his own 30 yard line. After three plays, aided by a 5 yard penalty administered to Bulkeley, had not gained the sufficient yardage. Labenski kicked to Bulkeley 20 yard line where Locke was dropped in his tracks. Bulkeley could not gain, either, and kicked on third down to mid-field, the ball rolling offside. The Academy gained about 25 yards on this exchange of punts. Again the Academy kicked, this time on third down, the ball rolling over the Bulkeley goal line. After the ball had been put in play on the 20 yard stripe, Bulkeley made the first first down of the game, advancing the ball to the 31 yard line on four line plays. The Whalers then essayed to try out their much touted forward passing game and Marks intercepted the first toss on Bulkeley 38 yard line.

After gaining 3 yards on three plays, the Academy fumbled on the 30 yard line and Brown recovered for the visitors. A 15 yard penalty for, holding on the following play set Bulkeley back considerably and they were forced to kick from behind the goal line. However, the punt was blocked and recovered by the Academy on the 12 yard line. After three plays, during which time the Academy received a 15 yard penalty for illegal use of hands, Williams tried to score by means of a drop-kick from the 24 yard marker but the ball skimmed along the the ground across the goal line and was put into play at the 20 yard line. However, after four plays, the New Londoners lost the ball on downs on their 25 yard line. After three plays had gained little Williams tried another field goal, this time from the 28 yard line, which was also unsuccessful and Bulkeley recovered on the 12 yard stripe. Again Bulkeley could not gain and for the second time, kicked from behind their goal line to Williams at Bulkeley's 40 yard line and, as he was downed the first quarter ended.

Academy Scores.

The Academy reeled off two first downs to open the second quarter, bringing the ball to Bulkeley 17 yard line. A neat forward pass, Labenski to Williams placed the oval on the 2 yard line, and then Jim Williams registered the only score of the game by squeezing through guard for a touchdown. The Academy rooters went wild at this point and pandemonium broke loose among the Red and White supporters. Williams' attempt to add the extra point was blocked.

The Academy kicked off and Marshall was downed after a short run on his own 23 yard line. On the second play Williams intercepted a forward pass at mid-field. On the first play Labenski tossed a pass to Johnny Greene which was good for 20 yards bringing the ball to the Bulkeley 23 yard line. However, the visitors' defense stiffened at this point and the Academy was forced to kick, the ball going to the New Londoners' 18 yard line. Again Bulkeley could not gain and kicked on fourth down to Norwich 39 yard stripe. The Academy fumbled on the second play and Bulkeley recovered on Norwich 21 yard line. After three plays had gained 5 yards, bringing the ball to the 16 yard line, a forward pass was grounded over the goal line and thus Bulkeley here lost a chance for a touchdown. This was the first time that the visitors were inside the Norwich 30 yard marker.

Third Period.

Bulkeley kicked off to Labenski to open the third quarter and he ran the ball back 20 yards to his own 40 yard line. Labenski punted on fourth down to Bulkeley's 42 yard line. The visitors then became rather dangerous and seriously threatened to score a touchdown, for the second and last time of the day. Two first downs, in which the cross-buck was the chief means of ground gaining brought the pigskin to Norwich's 34 yard line and then, on the next play, Menghi got loose for 22 yards to the 12 yard line. But, it was here that the Academy proved their true mettle when they forced Bulkeley to yield the ball on downs on the 10 yard line. Never again during the game did the visitors get within easy scoring distance for, with the victory in sight, the Academy fought from then on, as they had never fought before.

Norwich kicked out to their 45 yard line and then, after a line play, Marshall made his great try for a field goal, from the 43 yard line, the ball barely missing its mark.

The Academy took the ball on the 20 yard line, and reeled off three first downs in succession, bringing the ball beyond mid-field. This offensive spurt was featured by runs by Williams and Brewer. Bulkeley intercepted a pass on her own 25 yard line and gained a first down to the 38 yard line and the third quarter ended after one play here with Bulkeley ball on her own 36 yard line.

Fourth Period.

To open the fourth quarter Bulkeley fumbled and the ball rolled to her 7 yard line where Hussey recovered for the Academy. An excellent chance for another score was herewith presented to the Academy with Norwich ball on the 7 yard line and four downs to put it over. However, Bulkeley showed that they also had some defensive strength in reserve when they took the ball on downs on the 2 yard line after four attempts.

Bulkeley then kicked from behind the goal line to their 35 yard line. An Academy first down followed, bringing the oval to the 24 yard line but on the next play Labenski tossed a pass which was intercepted by Allen on the 3 yard line. Bulkeley then amassed a first down by means of a forward pass, Locke to Callahan, but was forced to kick after three following plays, the ball going offside at mid-field. The Academy fumbled and Bulkeley recovered. On the first play Bulkeley passed for 15 yards to the Norwich 31 yard line. However, all this went for naught when Marks intercepted another pass on the 24 yard marker. After three plays Norwich kicked to Bulkeley 28 yard line. Bulkeley, in desperation, attempted to pass its way to victory and the first try was good for 15 yards, but Bulkeley fumbled on the next scrimmage and Mish recovered for the Academy on Bulkeley 30 yard stripe. The Academy kicked offside to Bulkeley's 21 yard line and then the game ended, after one play, an end run of 14 yards by Allen.

The crowd did not seem to grasp the situation for a moment, that the game was over, but when the Academy rooters did pandemonium again broke loose for Norwich Free Academy had scored their first football victory over Bulkeley in five long, dark years. The Red and White supporters snake danced their way around the field and hats, programmes, etc., were tossed in the air, while automobile horns shrieked in celebration of the great victory gained after a hard fight by the eleven stalwart boys who had the responsibilities of so important a task on their shoulders.

Notes

Coach Canty of Bulkeley objected to his team's pictures being taken before the game, probably because of superstition. We wonder if it would have made any difference now after all.

Both teams played probably the best games of the season, and both played hard, clean football throughout, which is a credit both to them and to the schools they represent.

The Academy cheering section was sure out in force for the game and they were ably directed by the corps of cheerleaders directed by Clare Brewer, stellar halfback of last year's squad.

The cameraman taking the moving pictures of the game attracted quite a little interest among the crowd and it seemed that everybody wanted to be in them, so close did they surround the camera.

There will be no kick this year over the officiating as those in charge of the game were very capable men.

The crowd at the game Saturday eclipsed by far the attendance at the Academy-Bulkeley baseball game last spring. It is estimated that there were over five thousand present to witness the game including those on nearby buildings, fire escapes, in the woods, outside the fence, etc.

N. E. CONFERENCE TITLE RESTS BETWEEN CONN. AND MAINE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Cv. 14—Any attempts to select the "best" eleven in the New England Conference were knocked into a cocked hat yesterday at Durham, N. H., when in one of the outstanding upsets of this season in New England small college football, New Hampshire defeated the hitherto undefeated Maine eleven by a 14-7 score.

Any attempts to pick the best eleven in the conference on comparative scores would be worthless. Connecticut defeated New Hampshire 2-0, New Hampshire downed Maine 14-7, and Maine beat Connecticut 21-0. All three elevens defeated Rhode Island, while Connecticut alone met Massachusetts Aggies, winning from the Bay Staters 13-6. All of which means the situation is altogether too complicated to select any "best" eleven in the conference.

The number of games won and lost by the conference teams to date follow:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Maine	7	1	.875
Connecticut Aggies	6	1	.857
New Hampshire	4	3	.572
Mass. Aggies	1	5	.167
Rhode Island	1	6	.143

A. A. U. TO INVESTIGATE PADDOCK'S 100-YD. MARK

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 14—(AP)—The effort to put the name of Charley Paddock, California sprinter, on the record books as holder of the world's 100 yard mark at 9 1-2 seconds promises to develop into one of the liveliest features of the Amateur Athletic union's annual convention, opening here tomorrow.

Some inclination to doubt the legitimacy of Paddock's mark, set last May 15 at Los Angeles, has been displayed by eastern authorities, but Robert S. Weaver, head of the Southern Pacific association, is prepared to lead a strong fight in behalf of the record. Along with more than 200 other American record claims in swimming as well as track and field, the records committee of the A. A. U. considered Paddock's mark tonight, preparatory to making a report to the convention.

Should Paddock's achievement be turned down by the committee, Weaver is prepared to carry the battle to the floor of the convention. According to Weaver, who started the race which resulted in the record figure, three watches caught Paddock in 9 5-10 seconds and a fourth in 9 6-10 as he barely nosed out Charley Borah, Southern California freshman and national 100 yard champion at the tape. Two other runners to judge from photographs, were within two yards of Borah at the finish.

NO SCRIMMAGING FOR YALE TEAM THIS WEEK

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 11—(AP)—Practice for the Bulldog in his last week before meeting the Crimson in the climax game of the season will include signal drill and dummy scrimmage, but no actual scrimmaging.

This will be the second week without actual scrimmaging for the Blue—a record, according to local followers of the team for the Harvard-Princeton end of the season. Coach "Tad" Jones is reported as pleasing with the showing his men made against Princeton Saturday, and as feeling that the same sort of practice methods which pulled the Blue out of its Brown-Army-Maryland slump will bring it into winning form for the Harvard game.

The Blue came out of the Tiger game minus serious injuries, and plus the spirit of optimism and self-confidence it has seemed to lack recently. Kline and Noble are back to stay, and the line showed its worth at Palmer stadium.

The Blue, losing its indigo tint, feels that the 5-4 odds reported on Yale against Harvard are fair indications of the prospects.

WOODS AND NATALIE WIN THEIR POOL MATCHES

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Arthur Woods, Pawtucket, R. I., and Pasquale Natalie, Baltimore, were winners of today's matches in the world's pocket billiard tournament at the Elks' club.

Woods defeated Charles Harmon, of Glendale, L. I., 125 to 122 in 35 innings, while Natalie beat Harold Pindle, Appleton, Wis., 125 to 115 in 55 innings. The matches were two of the hardest fought and closest of the tournament.

Woods gave the spectators a thrill by overcoming a lead of 58 in the last six innings of his contest. With Harmon leading 113 to 30 at the opening of the 29th inning, Woods forfeited 15 balls on three successive scratches reducing his score to 64. The Pawtucket player, by some spectacular H shots and a series of good runs, overcame this lead and ran out in the 35th inning. Woods best run was 27 and his average 3 20-35. Harmon's high run was 43 and his average 3 1-3-34.

Natalie and Pindle also had a nip and tuck battle, the lead changing frequently. High runs—Natalie 28, Pindle 12; average, Natalie 2 9-58; Pindle 1 57-58.

DEFEAT OF ARMY AND PRINCETON'S VICTORY FEATURES OF THE WEEK END

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—The rugged Rockne-trained riders of Notre Dame and the "Iron Men" of Brown hold the center of the football spotlight as a result of as spectacular and fiercely fought a series of battles as eastern gridirons have ever seen on a single day. Notre Dame's 7-6 triumph over a hitherto undefeated Army eleven lifted the Hoosiers a notch nearer the mythical National title while Brown's smashing 21-0 victory over Harvard strengthened the claim of "Tuss" McLaughery's Bruins to eastern championship honors.

The Naval academy required a last-minute field goal to nose out Georgetown and keep step with Brown in the list of unbeaten eastern arrays. Lafayette and New York are the only other elevens along the Atlantic seaboard neither beaten nor tied but impressive as the marches of these two teams have been, each with straight conquests; neither has overcome as rugged opposition as Brown or the Navy.

Saturday was a day of thrilling victories in which field goals and last-minute rallies abounded as deciding factors Princeton, by the margin of a field goal kicked by Jack Slagle's substitute, Earl Baruch, overcame Yale, 10-7, to win the last "Big Three" championship; Cornell's big red avalanche, registering 17 points in the last quarter, snatched a stirring triumph from Dartmouth, 24-23. With Captain Emerson Carey booting a placement goal for the deciding points in the last minute, Pennsylvania barely beat off Columbia by the margin of a field goal, kicked by Paul Scull, whose toe had accounted for a similar victory the week before over Penn State; Colgate gained a 10-10 tie with its New York State rival, Syracuse, by the medium of a field goal in the final period; while the Haskell Indians, rallying to score two touchdowns in the last quarter, tied Boston college 21-21, to check the hitherto victorious march of the Eagles.

These were the high spots of a day in which "form" prevailed for the most part but by narrow margins. There were few upsets. Notre-Dame's defeat of the Army was a shock to supporters of the highly-touted cadet machine but it was fairly earned by a young eleven that consistently outplayed the more seasoned soldiers.

The Hoosiers did not display the polished and sustained attack that characterized the famous "Four-horsemen" of 1924 but observers were convinced that Knute Rockne has fashioned another great team and a front-rank contender for national laurels.

Traditional rivals put up the most rugged sort of struggles, so much so that two of the more important ended in deadlocks, Pittsburgh and Washington & Jefferson waging a scoreless conflict besides the Colgate-Syracuse tie. Amherst did the expected in trimming Williams, 20-6, for the New England "Little Three" crown for the second straight year but New Hampshire upset Maine, 14-7, to end the latter's winning streak. The defeat of Bo McMillan's sturdy Geneva eleven by Grove city by 3-0 was also unexpected.

Brilliant forward passing attacks accomplished the latest defeats of both Harvard and Yale, who now have only the "consolation prize" of the disrupted "Big Three" to fight for in their own traditional battle next Saturday. Each has sustained four defeats in seven games.

Brown's dazzling aerial game, featuring passes from Mischel to Randall, crushed the Crimson but Yale put up a bitter struggle before yielding to the overhead tactics of the Tigers. The Elis, superior on the rush-line, were checked by the alert Princeton defense that had stopped Harvard the week before and were beaten by the unerring toe and arm of Baruch.

Brown's triumph was the most impressive of the eight registered in a row by the Stalwart Bears. The only obstacle in their path to an unbeaten season and a major claim to eastern title honors is a Thanksgiving day game with Colgate. Lafayette has only Lehigh to beat to keep its slate clean but the latter showed a return to form yesterday by vanquishing Rutgers, 14-0. New York university travels to Nebraska this week to attempt to top off its sensational season with an intersectional victory. The Navy and Army have their final tests in the season's climax at Chicago, Nov. 28.

Turns of Saturday's Football Wheel

East. Brown and Navy step at top om major unbeaten, heap but Bears show more impressively by crushing Harvard, 21-0, while Navy is hard pressed to beat Georgetown, 10-7. Lafayette and New York university also keep slates clean with victories over Susquehanna and Davis-Elkins respectively, while Army, beaten for first time by Notre Dame, sees National title claims carried off by Hoosiers. Princeton wins last "Big Three" championship by beating Yale, 10-7 and Amherst take "Little Three" crown at expence of Williams, 20-6.

Middle-West. Michigan keeps Western conference slate clean by nosing out Ohio state, 17-16, dropping Buckeyes from unbeaten list; Northwestern crushing Chicago, 33-7, keeps pace with Wolverines in race for "Big Ten" title. Oklahoma A. and M. retains lead and unbeaten record in Missouri Valley conference by beating Grinnell 10-0.

South. Alabama stands alone at top of Southern conference after scoring seventh conference victory over Florida, 48-0. Tennessee, hitherto unbeaten, falls before Vandebilt, 20-14; University of Georgia beats Georgia Tech in annual classic, 14-13. Southern Methodist clinches southwestern conference championship by defeating Baylor 21-3.

WILLIAMS FEATURES AGGIE VICTORY OVER R. I. STATE

"Pop Williams, the 235-pound battering-ram of the Aggie backfield, once again demonstrated that he is without doubt one of the best backfield men in eastern football when he romped through the R. I. State team for two touchdowns, the Aggie winning 19 to 0. Williams twice dashed off tackle and through the Rhode Island team for runs of 38 and 28 yards to the last white stripe. Eddy with Schofield also shared the limelight with the burly Williams, Eddy making a nice dash for a touchdown and Schofield playing a beautiful defensive game.

The game was very one-sided and although Rhode Island displayed a flash of football in the third period the invader was completely outclassed.

(Special to The Bulletin).

NEW LONDON, Nov. 14—Grace Pino, alias Grace Pinto, and Grace Beaumont Emerson, from Long Lane farm, Middletown, the state school for wayward girls, made their escape from the institution Saturday night and this afternoon Patrol Office Schumacher was in New London endeavoring to obtain trace of the runaways. The Pino girl is described as being about 16; five feet five inches in height, medium build, dark hair and dark complexion and wears glasses. Her home is in Waterbury. The Kennerson girl is also about 16, about 5 feet 4 inches in height, stout, light complexion. She is married and her home is in South Coventry. The Kennerson girl has relatives in New London, Groton and Norwich.

LONG ARM OF THE LAW REACHES HUSBAND IN MAINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 14—Louis Sanborn, formerly of New London, was arrested at Bath, Me., Saturday on a warrant issued by Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky charging Sanborn with non-support. Sergeant Nelson Smith has gone to Bath and will return to New London with the prisoner, it is believed, in time for presentation in the police court Monday morning. Sanborn left from New London several weeks ago and when he failed to contribute to the support of his wife and minor child, Mrs. Sanborn made complaint, with the result that his arrest followed.

Sergeant Smith returned to New London with Sanborn tonight, and the prisoner, being unable to secure a surety on his bond, was locked up, to await trial Monday morning.

Joseph P. Bergeron had a dispute with Officer Feeley as to the rights of autoists in the highway, and as a result he appeared in the police court. Feeley was in a traffic jam at Washington, Huntington and Tilley streets where two cars were stalled. Feeley drove to the left side in traffic, claiming that such a course was the only way to avert a collision, as a Ford-operated by a woman was just ahead of him and there was another car that could not move away. The argument of Bergeron prevailed and judgment was suspended, though he was given to understand that when he became involved in traffic the thing for him to do was to stop until there was no longer doubt as to consequences.

Daniel McGuire was sent to the workhouse as an idle person, and Mike Powers just escaped the same penalty when he was arrested. He had been drinking considerably and apparently had dodged Officer Cockell after complaints had been made that man were begging in the street. The accused established to the satisfaction of the court that he was not without employment and that he had a quantity in cash when he was taken into custody. He had $85 when he came over from Fishers Island, but that he had gotten rid of it. He said he was a laborer and received $3 a day for his work. As vagrancy could not be proven, he was found not guilty, but he was given time to get back to Fishers Island or go to jail for intoxication. McGuire was manifestly guilty and was sent up for thirty days.

Nolles were entered and allowed in three cases, the charges being breach of the peace. The cases have been in the court a month or more.

Patrolman George Perkins reported at police headquarters Saturday night the existence of a danger spot in the sidewalk in front of the premises, 741 Bank street. A deep depression exists and pedestrians are in danger of sustaining a sprained ankle, or possibly a fractured limb. The defect will be reported to the department of public safety Monday.

The docket that will claim the attention of the police court Monday morning, will probably be a large one for eight cases are already awaiting trial. Four of them are cases of intoxication, and of them being Patrick King, employed aboard the steamer Cape Cod, who was arrested Saturday night on John street by Patrolman Frank Philbrena. He secured a surety on his bond of $25 for court presentation. One of the other slaves of drink is a Waterford man and a third is a Grotonian. Four cases of violation of the automobile law will also be presented. One of them is Lauriston Avery, 607 Bank street. He was arrested Saturday night by Patrolman William Graham, when Avery was detected driving an automobile truck, the property of the Connecticut National Guard on Main street and without headlights displayed.

Richard Bigham, 26 Woodbridge street, reported at police headquarters this morning that his automobile was parked on Golden street Saturday night an automobile owned by Harry Sharaf, proprietor of the New London Dairy Co., and driven by Sharaf's son, backed into the Bigham auto and damaged it.

Mary Sarita, 10 Tenth street, made complaint to the police this morning that he had been bitten by a police dog. Sarita stated that he was walking along Main street about 10:30 o'clock and when near Church street he was attacked by a black police dog and bitten on the arm. Patrolman George Cockell was assigned to investigate and discovered that the dog is the property of Ernest Fakourey, a Main street restaurant proprietory. Fakourey is absent from the city today, but one of the employes of Fakourey was instructed to keep the animal under restraint. The matter of the attack on Sarita was turned over to Dog Warden Jhn Sweezy for further investigation.

An automobile truck driven by Alexander D. Cameron, of Bridgewater, Mass., collided with a pleasure automobile driven by Mrs. Benjamin Sweezy, 28 Lee avenue, on Bank street, near the corner of State street at 1 o'clock Saturday morning. The crash caused the Sweezy automobile to be forced against a motionless automobile owned by Elson Cone, 718 Willetta avenue, damaging the latter automobile.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel Saturday revoked the driver's license of William A. Gurney, 16 Perry street, suspended.

The New Haven police this afternoon requested the New London police to be on the lookout for an automobile stolen from a street of the former city earlier in the day. The auto is a Cadillac of the touring type, and carries Connecticut registration, Y-3386.

Freight traffic of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, which has been exceedingly heavy several months continues so and the 1926 record bid fair to be one of the heaviest in the history of the railroad. All eastbound freight trains are composed of anywhere from 50 to 100 cars and of this number probably one-third of the cars are laden with coal, anthracite or bituminous.

An automobile owned by the Mayfay company, Bank street, and driven by John D. Toevens, 15 Jay street, an employe of the company, and an automobile driven by Ercole Ferri, 9 Chelsea street, collided at the corner of Howard and Hamilton streets, shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon. Both machines were damaged, Ferri's sterns lamed of one when the alterations are completed and Hirsch & Co. will be the occupants of one of them. It is understood that when these moves will be in the other space.

New London has been without the so-called "dopper" practically ever since the summer season closed until Saturday, when one more of this type of arms-peaker put in an appearance. This fellow has lost his legs at the knee and is also minus one arm. He plied his quest for alms Saturday afternoon and when he concluded his efforts about 7 o'clock he stated he had fared exceedingly well for his half-day's sitting on the sidewalk for his remuneration amounted to $20. Practically this entire amount was received in nickels and dimes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller, of Hartford, formerly of this city, spent Sunday with relatives in New London and Stonington.

READS HIS OWN OBITUARY WRITTEN IN MANCHURIA

A distinguished alumnus of Norwich Free academy has had the unusual experience of reading his own obituary—and that, too, in a paper coming all the way from China.

The Manchuria Daily News of Oct. 9th., an evening paper published in Dairen, Manchuria, and the only English daily in South Manchuria, has the following item prominently displayed:

Dr. Poultney Bigelow Passes Away

Dr. Poultney Bigelow, political writer of wide renown, breathed his last. The Doctor wrote many books, a good number of which have been translated into French or German. In 1875-76 he made a round-the-world cruise in a sailing ship and got shipwrecked on Japan coasts. He was decorated with the Order of the Rising Sun by the Tokio imperial court (Boston, Oct. 6.)

Naturally, nobody is more surprised to read the above than is Mr. Bigelow himself of Malden on the Hudson, who is very much alive at his home, the mansion of his father, the late John Bigelow, once ambassador to

Palace Theatre

Going from an east side secondhand clothing shop to the limbs of an exclusive golf club, Eddie Cantor in "Kid Boots," leaves a trail of laughs behind him that has seldom been equalled in this city.

The picture, adapted from Florenz Ziegfeld's musical comedy success by Tom Gibson, now playing at the Palace, and judging from the unrestrained enthusiasm of the crowds, it's going to be increasingly difficult for the management to clear the house after each performance.

Cantor is introduced as the "comean" in a second-hand haberdashery. By a rapid-fire series of incidents he becomes involved with Malcolm Waite. The latter's enmity increases when both find themselves vieing for the hand of entrancing Clara Bow.

What seems a fortunate meeting with Lawrence Gray leads Eddie into a jungle of trouble. Gray, heir to a large fortune, is endeavoring to escape from Natalie Kingston who has tricked him into a marriage. With Cantor's aid, he temporarily succeeds. They go to a suberban golf club—Larry posing as a professional and Eddie as his caddy. What follows reaches a crashing climax in one of the funniest situations yet seen on the screen.

The gentle art of self-defense is bound to vary in style. It is much like dancing—each man for himself and he who strikes the most blows wins.

During the filming of "Three Weeks in Paris," Moore was obliged to accept the other man's idea of a good time—a duel with swords. The other man was Gayne Whitman, who plays a French duke in this picturization of the Gregory Rogers story. These two actors staged a big battle upon the field of honor, and this proved to be one of the funniest scenes in the photoplay. Moore was cast as a novice with the blades, and Whitman as the champion of France.

Broadway Theatre

Joe Jenny and his famous comedy quartette opens a three day engagement at the Broadway theatre today. This is recognized as one of America's funniest quartettes. They are all eccentric comedians but it is said that their harmony overshadows their fun. They come here direct from their sixth foreign tour.

Four other Keith-Albee acts will be on the same program, making this stage offering one of exceptional entertainment.

Women will be interested in the secret of perpetual youth offered by Betty Compson, star of "The Belle of Broadway" now showing at the Broadway theatre. This Columbia made production in which Herbert Rawlinson plays the leading male role, is one of the seasons' best screen dramas, and is based on the popular Broadway play, "Adele".

The version of the story which Director Harry O. Hoyt has skillfully painted on the screen, was written by J. Grubb Alexander, and is rich in interesting details of theatre life. Expenditure was evidently a secondary consideration with the producers of this production which is elaborately staged and richly and tastefully costumed.

Bread Theatre

An epic tale of surging passion sweeping from the wide plains of the Argentine through the fascinating frivolities of pre-war Paris into the glaring turmoil of the German invasion of northern France was unfolded last night at the Breed theatre with Rudolph Valentino and Alice Terry in the leading roles. It was the triumphant return of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the $1,000,000 Rex Ingram production made for Metro-Goldwyn, which has been a screen sensation in New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Los Angeles. The picture, adapted by June Mathis from the great novel of Vicente Blaso Ibanez, has intensified the dramatic force of the original story and last night it held the spectators breathlessly intent as with swift, sure strokes it hammered home the terror and grandeur of the war—and a great deal of the humor and lighthearted gaiety that kept bubbling up through the turgid stream of struggling humanity when the world was in arms.

The director, Rex Ingram, succeeded in concentrating the great struggle in a series of unforgettable pictures that flash out the quintessence of life at white heat. "The Four Horsemen" is the fulfillment of the promise of a noble art in pictures.

Thanksgiving Eve Dance

The annual Thanksgiving eve dance of White Cross council, No. 13, K. of C., will again be held at the local armory under the auspices of Battery B. Thanksgiving eve, Wednesday, Nov. 24. This year's committee have, as usual, upheld the exceptional high standard of music that the public of Norwich and vicinity have enjoyed in the past when attending the K. of C. annual dance.

The famous Sullivan Bros. singing orchestra of Milford, Mass., have been secured for this year's dance and as they need no introduction to the dance patrons of this vicinity, it is unnecessary to dwell upon the performance they will give other than to say they will have the latest and popular song hits and novelties. They are just the boys that will put that unexplainable tingle in your feet and make you step.

Capitol Theater, Willimantic

The Capitol theater will have as its attraction for two nights and a Thursday matinee, beginning on Wednesday, Nov. 17th Anne Nichols' history-making and appealing comedy, Abie's Irish Rose, of which the whole country has been talking for the past five years, and which has added more pages to theatrical history than any play written in the past century or more.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is a comedy of human appeal, containing a laugh to every minute. It is a beautiful love story hinging upon age-old religious prejudices, and in its unfolding takes the auditore through many ludicrous scenes, abounding in witty dialogues and screamingly funny complications between Abie and his Irish bride, and their respective Jewish and Irish fathers, without offense to the most fastidious, and at the same time serves its purpose in teaching its lesson of tolerance.

The company which will present the play here has not missed a performance in almost two solid years, and includes among its larger city runs, ten weeks in Montreal, 17 weeks in Toronto, 11 weeks in Buffalo, six weeks in Syracuse, four weeks in Utica, and in each city added a page in local theatrical history.

Good seats are to be had for all performances.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—(AP)—An irregular higher movement in stock prices, establishment of a new record high level in bond quotations, easier money rates, a sharp break in wheat, rally in cotton and the brisk rise in sterling exchange were the high lights of this week's financial and commodity markets. Meanwhile, the business situation continued to show irregularity, with no definite indications of the general downward trend predicted in some quarters.

Trading in the stock market was largely professional although signs of renewakening of public interest were evident as the week closed.

Lower money rates, the prospect of cut in taxes, record-breaking freight traffic and special dividend distributions were encouraging to those working on the side of higher prices, while the "bears" took hope from the decline in bank clearings, the recent recessions in the steel, automobile and building industries and the executed decreases in purchasing power as a result of the low price of cotton and other staple commodities.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Henry Barsalon, of West Stafford pleaded guilty to assault and breach of the peace, Saturday morning in the borough court and was fined $10 and costs of $9.25. The assault was committed on John Kalosh, who presented evidence of having received a good beating. The trouble arose over the purchase of a car by Kalosh from Barsalon. Kalosh paid $30 on account some time ago and Barsalon was to keep the car until it was paid for. Friday afternoon Kalosh went to see Barsalon, said he did not want the car and demended his $30. When Barsalon refused to give up the money, Kalosh became abusive and Barsalon then pitched into him and gave him a good pummeling.

TAFTVILLE

Following the morning service at the Taftville Congregational church Sunday, there was a reception of new members and an observance of the holy communion, the pastor, Rev. Elwin G. Crowdis, officiating. In the evening Miss Gladys Kinder was the leader of the meeting of the Young Peoples' society of Christian Endeavor and the topic was Fellowship Among Denominations.

NORWICH TOWN

Rev. Edward J. Quinn, recently appointed by Bishop Nilan pastor of Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, to fill the vacancy caused by the transfer of Rev. Charles W. Brennan, to the Blessed Sacrament church, Waterbury, arrived Thursday afternoon to take up his new duties in the local parish. Rev. Father Quinn celebrated his first mass Friday morning at 7:30, the hour of the regular daily parish mass. At both masses at this church, Sunday morning, in the course of his announcements before reading the gospel of the day, Rev. Father Quinn addressed his congregations in a most friendly spirit, expressing his delight in receiving his appointment and assuring his people that it gave him pleasure to be among them. He said: I have been congratulated on all sides on being assigned to this parish. Good reports have come to me concerning both church and people. I want every one to make himself known to me as I wish to become acquainted with each individual. We must work together and by so doing be enabled to accomplish much in the future.

When passing through Norwich Town on several occasions, Rev. Father Quinn added he had never thought that this parish would one day be his. He stated that he had labored for twelve years as curate at St. Francis Xavier church, Waterbury, and naturally he felt pleased when Bishop Nilan decided to appoint him to the Norwich Town church to fill the vacancy caused by Rev. Father Brennan's transfer. Already the new priest has made a most favorable impression on his parishioners.

Armistice day guests at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb, of Town street, included Dr. Lamb's relatives, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainerd, her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Jull Gremley and Mr. Gremley's mother, Mrs. Charles Gremley, all of Mystic, who motored to Norwich Town.

Having passed several weeks at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr and Mrs. John Hoppman, of Norwich Town, Mrs. Rose Symington has returned to her home in Hallville.

Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of Norwich Town Congregational church and Rev. Charles H Ricketts, pastor of Greeneville Congregational church, exchanged pulpits Sunday morning.

SERVICE BY CANDLELIGHT BEGINS UNIVERSALIST YOUNG PEOPLES WEEK

Young Peoples week opened with a consecration meeting Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist. The church school room was lighted entirely with candles and the meeting was in charge of Miss Villa Bussey. The music was in charge of William Huber, organist.

Each member of the union pledged his or her loyalty to the church and union for the coming year by lighting a candle and by appropriate Bible verses. Monday evening a treasure hunt will be held by the union, followed by a chowder supper at the church Thursday evening the union members are to give a show at Uncas-on-Thames. Saturday evening at the church will be held the annual banquet in charge of Miss Bertrice Green and Sunday morning the church service will be in charge of the young people. The week opens with much enthusiasm by this alert and active group of young church workers.

WILL PROPOSE LEGISLATION FOR HAND SIGNALING

Since the issuance of the state motor vehicle department's October bulletin on the need of hand signalling by motor vehicle operators, the department has received letters from citizens urging the requirement that all automobiles be equipped with stop lights.

"I feel that there are occasions, very important ones, when there is no time to make a hand signal, when one hand will be steering, one hand putting on the emergency brake, and the feet engaged in stopping the car," writes a Darien man. "The occasion for instant stopping may be due solely to the discovery of a bad hole in the road and traffic preventing one's clearing it. There are many occasions when cars dash out of narrow side streets with no warning. Again, in crowded traffic, the line will suddenly stop ahead, and so on. Cars equipped with stop lights, such as mine, give warning as soon as the foot brake is pushed."

The department has replied that it is not trying to put any stop lights out of business, but, on the contrary, expects and hopes that cars will always be equipped with the best possible mechanical signals." What the department wants, it is emphasized, is an adequate hand signal system for supplementary use. It believes that it ought to be obligatory to give hand signals of a certain type, leaving the question as to when those signals must be given wide open to the judgment of the operator.

In the October bulletin, the department indicated that a proposal looking to such legislation will be laid before the session of the Connecticut legislature which is to convene in January.

PUBLIC LIBRARY SERVICE NEARLY COVERS STATE

The state of Connecticut ranks number 4 in New England in support of public libraries, according to a study just made by the committee on library extension of the American Library association. It spent a total of $671,764 or 48c per capita in the last year. The highest figure, $1.03 per capita, was reached by California, which is almost covered with county libraries. Massachusetts came next with 85 cents per capita.

In percentage of people still without public library service this state shows 31,904 people or 2 per cent of the total population without this agency for adult education. In covering the ground the older New England states still come first, Massachusetts and Rhode Island with a library in every town, California with its magnificent distances had reduced the per cent unserved to 3, and since these figures were collected has established three more county libraries.

The goal for the state of Connecticut as well as for the whole nation, is "adequate public library service within easy reach of everyone." Steps toward this goal, as recommended by the American Library association are:

1. A public opinion convinced of the value of public libraries and of high standards of library service.
2. Effective city libraries reaching their whole service areas.
3. General adoption of the county or other large unit as the basis for adequate rural public library service.
4. A strong state library extension agency to lead in library development.

JUDGE WANTS BUSINESS FOR SUPERIOR COURT

At last week's short calendar session of the superior court in this city, Judge Allyn L. Brown spoke briefly to the lawyers present, stating that the business at present in the court was small. There are 35 cases slated for trial but only four have been assigned for next week.

Judge Brown cautioned the attorneys that if the cases were not assigned before long he would go to New Haven, where there was plenty of business and where because of the ill health of a judge, another was really needed.

Brush Fire On Thermos Property

Saturday afternoon at 12:05 o'clock the fire department was called out by telephone for a brush fire on the property of the American Thermos Bottle company on Laurel Hill avenue. The fire was extinguished in short order.

PICTURE POEM GIVEN AT Y. M. C. A. SERVICE

Every seat was taken at the afternoon service at the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday at 4 o'clock. The opening exercises consisted of congregational singing, scripture reading and prayer. Hugh Kinder rendered a vocal solo very acceptably and also furnished music for the moving pictures. The children of the county home were guests of the meeting and rendered the hymn, "Jesus Loves Me This I Know" and were applauded.

Between the reels Secretary Hill gave a brief talk in addition to reading the poem portrayed on the screen, "Annabelle Lee." He spoke in part as follows: "I want to speak on the topic "Sincerity vs. Pretence." Paul in writing to his friends at Philippi said, I want you to be sincere. We need to guard ourselves against insincerity. We can admire anyone who differs with us if they are only sincere. We often write a letter and in closing it write, 'sincerely yours'. I wonder if we always mean it. We like to trade with a man who is sincere in his statements about his goods. Friendship is valuable only when it is sincere. Friendship that acts only in the sunshine, but fails us in the shadows is poor friendship indeed. The Scribes and Pharisees were great in their pretentions of sincerity, but they were not genuine, and Jesus told them that they were whitewashed hypocrites and they finally nailed him to the cross. Someone has said 'what you are speaks so loud that I cannot hear what you say,' and there is much in this saying. 'Anabelle Lee' of the poem picture was the essence of sincerity; let us be in all things very sincere, and whereby we can each be a blessing to this old world.

THREE NOW IN RACE FOR HOUSE SPEAKERSHIP

The speakership of the house in the 1927 legislature became the goal of a three-cornered race last week with formal announcements of candidacies by Representatives Raymond A. Johnson of Manchester and George H. Sturges of Woodbury, following the announcement of his candidacy Thursday by Representative John H. Hill of Shelton. Representative Hill begins his fifth term in January, while the 1927 sessions will be the third for both Johnson and Sturges.

All the candidates claim substantially solid backing from their home counties, Fairfield in the case of Hill, Litchfield for Sturges and Hartford for Johnson, with pledges of backing from supporters in other counties.

If all the candidates remain in the race, the nomination will be decided at the republican house caucus, customarily held in the hall of the house the night before the legislature convenes which would bring the caucus on Jan. 4 next year. It is customary for the democrats to caucus on the same night, the candidate for whom they vote for speaker becoming the house minority leader.

LEDYARD'S MAMMOTH OAK LARGEST CONNECTICUT TREE

Ledyard's mammoth tree, the Larrabee oak, the largest and oldest tree in the state, is made the subject of a sketch in the "Old Timer's Column" this week in the New Haven Register. He writes of the Ledyard tree as follows:

The newspapers of the country have to an extent been making a canvass of the big old trees of America, and as I understand it there is being an unofficial canvass made by states. This canvass does not of course include the big trees of California, but it pays special attention to New England, and in New England it pays attention to Connecticut where, on the old Larrabee farm, in the historic town of Ledyard, named for the man who was slaughtered at Fort Griswold, there rises the greatest and the oldest tree in this state by scientific figuring.

Through the kind offices of friends in the eastern part of our state I have been able to glean some particulars of this great tree, which for 400 years or more has housed hundreds of picnic parties and political meetings under its leafy oaken branches. It is a white oak, of the rock-ribbed type of sterling New England, and it must have been a lusty sapling when John Davenport at New Haven and John Winthrop at New London began to turn the plow-shares on Connecticut's rocky side hills.

I am today able, thanks to photography, to present an anatomical section of the tree herewith. This picture shows the tree's vastness to a marked degree. It is a picture that is in much demand by tree lovers as well as by lovers of old New England history. It is beautiful with its foliage, but the anatomical picture of its limbs gives abundant evidence of its size for the mammoth proportions of the trunk and branches are well portrayed.

The fact that this tree stands on the homestead of Judge Allyn Larrabee Brown's antecedents—Judge Brown being one of the very highly esteemed judges of the superior court coming to New Haven—lends especial interest in this case to New Havenera. The property is now owned by Dr. C. B. Graves of New London, who is a bird lover and who, with his wife, is an ardent student of natural history.

Mrs. Graves says that the tree has been estimated to be at least 400 years old. The spread of the tree is 136 feet, and eight feet from the ground the trunk measures 19 feet and six inches in circumference.

These figures were vouched for by the late Henry Larrabee, of Windham, who was a former owner of the farm and a resident there. As accurately as I can learn, the closest rival is the smaller sized sapling which is between 400 and 500 years old and now stands be ide the old Presbyterian church where George Washington once worshipped at Basking Ridge near Morristown, N. J. This ancient tree has a spread of 126 feet.

Picnics of 500 people are common under the Ledyard tree, and I have no doubt that if George Washington had known of its existence when he was passing through he would have visited it and worshipped there, too.

WEEK'S AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS EXCEEDED LAST YEAR

Automobile accidents in the state during the week ended Nov. 6 were again more numerous than during the corresponding week of 1925, according to reports made to the statistical division of the motor vehicle department.

There were 446 reported as compared with 402 a year ago. A marked decrease was noted, however, in comparison to the number the preceding week when there were 530.

Eight fatal accidents, three of them in Hartford, were reported during the week as compared with 13 a year ago when the high mark of the year was set. The 14 principal cities reported 282 accidents. Hartford again had the greatest number while Winsted had no accidents for the second successive week.

The places where the fatal accidents occurred and the victims were as follows: Hartford, Oliver Poland, Agnes L. Brunsand, Mrs. Martin Tyszka; South Norwalk, Mrs. Lena Skudowitz; Stratford, Elizabeth Costigal; Fairfield, John Roxyman; Newington, Mrs. Arthur Young.

The accidents in the 14 cities were as follows: Hartford, 68; Bridgeport, 55; New Haven, 50; Waterbury, 39; New Britain, 13; Stamford, 11; New London, nine; Danbury, seven; Greenwich, seven; Norwalk, five; Middletown, four; Norwich, four, and Winsted, four.

COLCHESTER REAL ESTATE AUCTIONED FOR $8,000

After some spirited bidding, the property formerly owned by Nathan Manchik in Colchester was sold at public auction Friday afternoon to Ivan Celzoff for $8 000. Attorney Morris Lubchansky was the committee of sale, appointed by the superior court.

The property consists of a four-apartment dwelling, two stores, and a bakeshop, situated on a lot, 100 feet in frontage and 200 feet in depth.

The sale followed a foreclosure action in the superior court on a second mortgage held by the L. A. W. Acceptance Corp. of Massachusetts, which has offices in New London. An East Hampton bank held a first mortgage of $3,000 and the L. A. W., a second mortgage of $3,000.

TINKER FATALLY HURT RIDING WITH FRIEND

William G. Tinker, 59, brother of Mrs. Eugene Boyens of 33 Hedge avenue, who was instantly killed in an automobile accident in West Haven Thursday afternoon, met his death while riding home from work with a fellow employe in the operating department of the New Haven road.

Charles M. Powell, with whom he is Charles M. Powell, with whom he was riding is in the hospital with a fractured skull and is under arrest by order of the coroner.

The police reported that from what they learned about the accident, Powell was driving his Essex sedan on Beach street in the direction of New Haven a little after 4:30 Thursday afternoon. He had reached close to the intersection of Clinton place when for some unknown reason his car took a sudden lurch to the right and buried itself over the sidewalk to the beach below.

The car then crashed into a pile of broken rocks, the foundation of a former pier, and turning over twice, came to a halt in the water.

A passing autoist, Mark Miranda, of 13 Clay street, New Haven, dragged Mr. Tinker from the wrecked car and rushed him to the New Haven hospital, where he was found dead on admittance. Powell, seemingly, was little hurt and got home by some means where he called Dr. H. F. Keating, who advised him to go to the hospital for examination.

Detective Sergeant Moore, of the West Haven police was assigned to investigate the case. He brought Powell to police headquarters where Dr. Platt H. Rogers and Dr. Victor Kowalewski who happened to be present, examined the man and found he had a fractured skull. They ordered him to the hospital at once.

Both men were employed in the operation of trains, Tinker as a yard conductor and Powell as a passenger brakeman. Tinker worked until 4, Thursday, and it is presumed Powell was taking him for a ride prior to his going home.

Tinker was born in Cooperstown, N. Y., and had been with the New Haven road for 9 years. He had lived in West Haven five years. His wife and daughter are both active members of Christ church, the latter being a member of the choir. Besides these he also leaves two sons, Arthur N. and Curtis Frederick Tinker.

The automobile was described by police as being a total wreck.

Mr. Tinker is survived also by his mother, Mrs. Mariette Tinker of Jewett City and six sisters, Mrs. Horace Fifield, Adams, Mass.; Mrs. Harvey Brewster and Mrs. Mary Howes Jewett City; Mrs. Joseph Wharton and Mrs. George Curtis of New Haven, and Mrs. Eugene Boyens of Norwich.

WAS GETTING CITY GAS WITHOUT PAYING FOR IT

On a charge of having a device to defraud the Norwich gas and electric department, John Dukowski of Boswell avenue was fined $10 and costs by Judge Arthur F. Libby at the Saturday morning session of the city court. Dukowski was arrested on complaint of the city department officials who charged that he had the gas hooked up in his home so that it would not register in the gas meter.

Dukowski denied knowledge of the device. He claimed that when the gas meter was installed in 1924 a friend of his did some piping for him and that the friend must have made a blunder. Dukowski stated that he did not remember the name of the man who did the piping for him.

Zawacki paid his fine which totaled $212.30. Besides the fine he was given a 30 day jail sentence suspended for one year. Zawacki was arrested Friday night by Sergt. Matthew Delaney on 8th street.

Two or three local drivers appeared at the Greeneville police station at about the same time and complained to Sergt. Delaney, who happened to be in the station, that a man had just driven his machine up North Main street and was intoxicated. One of the drivers claimed that the intoxicated driver had almost run into the front of his machine, another complained that he had been driven off the road and almost into a tree.

Sergt. Delaney immediately set out in search of the driver and located him on 8th street. He had just driven his machine to a garage on that street and two friends were helping him to get to his home at No. 544 North Main street. He was taken in charge by the officer and booked at police headquarters.

Lebanon Schools' Agricultural Demonstration

The agricultural demonstration by the grammar and high school pupils of the town of Lebanon will be held next Wednesday evening in the town hall there under the general management of Russell F. Lund. The teachers in charge will be Russell Waldo, for the high school, Miss Olsen for the grammar school, Miss Palmer for No. 7, Miss Blais for Kick Hill, Miss Norton for Babcock Hill and Miss Tilton for Goshen Hill. General arrangements are in charge of James W. Frost, superintendent.

For Wrong Side Parking

Four automobile drivers who left their machines parked on the left hand side of Water street, Saturday evening, found red tags on them and at police headquarters were booked on charged of violating a city ordinance. Their cases will be disposed of at this (Monday) morning's session of the city court. One was from Baltic another from Fitchville and the other two are Norwich men.

NEW HAVEN R. R. WATCHES FOR YOUTHFUL FREE RIDERS

Sheriff C. C. Fairbanks was called to Saybrook junction to arrest six boys who boarded a through freight train from New Haven, which was stopped twice to drop them off without injury, but they caught on again, while the train was in motion. Word was sent ahead to take them in charge at Saybrook, but they hopped off near Westbrook, when the train slowed up, and avoided being sent to jail. The railroad company is watching all trains closely of late for those free riders, who, when caught, will go up for the limit.

POETRY

Evening Hymn

Slowly by God's hand unfurled
Down around the weary world
Falls the darkness; oh, how still
Is the work of Thy will!

Mighty Maker! Here am I—
Work in me as silently.
Veil the day's distracting sights,
Show me heaven's eternal lights.

From the darkened sky come forth
Countless stars, a wondrous birth!
So may gleams of glory dart
Through the dim abyss, my heart.

Living worlds to view be brought
In the boundless realms of thought
High-soul infinite desires,
Burning like those upper fires.

Holy truth, eternal right,
Let them break upon my sight.
Let them shine, unclouded still,
And with light by being fill.

Thou art there. Oh, let me know,
Thou art here within me, too;
Be the perfect peace of God
Here as there now shed abroad.

May my soul attuned be
To that perfect harmony,
Which, beyond the power of sound,
Fills the universe around.

—William Henry Furness.

The Book of the World

Of this fair volume which we World do name,
If we the sheets and leaves could turn with care,
Of him who it corrects, and did it frame
We clear might read the art and wisdom rare;
Find out his power which wildest powers doth tame,
His providence extending everywhere,
His justice which proud rebels doth not spare,
In every page, no, period of the same.
But silly we, like foolish children, rest
Well pleased with colored vellum, leaves of gold,
Fair dangling ribbons, leaving what is best,
On the great Writer's sense ne'er taking hold;
Or, if by chance we stay our minds on aught,
It is some picture on the margin wrought.

—William Drummond.

At a cricket match in England the umpire was a barber. After a run it was rather doubtful whether the batsman, the local vicar, had safely reached his wicket, but the umpire gave an emphatic "not out!"

"Ah," said the vicar with a breath of relief, "that was a close shave."

"It wor indeed sir," agreed the umpire, "and if it 'adn't been that you were a regular customer of mine I'd 'ave said 'next gent, please.'"—Boston Transcript.

Motion picture camera men are now classed among those having hazardous occupations when applying for certain types of life insurance. Many have lost their lives shooting scenes from the tops of buildings, bridges, airplanes, under water, and in many other dangerous places.

Great Salt lake is rising, rather than receding, records of the last 25 years show. Salt lake is a remnant of Lake Bonneville, the vast prehistoric body of water which covered parts of what is now Utah, Idaho and Nevada. There are times when the shore line of Salt lake, the waters of which are 23 per cent solid, recedes, and again the waters will rise for a few inches. However, climatic conditions must change materially if the lake is to dry up or spread over the widespread areas it once covered.

German women are unable to dress as becomingly as the American because there are too many men buyers of women's clothes, a leading fashion journal asserts in demanding that frauleins throw off the yoke of masculine dictation in the matter of dress. "While in the end women dress to please men," the journal says, "women can make a much better job of it than men. When it comes to selecting handkerchiefs, chemises and a 100 other dainties, male buyers for department or women's wear stores are usually hopeless."

Aerial "feeder" lines, maintained by light and relatively inexpensive airplanes, are being rapidly established throughout Germany. These "feeder" lines collect air passengers from the provincial towns and take them direct to a big air-route terminal on a schedule which permits the passenger to catch the air expresses to points all over Europe. Eventually these subsidiary lines will take the passengers from the terminal airdromes to their homes but the facilities are not yet sufficient for this. The first of these routes was opened by the Norddeutscher Luftverkehr A. G. on the Bremen Hamburg route, connecting with Berlin. It is planned to have about 30 airplanes in this new service.

INCOME TAX REBATE MAY BE MADE HIGH AS 15 PER CENT

Secretary of the Treasury Basis New Proposal on a Prospective Surplus of $300,000,000 For This Fiscal Year—First Estimates Made by President Coolidge Indicated a Surplus of $200,000,000—Mr. Mellon Said That With the Rebate the $19,600,000,000 Debt Would Be Cut by Well Over $500,000,000 This Year.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon today again boosted the rate on the plan of President Coolidge for income tax credit, declaring it would be safe to permit taxpayers a savings of at least 15 per cent. on their next year's income levies.

The 15 per cent. minimum credit was predicated, Mr. Mellon explained on a prospective surplus of $300,000,000 for this fiscal year. First estimates made by the president indicated a surplus of $200,000,000 and on that ground he proposed a 10 per cent. credit which later was boosted to 12 1-2 per cent.

There were definite indications today at the treasury, however, that no tears would be shed there if congress turned down the proposed credit plan, threats against which have been seen in some of the conflicting views expressed by leaders, and forced the application of this year's surplus to debt retirement.

But if the surplus is going to be returned to the taxpayers, Secretary Mellon made it clear today that he saw no other practical way to do it. He also reiterated that no permanent cut in tax rates would be sanctioned at this time.

The secretary did not deny, however, that he would just as soon use the surplus toward retirement of the public debt, but added that the debt, which now stands at about $19,600,000,000 would be cut by well over $500,000,000 this year and he considered this sufficient.

The proposal also was made at the white house today by the chamber of commerce of the United States that the tax burden be reduced "when it is next possible to make a revision of our tax programme." The chamber asks that the corporation rate be cut and that the excise and inheritance levies be repealed.

HEARING ON APPLICATION OF "PEACHES" BROWNING

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Newspaper articles bearing her name as author and describing her life with Edward W Browning were not written, and seldom read, by Frances "Peaches" Browning, his girl wife, her attorney declared today at a hearing on her application for $4,000 a month alimony and $25,000 counsel fees. Supreme Court Justice Morschauser reserved decision on the claim for alimony and counsel fees.

The newspaper articles, which appeared in a New York "Tabloid," were first mentioned by John E. Mack, of Poughkeepsie, counsel for the wealthy, middle-aged real estate dealer.

"Mr. Browning," said Attorney Mack, "is not averse to alleviating the reputed financial distress of Mrs. Browning, but he objects to the newspaper articles she writes, for some of which are provided illustrations that reveal my client on his hands and knees barking 'Woof! Woof! I'm a bear.'"

The articles," Henry Epstein, counsel for "Peaches" averred, "were not written by my client. Indeed, she never even read all of them, before or after printing, and of the $1,000 she was paid for the articles, nothing remains. She spent it all."

In reserving decision on alimony and counsel fees, Justice Morschauser said that it was apparent counsel for both "Peaches" and Mr. Browning were agreed that they should be paid and that it only remained to determine the amount, which he would do. A decision was promised next Saturday or Monday. Justice Morschauser said that on December 6 he would set a date for trial of the separation suits filed by "Peaches" and her husband.

Documents filed by counsel for "Peaches" in support of her alleged justification for quitting the domicile of her husband were impounded by the court. Their contents were reputed to be two sensational for public reading or printing.

SENATOR MASON AND MAJOR OWEN FOUND NOT GUILTY

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Senator Lowell B. Mason and Major Percy Owen, former prohibition director in Illinois, late today were found not guilty, by a federal jury on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. The jury deliberated less than two hours.

Senator Mason declared himself gratified "not only for my own sake, but because of my family and friends who have stood by me at the election while the case was still pending." Mason was re-elected to the state senate November 2.

The state alleged that thousands of gallons of sacramental wine had been diverted into illegal channels and that graft amounted to thousands of dollars.

In charging the jury Judge Carpenter said that the government had alleged 26 to 40 overt acts of conspiracy to withdrawal of wine illegally. "If you find," he said, "that the government has proved to your satisfaction the commitment of just one overt act beyond all possible doubt, you are to find the defendants guilty."

PROCESS PERFECTED TO TRANSFORM COAL INTO OIL

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Perfection of the process of coal liquefaction has made possible the transformation of from 50 to 60 per cent of the coal into oil by hydrogenation under high pressure, Dr. Friedrich Bergius, of Heidelberg, Germany, declared at the international conference on bituminous coal which opened here today.

Dr. Bergius, inventor of the process in 1913, told distinguished scientist, engineers and technologists attending the conference from all parts of the world, that, "one ton of bituminous coal will yield an average of 140 gallons of oil. Deducting the coal consumed in the process the net yield is 104 gallons per ton of coal. Of this, 25 gallons consist of aromatic compounds, suitable for 'no knock' motor fuel, and the remainder is gas oil, lubricating oil and fuel oil."

A picture of American cities free from smoke in the not far distant future was painted by A. C. Fieldner, chief chemist of the United States bureau of mines and superintendent of the Pittsburgh experiment station.

BOTTLE REVEALS U-BOAT TRAGEDY OF WORLD WAR

HAMBURG, Nov. 15.—(AP)—An echo of one of the many submarine tragedies of the great war has come to the hamlet of Apenrade, where a bottle containing an evidently genuine message of despair, pencilled fully ten years ago, has been cast up on the beach of the North Sea coast.

"Aboard U-Boat 14; we are sinking!" read the message, written on a bit of paper turned yellow with time. There following the name and address of the sender, one of the submarine's crew.

The German submarine U-14 was lost in the North Sea during the latter part of 1916.

FINDING OF PLAY JURY IN FAVOR OF "THE CAPTIVE"

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—"The Captive," Broadway play charged with being "salacious and objectionable to civic morals" was found not guilty today.

The Quasi-official citizens' play jury selected to determine the fitness of the play disagreed in opinion, voting six thumbs down, five thumbs up and one thumb neutral By the agreement between producers, the district attorney and civic welfare and dramatic groups, which established the jury as gustator of supposed tainted theatricalfare, unless nine jurors turn down their thumbs a play is automatically acquitted.

"The Captive," a translation from the French of Edouard Bourdet's "La Prisonniere," was the first play brought to trial this season. It is numerous critics said, "a piece that deals frankly with complicated and suggestive psychopathic relations between women." Charges were brought against the play by District Attorney Banton. The twelve jurors, selected from the standing list of 500 men and women chosen as a permanent panel, included three women.

ENDEAVORING TO LOCATE AN ENTOMBED MINER

BOOMSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Fresh rescue crews were laboring in the Glendale Coal and Coke company's first street mine here tonight in an effort to locate Thomas Robbins, a miner, who was entombed by a blast which early today took four lives and injured two workers. Robbins, a veteran underground workman, was believed to be fighting a lone battle against fumes and smoke after having bratticed himself in one of the rooms along the entry where the explosion occurred. Eleven men escaped alive following the blast.

Members of rescue crews which came out of the mine this afternoon said they had heard sounds, as if some person were knocking, in the direction of the spot where Robbins was thought to have been working. They were unable to reach the place, however, because of the bad air conditions.

HAD COURT EXPERIENCES BEFORE THEIR WEDDING

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Complicated pre-nuptials attended the wedding in the municipal building here today of Harry Schmidt, 18, and Verna Bensoky, 16 of St. Benedict, Pa.

Following arrest by New York police, he charged with abduction and she with juvenile delinquency, the pair raced from court to court in company of a patrolman and thence to the marriage license bureau where they were duly wed.

In the West Side court they received the blessings of the magistrate and Schmidt obtained dismissal of the charge against him. In the Jefferson market court where charges pended against Verna they received similar benediction.

The girl came from Pennsylvania to look for work, according to police. She met Schmidt, according to her story and they set up housekeeping. This led to the arrest of both.

QUEEN MARIE VISITED STEEL MILLS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Shielding her face from the white heat of the furnaces behind the collar of her caracul coat, Queen Marie of Rumania tramped through the steel mills today to watch iron ore and scrap iron converted into rails.

Her majesty was taken by train to the plant of the Illinois Steel company at Gary, transferred to a glass-windowed observation car which carried her to the center of the manufactory and then she went afoot.

She dodged with smiles the shower of sparks sent up as hot bars of iron hit troughs of water, and shrunk back less than members of her party when fifty-ton cranes dropped near her their cargoes of flowing ingots.

One of the most interesting sights to her was a crane which fed baled scrap from into the furnaces with mechanical fingers.

WORKING ON CREATION OF POWER FROM THE SEA

PARIS, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The sea is an unlimited source of motor power, which can be obtained at a minimum cost, Professor Georges Claude, one of France's leading scientists, told the Academy of Science today. Professor Claude, who is the inventor of synthetic ammonia, demonstrated a generator which he had constructed for the creation of power from the sea.

The method on which Professor Claude and his associate, Professor Boucherot, are at work, involves the utilization of the difference in temperature existing between the always lukewarm surface waters of tropic seas and the deeper waters, which are always kept very cold by intensive currents coming from the polar regions.

LOVE LETTERS ENTER THE HALL-MILLS MURDER CASE

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 15.—(AP)—An issue of veracity between two state witnesses in the Hall-Mills case today, precampted for a time the place in the spotlight occupied by the love affair of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, found dead together, four years ago.

Between testimony of a sister of Mrs Mills, that the slain choir singer was not ashamed of her love for the rector of the New Brunswick church, and reading to the jury of letters from Mrs. Mills to Mr. Hall, the state introduced a witness to neutralize the tatsimony of another state witness, Elijah K. Soper, of New Brunswick.

Soper had testified that although he saw a touring car occupied by two men and a woman, parked near De Russey's lane, about midnight on the date of the double-slaying, he could not identify the occupants. The state then produced Ira B. Nixon, owner of an oil company in New York, who lives in Newark, to say that Soper, four years ago, told him that he had recognised the occupants of the automobile as Mrs. Hall and her two brothers.

The state was able to get this testimony before the jury on the ground that it was surprised by Soper's testimony and wished to neutralise it with that of Nixon's.

Reading of letters, from Mrs. Mills to Mr. Hall, found near the bodies was not accompanied by the tension in court developed when letters from the minister to the choir singer were read Saturday. The woman's letters were no less ardent than those of the man, but there was much more repetition of favorite phrases.

The three defendants were calm throughout the reading, which was done by Francis Berge, Somerset county prosecutor. He read rapidly with no stressing of the affectionate words and sentences. Mrs. Hall was attentive, but between letters when there was some confusion as to order and the pile of manuscript had to be arranged, she spoke a few words to Mrs. Sydney Carpenter, her cousin, who has sat each day just behind her.

James Mills, husband of the slain woman leaned forward in his chair with an expressionless face; Charlotte Mills, the daughter, was out of the courtroom.

"Dearest, dearest boy," was the salutation of the first letter, and all abounded in such terms as "My Darling," "Honey," and "Sweet Adorable Baby Kins." Frequent references were made to an anticipated "love nest."

"No house is big enough for me. I need the great outdoors," she wrote. "There isn't another man who can make me smile," she said, referring to her love for Hall and his for her as a "Noble man's great eternal love I am his forever."

Two of the letters were almost entirely occupied with discussion of a book in which the writer compared the characters to herself and the rector. Once, when she had described the pain she was suffering, she wrote, "Hold me close. Nothing will cure me, but that."

"How friendly our Easton avenue road looks," she said after writing, "I get a new message of love every time you take off your hat." Later she declared that she was "so happy, I could dance wildly." "No one understands me, but you," she wrote. "Of course I have never shown my true self to others."

"What a muddle we are in," was a plaintive note sounded. "You are a true priest and I am your physical inspiration," one letter read, "you see in me what you teach."

Mrs Elsie Barnhardt, a sister of Mrs. Mills, testified before the letters were read into the record that the choir singer, in reply to a protest that she was unwise in openly showing her affection for the minister told her that she did not care who knew it.

Mrs. Barnhardt said also that Mrs. Mills declared she cared "more for Mr. Hall's little finger, than for Jim's whole body." This statement was repeated, she said in the presence of James Mills, her husband.

Election Candidate Kidnaped in Lowell

LOWELL, Mass., Nov. 15.—(AP)—John Mahan, policeman-candidate for mayor of Lowell, who disappeared from his home early today, returned tonight in time to address an election-eve rally. He said he had been carried away to Providence by four masked men who robbed him of $138 and imprisoned him in a house. He escaped at noon today and made his way back to Lowell.

Mahan displayed a black eye, and appeared pale and ill. In his speech at the election rally, which was addressed also by the nine other mayoralty candidates, he made no reference to the kidnaping incident. In a conference with newspapermen after the meeting, however, he told the story of his adventure.

The policeman-candidate, who is over six feet tall and has a reputation for fighting prowess, said that four men, three of whom were armed with revolvers with silencers, entered his bedroom early today and dragged him to an automobile, he was driven to Providence, he said, and there imprisoned in a house. One of the kidnapers remained on guard, but at noon, while the sentinel was at lunch, he escaped.

Mahan said he begged a drive on a motor truck as far as Milton, and there met several young men from Lowell who provided him with a train ticket home. He said the money which the kidnapers took from him had been intended for advertising his campaign in Lowell newspapers.

FOREIGNERS PURCHASE THE CROWN JEWELS OF RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Nov. 15.—(AP)—While jewels to the value of millions of dollars have been purchased by foreign dealers from the vast collection of crown jewels of Russia, and some of the most important of them are on their way to the United States, the choicest remains in Russia's regal symbols remains in Moscow. This is the "imperial crown of all the Russians," made for the coronation of Catherine the Great in 1762, and valued at $52,000,000.

The "nuptial crown," which is perhaps the finest of all the jewels being transferred to America, though of great value, has not been publicly appraised, nor was the price paid for it announced. But it is a much smaller jewel than the imperial crown. While it contains 1,520 diamonds and is surmounted by a superb cross, the imperial crown is set with 4,936 diamonds, 75 huge pearls and many other large stones. This crown also is surmounted by a cross of diamonds, supported by an uncut ruby of 402 carats, one of the world's largest.

The tragedy is ascribed by members of the family to liquor. Mrs. Andreason, whose husband is in Gary, Ind., on a business trip, described how she pleaded for an hour with Keeline in an effort to induce him to desist from his murderous plans. Her condition is critical.

Keeline had been married three times. His first wife is dead and his second obtained a divorce after a sensational trial. He was 43 years old and his wife about ten years younger

Senator Edge's Anti-Prohibition Project

Explained to Association For American Rights at N. Y., Bar Association Meeting.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—Asserting that registered voters never have been given an opportunity to express their will as to national prohibition, Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey tonight explained to the Association for American Rights at the New York Bar association meeting steps he has taken to place the issue before the people.

He referred to a joint resolution which he introduced in the present congress for repeal of the eighteenth amendment as something to "start the machinery" under the second method of amendment authorized by Article V of the constitution, which expressly authorizes the people themselves, through state conventions, to amend the constitution in any way they see fit.

"The legislators of three-quarters of the states did vote on the Eighteenth Amendment," he said. "They did ratify it and by so doing they attempted to make this nation bone dry without first obtaining a ratification by the people.

"In reading the records of the proposal and adoption of the constitution; in reading the history of my country narrating the grievances of the thirteen colonies their wars and the principles for which they fought, I have come to the conclusion that some of those rights which they proclaimed to be inalienable, and which they themselves adopted their constitution to protect have been destroyed by the Eighteenth Amendment and trodden under foot by the state legislatures when they ratified it."

KING ALBERT OF BELGIUM CONTRADICTS MARSHAL FOCH

PARIS, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Albert, king of the Belgians, takes exception to the assertion alleged to have been made by Marshal Foch, generalissimo of the allied forces in the World war, that he had advised the Belgians against falling back at a critical moment in the battle of the Yser in 1914.

In a letter to Marshal Foch under date of November 13, King Albert says that, far from being persuaded by Marshal Foch, he has issued a proclamation three days prior to Foch's visit to him that mention of retreat would be treason. He had absolutely opposed any retreat, and he added, the Belgians had held the line.

Marshal Foch's alleged statement was published in the Matin on the responsability of the author of an Armistice day article, Stephane Lausanne, the editor of that paper, and the marshal declined to comment on the king's letter. Intimate friends of the marshal declare emphatically that he is incapable of the slightest disloyalty to King Albert or the Belgian army, but say it is impossible for him to make a public declaration concerning an article for which he was not responsible.

HAS NO MERCY TO SHOW WOMEN BOOTLEGGERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Women bootleggers were warned by Judge Bondy in the U. S. district court today when he sent three women to prison and fined two others. All of the women sought to minimize the charges against them by saying that they had a number of children to support.

"There are thousands of women who earn money to support their children every day in this city by doing lawful work, and there is always a demand for the services of such women," said Judge Bondy, "I have no mercy to show to women bootleggers."

BRITISH MINERS VOTING ON STRIKE-END PROPOSAL

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Acceptance of the government's peace proposals by the striking miners is almost certain, although it probably will be Wednesday before the full results of the district voting are known. Already the executive council of the South Wales Miners' federation, controlling one of the biggest coal fields has agreed to the terms.

Various other districts are busy deliberating and arranging to take votes. The South Wales miners, numbering about 250,000, have been looked upon as the "die hards," and now that they have given in, the likelihood is that other districts will folow suit immediately.

The government proposals are intended to maintain a sort of general standard of wages where the working hours number more than seven and also to insure that the miners shall benefit by prosperous conditions in the mining industry.

Although the miners have reason to be disappointed over the outcome to their bitter struggle, lasting from May 1, there has been suprisingly little discrimination.

TO PROMOTE CONGRESSIONAL RELIEF FOR AGRICULTURISTS

Farmer Organization Leaders Are Gathering in St. Louis to Discuss the Problem of Unexportable Agricultural Surplus—For the First Time the South is Ready to Join the North in a Discussion of Common Agricultural Problems.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The continuing problem of the unexportable agricultural surplus again was to the fore tonight as farmer organizations leaders of the nation's breadbasket in the north central states gathered in St. Louis in hope that the voice of the southern cotton planter would add the necessary effectiveness to their repeated lusty demand for congressional relief.

For the first time, the south was ready to join the north in a discussion of common agricultural problems.

Among the leaders it was emphasized that no one piece of proposed legislation would be stressed in the St. Louis meeting, but it was agreed that the principles of the defeated McNary-Haugen bill still were held to be fundamentally correct from the farmer's viewpoint, and that any recommendations probably would follow its general outline.

Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois and a leader in the movement for congressional relief, will be the principal speaker tomorrow. Senator Thaddeus Caraway, of Arkansas, probably will address the gathering Wednesday.

BROOKHART FOR FARM RELIEF LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Senator-elect Smith W. Brookhart, today advocated a special session of congress next summer to complete enactment of special farm relief legislation, which he believes should be started in the session opening next month.

Farm relief, he declared, should precede the appropriations in congress.

"I want to congratulate the farmers of Iowa upon their emphatic victory, because it was their victory and not mine," Col. Brookhart said. "The victory is not due to any strict party alignment and those who arose above the party demands to support the farm programme are entitled to the greatest credit."

"Being opposed to farm relief there is no chance that the president will call an extra session unless the appropriation bills are disposed until after March 4."

If farm legislation is passed and then vetoed, he said, it would be the issue of the national election.

Knapp was temporarily committed to the Westport sanitarium on March 18, 1925, when he was judged insane. A conservator had been placed over his estate upon the request of Mrs. Josephine Knapp, his daughter-in-law. The action was brought against Knapp in the probate court after several investments he had made proved unsuccessful and his estate had dwindled some $40,000 in value.

Pilot Stack informed the Westminster Gazette that each man would act as his own mechanic, helping each other in the event of trouble. Their kit weighs only ten pounds.

The adventure is being privately financed, with the idea of proving the practicability of long flights in small machines.

MARRIAGE ANNULMENT ATTRACTING ATTENTION

LONDON, Nov. 15 (AP)—The strange case of the annulment of the marriage between the duke of Marlborough and Consuelo Vanderbilt after 16 years of married life, the birth of two children and a divorce, is attracting immense attention here and there is great searching of precedents and records of the laws of the Roman Catholic church.

Since their diverse, the duke has married Miss Gladys Deacon, and Consuelo has entered into matrimonial ties with Jacques Balsan of France. The original marriage was performed with the rites of the Episcopal church, while in their second unions both the duke and Consuelo married Catholics.

One explanation seems to be that Consuelo, desirous of regularising her marriage with Colonel Balsan in the eyes of the Catholic church, sought a decree of annulment from Rome. The Catholic church refuses to recognize divorces, and therefore regarded the Balsan marriage as invalid.

Ecclesiastical circles are authority for the statement that the former duchess made her appeal for annulment on the ground that she had been forced to marry Marlborough by influences brought to bear upon her by her mother, now Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, and other relatives. She was 17 years of age at the time. Taking this into account, the holy rota tribunal in Rome confirmed the verdict of annulment by the diocesan court of Southwick.

SIMPLE FUNERAL FOR JOSEPH G. CANNON TODAY

DANVILLE, Ills, Nov. 15 (AP)—With all the simplicity of his Quaker heritage, Joseph G. Cannon's body will be borne to the grave tomorrow as that of a private citizen.

Tomorrow at 3 o'clock, the casket will be carried between lines of Boy Scouts to the First Methodist church across Vermillion street. There Rev. T. M. Ewing, Cannon's pastor, will liken the life of the political soldier to that of the Apostle Paul.

No formal eulogies will mark the ceremony. Flags will adorn the church.

The body will be interred in the family plot in Spring Hill cemetery beside that of Mrs. Cannon.

DECISION AGAINST THE UPHOLSTERERS' UNION

HARTFORD, Nov. 16—(AP)—The great bulwark of the citizen in the right to seek and obtain employment unhampered and unhindered by the conduct of others whether individually or combined in the nature of a labor organization."

This principle was laid down by Judge Nickerson of the superior court today in continuing the temporary injunction against the International Upholsterers' union, local number 35, restraining the union members from assembling at the factories of B. Dworkin and Company, Inc., at 555 Capitol avenue and the Acme Upholstery company at 17 Allyn street, or interfering with the workers.

In a second decision Judge Nickerson found that eight members of the union had not violated the terms of the injunction, as alleged by the Acme, in a petition to cite them for contempt.

520 CASES IN NEW YORK TRAFFIC COURT YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—If the speeders disposed of in traffic court today were going as fast when they were arrested as they went through the courtroom on arraignment, they most certainly deserved the fines imposed—totaling $4,950 by the way—to say nothing of some 50 sentences ranging from two to ten days each.

Three magistrates handled 570 cases. Among those on the arraignment list were three who have names reminiscent of the history books—George Washington, Daniel Boone and Benjamin Franklin.

George Washington pleaded guilty but protested on imposition of a $7 fine that he only had $1.50. "I can't let George Washington go to jail for lack of 50 cents," said the magistrate and out the fine in half.

Daniel Boone paid a $25 fine without protest but Benjamin Franklin failed to appear at all. Notice was sent him to appear Dec. 1

W. H. WILLIAMS PROMINENT DANIELSON MAN DIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 16—A citizen who has ever commanded the admiration of the thousands of people in this territory who have known him, William H. He was a native of the neighboring town of Foster, R. I., and was born May 6, 1846, a son of Henry D. and Lovina Simmons Williams.

For an unbroken period of 47 years Mr. Williams was the miller in charge of the grist mill of the Quinebaug company on the banks of the Quinebaug river at Main and Franklin streets, his work there ceasing late the past summer when his health had failed in great degree. His long period of faithful service is one calling has few parallels in local affairs. He was a kindly man who easily made and held friends and there will be generally regret that he has come to the end of life. Mr. Williams leaves his wife and two sons, Charles W. and Lucius, both resident here. He was a member of Quinebaug lodge of Odd Fellows.

Of interest here is the fact that stockholders of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company are to hold a special meeting on Wednesday of next week to consider the recommendation of the trustees for an increase of the capital stock by $500,000, frm $2,000,000 to $2,500,000. Nathan D. Prince, the president of the bank, is a Danielson man and president of the Windham County National bank of this place. PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Although the fire in the Bugbee department store last night was confined to the basement, heavy smoke permeated the entire building and caused more or less damage to the entire stock. This damage is especially heavy as the goods for the holiday trade had arrived and were already on the shelves.

The amount of the loss is a matter for adjusters, and it may reach or exceed $10,000.

How the fire started is unknown. There is a large electrical sign which is operated by clock work device in the basement where the flames evidently broke out. Many believe that defective insulation of the wires that run to this switch is what started the blaze.

Ralph B. Thurston, manager of the Putnam Light and Power company says that it would have been impossible for the fire to have originated in this way.

The basement has just been converted into a crockery and glassware department. The furnishings and the stock were damaged by fire, smoke and water, but the excellent service of the fire department kept the flames confined to the basement.

The smoke spread throughout the large building which is in the very center of the business district.

PUPILS OF TRADE SCHOOL WILL FINISH ADDITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 15.—All classes of pupils now attending the Putnam State Trade school number more than 500. It is expected that the new addition to the school will be finished by the contractors about the first of December. This does not mean that the building will be ready by that time for occupancy, for it will then be turned over to the school and the pupils will do the wiring, build necessary partitions and install the incidentals. When this work is completed the rearrangement of the equipment will be rushed to completion. It is not thought that everything will be arranged according to present plans until spring. When the plans are completed, the present congestion will be relieved both in the trade school and high school, it is hoped, for many years to come.

In the carpentry department there has been added a new instructor. There are now 24 pupils enrolled regularly in this course and 16 grade pupils take one day a week. John F. Craig of Brighton, Mass., has been engaged to assist Ernest Stacy in this department. This is to insure the necessary individual instruction to effect the best results. Mr. Craig is well experienced in his trade; he is married and will move his family to Putnam before the first of the year. In addition to acting as assistant to Mr. Stacy, Mr. Craig will be employed in the evening school.

Plans are now being made to add a department of masonry, which will include besides the ordinary branches of the trade, concrete laying, plastering, stucco work, etc. The underlying phases of the trade will be taught as well as a study of materials. Also mathematics, as applied to the trade, estimating and suitability of the various types of construction and building design will round out this course.

STONINGTON MAN GIVEN 30 DAYS FOR BREACH OF PEACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 15.—In Stonington town court on Monday morning before Judge William A. Wilcox, with Albert Dennison of Mystic, deputy prosecuting officer, the case was called defaulted against Herbert Johnson of West Warwick, R. I., for the operation of an automobile without a license. Dennison was given a court summons on last Friday when the automobile driven by him was in collision with another on the Stonington-Westerly highway near the residence of E. E. Bradley. At the time a $25 bond was given for his appearance and this amount was declared forfeited to the state.

Manuel Santos of Stonington borough was given a 30 days sentence in New London county jail, which was a deferred sentence on a former breach of the peace complaint. It was reported on Sunday night that Santos endeavored to annoy members of his family as they were on board of a Stonington bound Shore line electric car as it stood on the Pawcatuck river bridge. He was ejected from the electric car and Westerly Police Patrolman Robert M. Keasel was called to the state line. When the car left Pawcatuck, Santos proceeded to Stonington by jitney, but his coming was telephoned to the Stonington borough patrolman, William Ostman, who arrested Santos on a breach of the peace complaint and his court appearance and sentence followed.

A case from Pawcatuck to come before the juvenile court was continued until next Wednesday morning.

STRIKE SETTLEMENTS

From all indications the British coal strike is over and a new agreement will soon go into effect, meaning the return of the miners to work and the ending of a long and costly period of inactivity. When it was disclosed as the result of the investigation that a reorganization of the British coal mining was necessary, it was pointed out what the effects would be of a refusal to join hands and meet the situation as it existed. There were those who believed that the situation could be forced, that through resistance it would be possible to upset the part which the miners were expected to play in helping to bring about a reorganization and that the scheme of reorganization was unjust. England has been made to suffer severely as the result of the strike which has cost somewhere between one and two billion dollars and now the miners will go back to work under district rather than a national agreement, to work more hours and to receive less pay. Had the miners accepted the offer of going to work under those conditions until the readjustment could be effected they would have been much better off today. They have had their strike. They are decidedly poor in pocket as the result, but much richer in experience.

But not all the strike settlements have taken place abroad. In New York there has just been ended a strike of cloakmakers involving 40,000 persons and representing an industry doing a business of $816,000,000 a year. The strikers have gotten slight concessions but they have been obliged to yield heavily and shoulder at the same time a loss of $30,000,000 in wages. Their demand for a fixed amount of work each year was lost and they have had to acknowledge that the employer has the right to hire and fire.

For a longer period than any of the other strike at Passaic has been underway. Peace does not reign there but an agreement has been reached with one of the mills which broke away from the others and promises to be the forerunner of common action. Here again the strikers were obliged to yield for while the union will be recognized a closed shop will not be required. Labor in this arrangement gets more than it has in the other two instances but here the cost has been heavy and the damage large, and as in the others there cannot help being the reflection that it would have been much better had there been no strike. Radical leaders have accomplished.

STOP LIGHTS AND SIGNALLING

It was inevitable in connection with the motor vehicle department's statement concerning the importance of hand signalling when driving autos that it should be pointed out that stop lights on cars furnish vital information to the driver at the rear. When such a signal is seen it is apparent that the driver ahead in braking his car, either for the purpose of stopping or turning. At any rate his foot is off the throttle and he is slowing down. To the driver back of him that is significant. It should govern him accordingly.

But while the light on the car ahead may indicate that the brake is being applied there is nevertheless an advantage to the driver at the rear if he knows what that driver who is braking his car is going to do. If he is simply going to stop by the side of the road there is no reason why the next car cannot pass him on the left, provided the road is clear. If he is going to turn to the right the same is also true. If he is going to turn to the left it is a decided advantage to those back of him to have it designated in some other way than by a light which may mean any one of several things.

The stop light works automatically when the brake is being applied, and it is a good telltale so far as it goes but something more definite is frequently desirable, while it is to be remembered that the driver who uses his arm to signal also gives information to cars coming in the other direction. When he contemplates a left hand turn this is information which permits everyone to drive with a better understanding and safety.

The stop light and the hand signals should go together. If the situation is such that the hands, head and feet are busy in guiding the car when some bad or unexpected condition develops and hand signalling is impossible the stop signal should indicate enough to prevent a collision, but the car which is thus equipped and the driver who informs the next car what he proposes to do works admirably in the interest of safety.

FINGERPRINTING

For the purpose of establishing identity the system of finger printing has gained wide recognition. It is used in banks, in institutions where persons cannot write as a means of protecting the individual as well as the institution and it is used in courts and penal institutions in dealing with criminals. Much of the opposition to its use comes from the fact that it is employed in marking the criminal class, but because it does effective service in that respect simply proves its worth in other direction. The taking of finger prints does not brand as a criminal. The fact is that it often times provides the evidence to prove that such isn't the case.

This is well illustrated in the case of a New York business man, who was arrested as a diamond thief. There is no escaping the fact that his features are as near like the person wanted as a twin brother could be, and he was identified by those robbed and by detectives as the man wanted because of his likeness, but when it came to apply the finger print test the difference was disclosed. The finger print expert pointed out where there was a decided difference in the finger prints of the man wanted and the merchant who had been arrested with the result that the jury was not long in acquitting the latter, who but for the fingerprinting would probably now being doing time for something which the fellow he unfortunately looks like was responsible.

Because the finger prints of no two individuals are alike there is reason for putting full faith in such a system, and while it may take something in breaking down the prejudice against it there's no question but what it will steadily increase in use. The value of such a system can be readily understood in many directions. It can be easily imagined what the New York business man thinks of it.

PREPAREDNESS

When the president spoke in Kansas City at the Armistice day celebration there it was to be expected that he would have something to say in regard to peace and he did. He couldn't have said in any plainer words that we are committed to international peace and our record stands out prominently in backing up such a claim. There is no getting away from our position in that respect, but just because we believe in peace we have been ready to do our part and a little more in order to bring about disarmament it isn't to be inferred that we are going to plunge into disarming in such a way as to leave the country unprotected and in danger.

There must be a proper national defense, for as the president says: "We realize thoroughly that no one will protect us unless we protect ourselves." We must look out for No. 1 even while we may be doing our part to set an example for others. To do anything else would be folly. It would be unwise and short sighted "to invite disorder and aggression, which must either be borne with humiliating submission or result in a declaration of war."

The fact is that there is a certain amount of preparedness that must be undertaken in anticipation of possible trouble, hoping and expecting all the time that only peace will follow. Such protection is in fact one of the best methods of insuring peace, when it is backed up by the knowledge that a "peace at any price" policy doesn't prevail. Unpreparedness invited imposition. Preparedness means a guard against trouble from unexpected sources and when not overdone is a necessary protection. Certainly no one is menaced by the military structure of this country but reductions can be safely made only with the taking of similar action by the others.

JERRENGER'S TASK

That Ambassador Jerrenger of France should want to resign is understandable. He was named for the purpose of negotiating the debt agreement between this country and France. Through his efforts such a plan was decided upon that was particularly liberal to France. He returned and supported it and has been urging it upon the French legislature. Naturally when there has been a refusal to ratify it and modifications are called for he recognizes the difficulties standing in the way and believes that someone else should undertake the work.

In being picked to carry the negotiations further he fully understands what the sentiment is in this country and he recognizes what obstacles must be overcome if the French ideas are to be carried out. He must undertake the tearing down of what he has already built up and sanctioned.

When he is told that it is impossible to think of having his resignation accepted as special ambassador he acts like a true Frenchman and agrees to present the French side of the matter and to endeavor to have this government recede from the position taken relative to the debt. That means he is going to try and have a protective clause inserted in the agreement whereby France would be relieved of its responsibility to pay if Germany fails to keep its agreement and to get a better statement of certain other features so that there may be no question as to what future administrations in this country would do regarding features of the debt agreement.

In view of the sentiment against the leniency already shown the Berrenger task is not the easier. There can be little surprise that he desired someone else to do the work.

CHAPERONING GRANDMA

"I haven't seen you in years," remarked Edith, who had happened upon her old friend Polly lunching downtown. "Can't you come over tonight for a game of bridge?"

"Sorry, not tonight, thank you. I have to chaperon grandma."

"What do you mean—chaperon grandma?" laughed Edith.

"Just what I say," answered Polly. "You didn't know that grandma has come to live with us, did you? She is nearing 90. You see, father was her youngest child. About two months ago a cousin with whom she lived died, and father sent me down to the little old home town in Ohio to bring her here. She's a perfect dear. We just love having her with us."

"But why do you have to chaperon her?"

"Well, if you have time to listen to a highly moral story I'll tell you."

"Proceed, Polly. I never scorn an uplift."

"It was this way. We took the day train from that little town in Ohio because of grandma's rooted prejudice against sleeping cars. At noon, when I was helping her through the long train to the dining car—she is slightly lame—a man who was also bound toward luncheon opened all the car doors for us and guided her through the vestibules. When we three entered the dining car the conductor just naturally started to seat us together. Our escort, with a smile, made a move toward another table.

"'No,' commanded grandma, 'sit right down here with us. You're a very polite young man. I can see that you were well raised.'

"'Thank you,' he said, and dropped casually into the chair next grandma. It was tactful of him, for she surely would have argued the matter if he had attempted to leave us. She is rather a masterful old dear.

"'Wait a moment, please,' she said to the waiter who was hovering over us with the menu card. 'We haven't asked the blessing on this meal yet.'

"'But, grandma, not here in public,' I protested in a low voice.

"'Polly,' she said severely, 'I do not eat either in provate or in public without saying grace.' And she said it in a tone audible the length of the car. Two flappers across the aisle snickered. The man at our table lifted his bowed head and glared at them fiercely. Thank goodness, grandma did not observe their discourtesy. I doubt not that she would have rebuked them. She certainly has the courage of her convictions. The rest of the meal passed pleasantly with no further embarrassing incident. When we had regained our own car, grandma invited our faithful escort to sit down, and, as she said, 'chat a little about real things.'

"'I want to know,' she began at once, 'if you're a church member? A young man like you should—'

"'Oh, grandma, please—'

"'Pardon me, but your grandmother didn't ask you,' he gave me a mischievous glance. She asked me, and I'm glad to say that I am, or at least I was. Now, if you'll excuse me, I'll go and smoke.'

"'Well, smoking's no sin,' said grandma graciously. 'My grandmother smoked a pipe, but I've never cared for it myself. I wish you would come to see us in Chicago. Polly, tell him where you live—where I'm going to live. I never can remember streets and numbers.'

"Of course, there was nothing to do but obey her, and I blissfully thought that would be the end of it. On the contrary, that man called within the week and he's been coming quite regularly ever since. He appears to be awfully fond of grandma."

"Polly, is he good looking?"

"Grandma thinks so," answered Polly demurely, but her pink cheeks grew crimson under her friends questioning gaze.

"He must be some pickup," said Edith. "I wish that I had a grandmother with whom I could take a missionary journey."—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Maj. Gen. James H. MacRae, who has been assigned to the command of the Second Corps Area with headquarters at Governors Island in place of Maj. Gen. Summerall, who goes to Washington as chief of staff, comes to his new post from San Francisco, where he has held the command of the Ninth Corps Area. General MacRae is a native of Georgia and was graduated from West Point in the same class with General Pershing. His army experience covers service in almost every part of the world where United States troops have served. In the World war he commanded the Seventy-eighth (Lightning) division in France and was decorated by this and many foreign governments. He is an ardent sportsman, a good polo player, and is known in army circles as the "Fighting General." In the command of his division in the Argonne-Meuse offensive as well as in other campaigns his personal influence on the result showed a rich quality of leadership.

LAST OF THE REVOLUTIONARIES

The last survivor in eastern Connecticut of the Revolutionary armies that The Bulletin records is Benjamin Brown of Waterford, the notice of whose death appears in the issue of Sept. 2, 1865, as follows:

"The New London Star says that Benjamin Brown died at his residence in Waterford, Friday, aged nearly 96 years. He fought in the war of the Revolution and bore arms in the defense of New London on the 6th of September, 1781, carrying a musket all the night previous, though but a lad, and was the first to descry the British fleet, and give the alarm of their approach on that ever memorable morning."

Can any one give information of a Revolutionary soldier living in these parts to a later day?

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Trivial Futile Books

There is of course still another class of books that are no books, works of this kind far outnumber all the others put together, and it requires constant care in order to avoid them.

"Throw away none of your time," says Lord Chesterfield, "upon those trivial futile books, published for the amusement of idle and ignorant readers; such sort of books swarm and buzz about one every day; flap them away,—they have no sting."

Ruskin calls attention to the difference between books written to render thought permanent such as great poems and histories, books of all time he calls them and books written merely for the hour, the useful or pleasant talk of some person you cannot otherwise converse with, such as travels and novels which he says are not books at all but merely letters or newspapers in print.

A poor farmer digging in the dry bed of a river near Tsenchow City, China, was amazed to unearth an ancient coffin of tiles decorated with chariots and warriors in bas-relief and containing a number of curios. The farmer reported to the magistrate, who sent scholars to view the find. They said the coffin was a relic of the Chow or Chin dynasty of 3,000 years ago. On the front of the coffin is an inscription translated to read: "Drawn and Written by Kuo Klung." The relics were removed to the district Yemen.

HOW LONG WILL YOU LIVE?

By Mark L. Emerson, M. D., Oakland, Calif. Member Gorgas Memorial Institute.

Toss a coin in the air eighty thousand times and it will land heads forty thousand times; at least this was the result of an experiment by a class at the University of California, June 23th of this year. The experiment was simply to verify what has been demonstrated many times before, namely the law of average. Just keep tossing the coin long enough and it will break even many times before you reach eighty thousand.

So it is with the exppctancy of life. The life insurance companies base their investments on the law of average of human life, for your age and generation.

Their statistics are derived from life statistics of the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany.

It is, therefore, up to you to prolong your average if you can. In the first place, don't believe the wag who said: "Married men don't live any longer than single men, it only seems longer."

The statistics for the city of Chicago for 1925—show that out of 1,000 men, from 25 to 34 years, those who die, included 15 who are divorced, 5 who are single and only 4 who are married. The ratio is even more favorable as they get older.

Women as an average live three years longer than men. The average life is now 58 years; you should live 8 years longer than your parents and 12 years longer than your grand-parents; and some of our grandparents lived to be pretty old people.

However the average life of people in your grand-parents' generation was 46 years, and the average life of those of your parents' generation was 50 years.

Your children should live four years longer than you do. The average life in 1950 will be 75 years if is expected. When it comes to long life, try to be a little better than the average. Get the habit of the annual health examination or health audit, and don't go to a fortune teller, in order to find out how long you are going to live. Go to your family doctor and insist that he keep you well.

Here's the table which you should try to beat:

At 7, you should live 58 years more.
At 12, you should live 53 years more.
At 22, you should live 27 years more.
At 42, you should live 20 years more.
At 52, you should live 21 years more
At 62, you should live 15 years more
At 72, you should live 9 years more
At 82, you should live 5 years more
At 92 you should live 3 years more.
At 102, you should live 2 years more.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubes. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

The Bad News Spreads

Bad news travels like the winds;
It always leaves good news behind.
Peter Rabbit.

Funny, isn't it, that it should be so? But it is. I know of nothing that can travel any faster than bad news. For some reason or other, people delight in passing on bad news. You would think they would take much greater delight in passing on good news, but good news travels slowly compared with bad news. So it was that in almost no time at all it was all over the Green Meadows and through the Green Forest, and even way up in the Old Pasture, that Mrs. Grouse had been killed by a hunter with a terrible gun.

At first, the friends of Mrs. Grouse were slow to believe it, but when they heard that Peter Rabbit had seen her shot, and had watched the hunter run to pick her up, they just naturally had to believe it. So they shook their heads and said how sad it was, and how they would miss Mrs. Grouse; and what a dreadful thing it was that hunters with terrible guns should be allowed in the Green Forest.

And the little people who lived on the Green Meadows, when they heard the dreadful news, began to worry. They hadn't felt it necessary to watch out for hunters with terrible guns, although it was now the hunting season. You see, they had felt quite safe on the land of Farmer Brown. But if a hunter with a terrible gun could shoot Mrs. Grouse in the Green Forest, he might appear on the Green Meadows with that terrible gun. Bob White looked worried. He and Mrs. Bob warned their children to stay together and to be sure to keep perfectly still if they should see a hunter with a terrible gun on the Green Meadows. "By remaining perfectly still, you may escape being seen," explained Bob. "If you are seen, some of you will be sure to be shot just as was poor Mrs. Grouse. Dear me! How she will be missed!"

When Reddy Fox over in the Old Pasture first heard the news, he flew into a great rage. You see, he had always felt that some day he was going to be smart enough to catch Mrs. Grouse. So he felt that this hunter with the terrible gun had robbed him of Mrs. Grouse. He expressed his opinion of that hunter, but as a matter of fact, that opinion wasn't much different from that of all the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. But after his anger had cooled down a little, Reddy became thoughtful. It was Sammy Jay who had brought him the news. "Did you say that Peter saw the hunter pick up Mrs. Grouse," inquired Reddy.

Sammy Jay told Reddy Fox in just what part of the Green Forest the dreadful thing had happened

"No, I didn't say so," replied Sammy Jay. "He saw the hunter shoot and bring her down out of the air. Then he saw him shoot at her on the ground and run forward to pick her up. So, of course he got her."

"Yes, of course," replied Reddy. "Of course he got her. Where did you say all this happened?"

Sammy Jay told Reddy Fox in just what part of the Green Forest the dreadful thing had happened. "Thank you, Sammy," said Reddy. "Now I know just what part of the Green Forest to keep away from."

Now, what Reddy really meant was that he knew just what part of the Green Forest to visit just as soon as he got a chance. You know, there is no shrewder head in all the Green Forest and all the Green Meadows than that of Reddy Fox. "Peter didn't see Mrs. Grouse picked up," muttered Reddy to himself when he was alone. "She may not have been killed at all. She may have been only wounded and have hidden so that hunter couldn't find her. In that case, I might find her myself." Reddy licked his lips hungrily.

The man who discovered ex-premier David Lloyd George died last month. He was H. J. Williams, a well-known temperance reformer, and superintendent of the United Kingdom Alliance, Britain's foremost temperance organization. Mr. Williams was the first Welsh grand chief Templar 40 years ago, and it was then that he induced Lloyd George to make his first public speech at Machynlleth, Wales.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Avoid Dizzy Spells

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation which often causes dizzy spells. For 20 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards gave his patients, in place of calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Known by their olive color. They free the system of poisons that ravage health, energy, beauty.

You need never have sallow complexion, dull eyes, coated tongue, thrpbbing headaches — all signs that your bowels are clogged, liver is torpid. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. They act smoothly and without griping. . . How much better you'll feel and look! Everywhere wise men and women who know the value of good health take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Don't wait to turn on the heat until someone in your home starts sneezing, or complaining of rheumatism, neuralgia, aching joints, and muscles—a shovelful or two of Chappell Coal night and morning is better than a spoonful of "cure-all" twice a day.

POETRY

Why?

"Tell me, little vine-berries,
If I may be so bold,
Why are you reddest and rarest
'Neath the tree that is bent and old?
And you, little downy spring blossoms,
And fair ferns graceful and green—
Why do you cluster the sweetest
His gnarled old roots between?
And mosses, O shining mosses,
With your caps of scarlet and gold!
Why do you stay with his lichens,
So withered and gray and old?"—
They only clung closer and looked very wise,
Out of their dewy-sweet woodland eyes.

But I came away home to the children—
Elsie and Winnie and Ned—
And there was Grandfather, surely,
With his dear and wise gray head,
With his face all laughing wrinkles,
And his voice ana shout of glee;
For high on his back rode Elsie,
And the others were climbing his knee,
Pictures and toys all forgotten,
And mother quite out of mind too;
I stood and smiled at the frolic
And the wood flowers' answer knew—
Green leaves and blossoms with dew-drop pearled,
"Grandfather's grandfather, all through the world."

The Evening Cloud

A cloud lay cradled near the setting sun,
A gleam of crimson tinged its braided snow;
Long had I watched the glory moving on
O'er the still radiance of the lake below,
Tranquil its spirit seemed, and floated slow!
Even in its very motion there was rest;
While every breath of eve that chanced to blow
Wafted the traveller to the beauteous west.
Emblem, methought, of the departed soul!
To whose white robe the gleam of bliss is given,
And by the breath of mercy made to roll
Right onwards to the golden gates of heaven,
Where to the eye of faith it peaceful lies,
And tells to man his glorious destinies.
—John Wilson.

Women have a monopoly of the leech-doctor profession in Austria. Leech doctors are successors to the old-fashioned bleeders who used to treat all sorts of ailments by drawing blood from the patients by making incisions. Leech doctors are not medically trained. Their theory is that most diseases are either caused by fever, or attended by fever, and that an excess of blood is responsible for this condition. So, armed with leeches, which are carried in moist earth, these women go about reducing the blood supply of patients who have faith in the healers.

Another Diagnosis

George has been carving as the messenger boy to carry the bouquets of flowers to his mother's sickroom. His mother is a lover of flowers and took delight in the flowers grown in her own garden as well as those grown in the neighbor's in the summer.

A neighbor met George on the porch early one day and offering a bouquet said:

"George, will you please take these flowers to your mother?"

George thanked her and said he would.

"I gathered these out of my garden and I know she'll like them. I don't believe she has zinnias, has she?" asked the neighbor.

"Oh, no," George hastily replied, "she has anaemia."

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

will be a memorial for many years to come. She was present at all the services of the day and was the guest of honor at a bountiful dinner served by the ladies.

The morning service opened with the organ voluntary, doxology and Lord's prayer, which were followed by a hymn and responsive reading. After the Scripture reading by Rev. Stanley Selick, pastor of the Lebanon Congregational church, an anthem was ably rendered by the choir, Miss Beatrice Littlefield at the organ. Rev. Louis L. Harris, pastor of Liberty Hill Congregational church, offered prayer and a duet was well rendered by Miss Cora Chappell and Miss Beatrice Littlefield, followed by prayer by the pastor.

Rev. Dr. E. E. Gates of Hartford, general secretary of the Baptist state convention, preached a very able sermon. Dr. Gates held his congregation in a very appreciative manner and many were sorry when he closed his remarks.

At 12:30 all retired to the chapel for a chicken dinner in charge of Mrs. U. S. Goodwin, Mrs. W. A. Harvey and Mrs. Ida Abel. Place cards were arranged at the table for the invited guests and officers of the church and their families.

After dinner, service was again resumed in the church. After another anthem by the choir Rev. O. P. Campbell, of Hartford, secretary of religious education, spoke on the work of "Our Young Folk," and at 2:45 Rev. H. B. Sloat of Hartford, secretary of missionary co-operation, spoke on "Our Work" and the tour around the world. At 3:15 the sermon of re-dedication was preached by Rev. Dr. E. S. Holloway of New York city. Dr. Holloway is a very forceful and pleasing speaking speaker and was listened to with pleasure by all. Dr. Holloway is the father of Mrs. George L. Randall who is one of the leading workers in the Lebanon church. Rev. E. C. Dunbar of this city had the prayer of re-dedication, after which a union communion service was held, the two sister churches uniting. The service closed by singing "Bless Be the Tie That Binds," and the benediction by Rev. Mr. Harris.

The remodeling of the church consists of new hardwood floors, new oak pews, redecorated walls, center entrance to the church and new inside swinging doors. A New London contractor has been in charge of the work and has been a great help to the church by his interest and advice in many details.

The church is free of debt and in a fine spiritual condition under the leadership of the present pastor, Rev. Andrew G. Littlefield, who came to Lebanon three years ago from New Hampshire where he held prominent pastorates.

The officers of the church and the committees on the work are the following:

CHAS. W. YOUNG ELECTED MILL ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 15.—The fourth annual meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association, whose membership includes 30 mills, was held tonight at the Community house with a good attendance of millmen representing 21 mills of the association. The main business of the meeting, at which the retiring president, Walter M. King, purchasing agent of Guerin Mills, Mechanicsville, presided, was the election of officers, which was followed by two interesting and educational talks.

The following were elected: President, Charles W. Young, superintendent of Goodyear Manufacturing company, Goodyear, Conn., who succeeds Walter N. King; vice presidents, Harry C. Crandall, production manager of Lorraine Manufacturing company, Westerly, R. I.; Ray Greene, superintendent's assistant of Lawton mills, Plainfield, A. R. Boutilier, overseer of carding of Totokett Manufacturing company, Versailles, Fred P. King, master mechanic of Goodyear Manufacturing company company, Goodyear, Leroy Bennett, overseer of carding of Aldrich Bros., Moosup; secretary and treasurer, Prentice W. Chase, welfare supervisor of Ashland Cotton company, Jewett City (re-elected for fourth term). The report of the secretary and treasurer, Prentice W. Chase, was given which showed the association to be in good standing, both financially and numerically, and a resume of the activities of the association during the past year were presented.

Frederick L. Babcock, father of the association, headed the programme of speechmaking, giving a matter of fact talk as to what the association should do in the future in connection with the business conditions in the textile industry as they exist today. Mr. Babcock's fine talk was followed by the speaker of the evening, Stanley E. Osborne, M. D., state commissioner of health, who gave an interesting lecture based principally on the prevention of various diseases. He told what the state department of health is doing at the present time and what it expects to do in the future to curb the present disease conditions. Dr. Osborne's address was well received and it was a treat for the audience to learn of the work of this demapiment of which comparatively little is known. Both speakers were given rising votes of thanks for their talks.

At the conclusion of the speeches a buffet lunch was served and cigars were passed.

BROTHERHOOD DISCUSSES PLANS FOR THE SEASON

The Brotherhood of the United Congregational church held its opening meeting of the season Monday evening at the Community house, Church street. There was a good sized attendance and the meeting was conducted by President Hugh B. Campbell. Supper was served at 6:30 o'clock by the Boy Scout troop of the United church and at the conclusion of the supper the business meeting was called to order by President Campbell. The greater part of the meeting was devoted to a general discussion of plans for the winter's activities. Several forms of entertainments such as amateur theatricals, minstrel shows, moving picture shows and literary programmes were discussed. Action on the plans for the winter's programme of activities went over until the December meeting of the Brotherhood. The meeting adjourned about 7:45 o'clock.

JUNIOR GUILD SEWED FOR HOSPITAL IN INDIA

The junior guild of the United Congregational church met at the home of Mrs. A. H. Abbott Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Dorothy Messler, and the reports of the various committees were read and accepted. The girls sewed for a hospital in India while Miss Corcoran of the welfare department of the United Workers delightfully entertained them by a talk of the work done for children at Thanksgiving and Christmas. The guild voted $5 as a special Thanksgiving offering. Light refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed by all.

COLLAR BONE BROKEN IN PLUNGE OVER WALL

One of three sailors had his collar bone broken, another his ankle twisted, and the third sustained a cut on his wrist when the touring car in which they were riding down Laurel Hill avenue failed to make the curve in front of the so-called Clay block, but took to the sidewalk, scraped between a telephone pole and the house and jumped off a 30 foot offset wall after ripping away about 18 feet of fence. The spectacular accident happened between 3 and 4 o'clock Monday morning when there was a heavy fog, which the men said was to blame, for they claimed they were not familiar with the road.

All three are members of the crew of the U. S. S. Tucker, a coast guard boat, which is now at New London. John Joseph Campbell, 24, who was driving, had his collar bone broken. Louis Eglers, 34, had his ankle twisted, and Edward De Carlo, 25, sustained minor cuts. All three were taken to the Backus hospital, where they remained till Monday afternoon when they were returned to New London.

When the machine went over the wall it landed upside down with the front wheels and steering gear torn loose from the body.

Two of the victims were pinned beneath the machine, and the third was thrown clear of the wreckage. Frederick Baker, who resides nearby, heard the crash and notified police headquarters. The police patrol was hustled to the scene of the accident. Neighbors assisted in getting the men free from the wreckage and they were taken to the hospital.

Throughout the day many people visited the scene of the accident to have a look at the wrecked machine.

YALE PRESIDENT WAS SELDEN MEMORIAL LECTURER

The second annual lecture on the Selden Memorial Foundation in remembrance of Rev. Joseph Henry Selden, was given Monday evening in the Connecticut college gymnasium at New London, President James R. Angell of Yale university was the speaker, his topic being Educational Ideals in a Democracy.

The Selden Memorial lectureship was founded in memory of the late Rev. Mr. Selden, by his wife, Florence Bill Selden of this city. It provides that each year in November a speaker of repute will be invited to speak on some phase of religion, history, politics, government, philosophy or the fine arts.

TWO ARE FINED FOR MONTVILLE RUM RUNNING

On the charge of transporting liquor and keeping liquor with intent to sell, William Mathews of 110 Potter street, New London, was fined $400 and costs when presented before Justice of the Peace Oscar Church in Montville Saturday afternoon. Abraham Scott of the same New London address was fined $100 and costs as an accessory.

The two men were taken into custody by State Policeman Arthur Johnston Saturday afternoon when the policeman found nine gallons of alleged alcohol in the car operated by Mathews. Suspicion of the state police that Mathews was engaged in the illicit distribution of liquor caused his car to be watched and the consequent arrests Saturday. It is believed by the state police that the men were distributing liquor around Montville at the time of apprehension.

SUN BATH EFFECTS ON TUBERCULOSIS OF LUNGS

"Do sun baths harm or help cases of lung tuberculosis?" was the question discussed here Monday at the meeting at Uncas-on-Thames of the medical officers of the state tuberculosis sanatoria. It is recognized everywhere that sun baths help tuberculosis of the bones and glands, but the physicians of the world are not agreed as to the beneficial effects of continuous sun bathing on the lung forms of the disease. The discussion was opened by Dr. H. S. Campbell who demonstrated from the study of a large series of pulmonary cases, undergoing heliotherapy or sun treatment at the Norwich sanatorium that the following conclusions can safely be drawn:

Under competent medical supervision, a majority of patients running little or no temperature will show a definite subsidence of moisture in the lung—indicative of improvement; tuberculous complications, if not too advanced, especially of the bowel and rectum appear to heal; blood spitting is not produced or aggravated; temperature is not increased; in the majority of cases, weight is markedly increased; there is practically in all cases, marked general improvements; Dr. Campbell admitted that isolation of sun treatment can be exceedingly harmful, unless exposure be gradual and unless the medical supervision be strictly enforced.

In another paper presented by Dr. R. G. Urquhart, resident physician at Uncas-on-Thames, entitled "Treatment of Gynecological Conditions in Lung Tuberculosis" it was shown that in many instances the failure of women patients to respond to the sanatorium treatment for tuberculosis was due to the handicap of the seemingly less important associated conditions described in the paper.

At the close of the meeting the three new buildings were thrown open for inspection by the visiting physicians. These buildings will be ready for occupancy before the first of the year.

MEAT INSPECTION IMPORTANT SAYS STATE DEPARTMENT

The weekly health bulletin issued by the Connecticut state department of health has the following to say about the importance of meat inspection.

The housekeeper today who is concerned with the health of her family recognizes the importance of buying food which is not only handled under sanitary conditions, but she wishes to be assured that it is safe for consumption. In the selection of meat she watches for the little purple stamp which assures her that it has been inspected by federal authorities and so is safe for her use. Or, she may find a larger purple stamp on the Sunday roast which tells her that it has been passed by a Connecticut meat inspector.

Many people, however, do not appreciate what lies back of these purple stamps. This was all too forcibly shown at the state fair at Hartford last fall when the commissioner on domestic animals had on display certain organs of meat and dairy cattle which were mottled with tuberculosis lesions. This was a gruesome but effective message to the public, and taught them to beware of using meat which has not received the stamp of safety.

In 1906 the federal meat inspection law was passed by congress. This gave power to the United States department of agriculture to inspect food animals before and after slaughter, in order to eliminate such animals or such parts of the carcass as are found to be unsafe for food. It also provides for the safe handling and production of meat products.

Now this law is excellent as far as it goes, but it only applies to meat and meat products in interstate commerce. It has been estimated that only about 60 per cent of meat and meat products in the United States are handled under the protection of this law. What about the other 40 per cent? Unless there is a corresponding law in each state to protect the public against unsafe meat produced within the state, local meat may be far from safe for consumption.

What about Connecticut? At the present time there is no uniform meat inspection for the state but meat inspection is carried on locally in fourteen cities and towns, namely—New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport, Stamford, New London, Norwalk, Middletown, Meriden, New Britain, Bristol, Rockville, Manchester, West Haven and Winsted. Beside this the commissioner on domestic animals inspects shipments of animals which reach Connecticut before slaughtering, and is thus able to eliminate all unsafe meat or parts thereof.

Another important feature of his work is the elimination of tuberculosis from dairy herds. It is estimated that one-half of all meat condemned is tuberculous. When tuberculous meat is found and condemned during meat inspection, it is often possible to trace this to the source and so discover tubercular cattle in the herd.

Anti-tuberculosis work or elimination of tuberculosis from herds has taken a forward step shown by the increasing amount of tuberculin-testing of herds. Herds thus tested and found to be free of tuberculosis are published as "accredited herds" in each state. Connecticut now has 819 accredited herds, comprising 17,010 cattle; also 1,957 herds, comprising 41,561 cattle, are under supervision. These herds that are under supervision, if after three semi-annual tuberculin-tests show no reactors, are accredited. When the tuberculin-test shows any reactors a veterinarian is assigned by the commissioner on domestic animals who inspects the carcass at the time of slaughter and condemns it entirely or such parts as are unfit for food.

Much progress has also been made in Connecticut in the supervision of slaughter houses to the end that many new sanitary slaughter houses have replaced those found to be grossly insanitary.

The body of the woman found dead on a lawn in the high class residence section of Rochester, N. Y., late last night, was identified by her husband as Mrs. Carrie Phelan, 42.

EAGER SHOPPERS THRONG STORES

Salesgirls Dread Bargain Days

Louisa was tired. From morning until night she had been on her feet in the busy department store. No matter how she felt, she must serve her customers with a smile. Her head throbbed and her feet ached. Week after week, she felt her strength ebbing until she was in a run-down condition, not fit to work.

"My mother suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound," she writes. "I took only three bottles and it brought me about all right." Through the Vegetable Compound, she found better health to do her work and she told the other girls about it.

That was several years ago. Louisa is now Mrs. L. J. Van Dyke of 1246 Spring St., Morrell Park, Baltimore, Md. She is the mother of three healthy, active children. She says that she found the tonic effect of the Vegetable Compound helpful to her during this entire period.

Every working girl knows that to do her work properly and easily she must have good health. She can not afford to lose time from her work.

SUSIE PARADES AND SEES BULKELEY BEATEN BY THE ACADEMY THIS WEEK

Susie in her weekly letter writes of several subjects this week including the Armistice day parade, the Bulkeley-Academy game and Tad Jones. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed:

Well this has been a full week alright. No, not that kind of full, I mean a busy week. There was the Armistice day parade then the Bulkeley game and also a nice sweet piece from Taddy Jones taking a slap at all them people what criticises him and his football gang.

Say Ed, didn't them boys in the parade looks simply grand and didn't it give your old spine all kind of thrills to see them defenders of this country marching by. Oh sure, I marched too but a nother year I'm going to be "one of the enthusiastic throng along the line of march" as you say in the paper. Marching is all right if the old dogs hold out but when they start to go back on you its, well its terrible. Believe me Ed, if they want me to march again they got to iron out them streets and patch up some of the holes. You know I was marching with my head up and bowing and smiling to everybody what I know and some I didn't know if they was good looking when all of a sudden I steps in a hole and I finds myself flat on my face. That must have looked funny but I didn't mind until somebody gives me a dirty laugh and says "You look like you was swimming the English channel"

Say didja ever try to march to two bands at once. Well you oughta try it, its great practice for the Charleston. You know I was marching with a section what had a band in front of it and one behind it and them two bands never did play the same piece at the same time. Gosh when one band was playing I be going along fine and keeping fine step but when the other start there was a grand hop skip and jumping to get in time with that one. Well when we was going up by the postoffice and there was four or five bands playing at once I didn't know whether I was coming or going. Gosh believe me I wasn't the only one what musta had sore feet neither. Say you know that feller Joe Reed what took them movie pictures of the parade and the Bulkeley? Well he told me I looked like a adv. for corn plasters before using them. He said when he saw me coming down the line he thought I was one of them disabled veterans what had got shot in the foot and had lost my crutches. Well if you see me in them pitchers don't tell anybody about it.

Oh boy want it cold? Say I thought that I was going to freeze up and break if I fell down. There was one thing about it them exercises was short and to the point alright, if you know what I mean, but I didn't here nothing being at the tail end of one division.

Say Ed didja see the Bulkeley-Academy fellers just grand? Oh boy, I could kiss every one of them for the great work what they did in beating Bulkeley. Bulkeley didn't have no more chance than a snowball has in —well, in a furnace. And Bulkeley was so cocksure of beating the Academy. Say Ed, do you believe its bad luck to have your picture took before a game. No? Well, I don't either but there is some coaches what is superstitious that way. They tell me Coach Candy wouldn't let his team have them took by Joe Reed for the movies because he thought it was bad luck. Well I guess he couldn't have no worse luck if he had had them pictures took. It was a good game just the same and both teams played nice beautiful football the victory going to the best team. It was a lot better than some games what I saw at the Yale bowl this season.

Say Ed don't that Tad Jones swing a mean tongue when he gets all het up? Didja see them dirty slaps what he took at them fellers what has been criticizing him and his Yale team in the papers one day last week. I guess them fellers what write for the sports pages is leading Tad's angora around by a string alright and some of them remarks has got under his skin like a silver. He says they is all "yellow-bellies" and is all "shyster lawyers, poor doctors and dentists and $18 a week clerks." Well, all I can say is that if friend Tad is right that the country sure is on the bum. But let me tell him right now that if all the people that have dared to criticize him is "yellowbellies" then 90 per cent of this nation's population must look like they had acute cases of yellow jaundice.

Oh my, oh, my, how the lawyers has fallen according to Tad. I don't know what shyster means but according to the color of Tad's other remarks I guess it ain't nothing to put in red letters and hang on the office door. As for the poor doctors and dentists, who ever saw a poor sawbones or a tooth-puller. I guess Tad ain't been sick nor had the old bridgework fixed lately if he thinks them fellers of the profession is poor. Now as for the $18 a week clerk I don't think its right for Tad to slam them just because he has got a soft job and don't have to work. Gosh anybody could sell coal in the winter time and as for coaching a football team maybe there's some $18 a week clerks measuring ribbon what could do as well as some people what we have read about, and then they'd be raking down their 10,000 berries every year.

Didja notice how he classed himself with Bill Roper, and Gil Dobie but didn't say nothing about Stagg, Rockne, Bezdek, or Kippke or Zuppke only us other coaches. He said he was willing to be judged by other coaches. Well, I guess "Biff" Jones of the Army, Curly Byrd of Maryland and Coach McLaughry of Brown sized him and his team up alright by the looks of the score sheet. Them boys must be pretty good judges.

As for them football writers on the big papers what has been criticising Tad and who Tad says or rather implies don't know nothing about football and is "yellowbellies, I guess them boys ain't drawing down good jack because they is ignorant of football. Why I bet some of them felers were writing and studying football when Tad was creeping after a football in his rompers. They tell me that to be a football writer you got to know football and study it and I know one football writer what was a All-American linesman and a lot more was college football men too. I guess they ain't yellow either even if Tad does say so.

Its a tough old world anyway if you is winning you gets all the smiles but if you is losing you get all the dirty slaps and kicking don't do no good either. Tad oughta buck up and laugh off them slaps instead of making nasty cracks just because someboby thinks he ain't doing just right. Well I hope the old kid licks Harvard.

I'm sorry Tad didn't lick Princeton but from all accounts his team put up the best game what they have played this season. I don't think I'll go to see the Yale-Harvard game this next Saturday 'cause it don't hold no interest for me. Well so long Ed. Yours as ever,

SUSIE

MANY TEAMS FINISH SEASON ON SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—Two of the east's four unbeaten and untied college football teams will strike their final blows on the gridiron next Saturday, one with prospects of an easy triumph over a foe of long standing, the other with a drive into the west for its first major intersectional battle on foreign ground.

Lafayette, victor in eight straight games, apparently has little to fear from Lehigh, although the embattled Bethlehem, Pa., warriors finally emerged from their long losing streak last Saturday by defeating Rutgers, 14 to 0. But the Nebraska Cornhuskers loom as a formidable threat to New York university's unblemished record, and the Gotham team's forward line is expected to receive its greatest test in the clash of the teams at Lincoln, Neb.

Critics today pointed to the N. Y. U. front row as one of the most powerful in the country. The team's defensive record yields only to that of Notre Dame. Of ten points scored against the Violet eleven, seven resulted from a lone touchdown by West Virginia Wesleyan and three from a drop-kick by Fordham. Six other elevens have been shut out by N. Y. U.

A light schedule of games, toppled by Yale's annual struggle against Harvard at New Haven, will offer only minor opposition for other leaders in the fight for eastern supremacy. Brown and Navy, sharing unbeaten and untied records with Lafayette and N. Y. U., look for comparatively easy games, the Middies having scheduled Loyola as a tune-up tilt for the Army struggle one week hence. The Bruins likewise accept a skirmish with New Hampshire largely as a preparatory contest for their farewell battle on Thanksgiving day against Colgate. Holy Cross, Army, Boston College and Syracuse also have light opposition, facing Boston University, Ursinus, Gettysburg and Niagara, respectively.

Aside from the Yale-Harvard game, the Fordham-Georgetown clash here appeared to offer the only prospect of a hard-fought battle. Although Georgetown is conceded a distinct edge on the basis of its brilliant play against Syracuse and Navy, the metropolitan eleven has taken confidence since its tie with Holy Cross and its success in holding N. Y. U. scoreless for three periods.

Eight major elevens will rest as a result of important games on Thanksgiving day. Pennsylvania and Cornell, Pittsburgh and Penn State, West Virginia and Washington - Jefferson clashing in holiday conflicts, will be idle.

Columbia and Colgate also will not be seen in action until Thursday of next week, when they will oppose Syracuse and Brown, respectively.

EAST LEADS ALL OTHERS IN INTERSECTIONAL GAMES

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—The east maintains an overwhelming lead over all rival sectors in the battle for 1926 intersectional football honors, adding three triumphs to the string Saturday although Notre Dame gave the west no little prestige by beating the Army.

The record shows 27 triumphs for the east in a list of 52 major intersectional contests as compared with only 18 for the middle west and seven for the south.

	East	Mid-west	South	South-west	Tw
East	—	13	14	0	27
Mid-West	3	—	5	0	18
South	3	2	—	2	7
South-West	0	0	1	—	1

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 15.—Terminating a five months' period of inactivity, Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., world's welterweight champion, will return to the ring on Dec. 6 at the Newark armory to square off against Joe Simonich of Butte, Mont., in the feature bout of four ten round matches. Simonich recently scored a knockdown against Mickey Walker during a vigorously fought battle in Philadelphia.

Completion of negotiations for the three supporting fights of the show today paired off Phil McGraw of Detroit and Dick Conlon of Altoona, Pa., lightweights; Benny Bass of Philadelphia and Benny Cross of Newark, featherweights; Monte Munn of Nebraska and Al Reed of Jamaica, N. Y., heavyweights.

NEW HAMPSHIRE WINS ANNUEL N. E. CROSS COUNTRY

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—(AP) — New Hampshire university today won the 14th annual New England intercollegiate cross country run over the five mile Franklin park course with a team total of 55 points. Maine was second with 57, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology third with 88, while Tufts, last year's winner, was fourth with 123.

F. A. Taylor of the University of Maine was the individual winner, coming home in 28 minutes, 45 1-5 seconds, just ahead of Norman L. McClintock, of M. I. T., and Ralph B. Littlefield of New Hampshire, the other medalists.

NO INVESTIGATION OF ARMY-NAVY TICKET SALE

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 15.—(AP)—All ticket numbers and locations for the Army-Navy football game are recorded here, so that it is possible to tell to whom each ticket of the Army's allotment was issued, Major W. A. Copthorne, graduate manager of athletics, said today. He said officials know of no investigation of the ticket allotment.

Junior Tigers Challenge

The Junior Greeneville Tigers challenge any 135 lb. clash team in Norwich for a game to be played at the Greeneville playgrounds on Sunday at 2:30 o'clock. If challenge is accepted answer through this paper.

LAFAYETTE HAS ROLLED UP 295 POINTS AGAINST TEAMS

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Lafayette with 295, replaced Georgetown as the high point scoring team of the east Saturday as two more undefeated elevens fell from the honored ranks. The University of Maine bowed to New Hampshire State for the first defeat of the season. Army, although beaten by Notre Dame, still stands with Brown at the head of contenders for eastern honors. New York University and Lafayette have scored eight straight wins.

The table showing wins and losses, points scored and opponents points, follows:

IMPORTANT GAMES IN BIG TEN ON SATURDAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—(AP)—Upon the shoulders of the Minnesota Gophers, in the view of most followers of western conference football, rests the only considerable chance of averting a tie for title honors.

Minnesota, which lost to Michigan, early in the season, meets again next Saturday the Wolverines, who breasted by a single point last week the barrier to their championship hopes interposed by Ohio State.

Northwestern, which stands with Michigan at the top of the "Big Ten" heap, meets Iowa, and a defeat for the Wildcats would be regarded as a distinct upset.

Iowa's entertainment of Northwestern was viewed by the latter as a game which must be won, for the Wildcats are at the threshold of their first conference championship.

For the first time this season, every big ten team will be in action Saturday against a conference foe. Wisconsin meets Chicago, Indiana battles Purdue, and Ohio state engages Illinois.

WINDHAM INVITED TO PLAY HERE THANKSGIVING

An invitation has been extended by the Norwich Free Academy football team to the Windham team to play here on Thanksgiving day. It is sincerely hoped that Windham will accept the invitation as a game between these two teams would be equal to an Academy-Bulkeley game and would go a long way in deciding the mythical footbal liitle of eastern Connecticut.

Windham for a number of years has had one of the best high school teams in Connecticut and although the Academy has not been on a Windham schedule in a number of years there has always been the contention that N. F. A. might have been Windham. There is always keen rivalry between Windham and Norwich and a game between the two would be one well worth seeing and as a post-season game would not figure in the year's record.

Windham is expected to accept or decline the invitation some time this week and it is hoped by football fans and supporters of both teams that Windham can see her way clear to accept the invitation.

MARATHON DISTANCE TO REMAIN AT 26 MILES

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 15—(AP)—The official distance for the marathon run will remain 26 miles, 385 yards, in spite of the discovery that the ancient Greek athlete, upon whose performance the classic event is based, covered only a fraction over 22 3-4 miles in carrying word of the battle of Marathon to Athens.

A proposal to adopt the shorter distance, for the sake of tradition, was rejected today by the Amateur Athletic union's convention because the longer route is still fixed as the official Olympic marathon distance.

"MIKE" WILSON LEADS SCORERS IN EAST

CONGRESSMAN COMPLAINS OF HIGH PRICE OF FOOTBALL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Gate prices for the annual Army-Navy football classic are causing some complaint, but the unprecedented demand for seats continues just the same.

One of the protests came from a member of congress, who objected to Secretary Wilbur that the $10 and $15 scale fixed by local authorities in Chicago, where the game is to be played, is beyond the means of the ordinary football fan.

The sale of the big block of tickets allotted to Chicago authorities is regarded by the war and navy departments as none of their affairs, however.

Neither department has any tickets to sell. The governmental quota has been allotted as usual to graduates of the two academies and to public officials, who get limited quotas at $2.50 and $3.50. The pressure exercised by the friends of the fortunate has been usually heavy this year, and the seats available from that source have been snapped up long ago.

Officials here have received no complaints thus far regarding the activities of speculators.

Drawing on his Pacific coast experiences, Secretary Wilbur said he saw nothing wrong in charging $10 to see the Army-Navy game when they "charge as much as $5 to see a Stanford-California game."

ALEX PIRIE ELECTED HEAD OF PROFESSIONAL GOLFERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—The Professional Golfers' association today elected a new president, awarded its 1927 championship to the south for the first time in the history of the organization, and discussed steps of defense against an impending invasion of British stars next July.

After delegates from 32 districts had voted to stage the title fixture next fall at the Cedar Crest Country club of Dallas, Texas., Alex Pirie of Chicago, was elected to succeed George Sargent of Columbus, O., as head of the association. Sargent's retirement after six years as president was accompanied by presentation to him of a platinum watch.

OHIO STATE REPLACES HARVARD ON TIGER SLATE

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 15—(AP)—Ohio state replaced Harvard on the Princeton football schedule for next fall, it became known tonight, when the board of athletic control announced the dates of the season's games. Cornell, with whom Princeton signed a three year contract, supplanted Navy and William and Mary was substituted for Swarthmore.

The schedule follows:

October 2, Amherst; 8, Lehigh; 15, Washington & Lee; 22, Cornell; 29 William & Mary; November 5, Ohio State; 12, Yale. All the games will be played at Princeton with the exception of the Yale contest, which is scheduled for New Haven.

YALE-HARVARD BOAT RACE ON THAMES ON FRIDAY JUNE 24TH

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 15.—(AP)—The Yale--Harvard race at New London, June 24, the spring regatta at Derby, May 7, with triangular races between Yale, Pennsylvania and Columbia, and the Yale-Princeton-Cornell triangular meet at Princeton, May 21 are high spots in the schedule for Yale crews next spring, announced tonight by Acting Manager Spitzer.

While arrangements have been made for a meeting between the 150-pound crews of Harvard, Princeton and Yale at Princeton on May 21, it is not known yet whether Harvard will with-draw or not, rumors having it that the Crimson will not meet the Tiger on the water. In the event of Harvard's withdrawal, the race will be rowed by Yale and Princeton.

The complete schedule follows:

May 7—Yale-Columbia-Pennsylvania varsity, junior varsity and freshmen at Derby.

May 21 — Yale-Princeton-Cornell varsity, junior varsity and freshmen at Princeton.

June 24.—Yale and Harvard varsity, junior varsity and freshmen at New London.

The annual spring regatta on May 7, "Derby day," was sanctioned by President James Rowland Angell only after the student body, in a referendum, had given to the student council full authority to supervise the affair to the extent, if necessary, of suspending from the university any student convicted of infraction of its rules.

Because of the "ungentlemanly conduct" of some students at the 1926 Derby day, it was only with the evidence of good faith given by the referendum that university authorities would allow the event next spring.

FINNEGAN GETS VERDICT OVER CHICK SUGGS

BOSTON, Nov. 15— (AP) —Dick (Honeyboy) Finnegan of Dorchester won the decision over Chick Suggs of New Bedford tonight in a 10 round contest billed as a battle for the world's featherweight champion. Finnegan carried seven of the rounds and Suggs two, while in one honors were divided.

The bout was fast from start to finish, both men boxing cleverly and avoiding clinches. Suggs fought a game battle, but Finnegan was too strong for the negro featherweight in the fourth and seventh rounds Suggs outpointed his opponent, and the second saw little to choose between them, but all the other rounds went to the Dorchester boy.

From the seventh round on the New Bedford boxer was weakening visibly, but he fought gallantly and Finnegan was unable to place a finishing blow. Finnegan weighed 125 3-4 pounds and Suggs 124 pounds.

The bout attracted a crowd of 14,000 to the recently enlarged Boston arena, the largest attendance on record for an indoor sports even in this city.

The Massachusetts Boxing commission authorized the promoters to announce the bout as for the world's featherweight championship and Finnegan and Suggs battled for the crown recently relinquished by Louis (Kid) Kaplan, who outgrew the class. Finnegan, it was said tonight, will be recognized by the commission as the new champion in the class.

Jewett City Swamps Nutmegs.

Jewett City won to the tune of 20 to 0 in a game played Sunday at Ashland park before a crowd estimated at 800.

The Jewett City club showed a brilliant open game and a sturdy defense when the Nutmegs were trying not to be whitewashed. The Jewett City backfield played a very hard game.

First of the prominent sectional bowling tournaments of the season will be that of the Mid-West Bowling association, which is to get under way in Sioux City the latter part of November.

WILLIAMS HAS SCORED 72 POINTS FOR AGGIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 15.—Arthur V. "Pop" Williams, Connecticut Aggies' husky fullback should be ranked at third place with Wilson of the Army, each with 72 points, in the race for individual scoring honors among the football stars of the country, Press reports this morning gave Williams credit for only eight touchdowns, which gives him a tie for eleventh place with Kitteridge of Holy Cross, each with a total of 48 points.

Williams, though playing his first season of varsity football at Storrs, has crossed opponent's goal lines twelve times to date, and Connecticut followers are looking for him to boost his total in the final game with Rensselaer at Storrs next Saturday.

In running his touchdowns to twelve in number, Williams crossed Wesleyan's goal line once, Trinity's four times, Cooper Union's three times, and Rhode Island's four times. In his scoring jaunts, Williams has given exhibitions of open field running that have not been surpassed here in a long time, and old time followers of Aggie football are already rating Williams as the best backfield man to ever wear a Connecticut uniform. Williams is big, weighing 205 pounds, yet is as fast as any man on the squad. He is adept at sidestepping, straight-arming and in the use of other tricks that make an open field runner. Against Rensselaer, Williams will be given every opportunity to add to his touchdown total in the hopes that he will rank among the highest scorers for the season.

Coach Dole will take his second eleven to New London tomorrow, where the Coast Guard academy eleven will be played. In practice today, Dole used Schildgren and Aschenback, ends; Gillette and Dawson, tackles; Gilman and Colacurcio guards; Giessler, center; Krayeskie quarterback; Smith and Powers, halfbacks, and Bergren, fullback. This is the eleven that will probably start against the sailors. Light work only was held for the varsity backs this afternoon, and the linemen were given a day off.

JONES HAPPY AS HIS REGULARS RETURN TO TEAM

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 15—(AP)—The heart of "Tad" Jones was light this afternoon when every Yale regular except Bruce Caldwell who has a broken ankle, reported for practice in preparation for the Harvard game next Saturday.

The varsity was kept busy for only about 40 minutes, most of which was devoted to setting-up exercises to take out any kinks left by the hard work of the Princeton game. Then came a short signal drill and practice in running back kick-offs.

While it was semi-officially announced at Cambridge last week that Harvard had 1,500 tickets for the Yale game on hand and that the "personal use" regulation would be waived for this year, the Yale Athletic association insists on a rigid application of the regulation according to an announcement tonight by H. F. Woodcock, general manager of the association.

Yale has no tickets whatever, Mr. Woodcock said, and has many applications yet to be filled on possible returns from those already allotted. It is not expected, he said, that Yale will be able to get any more tickets before the game.

WESTERLY WINS FROM GREENEVILLE TIGERS

Sunday at the J. B. Martin field the Greeneville Tigers, football champions of Norwich, lost a hard-fought and bitterly contested game to the Westerly Majestics, 7 to 0. A forward pass followed by a dash of 20 yards for a touchdown spelled defeat for the local team.

The Tigers wish to challenge any team in Norwich for a game, to be played Sunday at the J. B. Martin ground.

M'TIGUE KNOCKS OUT VIDABECK IN THIRD ROUND

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 181 N Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

HINT MAN IN UNIFORM FIGURES IN NEW LONDON NON-SUPPORT CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15—Foster Samburn, a young man with a wife and infant a few months old, was in the police court this morning charged with non-support. He admitted that he was properly accused (so, in pleading guilty. He worked for the Sea Sled company at West Mystic, but left there and went to Bath, Me., where he was arrested and held for the New London police. The expense of getting him back to New London was more than $43. This he will have to pay, for he was ordered committed to the county jail for a period of three months unless he contributes $10 a week to the support of his wife and child and gives a bond of $250 to the probation officer to fulfil his obligation. He gave the bond, and will, it is understood, take his wife and child to Maine. The police declare the fault is not all on the shoulders of Samburn, and say there is a man in uniform in the case. Anyway Samburn is blamed for the situation he has created and he must pay the penalty.

John McGarry and Morris O. Heron had some trouble over a line fence that separated their properties, some months ago. They went into court over the matter, for a breach of the peace was created by the things that were said and done. Now they have allowed reason to assert itself and have come to terms, so the complaint was nolled today.

Lauranton D. Avery is a good-natured youth and one who is obliging. Saturday, when the Bulkeley football eleven went to Norwich, Avery conveyed them there in a truck which he operates. Returning the lights on his vehicle failed before he got to the garage in New London and he was over-hauled by Officer Graham for operating a motor vehicle without having lights in use. Avery explained that he supposed he had the lights all right as he prepared them before he started for this city, but he admitted that he was mistaken in that. The error was a natural one so the police court today suspended judgment.

Pat Kirby was fined $5 for intoxication.

John Teevens, operator of a Maytag truck, drove his vehicle into another auto, at Hamilton and Howard streets, Saturday. The damage was considerable, but there was good luck that it was not greater. Today Teevens was fined $10 because he could not find his registration card in the machine when he was taken into custody. The registration was there nevertheless and was found after the session of the court.

Girolomo Giri has a thirst for wine. That gets him into frequent trouble. Sunday night the police were sent for by the daughter of Giri because he was threatening to do various wicked and disastrous things. When Giri was arrested he declared that the trouble was caused by his daughter Virginia selling booze. The girl denied this and attributed the trouble to the fact that her father was intoxicated and because he struck the girl's grandmother. This is not the first time Giri has been complained against for the same offense. He was fined $20 today.

Half a dozen traffic ordinance violators were in court today for leaving cars in restricted places in the public highways. They were reprimanded and cautioned against offending again.

A complaint against Eric Neidham charging molestation of young girls was not heard today as the court desired testimony that could not be obtained today. The case will be heard Tuesday.

Half a dozen drunks were arraigned but they drew suspended judgments.

MONTVILLE DRIVER A PATIENT IN LAWRENCE HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15—Arthur Corman, of Montville, suffered a fractured leg yesterday afternoon when the automobile he was driving crashed through a fence on the Hartford turnpike. He is now a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital. Corman was driving his automobile at a fair rate of speed on the turnpike when he suddenly lost control of the steering wheel, presumably because of the mechanism becoming disabled. The auto leaped across the highway and before Corman could bring the auto to a stop it plunged through a heavy fence. A passing autoist brought Corman to New London and then conveyed him to the hospital.

Joseph R. Sieberg, of the Shetucket Coal and Lumber company, Norwich, today caused a mechanics lien to be levied against Frederick C. Dann, Jr., this city. The lien, which is for $778 and represents material furnished for the construction of a house on Avery court, was filed for record at the office of the city clerk this morning.

Mrs. Lewis Crandall, 258 Hempstead street, was operated upon this morning at Home Memorial hospital for appendicitis. Mrs. Crandall is the wife of the clerk of the court of common pleas court.

Patrolman Patrick Sheehan, who contracted a severe cold a week ago has developed pneumonia and his condition today is reported as being critical at his home, Crystal avenue.

A local fruit and produce firm which was put out of business several weeks ago because of financial troubles, is to resume business shortly for it became known today that the business will be conducted in the name of Ida Scher, wife of Abraham Scher, senior member of the former firm of Scher and Kosakow.

Mrs. Nancy Rose, of Westerly; Master Rockwell Wheeler, Niantic and Mrs. Theodore Russell and infant son, 25 Prospect street, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

George C. Williams, 66, died Sunday night at his home, 584 Montauk avenue. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Joseph R. Hammond and Mrs. Ellen Getchell and by a niece, Mrs. Nellie Bunham. He had long been in ill health and for many months had been confined to his home. Mr. Williams was the son of the late George Williams, former mayor of New London and for many years proprietor of a baking industry when that establishment was located, corner of Golden and Green streets.

MAYOR AND COUNCILOR MAKE MEETING SNAPPY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15—The city council met this evening and was in session half an hour. Mayor Fox and Councilor May had a dispute that was interesting to the members and the small gallery that listened to what was said. Mr. May called attention to some previous matters that he had suggested and expressed pleasure because they had been adopted by the council. He said he considered them as in the line of progress. He had some other matters for consideration this evening and stated them in a written paper which he read. He asked that white lines be placed to designate the crossing places for school children in front of the several schools and sought the purchase of land at Main street and Crystal avenue, saying that the matter had already been before the council without anything having been accomplished. He asked that the matter be taken up again and pressed to a consummation. New London had school buildings and a school system that was the pride of all citizens, he stated, but he believed it was the duty of the city to protect in greater degree the children who went to and from the schools. He asked that the superintendent of schools designate teachers to be stationed at the crossing that they may enforce the use of the crossings between the white lines drawn.

Mayor Fox informed the councilor that the city manager had the matter of the acquisition of land at Crystal avenue and Main street under consideration and said that he (the mayor) had been considering the subject also and that as the lease that was held now is about to expire, an effort would be made to perfect the arrangements the city desired to make and that the land would be purchased if that could be done at a reasonable price. Councilor Streeter represented that he had understood that the lease had expired, but the mayor replied that it was about to expire. (As a matter of fact the land desired by the city has been purchased by Mrs. Lincoln and the lease of the property that has existed has been extended for a considerable term, so that the city cannot get the land unless it wants to buy the existing lease).

Councilor May replied to the mayor by saying that if the matter was under consideration he was not aware of it. He insisted that all matters in which the city is interested should be brought to the council. He said he did not want anything done under cover, if it was so done.

The mayor resented the implication that anything was being done under cover. He pointed out that Councilor May had brought up the matter of the removal of the Coast Guard academy from New London, and said that more could be accomplished by proceeding quietly than by mere noise. He said that sometimes it was judicious that publicity should not be given to matters that are in course of consummation.

Mr. May attempted to reply to this statement but the mayor informed him that debate was needless. Mr. May replied hotly that he was not to be suppressed in that way—on the pretext of "needless debate". He said he did not propose to be muzzled. He was elected to look after the interests of the citizens and he proposed to debate when there appeared to him to be reason for debate.

Mayor Fox characterized the talk by the councilor as "idle talk".

That brought the councilor to his feet again and he claimed a point of order and demanded to be heard.

The mayor said the councilor had not stated his point of order and said the matter had been referred to the committee on public safety, as requested. He added that there was no necessity to advertise the matter.

That did not suppress the councilor and he talked farther and pounded his desk to emphasize what he said. The matter ended there.

Councilor Streeter asked what had been done in the matter of Bank street widening. He said merchants on that street were anxious that the matter be disposed of. The street had been made a one-way thoroughfare and then that order had been changed. He expressed the opinion that if the building line phase of the matter were removed and no attempt was made to narrow the sidewalks, more space would be supplied for the street proper, an arrangement might be reached that would be entirely satisfactory. The city manager said the matter was now where it was left some months ago—in statu quo. He said the matter could be taken up in committee and he believed an arrangement could be made that would meet with general approval. It was referred to the public works committee.

Some 15 permits for construction of houses and garages were granted by the council.

WM. GUNN, JR., RESIGNS FROM PLANNING BOARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 15.—William Gunn, Jr., this evening sent his resignation to the council retiring from the planning board and from the board of relief. The resignations were accepted, after Councilor James A. May had spoken in laudatory terms of the faithful srevice Mr. Gunn had rendered the city.

The lease of the ferry to Messrs. Crandall and Sheehan is about to expire, and to effect another lease the city council this evening considered the matter. When the lease was offered to biddera this week but one offer to take it was received. That came from Messrs. Crandall and Sheehan. It will cost the city $1,000 more during the ensuing year than the ferry cost in the year now expiring. The matter was considered in chambers by the council and the selectmen of Groton this evening after the council adjourned. Groton pays 25 per cent of the expense and New London pays 75 per cent.

Herbert Knox of New York is to be in this city on the evening of the 18th, to tell all who desire to learn something about the operation of the zoning system in other cities. He will meet the planning board and the city council members in session and explain to them the system in question.

Patrolman George Labous was unable to perform patrol duty tonight, being confined to his home, Ashcraft road extension as a result of a severe cold.

Officials of the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company made complaint to the police this afternoon that employes of the plant had been annoyed frequently of late because of youths passing the building between 3 and 4 o'clock, on their way home from school, apply obscene language to the workmen there. Patrolman Augustus Kay was sent to the plant this afternoon and was there when the offending youths arrived and had opportunity to listen to their vile talk. The officer rounded up the youths and warned them that any future complaints from the press company management would result in the boys being arrested and prosecuted.

W. H. Waterman, 965 Manton avenue, Providence, R. I., a salesman, drove his automobile to State street this afternoon and parked it alongside the curb while he attended to soliciting orders. While Waterman was in a nearby store some one visited the auto and stole Waterman's sample case, containing his order book and a considerable quantity of sample seeds. Patrolman Elwood Bailey was assigned to investigate the complaint, but he was unable to obtain any trace of the thief.

Stephen Welowski of East Lyme, who reported to the police Sunday night that his automobile had been stolen, recovered it this morning. The car was found abandoned in Groton, the thief having left the automobile at the approach to the military highway near the railroad overpass. It is believed that the automobile was stolen by sailors, who, when they concluded their ride, left the auto where it was found. The police received a telephone message from a man who refused to give his name, that the auto was parked in Groton and Sergeant Nelson Smith went to the borough and drove the car to New London where it was turned over to Welowski.

It has developed that a masher has been employing his talents of late on Franklin street, and although no complaint has been made to the police regarding the actions of the man, it is not likely that he will interfere with women again right away, or at least in that section of the city he has operated. A few nights ago and after having parked his auto, a sedan, on Franklin street, near Home street, the fellow interfered with a married woman and while attempting to induce her to enter the auto, her husband, for whom the woman was waiting, appeared. When he heard his wife's story, he entered the automobile and administered a severe thrashing to the offender. A night or two before the man is alleged to have chased a Franklin street girl, who was on her way to her home as early as 8:30.

George W. Stonton, 73, formerly of West Mystic, died Sunday at Home Memorial hospital, where he had been a patient but a few days.

A week ago today, Mrs. C. W. Francis, 239 Howard street, made complaint to the police that her home had been entered by a thief and that Mrs. E. W. Gallup, one of the occupants of an apartment there, had lost a large amount of jewelery. The plunder obtained by the crook consisted principally of a gold chain and locket, with a diamond and a pearl on each side of the locket; a plain gold necklace, a diamond ring, birthstone ring, with a pearl on either side of the garnet setting; opal ring, ring with lavendar stone, signet ring, with initials, "C. B. G." and an emerald ring, set with pearls and bearing the inscription, "H. E. to M."

The police made an investigation, but did not succeed in finding any clue. The only thing that they did find was that the crook used a skeleton key to enter the apartment, or else that the door was left unlocked, for there were no signs of the apartment having been forced.

Broadway Theater

What a delight it was to sit and see and hear the splendid Keith-Albee stage offering and photoplay.

Starting with Billy and Ethel in Antics on the Ladder, the bill ran as smoothly and was as entertaining as one could hope for. The opening act is very interesting and clever.

Hazel Bond and Ray Leon have cemented together a harmony singing and comedy act that is very attractive. Their voices blend in perfect harmony and their comedy is also worth while.

Ferguson and Mack in their shafts of song and humor with a leaning more towards the latter. They are sure fire laugh getters.

Recognized as one of America's funniest quartettes, Joe Jenny and his famous Comedy Four, succeeded also in making their mark in this city. While their voices combined make wonderful harmony they also show expert ability as funsters. They were the big hit of the show.

Lockhart and Kiefer in A Skatorial Revue close the bill with a novel offering.

This production, directed by Harry O. Hoyt for Columbia Pictures corporation, has the combined attraction of beauty and setting and costuming, together with vivid character portrayals by an excellent cast. The refusal of a woman to grow old adds a distinctly feminine interest to the story that will appeal to women. In fact this particular angle of the play forms the groundwork of a remarkably entertaining production.

Palace Theater

Kid Boots starring Eddie Cantor makes its last appearance on the screen at the Palace theater today, where this laughing comedy success has sent capacity crowds home with a trail of laughs seldom equalled. Eddie Cantor, ace of musical comedians, enacts his original role, which captivated audiences all over the country. Opposite Cantor is Clara Bow, alluring portrayer of flapper characterizations who triumphs in Mantrap, a photoplay coming to the Palace soon. On Wednesday and Thursday another attractive double feature program will be presented, featuring the Sixth Commandment. (Thou shalt not kill) starring William Faversham, one of the greatest of dramatic stars. A picture that entertains, that has no end of entertaining qualities, indeed but which at the same time teaches a highly moral lesson without preaching.

Lucrezia Bori

Lucrezia Bori who comes to the New London state armory tonight to open the annual concert series sponsored by Connecticut college came to the Metropolitan Opera company in 1918. Since that time she has become the lyric soprano upon whom the chief responsibility has rested for the creation of new roles, the one singer who could be relied upon always, and the most popular with the regular opera patrons. Higher tribute to a singers art never has and never can be paid.

There are still some good seats for the late purchaser who would enjoy hearing one of the world's greatest singers in the following program.

Breed Theatre

Rex Ingram's well remembered classic, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," one of the greatest films ever produced by the industry, has returned in triumph in response to a flood of requests from million's all over the country. This picture, unsurpassed as an artistic record of its time, is the film that brought the late Rudolph Valentino to fame. Valentino plays opposite Alice Terry in this picture, and in it does some of the best work he ever contributed to the screen.

"The Four Horsemen," which opened its local engagement at the Breed Theatre Sunday, will be shown again today and Wednesday, twice daily at 2:30 and 8:00.

"Men of Purpose" Coming

Beginning Thursday and continuing for three days with matinees and evening performances each day "Men of Purpose," the official Allied government motion picture depicting the complete picturization of the World war, will be shown at the Breed theatre by Post No. 594, Veterans of Foreign Wars. No cardboard or papier mache sets were constructed to form the backgrounds for this thrilling story, nor the use of any grease paint, or stars of screen fame. Modern artists must of necessity call frequently upon their imagination when they endeavor to paint scenes of the Revolutionary war. But students of the present and the future will be able to turn to "Men of Purpose" and there learn the truth concerning the World war that will inspire them infinitely more than we of modern times have been inspired by reading of the printed word concerning important episodes of the world's history.

It is a presentation to which the ex-service men's organizations most fittingly sponsor. There is no goal which is nearer their hearts than world peace. Every school child, and every adult who sees "Men of Purpose" will be a new recruit to the cause of outlawry of war.

Not only are our own men shown in real action amid the wheat fields of Chateau Thierry, Belleau Woods, and in the tremendous drives of St. Mihiel and the Argonne Forest, but remarkable scenes of the English, Belgians, French, Italians, Serbians, Russians and Roumanians are depicted carrying on, amid indescribable conditions in their endeavors to drive back the murderous gray-green tide; and then to complete the story the Germans, Austrians, Bulgarians and Turks are shown thrusting savagely at the Allies. All the scenes that have been assembled into this huge production, have been secured from the respective countries that were at war, and are all as taken by the photographic sections that were attached to each country's forces during the four years of terror. "Men of Purpose" is something far more than a screen feature, nothing like it was ever presented before, and nothing like it will ever be attempted again. The entertainment value is splendid, and the educational value immense.

MYSTIC

George W. Stanton, 78, died at Home Memorial hospital Sunday morning, having been in the hospital since Thursday, when he was taken from his home in Stanton Lane, Mystic, having fallen down stairs and received serious injury. Mr. Stanton was born in the town of Stonington, the son of Charles and Eunice Packer Stanton. He was of a quiet disposition, always preferring to be at home and a man who made and kept friends. He is survived by two sisters, Miss Hannah C. Stanton and Miss Mary L. Stanton, and by a niece, Miss Georgia Rickter, of Plainfield, N. J.

The funeral of Miss Bridget Sheehan was held from the home of her cousin, Walter D. Sheehan, Saturday morning at 8:30. The high mass of requiem at St. Patrick's church at 9 was sung by Rev. Thomas P. Mooney. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery. Miss Sheehan was a devout member of the church and had numerous friends. She was employed by the late Mrs. Sarah S. Dickinson for more than twenty-years. She leaves three brothers, John of New York, William and James of California.

The Parent-Teacher association of Mystic Acedmy held a largely attended meeting Friday evening, as the fathers received a special invitation to be present and many accepted. The short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Adella B. Gray. Notice was given that Rev. Edward E. Knapp would speak on Alaska Monday evening, Dec. 6th. Mr. Knapp spoke at the first meeting in the fall and so many were anxious to have him give another talk on Alaska that he has consented to do so. The plan has been discussed at previous meetings in regard to having a signal blown on some power whistle whenever there is to be no session of the school. A committee was appointed to arrange for this, if possible. Rev. Louis J. Shepler, the new pastor of the Baptist church spoke on "What the School Expects From the Father." D. M. Bennett's subject was "What the Father Expects From the School." Miss Joanna Burnett, principal, gave the parents a talk on "What the School is Trying to Do for the Pupil." Willard W. Keigwin sang three tenor solos, accompanied by Mrs Keigwin. Refreshments were served by a committee of five members of the association.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—Price movements in today's stock market lacked uniformity, but major activity appeared to be on the upside. Trading was again largely of a professional character with the general public judging from the business of leading commission houses, playing a small part in the day's proceedings. In many instances activity was associated with the prospect of special dividend, earnings or merger developments, the general market apparently marking time pending further light on the trend of winter business.

Marking up of the call money rate from 4 1-2 to 5 per cent, the highest in weeks, reflected the heavy withdrawal of funds in connection with mid-month dividend and interest payments. The weekly federal reserve report on brokers' loans, issued after the market closed, showed a reduction of $27,375,000 in the week ended last Wednesday, practically wiping out the gain of the previous week. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Persistent accumulation of U. S. Steel common was accompanied by Wall street gossip of a series of extra 25 cash dividends next year, the theory being supported by the fact that the corporation had adopted a policy of substantial extra dividend distributions during the period of big war earnings. Steel was bid up 1 1-8 points to 131 1-4 or only 7 1-8 points below the record high, on a turnover of approximately 150,000 shares independent steels held steady.

Bullish sentiment in today's stock market was helped by the raising of the annual dividend on Kennecott from 84 to 88 and the declaration of a 25 extra on the new Dupont common, which was also placed on a $7 annual basis. Kennecott touched 83 1-4, the highest price since 1916, but Dupont showed a net loss of 1-2 at 168 3-8 after having touched 170. General Motors, a large block of which is owned by Dupont, closed 1 1-8 points higher at 147 7-8 although it had sold nearly a point above that figure. Strength and activity of Chrysler and Pierce Arrow was associated with unconfirmed rumors of a possible merger of those two companies.

Establishment of about a score new high records for the year was due largely to the activity of pools. The list included Bayuk Cigars, Reynolds Tobacco, B. Corn Products Refining, Gotham Silk Hosiery (old and new), A. M. Byers, Commercial Solvents B, and Liggett & Myers. Other industrial strong spots included Timken Roller Bearing, American Agricultural Chemical preferred and Pullman. Baldwin Cuba Co. and Warner Pictures were conspicuously heavy.

Rock Island common touched a new record high at 69 1-2 on buying influenced by the belief that dividends will be inaugurated next month. Other rails held firm in quiet trading.

Commodity markets were irregular. Active wheat futures advanced slightly, with professional traders still pushed over domestic and European crop prospects. Cotton closed 2 points higher to 6 points lower. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices held steady.

$4,900 IN SIGHT FOR COUNTY FAIR FINANCING

Representative men and women from a number of New London county towns met Monday evening at the town hall in this city in conference with the ways and means committee appointed recently by the New London County Agricultural society. The committee was named for the purpose of submitting some definite plan to the agricultural society for the purpose of raising funds necessary to pay the outstanding bills against the society.

The agricultural society is facing a financial crisis and the committee was named for the purpose of formulating some plan to put the society back on a sound financial basis and to save the county fair from passing out of existance.

Charles D. Foster presided at the conference Monday evening and a number of those present expressed their views as to how the society might raise the necessary money.

The committee has already found purchasers for the remaining unsold bonds issued by the society some time ago. The sale of these bonds will net $3,100. The committee has already secured four financially responsible men to endorse a note for $2,800 which with the $2,100 from the sale of the bonds will total $4,900. Mr. Foster said Monday night that if $5,000 more is raised by new life memberships the total will be sufficient to wipe out all present indebtedness with the exception of a first mortgage amounting to $3,500 and a proposed second mortgage of $2,800. Two hundred life memberships secured in New London county will net the $5,000.

This is the plan the committee will submit to the adjourned meeting of the fair society to be held at the town hall on the evening of November 23rd. If the meeting accepts the committee plan steps will then be taken to organize a membership campaign in order to secure the remaining $5,000 needed.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hetherington of Hartford, returning from a vacation motor trip through New England and Canada, visited Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Hetherington at the parsonage in East Killingly recently.

AMERICAN LEGION COMMITTEE APPRECIATES ARMISTICE DAY HELP

The general committee of the American Legion, under whose direction and management the plans for the Armistice day celebration were made and carried out, gave expression in a statement issued Monday night of its appreciation to the many whose co-operation made the celebration such a notable success.

The statement follows:

"Armistice day has passed and it is hoped that the record which has been left upon the pages of the history of our native town has been one of constructive achievement for the betterment of the community as a whole; perhaps the page of history will be illuminated by a composite picture of all the individuals and all of the organizations whose contributions were willingly offered and whose united efforts insured the measure of success that it is generally conceded was attained in the occasion.

"The general committee of the American Legion is glad to take this opportunity to acknowledge the debt it owes to all of those, both individuals and organizations of all sorts who, either in parading or in decorating their buildings or in being appreciative spectators, added in any manner in making the occasion a united community effort crowned by a great ultimate success. The committee feels that the happenings on November 11th, 1924, have demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt that the different interests in Norwich, whether racial, religious or fraternal, can be united to further some great community project and the American Legion is proud of the fact that through the leadership of its organization such a desirable result has been accomplished.

"The general committee is aware that it is impossible to adequately indicate its proper appreciation for all the support which it received from all directions in furthering its efforts to carry its plans to a successful conclusion but it is glad to take advantage of this opportunity to most heartily acknowledge its indebtedness for and appreciation of the active and constructive co-operation offered and given by his excellency, the governor of the state of Connecticut, who, with his military staff, honored us by his presence; the superintendent of the United States Coast Guard academy for willingly allowing the cadets from the Academy with their band to parade; the commanding officer of Fort H. G. Wright for generously sending a battery of United States regular army with the band from that post; the commanding officer of the United States submarine base for the flawless picture of the efficiency of Uncle Sam's forces in the detachment of marines and blue-jackets from that station; the commanding officers of the different units of the Connecticut National Guard from New London, Willimantic and Norwich whose appearance and marching indicated that our state is ready should the call come again; the president and commanding officer of the reserve officess training corps of Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, for their courtesy in allowing their contingent to hold, in Norwich, their first parade away from their base; the commanding officer of the Putnam Phalanx for the "picture in buff and blue," so ably upholding the traditions of their venerable organization; those in authority in the councils of the Boy Scouts of both New London and Norwich for the wonderful showing of this most worthy body of the organized youth and of the two cities; the town and city officials for their consideration and good counsel; the school boards of New London and Norwich for their willingness to so arrange their school sessions as to permit large numbers of the coming generation to participate in or witness the pageant as a chapter in local history; the merchants' bureau of the Norwich chamber of commerce for its co-operative voting to close their places of business at noon on Armistice day; the banks of Norwich for their united action for a noon closing; the representatives of the state police and also the police department and the individual members of the department whose successful efforts so efficiently controlled the traffic congestion, thereby preventing a single accident due to any such conditions; the fire department for its apparatus manned by the members of that department who served with the colors; and the New Haven road for its generous offer of parking space without cost and the ample provision on the special train from New London "where everybody had a seat."

SUES FOR RELIEF ON ERROR CLAIMED IN BOND

The case of Catherine Jeffers against Charles P. McShane, both of New London, in which the plaintiff asks damages of $1,000 and equitable relief from a bond for deed in which an error was alleged to have been made was begun late Monday afternoon in the court of common pleas at New London, before Judge Charles B. Waller. Attorney Thomas E. Troland appears for the plaintiff.

According to the complaint, the defendant in April, 1925, owned land with a building thereon in Connecticut avenue and he placed it in the hands of Harry Wolfe, realtor, for sale at $8,-[illegible].

On April 27, 1925, it is alleged, the plaintiff agreed to purchase the property at that figure, and as par of the purchase price agreed to assume the first mortgage then existing on the property and amounting to $3,450.

It is further alleged that on April 28, the plaintiff paid to the defendant $1,000 on account and at the latter's request signed a bond for deed, which through an error contained a statement that "after payment of $7,500 in cash, the balance of the purchase price, and in addition thereto, the said Catherine Jeffers agrees to assume mortgages existing in the property totalling $3,450."

Thereafter, it is alleged, upon discovering the error, the plaintiff called said matter to the attention of the defendant who thereupon insisted that the purchase price was $11,950 and not $8,500 as agreed.

The complaint also states that by reason of disagreement of the parties over terms of sale the contract was not completed, but the defendant retained the $1,000 deposited by the plaintiff and has continued to retain the same to date, although requested to return it by the plaintiff. The allegations are that at the time of the agreement, the plaintiff was ready, able and willing to purchase the property at $8,500.

The plaintiff seeks equitable relief by having the bond for deed, signed by the plaintiff and defendant, corrected to state the true intentions of the parties. The plaintiff also seeks $1,000 damages.

SOME TUBERCULOSIS DON'TS FOR PUBLIC WELFARE

Some tuberculosis "Don'ts", which have an application in regard to the public welfare, are issued as follows by the public health nursing committee:

Don't think that because you are a business man you cannot afford time to be interested in health work. You can't afford not to!

Don't think that the money spent by the state and counties in caring for financially unfortunate tuberculosis patients is wasted. It is not. It is an investment paying in dividends of lives saved and health protected.

Don't think that you have no personal interest in anti-tuberculosis work. You have.

Don't think that pure milk and child welfare campaigns are fads, or that they have no influence in the reduction of morality from tuberculosis. They are of very great importance.

Don't think that medical inspection of schools and school nursing are not of value to the community and to the efficiency of future generations. They are.

Don't think that healthy labor, housing and living conditions are not necessary to prevent tuberculosis. They are.

Don't think that your community is really up to date and progressive if it is not providing machinery to prevent tuberculosis, infant mortality and venereal diseases. It is not.

Don't think that the prevention of tuberculosis is up to the local and state boards of health entirely. The state tuberculosis association is a necessity.

Don't think that tuberculosis cannot be eliminated from human society. It can and will be.

A tuberculosis clinic under the supervision of the state sanatorium is held every Tuesday afternoon at No. 9 Washington street. All cases which can not afford a specialist's fee are given free examination at this clinic.

CITY COURT GIVES FINES IN GAMBLING CASES

A score of cases provided a busy session of the city court Monday morning. Following a plea of guilty, Spare Bekris, 24, was fined $25 and costs on a charge of conducting a gambling house. He was arrested at his pool room at No. 478 1-2 North Main street, in a raid pulled off by Sergt. Matthew Delaney and Officer Coburn. Besides being fined, Bekris had his license to conduct a pool room taken from him by Chief George Linton. Stanley Krusak, 28, and Charley Bias, 39, were fined $20 and costs on charge of being frequentors of the place.

Charles Lavarge was fined $25 and costs on a charge of conducting a gambling house at his store in Norwich Town. He was arrested Saturday night by state police and local officers.

James Donnelly, 58, William Little, 42, Casper Vance, 21 and Edward Slattery, 56, frequentors of the place, were each fined $5 and costs. Bernard Fritz, 43, who was arrested in the raid, was discharged. It was found that he had entered the store a few minutes ahead of the raiding party, to purchase a package of cigarettes.

Four auto drivers were assessed the usual $5 for violating the parking rules. A 17 year old Westerly boy who threw an empty pint bottle into the street on North Main street near Pulaski hall, from an automobile, was fined $5 and costs.

Two men paid fines for intoxication and two others had to go to jail to work out their fines for intoxication.

WOMAN VOTERS LEAGUE TO HOLD COUNTY MEETING

The New London County League of Women Voters will hold an all-day session in New London Wednesday. The business meeting will be held at the Mohican hotel at 11.45 with luncheon following.

At 1.45 the league will adjourn to the parish house of the Second Congregational church where, through the courtesy of the League of Nations Non-Partisan association, the picture Hell and the Way Out will be shown without charge.

Prof. Wallace Gallup of Connecticut college will give an address concerning the picture and will be prepared to answer questions. It is earnestly hoped that as many as can will avail themselves of the opportunity to see this great picture and learn something of the object of the league of nations. This film is the first one in this country to attempt to dramatize the horrors of war in conjunction with the animated version of the inner workings of the council, the assembly and the secretariat of the league, which were set up following the great war as a peace machinery to assure settlement of international disputes without resort to arms.

RESERVES DECISION IN SUIT BY PLUMBER

Judge Charles B. Waller took the papers and reserved decision in the damage suit brought by John H. Newman, New London plumbing and heating contractor, against Lewis J. Phillips and his wife, Marion, in the court of common pleas at New London Monday. Attorney Thomas E. Troland was counsel for the plaintiff and Attorney Clayton B. Smith represented the defendant.

The plaintiff alleges that he began work of installing heating and plumbing in the defendants' Montauk avenue home on Oct. 19, 1925, and that the work was completed March 15, 1926. He alleges that he agreed to allow the defendants to furnish the materials and that any extra he would furnish but the defendant should pay for them just what he paid, his only profit being that on the labor of the men. He claimed that the agreement was that the services of the men should be paid for at $12 a day a man, $8 of which went to the men and the other $4 to the plaintiff.

COLCHESTER MACHINE WENT THROUGH TURNPIKE FENCE

Arthur Korman of Colchester is a patient at a hospital in New London suffering with a fracture of the right leg as the result of his car leaving the highway on the Hartford turnpike near the New London reservoir Sunday morning. The patient was reported to be quite comfortable yesterday.

According to Herman Hindham of South Manchester, the Korman car, a light truck, swayed from one side of the road to the other for more than 50 feet before it left the highway and crashed into a fence. Hindham was driving behind the truck and after the accident took Korman to the hospital. State policemen, who investigated believe that the steering gear of the truck became defective, causing the driver to lose control of the car.

DEMURRER OVERRULED IN HIGHWAY DAMAGE PETITION

In a decision handed down here on Monday, Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court overruled the state's demurrer in the suit of Herman Isaac against state of Connecticut in which an application for reassessment of damages is made in the taking of land at the submarine base for the straightening of the curves in the highway at that point.

In his memorandum of decision on respondent's demurrer to the application, Judge Brown says:

In bringing his application to this court for a reassessment of damages for land of which he is mortgagee, and which was taken by the commissioner for trunk line highway purposes, the petitoner relies specifically upon paragraph 37 of chapter 263 of the public acts of 1925 providing "Appeal. Any person, claiming to be aggrieved by the assessment of such special damages or such special benefits by the highway commissioner, may at any time within six months * * * apply to the superior court * * * for a reassessment of such damages or such benefits so far as the same shall affect such applicant," etc.

Upon his demurrer, counsel for the respondent contend in short that since paragraph 35 of the chapter cited, providing for the assessment of damages or benefits and paragraph 36 thereof, providing for the payment of such assessments, refer only to the "land owner," the words "any person," in paragraph 37 can not properly be construed to include this applicant, who is not alleged to be the "owner" but a "mortgagee" of the land in question. Whiting vs. City of New Haven, 45 Conn. 303, is cited as supporting this contention.

As counsel for the applicant point out, however, this decision can not now be regarded as of controlling authority in the light of the statute passed in 1895—in its present form chapter 144 of the public acts of 1919—which provides in such proceedings as this for notice to mortgagees and payment to them according to priority before any payment is made to the owner.

In the absence of other authority upon the question, therefore, it is my conclusion that for the purpose of this demurrer, at least, the words undescored in paragraph 37 of the 1925 act as above quoted must be taken in their ordinary meaning and are so broad enough to warrant the appeal which has been instituted by the application demurred to. The proper protection of the rights of the parties most interested also sustains this interpretation.

The respondent's demurrer is overruled.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING FOR YOUR PUNY CHILD?

For weak, frail, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, cod liver oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it.

But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11½ pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents at Lee & Osgood Co. and all druggists—but be sure and ask for McCoy's—the original and genuine.

Give them to the sickly, frail child for 30 days and if they don't help wonderfully, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

NORWICH TOWN

Because of Rev. Charles H. Ricketts being indisposed, he was unable to keep his appointment at the First Congregational church Sunday morning; he was scheduled to have preached in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, who however, conducted the morning worship at the Greeneville church.

At the Norwich Town church, General Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. substituted for Mr. Ricketts, taking for the subject of his address, "God Searched For a Man to Do His Special Work." The scripture reference was, Saul, Saul, Why Persecutest Thou Me?

Reginald Avery was leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service in the evening when the topic assigned was, How May We Promote Interdenominational Fellowship? I Jn. 1: 3-7; Eph. 4: 1-6. At this meeting five new members were received into the society—Robert Stott, Luther Whaley and Misses Grace Wheeler, Louise Sterry and Marion Buckley. This was followed by the November business meeting of the society, when reports were submitted concerning the interests of the preceding month. The nominating committee read the names of the officers and committees selected to serve the coming year. It is expected that the names will be voted on at the next meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E.

"The Denominational Societies" Romans 10: 15, with reference to 6-21, is the topic for the Congregational mid week service for conference and prayer, Thursday evening. This will be followed by a meeting of the church corporation.

In preparation for a union Thanksgiving service, Thursday, Nov. 25, several clergymen met in conference at a special meeting, one evening recently, in the First Congregational parsonage on Elm avenue. The churches co-operating will include Norwich Town Congregational, Norwich Town Methodist, Grace Episcopal, Yantic, Fitchville, Baptist and Bozrah Congregational. It was decided to hold a religious service Thanksgiving morning at 10:30 o'clock at the First M. E. church, Norwich Town. Rev. Robert B. Day, rector of the Yantic church will deliver the address.

In past years these inspiring services have brought out good sized congregations regardless of creed as they are in every respect open to all. It is expected that the pastors of the visiting churches will each have a part on the program and assist Rev. Albert E. Whitten, the pastor of the entertaining church.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the First M. E. church, received a visit Sunday evening from Ralph H. Marsh who represented the lookout committee of Norwich Christian Endeavor union.

Mr. Marsh conducted the meeting The topic was How May We Promote Interdenominational Fellowship?

Having received invitation to attend the Epworth league mid winter institute, which will be in session this (Tuesday) evening, at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich, it is expected that the Norwich Town Congregational and Methodist Christian Endeavor societies will be represented. The meeting will open at 7:10, with simultaneous classes. (1) Bible school methods (2) stewardship. At 7:55 there will be songs and prayer, followed by a lecture by an inspirational speaker. From 8:50 until adjournment there is to be a standard league social (recreational period).

At the Norwich Town Methodist church Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. Albert E. Whitten preached from Matthew 16: 26, using only the first part of the verse For what is a man profitted, if he shall gain the whole world and lose his soul?

The Norwich Town class will hold a home and farm bureau meeting at the home of Mrs. Arthur Fulton of Huntington avenue, Wednesday, Nov. 17. At this all day session Miss Gladys Stration, New London county demonstrator, will give instructions on inexpensive Christmas ideas. Mrs. William Weaver is the class leader.

A Christmas barrel or box is to be packed the latter part of this week to be sent to Miss Ruth Beebe's school at Athens, Alabama. Those who desire to contribute articles suitable for Christmas gifts for the pupils at Trinity school or for the teacher, Miss Beebe, have been asked to leave such at the home of Miss Beebe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe of Elm avenue, where the box is to be packed. This is in keeping with a custom followed out each year by the Home Missionary society of the Congregational church. Gifts however, are received from any one in the community interested in Miss Beebe's work among the colored people of the south.

Assisted at Y. P. W. Supper

Among the favors appreciated by Richard E. Hourigan post, V. F. W., at the Armistice day supper were the well appointed tables arranged by Miss Helen Fitzgerald and the floral pieces and patriotic forms for the officers tables given by Mrs. Victoria J. Plante.

Comfort For the People.

At the meeting in G. A. H. hall tonight under the auspices of the International Bible Students' association the speaker is to be T. E. Baaker, whose subject will be Comfort For the People.

SCORE OF FISHING BOATS SUNK AT PROVINCETOWN

U. S. S. Morrill, Mothership of the Rum Chasing Fleet, Was Washed High and Dry on Shore—Two Wharves Were Washed Away—Throughout New England the Gale Caused Property Damage, Disrupted Electric Light and Power Lines and Caused Minor Injuries to Individuals—The Storm Covered the Eastern States, Doing the Greatest Damage in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Nov. 16.—(AP)—More than a score of fishing boats were sunk, two wharves were washed away and the U. S. S. Morrill, mothership of the rum chasing fleet, was washed high and dry on the shore during a gale which swept into Provincetown harbor from the south tonight.

The Morrill was at anchor in the harbor when the wind struck shortly after sundown. She dragged her anchor and before her crew could get her underway toward sea the cable broke. Within a few minutes she was drifting broadside in to shore.

She struck the bottom between Higgins lumber wharf and the Pinkert wharf. The wind drove her high and dry about the time the two wharves shapped under the force of the gale and were swept away. There was no loss of life reported and no one was aboard any of the sunken fishing boats.

As suddenly as the wind came it passed away to the north. The waterfront was strewn with wreckage but the town proper suffered little damage. No estimate of the damage done in the harbor could be made tonight.

TREE LANDED ON AUTO OF TWO WESTERLY MEN

HARTFORD, Nov. 16.—(AP)—A large elm tree on the east side of the Berlin turnpike about three miles south of Goodwin park, Hartford, was uprooted by a violent wind and thrown across the highway about 4:15 this afternoon. It landed squarely on an automobile occupied by Charles Litman and Harry Litman, father and son of Westerly, R. I. The car was broken in the middle by the impact but the passengers escaped with injuries to their shoulders, the tree trunk having descended just back of the car seat. Harry Litman, 25, the son, was pinned in the seat by a substantial branch. First aid was given them at a nearby gasoline station, whence, after the traffic obstruction had been removed, they were carried to the Hartford hospital in the automobile of T. C. Wallen of Newington.

Pinned down to the highway by the huge tree, the Litman car and the tree blocked traffic for fully 15 minutes. State highway department trucks were promptly summoned, and workmen released the car by sawing the tree trunk into convenient lengths. By that time, long lines of traffic had formed on either side of the obstruction, and these were directed by State Policeman Watrous.

HAVOC WROUGHT BY THE STORM IN CONNECTICUT

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 16.—(AP)—A gale that attained a velocity of 50 miles an hour, shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon, swept over Connecticut, leaving in its wake property destruction and minor injuries to individuals. Roads and streets were blocked, electric railroad and street car lines put temporarily out of commission, electric light and power lines and telephone circuits damaged and service cut off.

A tree fell onto a moving automobile on the Hartford-Berlin turnpike, part of a large advertising sign damaged a parked car and the roof of a house in Bristol, and from Stamford and Cos Cob come the reports of freight cars which had their roofs blown off by the wind.

Charles and Harry Litman, father and son of Westerly, R. I., escaped with bruised shoulders when a tree trunk broke in the middle of the car in which they were riding. Passersby in Bristol had narrow escapes when eight power wires, short circuited by portions of the advertising sign blown upon them, burst and fell into the street. Ora Doucette of Willimantic was rendered unconscious for three hours by shock from fallen powers.

Steam engines were substituted by the New Haven road for electric locomotives when pantographs were broken on the Knickerbocker Limited, at the time between Greens Farms and Barr road and on train number 96 from New York to New Haven. The overhead wires on the Hell Gate bridge were blown down, and steam locomotives had to be substituted there for electrics. The Shore Liner, following the Knickerbocker Limited, had to be re-routed on track number 1. Both these trains were delayed about two hours, while number 96 was about 35 minutes late.

GALE AND RAIN STORM WIDESPREAD IN THE EAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP)—A southerly gale, accompanied by heavy rainfall, whipped across the eastern states today, leaving in its wake overflowing rivers, damaged buildings and flooded mines, crippling communication lines and wreaking havoc on small craft in rivers and harbors.

One death was directly due to the storm. In Brooklyn a three year old girl was blown off a fire escape and plunged four floors to her death. Several crossing accidents were believed to have been caused by confusion of drivers in the rain and wind.

Probably the damage potential of the greatest harm was done in Pennsylvania and West Virginia, where all rivers were reported overflowing their banks and where railroads, bridges and communication lines suffered heavy damage.

In eastern Pennsylvania water was reported higher than any time since 1904 and coal mines in the Shamokin district were forced to shut down.

As it swept across New Jersey the gale blew down the wall of a new theatre at Asbury Park and capsized a tug aground on a sand bar off Atlantic City. The 14 members of the tug crew were heroically saved by the coast guard.

In Massachusetts the damage was confined principally to broken windows and crippled communication lines. Although the wind and rain came with unusual warmth throughout the east, Boston reported the record high temperature with 72 degrees, breaking a mark for the day that had stood since 1897 by three degrees.

The Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies both reported severe hindrance in their work by the gale. The Western Union said traffic was back to normal in late afternoon, after interruptions caused by wires blown down between New York and Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Washington, D. C. Postal company service was more seriously affected, all wires out of New York westward and into New England being down. Associated Press wires to Atlantic City, Buffalo and Chicago were temporarily affected.

QUEEN MARIE SHOPS IN CHICAGO DEPARTMENT STORE

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Alert American shop girls and saleswomen took Marie, queen of Rumania, into camp today, and before she left a large department store she had bought five fur coats, with others to be sent to her suite for inspection. The sight of the queen mingling in a shoppers' throng developed a crowd of curious persons who heard that Marie was doing her Christmas shopping. And Marie did not look at the price tags on various other articles she selected.

A leather overnight case with enamel fittings caught her eye and it was sent along to her hotel. The overnight case was priced at $700.

Passing through the gift section, Marie suddenly stopped and addressing a salesgirl said:

"I'd like to see that pretty bottle. It would look very pretty in a room." The "pretty bottle" was a carafe of green bronze enamel, and it may find its way into the collection of King Ferdinand.

A visit to a shoe shop was cut short because her majesty had to keep a luncheon appointment. Stopping at the jewelry counter, however, she purchased several gifts, but what they were will remain a Yuletide secret.

At the luncheon, the queen delivered a mild reproach to persons who have suggested that her American trip was planned with commercial motives, or that she is here in the interest of a loan to her government. "It is true, as you say of me," she declared, "that I came to America to 'put Rumania on the map.' If you have liked my face please do not detach it from Rumania. I am here to defend my country."

JEALOUS FARMER ADMITS KILLING TWO PERSONS

SCOTLAND, S. D., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Walter Zwiefel, 24 year old farmer, confessed tonight to Sheriff Koenig to the killing of two persons and the wounding of three others in a shotgun assault near here last night.

Jealousy over division of lands was the motive given for the crime, according to the report of the confession, made public by the sheriff.

Robert Zwiefel, 20 years old, was slain as he sat playing cards at the John Gross home with several others. Mrs. John Gross, 50, and Mrs. Solomon Gross, 30, rushed into the farm house toward the summer kitchen and were met with a double fire of buckshot, one charge killing the former, and seriously wounding the latter. Clarence Zwiefel, 14, and Emanuel Gross, 24, fled from the kitchen to a road and were chased for a quarter of a mile, the shotgun fiend firing at them as they ran, wounding both.

After the crime Zwiefel took poison in an attempt to end his life. He is in a hospital at Parkston where it is believed he will recover. He was captured at his home near Parkston after authorities had sought a maniac in the wholesale assault made at the John Gross farm northeast of here last night.

SIX MINERS TRAPPED IN PENNSYLVANIA MINE

HAZELTON, Pa., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Six miners are trapped in the Tomhicken mine of an old creek bed near the mine breaking away today and flooding the mine. An incessant rain for the past twenty-four hours has caused great damage due to floodings in all anthracite mines in this region.

Rescue crews were immediately put to work and efforts were made to speed up the mine pumps to lower the water levels.

The flood was caused by a new water channel breaking into a creek, overflowing it. The overflow settled into a mine hole on the surface and the mine-hole caved in under the weight of the water which rushed into an upper lift where ten men were working.

Four of the ten got out safely.

Mine officials tonight expressed the belief that five of the men entombed would be able to keep themselves above the water levels.

PREDICTS NEW BALANCE OF POWER IN EUROPE

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Consolidation of the small "secession states" in central Europe, which extreme racial jealousies will force in time, will create a new balance of power in Europe, in the opinion of Pahlhael Semmes, assistant professor of history and politics at Trinity college. Professor Semmes broadcast his views on the "Racial and Economic Issues In Central Europe" tonight over WTIC in a radio dialogue with Professor Edward F. Humphrey, head of the department.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Wholesale milk prices will advance from 8 1-2 to 9 1-2 cents per quart Nov. 21, it was announced here today by the market committee of the Springfield district, New England Milk Producers' association, shortage of production almost acute is the reason given.

MRS. JANE GIBSON TO TESTIFY THURSDAY

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 16—(AP)—Promise of prosecution in the Hall-Mills case to offer Mrs. Jane Gibson as a witness Thursday morning at ten o'clock, today caused an adjournment of the trial until that hour.

Mrs. Gibson, a woman farmer, who raised pigs near the spot where the bodies of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills were found more than four years ago, is expected to testify that she was in the immediate vicinity of the place where the minister and choir-singer were slainand recognised one of the defendants.

Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor, in asking for an adjournment until Thursday, told the court today that he had the assurance of doctors that Mrs. Gibson, sick for ten days in a Jersey City hospital, will be able to give her testimony and undergo a "reasonable cross-examination," on Thursday. The prosecutor also indicated that with Mrs. Gibson's testimony his case will be practically closed. More than seventy-five witnesses have been placed on the stand in the effort of the state to connect Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willis Stevens with the murder of Mrs. Mills.

Over objection of the defense, the state today succeeded in offering two witnesses in an effort to show that detectives working for Mrs. Hall made efforts to suppress testimony. A diary, previously identified as having been written by the slain minister and found in the home of the choir singer after her death, was read to the jury as was a copy of a prayer the Rev. Mr. Hall wrote for Mrs. Mills when she went to a hospital for an operation in 1922.

After documentary evidence admitted was a statement by Henry Stevens, made to Jersey City police officers investigating the double killing. The state foiled by a court ruling in an attempt to have the jury visit the spot where the bodies were found, tried unsuccessfully to have pictures of the scenes projected in the court room.

BAY STATE TO REGULATE AUTO TOURIST CAMPS

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The state department of public health took cognizance today of the ever-increasing number of automobile tourist camps and announced it would recommend to the legislature a bill to require licenses for them to enforce hygienic conditions to prevent the spread of disease.

In stating the need for such legislation, Commissioner George H. Bigelow said today, it is recognized.

"During the last three years the department, through its district health officers and engineers, has visited and revisited more than 100 camps within the state. The majority of these have shown a high degree of willingness to correct sanitary and hygienic offenses when they exist, but as always there are a small number whose cooperation cannot be enlisted. In order that they may be closed down, the bill calls for the licensing of all such camps through co-operation between local and state inspection.

The bill provides that local boards of health shall issue annual permits, subject to revocation or suspension, except for individual or family camps or those operated less than 10 days a year. It provides regulation of the care of food and drinking water. Fines of from $100 to $500 are recommended.

STORY OF YOUTH WHO WAS SENTENCED FOR LARCENY

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Joseph Hall of Edgartown was sent to the Concord reformatory for an indefinite sentence today for larceny, but he carried with him the stubs of two precious football tickets which he said were given him by President Coolidge on the strength of his family connections. Beyond the exhibited stubs, the Boston police have made no effort to check on his story of an audience with the president and concerned themselves only with the presentation of charges of the larceny of goods valued at $1,500 by false pretenses from Boston merchants.

Hall said he was in Washington on Oct. 30 with a girl friend and had no tickets to the Navy-Michigan game. So he went to the white house he said and President Coolidge, remembering members of his family, gave him two tickets, sent a secret service man to Baltimore with him and offered the use of an automobile. Hall said he declined the latter because he had the car which he today admitted stealing. The whits house tickets placed him in a box with Governor Ritchie and a high naval official.

LABOR WELL EMPLOYED DURING OCTOBER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP)—Except for the seasonal restriction in building operations labor in the United States was well employed during October, the labor department's employment service reported today. The department also announced that for the tenth consecutive month its returns showed a higher number of workers employed in selected manufacturing industries and a higher payroll total.

Increases in employment were shown for coal mining, lumbering, textile manufacturing and boot and shoe making, while an enlargement of bituminous coal mining operations particularly was noted as having brought about a shortage of miners.

Agricultural labor demands were being reduced because of completion of harvesting. Metal and steel trades were continuing full scale operations.

...ongs at Funeral of 'Uncle' Joe Cannon

Officials of State and Nation Mingled With Thousands of Townfolks at the Grave.

DANVILLE, Ills., Nov. 16—(AP)—Under the branches of a redhaw tree etched against a gray November sky, the body of Joseph Gurney Cannon was committed to the grave today with a simplicity which belied his crowded half century and more of public service.

In keeping with his own dislike of ostentation, the man who served for more than two scores years in congress, and who held its scepter for almost a decade with a hand of iron, was buried as a private citizen.

Officials of the state and nation mingled at the grave with an outpouring of thousands of his townsfolk. Only a few of them knew him, except in tradition, as the fiery young attorney who chose a public career while Lincoln was aspiring to the white house, but most of them remembered the Cannon of his prime, a figure without parallel in national politics.

Long before the hour set for the funeral St. James' Methodist church overflowed with the throng which converged at Vermillion street and swept down past the Cannon home to the place of worship.

As the pipe organ sounded a funeral march the coffin was carried to the front of the church. The Rev. T. H. Ewing, Cannon's pastor, paid simple eulogy to his memory and said a prayer. A quartet sang Uncle Joe's most loved hymn, "Now We Leave Thy Servant Sleeping."

Behind Miss Helen Cannon and Mrs. Mabel Le Zure, daughters, and other members of the mourning party, sat Vice-President Charles G. Dawes, Governor Len Small and other officials of the state and nation.

At the conclusion of the service the cortege moved on to the cemetery half a mile distant. A marble monolith stood where already were the graves of Mary Reed Cannon, the speaker's wife; a son who died in infancy, and Mrs. Cannon's mother.

Into the fourth grave was lowered the velvet covered casket, gray as the wintry skies which clouded the scene. As it descended, Knights Templar and Boy Scouts stood at attention and the minister concluded a prayer.

HARTFORD MAN KILLED BY FALLING FLAGPOLE

HARTFORD, Nov. 16—(AP)—A sharp rain, riding on the wings of a thirty to forty mile gale swept across the city today, causing the death of one man, the serious injury of a woman and minor injuries to three other men and one girl.

The dead man is Charles A. Rogers, a painter, of 486 Franklin avenue, this city, who was struck by a falling flag pole, about five p. m., when he was about to board a trolley car in front of the Phoenix State Bank and Trust company on Main street.

Miss Norah Ryan, about 40 years old, of number 764 Asylum avenue, Hartford, was the most seriously injured of the others. She was taken to St. Francis' hospital with a fractured skull, sustained when she was struck by an automobile on Farmington avenue.

The rain, which swept the city and state in fitful blasts, nearly resulted in a number of fatal accidents, falling trees, telephone posts and wires being reported every few minutes from all corners of the state. Telephone systems were demoralized, lights failed, street cars and automobiles were battered about and train service badly behind schedule.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED BY THE NATIONAL GRANGE

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 16 (AP)—The national grange tonight adopted a resolution calling on congress to enact legislation providing for an export debenture plan for the benefit of the American farmer. The measure was passed after a three-hour discussion in which delegates from 37 of the principal agricultural states took part, with only one dissenting vote.

The text of the resolution said: "Whereas agriculture is basic and the continually increasing agricultural depression is affecting the prosperity, not only of the agricultural people, but of the entire nation, and whereas our staple agricultural products are in world wide competition with like products in other lands, and whereas such surplus products are not receiving the benefits of the protective tariff, therefore, be it resolved: That the national grange endorse an export debenture plan for farm products and recommend that legislation be enacted by the next session of congress, making such plan operative beginning with the 1927 crop."

Would Have U.S. Treat With Soviet Russia

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 16—(AP)—It is difficult to see how America has a valid case for non-recognition of Russia, in view of the experience and policy of every other leading government in the world and of America's own policy toward all other nations, Prof. Jerome Davis, of Yale university told an audience here tonight.

Prof. Davis has recently returned from Russia, where he conducted a two months' investigation of conditions, aided by letters from Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee asking that Prof. Davis be given a frank outline of the problems, aims and policies of soviet Russia.

Russia is willing to send a commission to Washington to discuss terms of settlement for the outstanding claims of American citizens against the Russian government, he said he learned.

"While industry has not returned to as great a productivity as prior to the war," he said, "it has been steadily increasing. The extreme fanatical views of leaders in the government have been similarly slowly modified. Russia today is fast approaching many of the principles and standards maintained by the western world. It is becoming increasingly a Russian government. The last Jewish member of the political bureau was displaced in October. There is now not a single Jew among the people's commissars.

"As I see the situation there are three outstanding weaknesses: dogmatic atheism, dogmatic communism, lack of freedom. In spite of these defects, judged from the standpoint of the relative progress the bolsheviks have been making, we must admit, great achievement.

"Every other leading nation in the world has found it wise to recognize the soviet government."

FRENCH CAPITAL NOW FLOWING TO HOMELAND

PARIS, Nov. 16—(AP)—Fully 50 per cent. of French bank balances accumulated abroad since the World war have been brought back to France during the past three months, according to estimates made in banking quarters. These heavy returns in cash are believed to be a principal end direct cause of the recent rise in the French franc, although the background of the franc's improvement is the balancing of the budget and the creation of a sinking fund.

The reason for the homeward flow of French capital appears chiefly due to the scarcity of money in France. The rapid depreciation of the franc earlier this year caused a corresponding rise in prices. Consequently French business men had to employ greatly increased volumes of currency and many manufacturers applied to their banks for increased credit.

The bank of France now charges 9 1-2 per cent on loans against first class securities, while it pays 7 per cent that other French banks give as a rule is 10 1-2 per cent. French business men, who are now feeling more than ever before the need for credits, sometimes offer their banks 12 and even 15 per cent., but they are being refused on the ground that there is an actual lack of money.

ABOUT ANNULMENT OF MARLBOROUGH MARRIAGE

ROME, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Astonishment is expressed in vatican circles over the widespread criticism of the annulment of the Marlborough-Vanderbilt marriage. One official remarked that whoever had taken exception to the decisions of the diocesan court and the sacred Rota tribunal must be ignorant of the severe and scrupulous methods whereby these courts ascertain whether any so-called "impediment" exists to render annulment just according to apostolic canons.

The sacred Rota tribunal comprises 12 members, representing all the principal Catholic countries. Interested persons are represented before both diocesan court and the Rota by someone in a position to protect his client's interests along theological, as well as juridicial lines.

It was further pointed out by the vatican spokesman that the Roman Catholic church grants annulments only in specific cases, when these cases are amply proved.

History was cited to prove this statement in the case of Henry VIII of England, whose marriage to Catherine of Aragon Pope Clement VII staunchly refused to annual, despite the gravest consequences and of others.

HOMAGE TO MUSSOLINI IN ITALIAN SENATE

ROME, Nov. 16—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today, received the homage of the Italian senate, which will take up the recently formulated bill for the defense of the state.

Unlike the aggressive leader who faced the chamber at its session last week, it was a calm Mussolini who entered Italy's equivalent of the house of lords amid the applause of more than 170 white haired legislators.

Mussolini spoke only once, bringing a message of two notable achievements of the new Italy—Marconi's discovery of the short wave in radio and de Bernardi's victory in the Schneider cup races at Baltimore.

"The other day in America the aeronautical honor of the European continent was saved by Italian machines and courage. These are facts which disperse mountains of words," the premier said.

Signor Marconi, who is a senator, was seated in one of the front benches and was given a wave of applause by his colleagues.

MICHIGAN STATE POLICE RAID HOUSE OF DAVID

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 17—(AP)—Twenty-two Michigan state police under the command of Captain L. H. Marmon, swooped down on the House of David, religious colony, early this morning, with the avowed intention of arresting "King" Benjamin Purnell, fugitive leader of the cult, charged among several warrants with statutory crimes against young girl wards.

Accompanying the raiders were a young girl and her husband who, they say, were married at the order of "King Ben."

The raiders had assembled at the state police station at Paw Paw carrying to the scene of the raid an automobile load of flood lights which they planned to use in illuminating the scene and to prevent escape of the inmates of the houses on the grounds.

CUBA SEVERS DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH URUGUAY

Break Resulted From a Discussion Between Cuban and Uruguayan Delegates at a Session of League of Nations at Geneva Last September—President Machardo Will Prepare a Message to Cuban Congress.

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Cuba has severed diplomatic relations with Uruguay. The Cuban government today recalled Ricardo Garcia, its minister to Uruguay because of the failure of the Montevidean government to give satisfaction for an alleged insult to Cuba's dignity, voiced by the Uruguayan delegate before the league of nations at Geneva.

Senor Garcia was instructed to leave Uruguay immediately, and the Cuban minister at Buenos Aires, Manuel De La Vega y Calderon, was ordered home for not acting promptly when articles offensive to Cuba's dignity were published in newspapers in the Argentine capital.

The diplomatic break arose over a discussion between Gestes Ferrara, Cuban delegate to the league, and Alfredo Gauani, Uruguayan delegate, at a session last September. The Uruguayan delegate's statement that Cuba's sovereignty was restricted by virtue of the permanent treaty between Cuba and the United States brought a quick retrot from Senor Ferrara.

Little official notice was taken of the incident until newspapers in Buenos Aires and Santiago, Chile, published articles quoting Senor Guani.

The cabinet will hold a meeting tomorrow and Senor Campa will also have a conference with the Uruguayan minister to Cuba. President Machado will prepare a message to congress.

URUGUAY HAS SENT AN APOLOGY TO CUBA

HAVANA, Nov. 16—(AP)—Uruguay tonight apologized to Cuba for statements made by Alfredo Guani, Uruguayan delegate to the League of Nations, which Cuba regarded as derogatory to her national honor and which caused Cuba to never diplomatic relations with Uruguay today.

The announcement of the apology was made by the state department tonight.

Pedro Erasmo Callorda, the Uruguayan minister, delivered a note of apology to sub-Secretary of State Miguel Angel Campa shortly before midnight which the Cuban government accepted as satisfactory.

Dr. Campa called President Machado, on the phone, and the president, after learning the contents of the note, accepted it as ending the incident.

"As a Cuban and a Latin-American," said President Machado, "I am glad."

Dr. Campa immediately after the note was delivered said the Cuban minister to Uruguay, Ricardo Dareja y Fernandez, would be instructed to return to his post and take up the affairs of his government, which were turned over to Consul Bachiller when he departed by boat tonight from Montevideo for Buenos Aires.

Of last night's expense more than $25,000 went to the artists and performers in the four hour program.

Some five thousand miles of telephone wire were under lease for this broadcasting enterprise, which required the services of over one hundred radio engineers.

AGRICULTURALIST LEADERS OPEN SESSION IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 16—(AP)—The soft drawl of the south and the harsher r-curling twang of the north resounded from the state platform in pledges of fraternity in a common cause today when farmer organization leaders of twelve states, equally divided, met for the first time to formulate a permanent agricultural policy.

After a day of oratory, during which no new plan for remedial action was put forward but in which the problems of the southern cotton planter and rice grower was declared to be at least on a parity with that of farmers of the middle western grain belt in the need of relief, a committee was named to outline a statement of principles to be laid before congress.

Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, stressed the value of cooperative marketing but insisted He was not favoring "any particular remedy."

Thaddeus Caraway, United States senator for Arkansas, placed responsibility for agriculture's backward position upon the doorstep of "governmental favoritism."

Dr. B. W. Kilgore, of Raleigh, N. C., chairman of the board of the American Cotton Growers exchange, termed cooperative marketing and proper legislation for handling farmers surpluses the two things that could bring relief "to our too greatly distressed farming industry."

These states were represented: Arkansas, Tennessee, Texas, Iowa, Illinois, North Carolina, Louisiana, Nebraska, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Missouri. The last named state produces both cotton and grains.

Smith W. Brookhart, United States senator-elect for Iowa, attended the meeting as, he said, "an observer." He probably will address the gathering tomorrow. Eighty members of duly organized farm bodies are registered.

FIVE DAY WEEK ASKED FOR NAVY YARD EMPLOYES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—(AP)—A five day week for navy yard employes was asked of the navy wage board today by James O'Connell, president of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor.

"The five day week is not philanthropy," he said, "but a cold-blooded business proposition."

Uncertain conditions in navy yards since the Armistice, he asserted, has brought employment to the lowest ebb in many years. The five day week would give greater permanency of work, he argued. An increase in the wage scale also was requested, but no specific amount was named.

Mr. O'Connell's appearance today marked one of the first instances of an officer of an affiliated federation organization offering the shorter work week, approved by the recent convention of the federation at Detroit as the basis for working agreements.

GIRL BADLY SHOCKED BY TOUCHING LIVE WIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 16—Ora Doucette, 17 year old daughter of Zephira and Eliza Doucette of 142 Quercus avenue lies unconscious at St. Joseph's hospital suffering from a severe electric shock of 2,300 volts sustained when she got through the police guard lines and stepped on the high voltage primary wire of the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company system which had been carried to the ground on Main street, between Jackson and Clark streets, by three poles blown over in the terrific wind storm about five o'clock this afternoon. A detachment of police officers had barely arrived at the scene of danger when the girl, returning home from making purchases at the Hickey drug store on Union street walked into the tangled wires opposite the shipping room of the American Thread company. Traffic Officer Arthur Hurley and William Terry heard her screams as she stepped on the wire which was wet from a driving rain. The girl fell to the ground and lay in the midst of snapping sparks. Officer Hurley and Mr. Terry quickly risked their own safety and extricated the young woman. She was then rushed to the hospital. The extent of seriousness in her condition could not be determined up to late in the evening.

At a late hour tonight the hospital authorities reported that she had regained consciousness and was resting comfortably.

SEVERAL POLES BLOWN OVER DURING WIND STORM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 16—A terrific gale swept Thread Mill square on Main street here late this afternoon. It came as a grand wind-up to a severe wind and rain storm which had been experienced throughout the day. Three large poles in the vicinity of the New Haven railroad crossing on Main street were blown to the ground by the force of the wind, disrupting the feed wire of the Norwich-Willimantic trolley line and tearing down electric and telephone wires. Two other poles opposite No. 5 mill of the American Thread company crashed to the ground and a third was propped up by linesmen of the telephone company just in time to prevent it from falling over. Vehicular traffic was detoured by way of Bridge and Pleasant streets to Windham road and the Norwich highway. Due to the failing of the poles in this city and along the line to Baltic all trolley service between here and Norwich and on the South Coventry branch line was discontinued. The power was shut off shortly after six o'clock. The South Coventry trolley remained parked on Main street for several hours. Shortly before six o'clock Engine Company No. 1 of the fire department was summoned to Lincoln square where cross wires on a pole in front of the Jordan block had burst into flames. Linesmen were summoned to correct this defect. Line crews of both the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company and the Southern New England Telephone company worked through the night cutting off live wires that had fallen to the ground and making repairs. Police patrolled the danger area which has been roped off.

In investigating the accident in which Ora Doucette received an electric shock when she came in contact with a live wire which had fallen to the ground on Main st., David Lorea, superintendent of the works department of the lighting company denied that a primary wire ran over the section. It was said that the company has a secondary wire of under 300 volts on the poles which fell and in the belief of some officials the girl came in contact with the trolley feed wire of the Connecticut company.

PROF. DURHAM INJURED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 16—George B. Durham, professor of botany at Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, sustained a dislocated shoulder and minor injuries when he was thrown to the ground by a motor truck operated by James Mestrangelo of Storrs, as he was walking along the highway near Professor Binnott's home in Storrs about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Mestrangelo claimed that he was blinded by the headlights of an on coming machine. Prof. Durham was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where he will be confined for a few days for treatment.

It developed Tuesday that the heavy truck driven by Andro Solgovics of Torrington, Conn., and halted here Monday night by Officer Hurley was under the hire of the state highway department. Chief Clerk Nichols of the department notified the local authorities that the truck, which is owned by Mr. Macetti of Torrington, was hired by the department to transport wires. Trucks thus hired are given a permit by the department to protect the owner against overloading or of having the width of the load beyond the limit of eight feet allowed by law. In this instance the department had inadvertedly omitted to give the driver the permit required. When stopped here Monday night the truck was run into by a local machine on account of its width and when brought to be weighed it broke the scales. Under the circumstances prosecution of the case is not expected.

POETRY

The Miracle of the Dawn

What would it mean for you and me
If dawn should come no more!
Think of its gold along the sea,
Its rose above the shore!
That rose of awful mystery,
Our souls bow down before.

What wonder that the Inca kneeled,
The Aztec prayed and pled
And sacrificed to it, and sealed,—
With rites that long are dead,—
The marvels that it once revealed
To them it comforted.

What wonder, yea! what awe, behold!
What rapture and what tears
Were ours, if wild its rivered gold,—
That now each day appears,—
Burst on the world, in darkness rolled,
Once every thousand years!

Think what it meant to me and you
To see it even as God
Evolved it when the world was new!
When Light rose, earthquake-shod,
And slow its gradual splendor grew
O'er deeps the whirlwind trod.

What shoutings then and cymballings
Arose from depth and height!
What worship-solemn trumpetings,
And thunders, burning-white,
Of winds and waves, and anthemings
Of Earth received the Light.

Think what it meant to see the dawn!
The dawn, that comes each day!—
What if the East should ne'er grow wan
Should nevermore grow gray!
That line of rose no more be drawn

—Madison Cawein.

Harbingers

October's children
Fill the canyon road,
Their frocks of yellow
And pinafores of red
Brightening the slopes
And making as luminous
The trees,
Where, having run ahead
They wait the family load.
At last it comes
October
Drawn by her white steeds of frost
Atop her tailing chattels
Which leave along the way
An aftermath
Of bronze belongings
From her last abode;
Her robes of gold
Enhanced by scarlet veils
That float above her head;
Those of her gay clad little ones,
Who strew November's path,
Following
With joyous tread.

The back-breading toil of the paleontologist has been supplanted here by a fossil-hunting electric shovel in a suburb of Cleveland, O., where geological information is being dug out by the ton. Prehistoric land fauna are being unearthed from rock and clay, as well as fossilized fishes. The use of the electric shovel for this purpose is viewed with particular interest because the rapid expansion of the city means that these areas in a few years will be lost to the paleontologist to make way for subbasements to large buildings.

China has blacksmith artists who make landscapes and flowers out of the same metal that goes into wagon tires and horseshoes. The making of iron pictures is an old craft still practised, which enjoyed a considerable vogue under the regime of the Manchus, according to a report to the Yenching School of Oriental studies. A skilled smith, it is said, can produce pictures which rival in beauty and delicacy of line the ink drawings after which they are modeled. They are either mounted in frames with paper or silk beneath or are set in windows as a part of the decorative scheme of a room.

A grim little memento of a tragedy of the desert has been brought back to the University of Pennsylvania by Professor John W. Harshberger of the botany department, who has returned from a trip through the west. It consists of the dried and mummified body of a horned toad, entangled among the curved spines of a small cactus. The skin of the luckless little animal was not punctured in any place, but its hind legs were fettered by the fish-hook-shaped thorns, and it had apparently died a slow death of hunger and thirst. The cactus appears to be much tougher than its animal victim, for though it had been torn from its roots for several weeks its showed no signs of distress, and Professor Harshberger stated that such plants are able to live without a drop of water for several years, lying on a laboratory shelf.

Standardized Quality

What your own eyes see will make you choose the Chrysler "50"

If you are attracted by the Chrysler "50" it is well to bear in mind that your choice in the four-cylinder field, in any event, must be made among five cars. Only four four-cylinder cars other than the Chrysler "50" are now being built in quantity.

You will be rushed to a decision by the startling character of the contrast. The mere appearance and dimensions of the Chrysler "50" alone will startle you by comparison—its family seating proportions, its size, and its marked beauty of design, finish and fittings.

But the vital thing is the contrast in performance — the power and speed of 50 miles and more per hour; the acceleration of the Chrysler "50"—5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds; and above all, the ease and economy with which it travels.

Never, it seems to us, was it so easy for the buyer to make sure that his money is buying the utmost as in contrast between the "50" and all ordinary fours and sixes.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON HARD HIT BY TUESDAY'S STORM

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 16.—Danielson was without street lights from dark until about 5 o'clock tonight and many telephones went out of order as the result of poles being blown down, and wires breaking in many sections of the territory served from Danielson. The storm was one of the worst of its kind experienced here in a number of years.

Possibly as interesting as anything that has been done in Danielson of late has been the assembling of representatives of 23 nationalities resident in Killingly and Brooklyn for participation in the Americanization exhibit's pageant of all nations at the town hall this evening.

This congress of peoples will prove a thrilling spectacle to all interested in the United States, the great melting pot of the world, and in the efforts of this country to assimilate many races.

Mrs. Cora M. Logee assembled the personnel, expending much time and a great deal of effort in a really difficult task.

Speakers will represent each nation in the pageant, each selected from the nationality he or she represents. These speakers will describe the characteristics of his people, telling what they have contributed to the world's progress and particularly to America's upbuilding. Each speaker will greet the audience in his parents' language, saying that he is glad they came to America. Then will follow the nation's national air and also a native song or folk dance.

A group sings to these nations, What America Means, the theme being Carry On, and they listen to Theodore Roosevelt's description of A True American. The climax is reached as each pledges his allegiance to our flag, and the ancient Athenian oath is given to these good old United States, during which time Liberty sheds her loving radiance over all. The pageant closes with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner, with all the thought of all these new Americans In God We Trust, and the thought that The Star Spangled Banner shall continuously wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

A large measure of the success with which the pageant has been developed is due to Miss Emma A. Burbank, whose efforts toward securing the music of each nation has been so fruitful and whose time and effort at rehearsals has been so cheefully given. Tribute is due, too, to Mrs. Mabel Ennis of Brooklyn for bringing a large group of singers and dancers for the Finnish group from Brooklyn. Valuable assistance in rehearsing and costuming was given by Miss Leona G. Kranz, Miss Catherine Devitney, Mrs. Spalding, Mrs. Lyons and Mrs. Yates.

Wind is air in perceptible motion, says a dictionary. Anyone who happened to be around these parts Tuesday is well aware of that, without looking in a dictionary. Not only was the air in motion—violent motion, but about everything else not as secure as the Rock of Ages was waving or wobbling about a bit. While no very serious damage was reported up to late afternoon as the result of the furious southerly gale, accompanied by rain, there was a great deal of minor damage to property in various forms.

Clouds of dirt and debris were whisked about in manner to partly blind one and to make a mess of Danielson's customarily orderly business section. Windows were blown in at numbers of homes in town, blinds and shingles torn from buildings and limbs from trees. For hours the gale continued at a velocity estimated at from 50 to 60 miles an hour.

Two men well known and prominent in this town happened to be discussing labor problems in Danielson this week. Both hire help for farms. Both mourned over inability to get high grade farm hands at almost any price. One said he would pay $100 a month and board to a satisfactory man. The other told of the rugged white labor of some of the southern states who gladly work ten and eleven hours down there for $1.50 a day. It was suggested that good farm hands could be brought here from the south and at a great saving in wages to farmers." It sounds like a great scheme, but it will not work," positively declared one. "Southern labor, white labor, is not interested in leaving a comfortable climate to come into New England with its hard, dreary winters and ice and snow. It prefers to stay south and take less money." So that's that, and the farm help problem remains as acute as ever.

At the home in the Westfield section Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock funeral services for William H. Backus were conducted by Rev. Harding W. Taylord of the Congregational church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Walter A. Musgrave, George D. Galli, Everett T. Tillinghast, Herbert Chase, Edward Bacon and Francis E. Stoter. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Mr. Backus, a graduate of Philips Exeter and of Yale university, a generation ago held high rank among the men of letters in Boston, where for years he was night editor of the Boston Advertiser in a period when it wielded great influence and was a journal possessing a great intellectual appeal. In his editorial capacity and as an outstanding musical critic of the time, Mr. Backus made the acquaintanceship and numbered among his friends the most brilliant and scholarly figures of the period, some of them destined to live in American history. Among his treasured souvenirs of those days is a collection of letters and other communications dealing with his relationships with those great Americans and some of his own writings pertaining to them when, in many instances, they were world famous.

All reports to the contrary notwithstanding, there is not the slightest evidence that Tuesday's big blow originated in Oneco. It came from much farther south.

At the Union Baptist church in East Killingly Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, funeral services for Mrs. Mary F. Nye were conducted by Rev. W. D. Hetherington, numbers of relatives and friends in attendance. Burial was in the High street cemetery at Dayville. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Relatives acted as bearers.

It is a pleasing fact to Killingly people that notwithstanding the unsatisfactory condition of the textile business generally throughout New England, Killingly's mills are operating steadily this fall and the prospect appears to be for a busy winter.

Just about as careful driving as has been seen hereabouts in a long time marked the operation of motor cars in the height of Tuesday afternoon's storm, when the going was very dangerous.

Gerald Boulaine and C. Clinton Cleveland are making ready to launch their Town team basketball season. The team will be made up of local men.

At Dayville Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 a funeral service for Silas Adams was conducted by Rev. William Swainson of the Congregational church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. Rev. Mr. Swainson conducting the committal service. The bearers were Albert Taylor, Charles Carver, aPtrick Fitzsimmons, John Smalley, aPtrick Tigue and James Williams. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the arrangements.

Still collecting belated taxes. Collector James R. Walsh has made a record of getting more than 94 per cent of the taxes assessed on the last list. This remarkable record, with so much money involved, has rarely been surpassed in an eastern Connecticut town.

Only a little more than two weeks will elapse before the release to hundreds of members of many thousands of dollars in Christmas club funds from Danielson's banks. It is probable that these club members will receive in the aggregate more than $100,000 early in December. Much of this will be spent for holiday buying in Danielson.

It is interesting to note that onions of the very best quality are being offered in this territory at as low as $1.40 a bushel at the farms, the low price due to a bumper crop the past growing season. It so happens that onions are cheaper than potatoes this fall.

Miss Alice Litchfield of Brooklyn, injured by a fall while in Danielson, about a fortnight ago, is steadily improving at her home in Brooklyn.

The staff of the Killonian, the Killingly high school paper, this year is Richard W. A good suggestion has been made that the state highway department put a red reflector, such as is at the top of Dark Lantern hill on the curve of the Providence trunk line at the junction of Stearns and Reynolds street, where there is a dangerous curve and where a number of accidents have occurred. At night this curve represents a trap for drivers unfamiliar with the highway.

BENOIT-CHAPDELAINE WEDDING ON TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 16.—At 7 o'clock this morning, Miss Edna Chapdelaine and Henry N. Benoit were married at St. Mary's church, the high nuptial mass being sung by the Rev. A. Dykemans. Wilfred Chapdelaine, brother of the bride, was best man and Miss Celia Benoit, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid.

The bride and bridesmaid were dressed in rosewood crepe and carried shower bouquets of white bridal roses.

Miss Chapdelaine is the only daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Victor Chapdelaine. During the World war, she was a yeomanette and was located at New London. Mr. Benoit is the newly elected judge of probate of Putnam, his name being on both tickets. He was at one time mail carrier in the local postoffice and afterward was clerk for the state department at Washington for five years and was bill clerk for the United States senate for two years. While at Washington, Mr. Benoit studied law at Georgetown university and at the National university and from the latter institution received the degrees of L. L. B., L. L. M. and M. P. L.

Mr. and Mrs. Benoit are both well known in Putnam and after a wedding trip will make their home for the present at the home of the bride's parents.

The competitive drill will be held in Holden hall, Webster, under the auspices of Co. B., Garde Nationale and Court Marquette, F. F. A.

The Social Dames of Woodstock held their annual business meeting at the home of Mrs. Clara Rawson. The following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: President, Clara I. Rawson; vice president, Sarah A. Potter; secretary, Selma Anderson; treasurer, Isabel Paine. After the business meeting a supper was served by Mrs. Rawson, consisting of baked beans, hot biscuits, cherry pudding and coffee.

The many friends of Miss Alice Poyton will be interested to know that she has completed a course of music in the Conservatory of Music at Rome, Italy, and has returned to the United States and will give a number of concerts.

Prizes totalling $1,000 have been offered for the best essays submitted during a contest to be conducted by the Boston Chamber of Commerce Week, opening Dec. 6. The subject of the essay is to be "What a Chamber of Commerce Means to a Community," and the contest is open to everyone living in New England with the exception of members of paid staffs of chambers of commerce, boards of trade and other commercial organizations. The contest will close Dec. 7.

A starting point in the essay contest is furnished by the following definition of a chamber of commerce given sometime ago by the secretary of the Boston chamber: "A chamber of commerce is an aggregation of individuals who have banded themselves together to work as a unit, to do those things which will make their community as a unit more convenient, economical and satisfactory place in which to do business and in which to live, and to make known the facts relating thereto."

A number of the pupils of the Putnam high school have already signified their intention of entering this contest.

A friendly but interesting case argued before the superior court, the outcome of which will effect the town of Woodstock, was the one involving the construction of the will of Mrs. Minnie P. Dean, late of Weston, Mass. Among other clauses in the will, Mrs. Dean directed her executors to erect a hall in the town of Woodstock to be known as the Palmer Memorial hall. The executors were to use their discretion in acquiring a sit and were authorized to expend not exceeding $42,000 for land and building.

Mrs. Dean owned the Russell property on Woodstock Hill, containing about ten acres of land with a house and barn no the south side. During her life time she caused the Memorial hall to be built but did not deed it to the town. She deeded the house, barn and lot to a niece, leaving a frontage for the memorial site of about 160 feet on the highway. On the remaining five or six acres of land she had set out with rare trees and shrubbery.

The action is a friendly one and the issue involved is as to whether this whole tract was considered by Mrs. Dean to be the site of the memorial hall or, as contended by the trustees, the site is merely the land on which the Palmer Memorial stands. The town of Woodstock and the executors of the will claim that the fact that Mrs. Dean laid out the grounds and planted the trees and the shrubbery is evidence of her intention to exclude this land. Another point is the fact that a cesspool connected with the hall is 200 feet in the rear is claimed as more evidence of her intention to include this land. The town and trustees also claim that a right of way is in their favor.

After all devices and bequests under the will are settled, the remainder is left to certain trustees to be used for the purpose of establishing a children's home and other similar charitable purposes in another state.

RAIDING THE FARMS

Most people are familiar with those who raise a great howl when anyone crosses their path or treads on their rights, but who are among the great offenders when it comes to doing that very thing to others.

It is nothing new for the residents of the country to have their garden truck, fruit and vegetables stolen. They have even become hardened to the loss of poultry, young pigs and timber but it cannot be said that they like it. In too many instances their losses have increased since the days of the automobile, for while there might be no objection of those driving past should regale themselves with apples found on the ground there is nevertheless justification for the resentment or indignation which rises when those or others bring bags and carry them away filled with the produce which the farmers have raised in their gardens or orchards. There is no getting away from the fact that it is stealing. Just because they are not caught or seen doesn't lighten the offense.

Most communities feel the effect of such depredations and because it is possible to cover such a distance, to do so quickly and to carry such loads the responsibility for such work is attributed to motorists.

New York has legislated against such activities. Connecticut has established its state police force to deal with just such conditions and the sentiment in any state must be against such practices.

In considering this problem the Manchester, N. H., Union thinks that "the much discussed uniform code of rules of the road for motorists might well include a few reminders of the value of honesty and consideration for others as well as reasonable caution in speeding about the country." That might be well enough for those who would pay any attention to such pleas, or who in fact give any heed to rules of the road, but it is seriously doubted if it would even get the consideration of those who need it most. Those who raid the farm lands need something a bit less mild. They require something more than a hint.

HERRIN'S CALL FOR HELP

Bad as the situation is in Herrin, Ill., it can no longer be said that the authorities in that city do not recognize it. But even while recognizing it and admitting their inability to cope with the situation it is scant sympathy and no help which the mayor of Herrin gets when he appeals to the governor of the state for assistance. He virtually tells the gangs to do their worst against helpless Herrin.

When Herrin's mayor tells the governor that it is impossible for a sheriff to relieve the situation, it must appreciate from what has taken place there that he is frankly acknowledging the truth of the situation. There's an element there which doesn't intend to be subdued and certainly it has no intention of submitting to a sheriff. There's a bitterness in the factional fight in that Illinois community which trample on all ordinary efforts in behalf of law and order. In view of what has transpired there it is easy to believe the mayor when he sets forth the terrorism caused by the gangs and maintains that the prosecution of the guilty is impossible because people fear to testify as witnesses and no prosecuting attorney could do his duty and expect to live.

Under such conditions it is right and proper that the mayor of Herrin would appeal to the governor for assistance in coping with the situation. He wants the state to take charge of the situation and establish military courts. But what a reception his appeal got when the governor replied that "the people of southern Illinois cannot expect protection unless they are prepared to give protection." That amounts to saying that if it is impossible for Herrin to correct conditions in its midst they must be permitted to go on indefinitely for all the head of the state government cares.

The mayor of Herrin has done, it seems, just what the situation calls for from him. Rather has he seemed to wait too long. But when a community finds that it cannot maintain peace and order, the next step is to appeal to the state, and in the support of its own laws the state should be ready to act for the suppression of those conditoins at Herrin which have long been a disgrace to American civilization. The governor of Illinois presents a sorry picture in his reply to the mayor of Herrin, and must share the responsibility for any further outbreaks there.

THOSE WHO STEAL AUTOS

In the opinion of the crown attorney for the district of Montreal the automobile thief belongs in the class with the horse thief of bygone days. It was his comment in connection with this statement that horse thieves were hanged, and the natural inference is that he believes that similar treatment should be accorded to the thief.

It is a suggestion that has been offered by others before, and in view of the tremendous amount involved in stolen machines each year there is unquestionably something which needs to be done in order to put a stop to such business.

In 1918 there were 27,443 cars stolen in 28 major cities of this country of which number 5,773 were not recovered. In 1923 there were 39,612 stolen in the same cities and 7,328 were not recovered. In 1923 there were 39,612 stolen in the same cities and 7,228 were not recovered. In 1925 of the 77,174 cars stolen 10,754 were not recovered. The percentage of recovered cars had risen in the seven years from 79 per cent. to 86 per cent., which is some improvement but the fact that a car is recovered may mean little for a recovered car is seldom intact and often a wreck from one cause or another for the thief has no more consideration for the machine than he has for the feelings of the person from whom he stole it.

It became necessary to use drastic measures in order to curb horse stealing and to prevent the employment of the animals in the commission of other crimes. The same holds true in a great many instances where autos are concerned. The value of animal or machine would hardly justify the taking of human life even through legal processes, and the only excuse for advocating such a penalty would be for the purpose of making persons think twice before indulging in such practices.

There is no reason to expect that a law will be enacted in these days which would make such a penalty possible but there is unquestionably good ground for the belief that stiffer penalties than exist should be meted out to those who are so generously indulging in other people's property. That is apparently the purpose of the Montreal attorney in his reference to what was once done with those who stole horses.

THE NEW FLYING RECORD

It is something new, that record which was established last week by Major de Bernardi, the Italian aviator, who drove his airplane at the rate of more than four miles a minute on an average over a course of 217 miles in Virginia. He has topped all the other 3 quite the same as the French flyer has beaten all contenders in altitude flying, and in each instance there is represented no slight amount of skill and nerve and a remarkable demonstration of the machine that carried the record breaker in each instance.

This is another means by which the progress in aviation is demonstrated. It sets a new goal for the flyers of all countries. It is inevitable that Italy should claim great credit for the performance because that country has been spending large sums in the development of airplanes and the training of aviators. The government has been putting its money into this work on a large scale. It has a right to expect just what resulted from the test in the air races. It was a case where the aviator and the machine were in the pink of condition to do what was expected and they did it to the astonishment of all who witnessed it or studied the reports.

It was only a few years ago that a mile a minute was fast traveling. It is now in many modes of transportation. By means of the airplane such speed has been long since greatly outdistanced. The fact is now that there's no telling how long Major de Bernardi's record will remain intact, for in these days of fast traveling records that are created today may go withering tomorrow. No records always mean new goals to strive for.

CUTTING FRENCH ARMY

The longest way around is said to be the surest way home. Perhaps that is why France has delayed until now in entertaining thoughts about the reduction of its army for it is years since such a suggestion was made with the idea of reducing its heavy expenses and relieving the tension which its military structure was bound to cause.

Since then, however, changes have taken place. France is able to see ahead with greater confidence today. It regards its neighbors in a different light since it has received the additional amount of protection through conferences and treaties. Thus when the war minister advocates the reduction of the standing army by 250,000 which now numbers about 650,000, the reduction of conscript service from 18 to 12 months and the recruiting of 100,000 volunteers for special employment on fatigue duties it represents a decided change in French sentiment and a voluntary move which is not involved in any way with disarmament effort put forward by other countries. It should nevertheless be a step, if carried out, which will make a good impression upon other nations and which should be indicative of a greater willingness on the part of France to join hands with other nations in bringing about a reduction of armaments on a broader scale than has yet been undertaken.

This action commands attention because France had been adamant in the past to anything of the kind. Circumstances alter cases and the circumstances under which France is to consider the proposed change are far different from what they were at any time since the close of the war. France must be given credit for making the move of its own accord.

LOOKING TOO YOUNG

Felicia looked gravely across the dinner table at her husband. Then she sighed deeply. It is most unusual for Felicia to sigh, and Jack returned her gaze questioningly.

"Anything wrong, dear?" he asked. "Didn't everything go all right while I was away? Nancy-girl all right?" he grinned at the husky 3-year-old in her high chair.

"Oh, Nancy-girl couldn't have been better in any way—golden good and as well as could be, weren't you, darling?"

"Yeth, Felith," answered Nancy-girl sedately.

"Nancy-girl, please call me mother. You are to call me mother all the time now. Do you understand?"

"Yeth, Felith," replied Nancy-girl sweetly.

"Then why don't you?" asked Felicia.

"Why should she, Felicia? When did you get that notion: I think it's great, her calling you by her version of your first name. It sounds so jolly young."

"But that's just what I don't want. I don't want to sound young as you say, or look young any more. I'm going to let my hair grow out, and I shall do it very plainly when it gets long enough."

"What's the joke? Are you trying to spoof me?"

"It isn't a joke. I think any one with a 3-year-old child should look dignified and married, Jack. Everywhere I go people call me 'miss'—street-car conductors and waiters, and when I bought my last hat the other day the woman who sold it to me almost lost the sale because she kept calling me 'little girl.' I told her that I was a married woman, and she actually said she couldn't believe it.

"Yesterday I took Nancy-girl to have her hair trimmed, and the barber asked if 'big sister didn't need a hair-cut, too?' I took off my glove and ostentatiously displayed my wedding ring, but even that seemed to have no effect, for when we left the shop he said 'Come in again, sis.' It's just too annoying, Jack."

"I don't see why you care," Jack laughed heartily. "I think it's awfully funny that you mind looking young and pretty. What do you care what strangers call you, anyway?"

"Well, to tell you the truth, Jack, I don't care so much for what strangers think, but I do hate to have any one of my nearest and dearest forget that I'm married."

"Who did that? Your Uncle Ben, I bet. He's a good old scout, but he is a little doddering."

"No, it wasn't Uncle Ben, Jack. It was some one you'd never suspect of such a thing."

"Oh, your dad."

"No, indeed, you know how father always introduces me so proudly as his married daughter. Sometimes I'm really afraid it will hurt sister's feelings. The person who forgot I was married was much younger than Uncle Ben or even dad. Some one whose memory ought not to be failing for many years yet," sighed Felicia.

"I suppose it was your sister. She's a dear, Felicia, but I have noticed that she's a bit absent-minded at times. The joke's on her, not on you, Felicia."

"The joke isn't on sister, Jack. It's on some one else. Look at this. See the letter I received a few days ago addressed in my maiden name. How do you think a letter from that particular person addressed in that way makes me feel? I saw the postman looking at it oddly as he put it in our box."

Felicia drew an envelope from her pocket and passed it across the table to Jack. "I feel repudiated. If you don't remember that I'm your wife, who will?"

Jack looked up from the envelope with a bewildered expression. He reached for Felicia's hand. "I must have been thinking of court days," he said with a husky little laugh. "The joke's on me, all right. Name the penalty, Felicia. I'm game. What's the verdict?"

"A full pardon if the offense is never repeated. Mother has to be lenient to poor old daddy, doesn't she Nancy-girl?"

YOUR HEALTH

NO FADS FOR PRIZE FIGHTERS!

By George A. Moore, M. D. Palmer, Mass.
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Last week four members of our Philosophers' club went prospecting for impressions; a physician, a minister of the gospel and two manufacturers composing the party. We went to a prize fight.

Jack Delaney, considered a possible future champion, when stripped, revealed a marvellously fit specimen of physical manhood, evidently the result of heredity and correct living. His opponent King Solomon of Panama was also a splendid looking athlete weighing 183 pounds. Delaney weight 171 pounds. Delaney won.

In the course of the conflict both men took terrific smashing blows that only good health and perfect physical condition enabled them to take without harm.

At the end of the 12th round the men were in good condition. For the 36 minutes Jack Delaney received $6000 and King Solomon $3500.

"What foolishness" said one of our party "to take such risk even for $185 a minute."

"Yes," said another, "it does seem foolish but the risk is no more foolish here than elsewhere. This fight is an intentional, spectacular risk for the fighters but no greater than half this vast audience takes every day, through ignorance or neglect of some law of health."

"But pugilists have these same risks in addition to their own peculiar hazards," said the first speaker.

"I think not," was the reply. "Pugilists are very practical men. They better than most, know how to keep fit. No fads or cults for them. Hard work, abstinence and regular living are essentials they recognize. When in doubt, they buy the best advice."

"Think they prepare themselves for a struggle like this by following some very highly advertised, easy to do, inconveniencing system of training?"

"Not they! When this fight is over any damaged ears, eyes, noses or teeth will be looked after by the best physicians obtainable."

"See that man over there!" said one. "That's Tony Jaxon who has trained many athletes, let's step over to him."

"Delaney looked very confident and courageous," remarked the physician of our party, adding laughingly, "if courage is a matter of the adrenal glands, as is said, he is okay in that respect."

"Well," replied the great trainer, "you can take it from me that Jack Delaney don't bother his head with any gland bunk. He gets ready for a fight right, and then he fights."

"Whatever we may think of prize fighting as a profession," remarked the minister, "we must admit that in matters of health pugilists are wiser than many."

Reddy Finds Some Feathers.

Tricky folk expect of you
The tricks that they themselves would do.

Old Mother Nature.

Reddy Fox was impatient to get over to the Green Forest. He was impatient to get over to the place where Mrs. Grouse had been shot. In his own mind, he wasn't at all sure that Mrs. Grouse had been killed. He wanted to find out for himself all he could about what had happened there. There is nothing in the world that Reddy would rather have for dinner than a plump grouse. He had tried many times to catch Mrs. Grouse, but she had always been to smart for him. That was because she had wings. At least, that's what Reddy said. She was smart, but if she hadn't had wings he was sure he would have caught her long ago.

Reddy hurried along the old cowpaths through the old Pasture over to the edge of the Green Forest. When he reached the Green Forest, he moved with the greatest care. That hunter with the terrible gun might be there still. Reddy didn't want that terrible gun pointed at him. Presently, Reddy met Prickly Porky Porcupine. "Have you seen that hunter with the terrible gun around here?" inquired Reddy in his politest manner.

Prickly Porkly wasn't polite at all. He merely grunted and shuffled along to the tree he meant to climb. He didn't like Reddy Fox, and he showed it very plainly. Reddy merely grinned and kept on.

Presently, Reddy met Bobby Coon. "Hello, Bobby," said Reddy. "What's this I hear about Mrs. Grouse being shot over here in the Green Forest?"

"The same thing I hear, I guess," replied Bobby. "I guess it is true enough. I heard the bang, bang of the terrible gun. I haven't seen Mrs. Grouse since. Isn't it dreadful?"

"Yes," said Reddy, "it is dreadful." And to hear him you would have thought that he was filled with sadness. As a matter of fact, he wasn't. He was filled with impatience at the minute, but he didn't want Bobby Coon to know it. As soon as he could Reddy said goodbye and went on, so that presently he came to the place in the Green Forest where Mrs. Grouse had been shot.

He merely grunted and shuffled along to the tree he meant to climb

For several minutes Reddy stood looking and listening, his black ears cocked forward, his bright eyes searching among the trees for the least little movement, and his little black nose testing every Merry Little Breeze that came wandering along. At last, he was satisfied that the hunter with the terrible gun was nowhere about. Then Reddy began to hunt. He ran back and forth and from side to side, and his bright eyes took in every leaf and twig on the ground. At length he discovered what he was looking for. "Ha!" he exclaimed under his breath. "This is the place." Reddy had found some feathers. He knew them at once for the feathers of Mrs. Grouse. There was no mistaking them. It was here that she had been shot.

Instead of being filled with sadness at this discovery, Reddy appeared to be filled with eagerness. He put that sharp nose of his to the ground, and then he began to run rapidly in all directions. He smelled of every inch of ground right around there. Farther and farther from the spot where he found the feathers Reddy got. All the time he was hunting for scent—the scent of Mrs. Grouse. By and by, he found another feather. It was so far from the place where the other feathers were, that Reddy brightened up. "I don't believe Mrs. Grouse is dead at all," thought he. "No, sir, she isn't dead at all. She got away from that hunter." At that thought Reddy's mouth began to water. Perhaps he would have that grouse dinner after all.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Much Lettered Gravestones

Mr. Editor: In the little Oneco cemetery just across the road from my home the other day I called the attention to a couple of expect stone cutters to a marble slab, 45 inches high and 18 inches wide, erected in memory of Susan L., Wife of William Love and daughter of Moses and Mary Kinyon died June 4, 1856, aged 21 years.

Neath the above is cut in perfect letters three long verses of 18 lines containing 584 perfect letters, making 675 letters in all, cut by hand and as near perfect as it would be possible to cut them in marble. This alone is not the only curiosity in that little cemetery, some of the old stones set way back near 1700 are well worth looking at and tell many a life story in five words. I wonder if any stone letter cutter could give any idea what it would cost to letter that slat of marble today?

Just for curiosity let's here from some.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Ruskins View of a Book

"A book," says Ruskin, "is essentially not a talked thing, but a written thing; and written, not with the view of mere communication, but of permanence. The book of talk is printed only because its author cannot speak to thousands of people at once; if he could, he would—the volume is mere multiplication of his voice. You cannot talk to your friend in India; if you could, you would; you write instead; that is mere conveyance of voice. But a book is written, not to multiply the voice merely, not to carry it merely, but to preserve it. The author has something to say which he perceives to be true and useful or helpfully beautiful. In the sum of his life he finds this to be the thing, or group of things, manifest to him: —this is the piece of true knowledge, or sight, which his share of sunshine and earth has permitted him to seize. He would fain set it down forever; engrave it on rock, if he could; saying, 'This is the best of me; . . . this I saw and knew; this, if anything of mine, is worth your memory.' That is his 'writing.' It is, in his small human way, and with whatever degree of true inspiration is in him, his inscription, or scripture. That is a 'Book.'"

Somehow a man us unable to get the idea into his head that a girl with a dimple and a rosebud mouth can be in the intellectual class.

Stories That Recall Others

Scriptural Reference.

Little Gene was very anxious to know the age of her aunt. She soon found, it was useless to ask her aunt, so she asked her grandmother. "I don't really know," said her grandmother. "Ta have to look it up in the family Bible."

Gene gasped: "Is auntie old enough to be in the Bible?"

Another Viewpoint.

This is a story that it told of a country justice. It appears that a man was arrested and charged before a justice of the peace with "beating up" another man. The defendant had his case well reported and the trial indicated that he had not been proved guilty. At the close of the trial the justice said adroitly:

"The evidence tends to show that the defendant is not guilty but the court knows differently—fine $2 and costs."

TRAVELING IN BALKANS BEGET BY MANY ODDS

Probably in no other part of the world does the necessity of having passports vised cause more trouble than in the Balkans. To begin with, none of the countries concerned has seen fit to abolish visas. The consequence is that a traveler, from, say Constantinople to Athens, has to get first, a vise to leave Turkey; second, a vise to enter Bulgaria and if he stays there a day, another vise to get out; third, a vise to cross Jugo-Slavia and fourth a vise to enter Greece. This latter requires a special tax of $5 levied on all foreigners entering that country. These vises cost a good deal of money and most of them are available for only one journey. An American traveler recently asked: "Is it possible that we are living in the year 1926? Traveling in the Balkans is hedged about by so many formalities that I guess the Balkanese do not want to see strangers."

After arguing with a man for half an hour, a woman invariably says: "Now, why can't you be sensible?"

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Tuesday afternoon the B. Natural club met with Mrs. Raymond C. Brittin, of Boswell avenue, the subject of study being Chopin and Grieg. The hostess had the paper on Chopin, sketching the career of the distinguished Polish pianist from his birth near Warsaw, in 1810, till his death at Paris, in 1849. All the club members contributed toward the interesting program with piano or voice, illustrating the works of the two composers. For the supper which followed, Mrs. Brittin had designed the artistic place cards, which had original verses with musical sentiment suiting each individual member of the club. She was assisted at the attractively decorated table by her sister, Mrs Tyler B. Stanton, a guest of the club.

Tuber left his machine standing in Rose place and it is understood that Miller confessed to taking the number plates off the machine and throwing them into the Shetucket river because of a grudge he felt against Tuber.

HOSPITAL BAZAAR BRINGS 500 TO ARMORY ON THE OPENING NIGHT

The opening night's attendance at the bazaar of nations being held at the state armory by the Woman's auxiliary of the W. W. Backus hospital, was estimated at 500, in spite of the severe rain and wind storm that struck Norwich Tuesday. The bazaar which is to continue this (Wednesday) afternoon and evening, opened Tuesday afternoon and despite the heavy rain, quite a number of people visited the armory to inspect and patronize the various booths.

At 5 o'clock the electric lights went out, due to trouble on the Franklin street circuit, and remained out for close to two hours. Flashlights were brought into service at the armory during the period of darkness. As a whole the first day of the bazaar was a fairly successful one, considering the weather. During the evening, Tuesday, D'Atri's orchestra furnished a dance programme and dancing was enjoyed in a space roped off in the center of the hall.

Artistic designing, brilliant coloring and very attractive lighting effects have transformed the armory hall, giving the visitor the impression that he or she is suddenly transported to foreign lands. A score of beautifully decorated booths represent as many foreign countries. The tea house is approached through a circular arch, the rim of which is painted Chinese blue. The arch is flanked by artistically colored signs. There is a pagoda surrounded by tiny pine trees, the pagoda being in the center of the small courtyard where are a number of yellow colored tea tables. Incense fumes and paper lanterns add much to the Oriental atmosphere. The attendants in mandarin costumes serve tea, coffee and ice cream.

Norway is represented by a peasant cottage. This booth represents a typical Norwegian home. It is a utility booth where aprons, holders and other household articles are for sale. Mrs. Edwin V. Ross demonstrates the use of kitchen utensils.

The Haitian booth has a thatched roof. At this booth are suspended bunches of bananas and parrots swing on perches. Parisian handkerchiefs and Haitian bandanas are for sale at this booth.

Another attractive booth is the Swedish booth. This shows a typical Swedish home, brown bark exterior, sod roof and an evergreen tree growing through the roof. Miss Rose Trumbull demonstrates the making of pottery on a potter's wheel and Academy students demonstrate the making of tiles. Pottery bags and beads are on sale at this booth.

Grab bags and fortune telling are the attractions at the Turkish booth. Here is seen a Turkish kiosk, with divan, covered with Turkish rugs and pillows and surrounded by brilliant Oriental rugs.

A glimpse of Holland is seen at the Dutch booth. Here are a Dutch windmill with blue wings and in the background a typical Dutch yard with yellow and red tulips. There are Dutch settees and counters in the yard which is surrounded by a lattice fence. Candy, in hand painted boxes is sold at this booth. Mrs. Robert W. Perkins designed the paintings on the boxes and was assisted by the artists and art students in the city.

Then there is a street in Spain. The coloring is brilliant. Beneath Spanish balconies are seen a pushcart with vegetables in front of a Spanish shop. Spanish pottery is shown on display in the shop and there is a wine cellar with kegs and bottles. A cleverly painted poster advertises a bull fight in progress. Walter LaFontaine, clad in Spanish costume, entertained at this booth, singing Spanish songs from the balconies. Pupils of Mrs. Edward Andrews were seen in Spanish dances. They appeared in Spanish costumes. Fancy articles are on sale at the booth.

Italy is represented by a typical Italian stucco building. There is a beautifully painted street scene, picturing the Rialto, with a river beneath it. This booth is gay with awnings and there is a black iron balcony overhead from which is suspended macaroni, drying in the sunlight. Italian shawls of many colors indicate the celebration of a feast day. A border of smilax adds much to the attractiveness of this booth. Dolls of all kinds are on sale. There are powder dolls, baby dolls, stuffed dolls, French dolls and life-sized baby dolls.

The French booth is a reproduction of the book stalls found along the Seine. Handpainted cover books from Paris, etchings by the late Daisa Dodge, generously given by Mrs. Dodge and Christmas cards from the Norwich Art school are found at this booth. The beautiful French costumes worn by the attendants at this booth were designed by Mrs. Frederick W. Lester.

At the booth representing Japan is a pergola from which hang sweet peas and wisteria in pink, lavender and yellow and there are numerous Japanese lanterns. Various articles for the baby are on sale, at the Japanese booth.

Ireland is represented by a booth resplendent in green and white. Tempting foods of all kinds are on sale here.

Priscilla's Pantry is a long cabin effect booth, styled after the lean-to pantries of the Pilgrim days. Colonial furniture, rag rugs, pewter, old blue china, dried apples, bacon hanging from the rafters and stocks of jams, jellies and vegetables give a realistic touch. This booth offers for sale gift baskets with delicious jellies.

In the streets of Palestine are found fortune tellers, dancing girls, slipper shops, a boudoir and pillow shop, a novelty shop, and Rebekah at the well, are seen at this booth. Boutonniere flowers and cigarettes are on sale. The lighting effects at this booth are enhanced by an electric star of many colors and the menorah, the seven-armed symbol of light.

In the center of the hall is located the booth representing America. The corners of the octagonal shaped booth are decorated in red, white and blue. In each one of the corners flies a large American flag, beneath a large spreading eagle. This is the bride's booth and is featured by the beautiful hope chest filled to the top.

All sorts of cigarettes are on sale at the cigarette booth which is of an attractive design. Attractive sets of lavender sachet powders in colored match boxes are also on sale.

At the coffee house, in orange and black, coffee, hot dogs, orangeade, ginger ale and cider are dispensed.

The pergola flower booth is covered with roses and southern smilax. Six flower girls in charge of Mrs. Charles Frink, and wearing gay organdie aprons and paper hats, sell flowers to the patrons.

Suspended above each booth is a lantern with the colors of the nation represented by the booth.

The drive on football goal posts has shown thus far that the posts are not in condition to withstand the rush line of enthusiastic students. There are no records to show that the posts have been able to get as much as a draw, much less a decision. This would indicate lack of training and poor support. The problem may be solved by establishing a foundation of concrete for the uprights.

N. E. AIR MAIL AT STAKE SAYS GOVERNOR TRUMBULL

The November issue of "The Financial Digest" will carry the following article by Governor Trumbull entitled "New England Air Mail at Stake".

The startling fact that the very life of New England's air transportation is at stake by virtue of the near-future action of the post office department in letting the contract for the Chicago-New York overnight mail route was promptly recognized by the aviation committee of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce.

This committee, composed of leading business men, recently met and studied the significance of the pending situation.

The important action taken by the committee follows. It was voted:

(a) That the aviation committee of the state chamber endorse the plan of the Colonial Air Transport to secure the contract for the New York-Chicago overnight mail route;

(b) That a member of the aviation committee of the state chamber be requested to present in person the committee's action to Postmaster General New at Washington, who is charged with the letting of the air mail contracts;

(c) That a copy of this statement, together with the names of the members of the committee, be sent to President Lawrence of the New England conference, with the request that this matter receive the official attention of the Hartford meeting of the New England conference;

(d) That copies of this statement be sent to the state chambers of commerce of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Michigan, together with those of the state chambers of the New England states, with the request that the statement be placed before the local chambers of commerce in Connecticut, with a request for the same action as set forth in D;

(f) That the statement be placed before the civic clubs of New England, with a request for the same action as set forth in D.

The vital importance to New England's air transportation of the Colonial securing the New York-Chicago overnight air mail contract is set forth in the following statement prepared by the aviation committee of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce:

To the Postmaster General,
Washington, D. C.
Sir:

The aviation committee of the Connecticut Chambee of Commerce is advised that in the near future a contract will be awarded for carrying mail by aeroplane between New York and Chicago, a distance of approximately 800 miles.

It is recognized that commercial aviation is necessary in every section of the country under modern conditions. It is important, therefore, that the various agencies which have been organized for the rendering of this class of service and which have been rendering it shall be encouraged and fostered in every way possible to the end that they may be successful and so continue to render a satisfactory service. Experience has demonstrated that, in order to be economically successful, long hauls are essential and that with the present volume of business cannot be successful and will be unable to render the commercial aviation service that the communities need. Most of the companies which have been organized for the purpose of rendering this type of service already have government contracts for the transportation of mails involving hauls of approximately 1,000 miles. They are operating in sections of the country where there is sufficient business to make them successful and so enable them to render the service which they have undertaken to supply.

The Colonial Air Transport, Inc., was organized a year ago by responsible parties for the purpose of supplying this type of service in the territory roughly outlined as from Pittsburgh north to the Canadian border and from Chicago east to the Atlantic ocean. The Colonial company began its operation by carrying mail between Boston and New York, stopping at Hartford en route, a total distance of approximately 200 miles. The service rendered has been as satisfactory as service of this type can be supplied under present conditions, but it has been regarded as a laboratory — a preparation for taking over the New York Chicago route. As before stated, it has been demonstrated that if the company is to grow and be enabled to render satisfactory service, not only between Boston and New York but also in the other sections of the country referred to above, it must be given the same opportunity which the other similar companies have been given in relation to long haul business. With a reasonable amount of long haul business, the short haul service can be supplied in a satisfactory and economical manner.

It is to the interests of the section of the country which the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., is planning to serve that this company which is already in existence, now doing business, ably officered and backed by strong financial interests, shall be encouraged to remain in business and continue in its efforts to furnish this much-needed type of service. Logically, it should be given the New York-Chicago contract for carrying the mail. The addition of this business to the present business of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., will give an added assurance to the post office department of the continuance of the operation of the Colonial's existing route between Boston and New York.

We believe it may be assumed by the post office department that if the New York-Chicago overnight mail route is awarded to the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., the service will be at least equal to that performed by the post office department itself and the responsibility of the carrying company will be established to the satisfaction of the post office department.

The Colonial Air Transport, Inc., has for four months assumed and performed the operation of a route too short to be economical because of the desire to demonstrate the possibility of successful air service between Boston and New York. The company needs, and it is respectfully urged that it should have, the encouragement of the post office department in developing its service. The proposed route between Chicago and New York offers the best and most prompt incentive to that end and this committee therefore respectfully recommends to the post office department that for the reasons stated this contract for the carrying of mail by aeroplane between New York and Chicago be awarded to the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., which company will bid for this service.

As Connecticut business men living in a part of the territory in which the Colonial Air Transport is now rendering service, we feel that it is very much to our interests and to those of the business men in the additional territory which it is proposed to serve that the Colonial Air Transport shall continue in action and that its sphere of operation shall be extended so that the service which it plans to render can in fact be supplied on a sound, economical basis and in a satisfactory manner.

GRANGE REMEMBERS DEAD AT MEETING IN PORTLAND

Grangers from here who were at Portland, Me., attended the National grange memorial service Sunday afternoon, the first official recognition at such a service of the "unknown heroes" of grange work.

The plain men and women of the grange ranks were eulogized by National Master Louis J. Taber, and Mrs. Taber placed flowers upon an altar in the grange hall, which had been extemporized in the centre of city hall auditorium, where the services were held.

Previous to that feature, Rev. W. W. Deal of Nampa, Idaho, chaplain of the National grange and a Methodist minister, had preached a brief sermon upon "Immortality", and representatives of several state granges had eulogized distinguished members of the local body who had died during the year. Flowers in their memory were placed upon the altar.

Those so recognized were Warren C. Jewett and George S. Ladd, past masters of the Massachusetts State grange; Mrs. Levi A. Booth, wife of the past master of the Colorado State grange, and Mrs. C. F. Smith, wife of the past master of the Vermont State grange. The floral tribute for Mrs. Booth was placed by Mrs. Eva McDowell of New York, whose husband was one of the seven founders of the National grange.

Presentation of resolutions was the first important move at the business sessions, which will extend through Thursday. Among the more important of these will be declarations covering the middle west view of farm relief legislation. These are being prepared by the Illinois and Indiana delegates.

EXPERT ON ZONING TO ADDRESS COMMERCE CHAMBER

Zoning, about which little has been heard in this city since the appointment of a city zoning commission, will be the subject of the November membership meeting of the chamber of commerce with a supper at 6.15 Monday, Nov. 22, at the Wauregan house.

The speaker is to be Herbert S. Swan, zoning expert and consultant of New York city.

His wide experience and the knowledge gained through this experience, make him an authority on this subject.

On January 1, 1926, zoning in over 320 municipalities throughout the United States was in effect; protecting more than 24,000,000 citizens; and the number is increasing.

WEDDING

Bentley-Pritchard

Of the wedding of a former Norwich resident, Herbert Lowe Bentley, the Pawtucket Times of Oct. 30 says:

A wedding of interest took place in Park Place Congregational church Saturday morning at 11 o'clock when Miss Bessie Pritchard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pritchard, 133 Oakdale avenue was united in marriage to Herbert Louie Bentley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bentley of Hendricks street, Central Falls, formerly of Norwich, Conn. As Miss Pritchard entered with her father, who gave her in marriage, Edward Connelly played the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin." Miss Pritchard was preceded by Miss Mildred Baltqur as bridesmaid.

Prior to the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. David N. Beach, Jr., "O Promise Me" was sung by Mrs. Charles Curtis Shepard of Ayer, Mass., sister of the bride.

"SHEIK" LEONARD KNOCKS OUT SCHATRAW IN FIRST ROUND

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16.—Young Al Conley of the Coast Guard, state lightweight champion, won a technical knockout over Tommy Jarrett of New Haven in the sixth round when the referee, Jiger McCarthy stopped the fight to save Jarrett from further punishment here tonight. This bout was the main bout of 10 rounds.

Jarrett was unable to do much against the whirlwind attack of Conley who carried the fight to Jarrett from the first round. Conley brought the blood from Jarrett's mouth early in the fight and ruined punishment upon the New Haven boy who absorbed it as best he could until the middle of the sixth when the referee decided that Jarrett was in distress and unable to continue.

Sheik Leonard, state welterweight title-holder, after a lay off of nearly two years essayed a startling comeback when he made short work of Sailor Schatraw of the Sub Base, knocking the sailor out in the first round after two minutes and five seconds of the round had elapsed in the 4-round semi-final. The "Sheik" was in even better shape than when he quit the ring and showed it when he ore into Schatraw from the first tap of the gong and kept up a steady battering until the sailor was prone on the canvas. A short hard right to the jaw started the sailor wobbling and a terrific left to the stomach sent him down for the count. The Sheik after the fight did not even have his blond locks mussed and right now looks as if he could give any of the boys of his weight a busy evening.

Babe Slattery of New Haven, eccentric heavyweight, was under the impression that he could take all that Young Hartley of the Sub Base, who subbed for Young Cross, could hand out but found in the middle of the third round that Hartley had a mean right upper-cut that frequently found its mark with the result that Slattery stretched his length on the canvas for the long count. This bout was scheduled as a six rounder.

Ralph Sombardi of Bridgeport, who is a brother of Steve Smith and replica of said brother, and Kid Wagner of Taftville fought an interesting four round preliminary to a draw. Wagner showed considerable improvement over his previous battle at the Lyceum a month ago.

In the curtain raiser Young McCarthy of Norwich was awarded the decision over Young Eurk of Westerly in a fast and interesting four rounder. McCarthy looked very good and with good guidance in the ring should make a creditable ring record.

Owing to the inclement weather there was a disappointing crowd but those that did attend were well repaid for their braving of the storm.

HIGH PRICE OF TAKING YOUR GIRL TO THE GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP)—The 30,000 lucky sweeties on whose coat collars the Crimson of Harvard or the Blue of Yale will bloom on Saturday, will have cost their college beaux approximately $1,272,300 F. O. B. Yale bowl.

This estimate of the high cost of taking one's girl to the football game has been computed by sons of ER and John Harvard from whom the early season feminine football attendance has already taken a high toll.

"For the pleasure of hearing them say 'what is their little secret?' when the team goes in to a huddle, or 'why did he throw it away when he had it himself?' over the forward pass. We are paying out our papas' good money to the tune of $10 a quarter," groan the young men of heavy damages.

Tickets from New York, starting point for most New Haven rooters, on one of the special trains, $2.41 a piece, each way, or a total of $10.44 railroad fare for the New York, New Haven and Hartford per cap as the crowd flies.

Luncheon for two at the hotel on arrival, before game: $6.00.

Two tickets for the game: $20.00.

The violets or roses with which her lapel must be pinned (see above $5.00)

The "bought" taxi to and from stadium, (shared with classmate and girl) $4.00.

Incidentals, at game, souvenir programs, blue feathers, hot dogs, etc., $2.50.

Liquid nourishment depending on taste, $2.00 to $8.00, average $4.00.

Making a grand total for the afternoon of $42.44.

"And then there is yet the evening," say all the sad young men. "Women never know when they have had enough."

N. Y. COMMISSION SETS SEAL CLARKE-LA BARBA BOUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—(AP)—Suspending its policy of requiring test bouts for foreign challengers, the New York state athletic commission today approved a world's flyweight championship match between Elky Clarke of England and Fidel La Barba of California, the titleholder.

Endorsement of Clarke as an outstanding contender by Peg Bettison, president of the National Sporting club, of London, brought about a change in attitude by the board, which last week declined to sanction the match at Tex Rickard's request. Acting immediately after the board's approval, the Madison Square Garden promoter fixed January 1 for the contest.

Rickard has success on another application to promote a heavyweight battle between Paul Berlenbach, erstwhile light heavyweight champion, and Jack Sharkey, of Boston, the board deferring action to obtain additional information.

Red Chapman, of Boston, forwarded formal acceptance of a match with Benny Bass, of Philadelphia, which has been sanctioned as an elimination featherweight title bout. The board has indicated it will accept the winner of a contest between Honeyboy Finnegan of Boston and the Bass-Chapman survivor as champion.

BILL WAMBSGANSS IS RELEASED UNCONDITIONALLY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—(AP)—William Wambsganss, veteran infielder, was today given his unconditional release by Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics. Wamby came to the Athletics after the close of the 1925 season from the Boston Americans. He has the unique distinction of being the only player to make an unassisted triple play in a world's series accomplishing the feat as a member of the Cleveland team against the Brooklyn Nationals in 1920.

NO MORE BARNSTORMING BY FOREIGN ATHLETES

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16—(AP)—The Amateur Athletic union today put its foot down on further "barnstorming" trips by foreign athletic stars in the United States, at least for the period between now and the 1928 Olympic games.

Acting on the recommendations of its foreign relations committee, the convention of the national sports governing body rejected plans which contemplated visits to this country this winter by such European stars as Paavo Nurmi of Finland, Edwin Wide of Sweden and Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany.

Controversies which have grown out of Nurmi's 1925 visit here and the tour earlier this year of Charley Hoff, Norwegian pole vaulter, figured largely in the A. A. U. decision. To remove possible commercialism in connection with future visits of such stars, it was recommended by W. C. Prout of Boston, chairman of the foreign relations committee, that the A. A. U. have exclusive control of their trips and itineraries, rather than leaving them to the hands of an individual club or promoter.

The convention also barred all proposals for competition by American athletes abroad during the next year. This action cuts off contemplated visits of this country's talent to Japan, New Zealand, South Africa and the Scandinavian nations.

The only international event to escape the official axe is a visit here this winter by a team of amateur boxers representing Sweden and Denmark. This was authorized last year. The foreign team is expected late in December to compete in Boston, New York and Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Murray Hulbert of New York was re-elected president for a third term and Cincinnati selected for the 1927 convention.

Frederick W. Rubien, of New York was re-elected secretary for a thirteenth term.

BRITAIN'S GOLF CHALLENGE ACCEPTED BY AMERICANS

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—(AP)—Great Britain's challenge for an international golf match between professional teams in this country next July was accepted today by the Professional Golfers' association.

Tentative plans call for the match to be staged on a course in the Boston district prior to the open championship at Oakmont. It will be a return meeting, an American team headed by Walter Hagen having been defeated on British links last summer.

In its message of acceptance, the association will stipulate similar playing conditions to those which prevailed in the initial clash overseas. Two days of play between eight-man teams will be asked, one for individual matches at 36 holes, the other for four-ball matches over the same distance.

New membership regulations adopted today require prospective applicants to serve three years as caddie masters, assistant professionals or instructors before becoming eligible to join the organization.

ILLINOIS BARS DELANEY-REVERBERRI BOUT

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The Illinois state athletic commission refused today to sanction a ten-round fight between Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion and Orlando Reverberri at the Coliseum, November 26, the eve of the Army-Navy football game.

Chairman John Righeimer, after investigating Reverberri's record, ruled he would not be a suitable opponent. The Italian claims the championship of his country.

PENN TAKES PRINCETON DATE ON HARVARD SLATE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16.—(AP)—Harvard will resume football relations with the University of Pennsylvania next fall as a result of the break in athletic relations with Princeton, A two year home and home series with the Quaker city team on the dates vacated by Prineton's withdrawal from the big three was announced tonight by the athletic authorities here.

Harvard will journey to Franklin field for the first game of the series on November 5, 1927, and the following year Pennsylvania will play in the stadium here on November 10. No details of negotiations for the games were contained in the announcement, which came from Stanley De. J. Osborn, undergraduate football manager of Harvard last year and now in charge of the athletic board's publicity relations.

The acquisition of Pennsylvania again completes the Crimson's 1927 schedule, and gives it one of the most formidable lists of opponents a Harvard team has met in years.

Bowing to the demands of the middle west alumni, whose request for a home and home series with Michigan next year prompted the first rumors of a break with Princeton, two teams from that section appear on the schedule. They are Indiana and Purdue. The opening game comes with Vermont on October 1, at Cambridge, followed on successive Saturdays by Purdue, Holy Cross, Dartmouth and Indiana. The one away-from-home game permitted by the athletic board will be the Pennsylvania contest after which Brown and Yale come to Cambridge in that order to close the season.

JONES WORKS HIS MEN ON SLIPPERY FIELD

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 16—(AP)—Assuming Yale may have a wet field on which to battle the Crimson Saturday, "Tad" Jones and his assistants this afternoon refused to take their charges out of the driving rain that Swept Pratt field. The Blue regulars were given valuable experience in handling a slippery ball, and in running off plays in the uncertain footing of a sea of mud. They had a long signal drill and dummy scrimmage.

The veteran Larry Noble resumed his place at left halfback today, but it is not yet certain whether he will replace Holabird for Saturday's game. With him in the backfield were Captain Bunnell at quarterback, Kline at Fullback and Hoben at right halfback. The line went through the day's work without changes, and is expected to start against Harvard with Scott and Fishwick as ends, Richards and Benton tackles, Sturhahn and Webster guards and Look center.

Seven Yale players earned their first football letters in the Princeton game. They were Al Look, center, of Martha's Vineyard, Mass.; Behrens Ryan, tackle, of Short Hills, N. J.; Duncan Cox, fullback of St. Joseph, Mo.; and four halfbacks, Earl Goodwine, Jr., of West Lebanon, Ind., John Hoben, of Torrington, Conn., William Holabird, of Ferndale, Mich., and John Brandenburg, of Pineville, Ky.

Of the 13 other Elis who won letters in the game Captain Bunnell, Noble, Kline, Wadsworth, Richards and Sturhahn were earning their third "Y".

YALE-HARVARD TUSSLE WILL BE THE CONSOLATION GAME OF THE "BIG THREE"

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—(AP)—Yale and Harvard today pointed for their annual gridiron battle in the New Haven bowl as the saving climax to their most disastrous campaigns in the last ten years.

There will be no title at stake in the colorful struggle of the ancient rivals, for both have been beaten by Princeton in the last "big three" tie series and are out of the fight for eastern honors. But victory will hold a healing balm for many wounds experienced this fall in addition to brightening the outlook of at least one coaching regime.

Yale has not only reached the closing game of the most disappointing season since Tad Jones took over the reins at New Haven. But its present losing streak of four games is the longest old grads can remember in many years. In successive games, the Elf eleven has been trampled under foot by Brown, Army, Maryland and Princeton, being shut out in the first three.

Harvard has fared no better, losing four of its seven starts thus far. Geneva, Holy Cross, Princeton and Brown have taken the measure of the Crimson the Bruins inflicting a 21-0 defeat last Saturday.

Yale rules a 6-4 favorite, not only by reason of the Blue's show of strength against the Tigers last Saturday, but because Jones will have available what appears to be his most formidable array of stars since the Army game. Reports of a shake-up in the Harvard team and possible loss of regulars as a result of injuries also have tended to put the Cambridge team on the short end of the wagering.

As Yale and Harvard go through their last stiff workouts tomorrow, New York university will set out on the longest trip ever taken by a metropolitan eleven, entraining for the middle west to face the Nebraska Cornhuskers.

Twenty-seven players will be taken by Coach Chick Meehan on the invasion, which has for its objective the Violets ninth straight victory of the campaign. The squad will arrive Thursday afternoon in Chicago, where they will take a brief practice at Stagg field.

While the east's interest will be focused on these two games, also was promise of a stirring battle here between Fordham and Georgetown. The Carnegie Tech-West Virginia melee at Pittsburgh stood out as the only other important engagement in a day that will mark the closing of the season for many teams and a holiday for others which wind up on Thanksgiving day.

HORWEEN TO MAKE SWEEPING CHANGES IN TEAM

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16—(AP)—Head Coach Arnold Horween tonight informed the Harvard football squad that he was about to make a sweeping re-organization of the team. He said he was not prepared to announce the team that would face Yale in the season-end classic on Saturday for the reason that he did not yet know how the positions would be allotted.

The coach's announcement of a program which shattered Harvard traditions set on foot much speculation regarding the eleven which would start the Yale-Harvard game. It was said that Horween's action was based upon the disappointing showing made by the Crimson against Brown Saturday Only two men who started in that contest are sure to start on Saturday, it was said.

In the line the one player assured of a place is Charlie Pratt at right guard Captain Coady, who was hurt in the Princeton game, will play if his condition permits. In the backfield Sayles at fullback is said to be the single certainty.

TICKET SCALPERS ASK $75 FOR ARMY-NAVY TICKETS

CHICAGO, Nov. 16—(AP)—Ticket scalpers today were offering tickets for the Army-Navy football game, which the South park commission allotted at $10 and $15, as high as $60 and $75.

The journal sent a reporter to several agencies seeking tickets. At one office the broker offered him tickets at $30. At another agency the reporter was told that within a few days tickets would be available at from $60 to $75.

In the meantime Mrs. Mable Reinecke, internal revenue district collector, is considering ways and means of collecting the federal tax of ten per cent on scalped tickets at the brokers' prices.

PLAINFIELD OPENS BASKETBALL SEASON AT COMMUNITY HOUSE TONIGHT

Plainfield opens its basketball season tonight at the Community house with the Aetna team of Hartford, runners up in the Insurance league last season and with an enviable record against the state's best teams.

The lineup includes "Bob" Tobin of Chicago university, Macdonald of Andover, Brainard of Trinity, Magee of Southwestern university of Texas, Goodwin of Springfield college, Whitman Forest with K of C, Haynot, Crosby high school, Holmes of East Hartford high school.

Plainfield will be represented by the same team which made such an enviable record through New England last year. Namely—Normandin, Dissinger, Norris, Benson, Madden and Slanvinsky. The team will be strengthened by the addition of Mantelli of Hartford, leading forward and star on "The Dixies", of Hartford team, and Ballsiepor who played with the Co. G. team of So. Manchester, when the team won the state championship two years ago.

Plainfield is out to give the basketball fans some of the fastest basketball ever seen in this vicinity and some of the fastest teams obtainable have already been signed up to appear on the home floor. They include the Bristol Endees, state champions, Meriden Endees, New Britain Guards, So. Kingston, Fernwoods of New York, Waynes of Brooklyn.

All games will be preceded by the fast preliminary which will start at 8:00 sharp. The main game will start directly after the preliminary.

Manager Salisbury is doing all in his power to have the main game start at 8:45 o'clock and all contracts call for the visiting team to be in uniform at 8:30 or a forfeiture of part of the guarantee.

AGGIES TO PLAY RENSSELAER ON SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Nov. 16.—With the second eleven playing the Coast Guard academy at New London this afternoon, the Connecticut Aggie varsity was given a holiday from practice today.

But one more game remains on the Aggie schedule, and that is with Rensselaer at Storrs next Saturday. Coach Dole plans for nothing but light work for his men during this week, drill for the main part being confined to signals, dummy scrimmage, forward passing and kicking.

A year ago, Connecticut lost 13-7 to Rennsalaer at Troy, N. Y., and this season's Aggie eleven is primed to avenge that setback. Although not making a particularly impressive record this season, Rensselaer can be expected to furnish the Natmeggers with a stiff battle. Coach Dole believes the Aggies will have to play hard, fast football to win, and everything will be used in an attempt to close the season successfully with an impressive victory.

Williams, Aggie fullback who is tied for third place for individual scoring honors in the east, will have a final opportunity to boost his total on Saturday. Unless Rensselaer has a forward wall that can smother Williams, the Danielson boy will probably get away for long gains and touchdowns, for once by the line of scrimmage his combined weight, speed and shiftiness makes him a hard man for the secondary to pull down.

Bill Knaut, who alternates at half and quarter on the varsity is at present confined to the college infirmary, and it is doubtful if he will be able to play Saturday. Schofield, regular quarter, is also bothered by an old knee injury, and with basketball season approaching, Coach Dole will not use the Waterbury boy any more than is absolutely necessary. Just who Dole will use in case Knaut and Schofield are kept on the sidelines is hard to say at this time, though it is certain that Powers, who has shown a marked improvement in running with the ball from a halfback position, will see plenty of action. Krayeskie at quarter is another of the second team that has developed rapidly, and Dole may use him Saturday against the Engineers.

"ALL BUNK" SAYS INGRAM REGARDING EAST CONFERENCE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 16—(AP)—"The proposed eastern conference of football teams is all bunk," Commander Jones H. Ingram, athletic director of the United States naval academy, declared today on his return from the Army-Notre Dame game in New York. "Such a plan," he said, "referring to a proposed conference patterned after the western conference to replace the smashd big three, would never work out to anyone's satisfaction. There are too many schools in the east and the thing is bound to become unwieldy."

The commander added that "there are too many traditional reasons why the schedule as now arranged between eastern teams should be retained." He said he was in favor of the appointment of a prominent athletic personage, or a commission of three, to pass on the elegibility of players and officials.

YALE TO HAVE HOCKEY TEAM THIS SEASON

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 16—(AP)—Yale will have hockey this season, unless unforseen delays prevent completion of the new arena, university authorities announced tonight. The first home game of the season is scheduled against St. Nicholas on January 14.

Even if the arena should not be completed, the Yale Athletic association announced, several out-of-town games will be scheduled and an effort made to keep the sport alive. Practice is expected to begin early in December in the Eastern States exposition building in Springfield, Mass. On December 15 the team will go to Princeton for several days' practice on the Hobey Baker rink before vacation, returning to Princeton on December 27. The season is expected to open in Princeton or New York on January 2. The Blue will meet the Tiger at Princeton January 15.

NO PRIZES AWARDED YET IN THE TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Late last August the Norwich Twilight league closed its season but to awarded which is causing no little comment and inquiries by managers of teams in the league as well as players. Furthermore those managers that did post forfeit money say that this has not been returned to them upon completion of their contracts. Just where or what the matter is cannot be determined. The Duwell club sponsors of the league claim that they can do nothing until the arbitration board has met and decided certain technicalities relative to the season. The arbitration board claims that they have nothing to go by as they have no averages or season's records. The official scorer says that he lacks two games to complete his books and until those two games are located he can do nothing.

So all in all it looks as though there was nothing doing for a time yet. Well anyway the prize money will come in handy for the Christmas presents.

Licenses granted to pheasant hunters in South Dakota this year brought more than $100,000 into the state treasury.

More Than the Finest Tobaccos

Smoke a Lucky Strike and you will appreciate its difference from other cigarettes.

To begin with, Lucky Strikes are made from the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. Properly aged. Perfectly blended. Even if we stopped there, Lucky Strikes would rank as the best cigarettes. But in addition, so as to achieve three unique results, Lucky Strike tobacco is toasted for 45 minute

This extra process gives you

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

Thus the toasting process is an addition. It adds a unique and distinct improvement to a cigarette that has already been made from the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. It is the reason millions prefer Lucky Strikes.

PERCY COE EGGLESTON, NEW LONDON LEAVES HIS ESTATE TO HIS FAMILY

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16.—The will of Percy Coe Eggleston, former purchasing agent of the Corticelli Silk company and former holder of numerous public offices, was admitted to probate this morning. The instrument, with codicil annexed, bequeaths all of testator's property which has not yet been inventoried, to his widow, Emily Wells Eggleston and his two daughters, Misses Virginia and Katherine Eggleston. The will was drawn Oct. 17, 1914, and was witnessed by Hadlai A. Hull, Carrie P. Bailey and C. Hadlai A. Hull. The codicil was drawn April 5, 1924, and substituted the testator's daughter, Miss Virginia Eggleston as co-executrix, acting with her mother, in place of Benjamin L. Armstrong, who was appointed executor in the will. The codicil was witnessed by M. Frances Stevens, Frank L. McGuire and C. Hadlai Hull.

The will bequeaths to the testator's wife the entire estate, both real and personal, to be held in trust. The trustee is authorized and empowered to invest the said estate and to use and expend the net income and avails, thereof, for the maintenance and support of the widow as long as she lives and remains his widow. Authorization is made for the sale of such part of the estate as is deemed necessary to provide for the comfort and support of the widow. The remainder of the interest in the estate after the termination of the trust is bequeathed to testator's daughters, Virginia and Katherine Eggleston. Should the widow remarry one-fourth of the estate is bequeathed to the widow and her heirs and the remaining three-quarters is bequeathed to testator's daughters, share and share alike.

The testator has made provisions for the distribution of the estate in the event of his daughters not surviving at the time of the termination of the trust. In that event two-thirds of the estate is bequeathed to the widow and the remaining one-third is bequeathed to testator's brothers, Julian and Edward Eggleston and his sister, Mrs. Blanche Ferrin. In the event that the widow and daughters had pre-deceased testator, the estate would have been distributed among relatives.

COLLEGE GIRLS' ANNOYER HAS TO PAY A FINE OF $50

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16.—Students from Connecticut College for Women, both seniors and juniors, manifested the courage today that indicates that they are of a new class of females for five of them appeared in the police court and courageously and positively accused Eric Neidman, a young man who has been in this country only since last September, and who is employed as a draftsman at the Ship and Engine company, of having annoyed them and to have gone so far in his method that he insisted at least one of them. They described his clothing and said he had a horrid face when they saw him at the college campus and when he brushed [illegible] one of them. He had followed them along Mohegan avenue. When the young ladies became convinced that Neidman was pursuing them they quickened their pace, but he was so persistent that he stepped livelier, also. The girls complained to the school authorities and they to the night watchman and the latter pursued the annoyer. In turn the local police were notified and Patrolman John Sullivan, on duty near the college commandeered an auto operated by a navy officer and the man was sought, the officer having obtained a good description of him. Neidman was soon overtaken and brought in to the presence of the girls. They identified him positively and described his clothing while he was under a strong electric light. Neidman denied that he had offended, but it was only a half-hearted denial. He admitted in court that he was in the vicinity as he was accused of having been by the young women, saying that he came from Groton after a visit to Noank, where he drank some liquor. Then, he said, he went to the vicinity of Riverside park, which is near the college campus, endeavoring to walk off a headache. He admitted also that he passed the girls and that he might have rubbed his arm against them, but he would not admit no more. He was fined $50 for his conduct. So his trip and his headache were pretty expensive for him.

Hugh King, a bargeman, came ashore with $20 in his duds. Soon after that he was found by the police down and out and with only 85 cents in his pockets. He was allowed to go aboard his barge, but he was given some sage advice.

Morris Lampert was charged with the theft of machinery from a boat, but the case did not get to a trial, as the attorneys for accused asked for a continuance that they might get expert evidence from Buffalo as to the value of the property taken. The state alleges the value to be $300. Lampert has not yet denied his guilt. The case will come to trial next Tuesday. Lampert is held in a bond of $50.

An automobile owned by Dr. Frank M. Dunn, 28 Broad street, was badly damaged last night when crashed into by a car driven by an unknown driver, the latter driving away following the crash and after his auto had nearly overturned. The colliding automobile came down Broad street about 11 o'clock and when it reached the residence of Dr. Dunn the driver apparently lost control of the steering gear, for the auto crashed against the physician's auto, which was parked beside the curb. The former auto then continued across the highway and against the curb, barely escaping overturning. The driver then guided the auto to Cottage street, where he disappeared down the grade and was lost in the darkness. The police were notified of the driver's guilt of evasion of responsibility and a search was made for him. Witnesses of the crash stated that the driver of the colliding auto was apparently a colored man.

Tonight it became known that the colliding automobile is owned by Charles Lindsay, 54 Elinman street, a sailor stationed at the submarine base. Lindsay went to the police station and explained that his automobile was used last night by his brother-in-law, Peter Davis, 311 West 144th street, New York city. He said that when Davis returned with the automobile last night he did not refer to the accident, but that this morning, when Davis was about to go to the union station to board a train for New York, he informed Lindsay of the accident. Linsay stated that he would bear any expense incurred as a result of the crash, if such a procedure was agreeable to Dr. Dunn. Whether the police will prosecute Davis for evasion of responsibility is not known.

The condition of Mrs. Lewis Crandall, 289 Williams street, who was operated upon at Home Memorial hospital yesterday for appendicitis, is reported this afternoon as being comfortable.

John Sweeny, dog warden, was today re-appointed constable for a term of one year by City Manager William A. Holt. Mr. Sweeny's appointment as such officer expired this month.

Michael J. Sullivan, 34 Alger place, made complaint to the police this morning that a spare tire was stolen from his automobile last Sunday night while the auto was parked on Masonic street.

Miss Helga Rasmussen, 184 Thames street, and Raymond O'Neill, 852 Main street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The Raymond & Alexander company today sold to the Hawthorne Sand and Blind company, the buildings and property which the latter concern has occupied on Shaw street several years.

Louise Bishop has sold a building lot, corner of Phillips street and Sixth avenue, to William F. Fargo.

STORM CRIPPLES SERVICE —ELECTRIC LIGHTS FAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16.—The electric lights provoked all users of them, this afternoon and this evening, for the principal streets were left in darkness, or at least the residences and the stores along them were so left. The theatres and the armory were dark for half an hour at a time when the audiences were assembling. Lucrezia Bori was at the armory in the course which Connecticut College is sponsoring, and at the Capitol and the Empire theatre all was in darkness. An act was on at the Capitol and a couple, man and woman, made the best of an awkward situation by jollying the audience. At the Empire, Stygian darkness prevailed and the audience became restive for a while. The store window lights are on a separate circuit, so that the illumination from them relieved the situation a little.

CRESCENT BEACH COTTAGE DAMAGED BY FIRE TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 16—The summer residence of Edward Rose of Springfield, Mass., at Crescent beach, was damaged by fire of an unknown origin early this morning and but for the discovery of the blaze by residents of the colony the house must have been destroyed. The fire was discovered about 1 o'clock when sparks were seen issuing from the roof, close to the chimney. A bucket brigade was formed and the fire attacked, but in spite of the great quantity of water emptied upon the roof the fire gained headway. A telephone message was sent to Niantic fire station, requesting assistance. An alarm was sent in and was responded to by a score of members of the company, who were conveyed to Crescent beach in the fire company's pumper. On the arrival of the firemen the fire was burning briskly in the upper part of the house, but a liberal quantity of chemicals sufficed to extinguish it. How the fire started is a mystery, for so far as is known the cottage has not been tenanted since the Rose family returned to Springfield in September, although several residents at the beach were of the opinion that members of the Rose family spent last Saturday and Sunday at the cottage. Another probable cause of the fire is advanced through the theory that prowlers gained entrance to the house and were careless in burning matches.

The grist for the session of the police court tomorrow started this afternoon and as a result of arrests made there will be several prosecuted for violation of the city's traffic laws and for intoxication. One of the auto law violators is Michael Robella, 2 Belden street, who was arrested by Traffic Officer John Courtney for parking his automobile longer than 30 minutes on State street, a provision of the city ordinances that local drivers continue to violate in spite of the many prosecutions for this offense. A drunk was picked up on North Bank street by Patrolman George Cockell, when the fellow was in danger of harm because of his unsteady gait.

News has been received in New London of the sudden death Friday, at Montclair, N. J., of Capt. Harold K. Hines, U. S. N. Capt. Hines, 59, was well known in New London, being the husband of Eleanor Bancroft Hines, a former resident of this city and brother-in-law of Mrs. Blanche Bancroft Colt, widow of William B. Colt and Mrs. Charlotte Bancroft Hankey, wife of Attorney Philip S. Hankey. The funeral was held at Montclair Episcopal church yesterday morning and burial was in Bowling Green, Ky.

Because of the heavy seas and terrific gale outside this port many of the craft, especially tugs and their tows put into this harbor to escape the fury of the storm and as a result the lower harbor is well occupied by boats, most of which are bound to eastern New England ports.

Jacob Friedman has sold a two family house at Mystic to Alexander and Louise Weisemeyer.

A young girl who declined to give her name was thrown violently to the pavement this afternoon late when struck from a store on the north side of the street to the south side and came in contact with a passing auto. The accident was due wholly to her heedlessness, so she would not make complaint.

Three girls escaped from the State Farm for Women this evening—Florence Roberts, Mabel Bozzell and Mary Martinelli. The weather was such that they must have found shelter close by the farm or they would have been drenched provided they did not have conveyance to take them over the country roads. It must be that the girls do not like the state farm else so many of them would not take leave as unceremoniously as they do. None of this group was from New London.

It is understood that the city of New London and the town of Groton will make a contract with Messrs Crandall and Sheahan to operate the Groton ferry during the ensuing year, provided the lessees accept the amount paid them during the year to December 1st, plus the excess charge for coal. The lessees wanted an increase to accept the contract, but the lessors regard that as an exorbitant sum.

Members of Soulah lodge, N. E. O. P. have accepted an invitation to visit the lodge at Niantic Thursday. They will go from New London by bus, leaving at 7.30.

Theodore Constantine, a well known business man of this city, who has been touring Greece, France, Italy and England, will return here this week. Mr. Constantine has large property interests in Norwich also.

Farmers who raise turkeys say that the crop this year will be larger than in many years. Conditions for raising the birds have been favorable and the birds have prospered as a result.

Members of the fire department of this city say that it is so long since they have had a run that they are getting rusty. Property owners are hoping that the time will be lengthened and that the fire alarm will not be sounded during the winter.

Half a dozen little stores in this city are reported to be for sale.

With Thanksgiving only ten days away there is not a turkey shoot announced in this section. There frequently were a dozen such competition for the national bird in olden times.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

"MEN OF PURPOSE" OF GREAT EDUCATIONAL VALUE

Nearly three years have been devoted to the assembling of "Men of Purpose" that is to be shown by the Richard E. Hourigan post, No. 594, V. F. W., at the Breed theatre for three days starting Thursday. The film records covering the activities of the armies and navies of every country that took part in the World war were carefully studied, so that only the most thrilling, interesting, and educational scenes appear. All the scenes with the exception of the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand at Serajevo, Serbia, are official and authentic, having been taken by the photographic sections that were attached to the forces of the allies and central powers. The story is based on the official records and reports of the generals in command. Wherever the picture has been shown, it has been acclaimed as being the most remarkable and most masterful presentation in screen history—the one screen classic—a film monument to the manhood of America.

Scenes of every division of the U. S. troops are seen in actual action, attacking, lashing, blocking, and breaking the famous Hindenburg line, a million Americans in the drive on St. Mihiel, the battle of Belleau Woods, Soissons, Thiaucourt, Montfaucon, Meuse-Argonne, and in the Argonne Forest; wave after wave of Americans break through the German lines, the hand to hand fighting, and the scene showing a doughboy armed only with a pickaxe cleaning out a German machine gun nest, fairly scream with heroism, and will live long in the memory of every American who sees this wonder picture. Not only are the Americans shown, but the French on the Marne, and elsewhere, England and her colonies driving the Germans from Mons, Ypres, Armentieres, Somme, Vimy Ridge and the Turks from Palestine; the Russian, Belgium, Roumanian, and Italian scenes are also vivid in their enlightment as to what these heroic countries did to stem the enemy's advance. The German scenes are astounding in their vastness, millions of troops goose stepping through Belgium, and in action on all the battlefronts, the Austrian, Bulgarian and Turkish armies—all are shown in this tremendous spectacle of the complete picturization of the World war.

Broadway Theater

Building up to one of the most dramatic and spectacular climaxes ever filmed, with a freight locomotive racing on a parallel track to overtake a Special running wild and with a young engineer's courageous jump from one roaring monster to the other, The Midnight Flyer, a sensational melodrama of railroad life in the feud-ridden mountains of West Virginia, comes to the Broadway theater Thursday for a three day showing, its first in this locality. The new F. O. E. Gold Bond Special is an adaptation by J. Grubb Alexander of two stories from the pen of Arthur Guy Empey, and it provides both action and drama of an unusual sort. The characterization alone would make it stand out in a class by itself. An all star cast in which Cullen Landis, Dorothy Devore, Buddy Post, Charles McDowell, Barbara Tennant, Elmo Billings and Alphons Ethier are the leading lights interprets the play. Tom Forman, who directed The Midnight Flyer was fortunate in having the best of material and a corking cast with which to work, and he has made the most of both.

Palace Theater

The Sixth Commandment which is the chief screen attraction at the Palace theater, is a story of the young man, who brought up in a beautiful home environment, has a change of mind when he believes that the girl he loves so dearly has become a girl of folly and he starts to throw discretion to the winds when the unexpected happens. The Sixth Commandment in telling a big romance has a thread of adventure woven throughout that makes it all the more exciting and interesting. In the cast appear William Faversham, Charlotte Walker, Edmund Breese, John Bohn, J. Neil Hamilton, Colt Albertson, Kathlyn Martyn, Sara Wood, Consuelo Flowerton and Charles Emmet Mack. It was directed by William Christy Cabanne.

Millionaires, the Warner Bros. production featuring George Sidney, Louise Fasenda and Vera Gordon, opened at the Palace theater, which means that picture-goers are being offered a movie treat in this entertaining comedy-drama.

Herman Raymaker has so skillfully and understandingly handled the direction of Millionaires, that even while you are laughing at the blunders of this East Side family suddenly come into wealth, you are sincerely sorry for their difficulties and mistakes in their attempt to bombard Fifth Avenue's social circles.

The supporting cast is an excellent one. Helene Costello and Arthur Lubin make a charming pair of young lovers; Jane Winton a fascinating modern Lorelei, and Nat Carr an amusing stock salesman.

NO WOMAN CAN KEEP HOUSE EFFICIENTLY

Without Good Health

MRS. FRANK DENDORE
633 PIERCE AVENUE, LANCASTER, OHIO

Four Walls Can Make a House, but it takes a Woman to Make a Home

To be a successful homemaker, a woman must guard her health. When mother is not well, the home is upset. Women everywhere are learning through their own personal experience, as these women did, the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lancaster, Ohio.—"For ten years after my marriage I had poor health. I was on a visit to my sister in Utica, Michigan, and she had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Her husband got me a bottle and I took it and felt so much better that I got a second one. Now, whenever I feel run-down I take the Vegetable Compound and soon feel all right again. I have had three little girls in the last six years and do all my housework, sewing, washing, and ironing. My time is pretty well taken up, but I will answer any letters I receive."—Mrs. FRANK DENDORE, 633 Pierce Avenue, Lancaster, Ohio.

Sturgis, Michigan.—"I am very thankful for what your medicine has done for me and have recommended it to others. I took it to give me strength before my baby was born. I would have to stop work and lie down sometimes all the afternoon. I felt as if I did not care whether anything was done or not. I got tired out so easily. One day I found a little book on my porch and that night I showed it to my husband and he went down town and got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The medicine has helped me so much that I was soon able to do my work, and when my baby was born, my nurse, Mrs. Forbes, said it was the easiest birth she had ever attended. I will be more than pleased if I am helping someone else by giving my testimonial."—Mrs. EDWARD PERKINS, 306 Surprise Ave., Sturgis, Michigan.

MARKET WAS FIRM.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Stock prices barely held their ground today as trading resolved into an uninteresting tug of war between opposing speculative factions. Higher money rates continued to cast a shadow over the market which could not be wholly dispelled by the recent series of larger dividends and the favorable construction placed upon the Standard Oil company's $200,000,000 financing programme.

Efforts to bid up U. S. Steel on the theory that it would swing into line with the more generous dividend policies adopted by other important corporations were vitiated by a statement of Chairman E. H. Gary that neither extra nor increased payments had been considered. After selling at a new high on the current movement at 158 3-4 the stock fell back at the close to 156 7-8, more than a point below the previous close. Other steel shares were irregular.

Dealings in the general run of stocks were somewhat restricted by the maintenance of a 5 per cent. rate for call funds.

A revival of pool operations was suggested by the execution of large buying orders for some of the popular industrials in the final few minutes of trading. News of an important contract for locomotives was the signal for a spirited demonstration in the Baldwin which lifted the stock to a 1926 top price at 129 3-4 although it fell back two points before the close for a net gain of 2 3-4. Woolworth rallied 5 points to 191 and General Electric, United Drug, South Porto Rico Sugar and Timken Roller Bearing were strong.

Under cover of these advances, selling activities proceeded quietly in other quarters. U. S. Rubber closed nearly 4 points lower at 60 1-4, apparently in reflection of lower tire price, and declines of 1 to 3 points were recorded by Case Threshing Machine, International Mercantile Marine preferred, Pierce Arrow preferred, International Combustion Engineering and Atlantic Refining. Standard Oil of New Jersey shares were little affected by the huge programme and as extra common dividend as an expression of confidence in the business outlook.

St. Paul issues were among the most active of the rail shares, gaining more than a point in response to further reorganization progress.

Commodity prices tended toward lower levels, with wheat futures losing 1 to 2 cents a bushel on higher estimates of the Canadian and Australian crops. Cotton and coffee quotations turned irregularly lower but sugar held steady.

Trading in foreign exchanges was accelerated by a spurt of nearly three-fourths of a cent in the Norwegian krone to a new high level about 26.70 cents, within a cent of parity. Other European currencies were firm, with demand sterling holding a round $4.84 3-4 and French francs above 3 1-2 cents.

Following the continuance of the 5 per cent. charge for call money, time funds were marked up to 4 3-4 per cent. for all maturities as compared with a previous range of 4 5-8 to 4 3-4 per cent. Prime commercial paper rates which had been ruling at 4 1-2 per cent., however, were quoted as low as 4 1-4.

STORM WORKS HAVOC WITH LINES OF CITY GAS & ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT

High wind that preceded and then accompanied a driving rain storm that hit the city about 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon began to get in its work on the city gas and electric department wires about 5 o'clock and the down business circuit winked out at that time, leaving the greater part of the stores and business streets in darkness until about 6.45 when the trouble had been repaired. While this circuit was still in trouble, the Laurel Hill circuit also went out and the West Side was put in darkness when a big limb from a tree on West Main street near Backus corner blew off and brought down with it all the wires within reach. Fortunately all the trouble was exterior to the power plant.

In restaurants and stores where business was continued while the electricity was gone, the proprietors fell back upon gas, lamps and candles until the electric current was restored to them. In the streets the headlights of automobiles illuminated the darkness amid the flooding sheets of rain.

At The Bulletin office on Franklin street, where there was no electric light or power from 5 o'clock to 6.45, a big handicap in getting out the Wednesday morning paper was experienced as over an hour and a half was lost in the preparation of copy and 30 minutes on each of the five linotype machines in setting copy, amounting to a loss of two hours and a half in setting type, thus seriously curtailing the output of the morning issue.

Search for the trouble, which was the most extensive to pile up at one time upon the city department for a considerable period, was begun under the direction of N. C. Pierce, superintendent of electrical distribution, and two main points of trouble were located in short circuits near the Marguerite building on North Main street and in the rear of St. Patrick's church on Broadway. These operated to put the down town circuit out of business. Repairs were effected as quickly as possible.

Laurel Hill was dark because a fuse blew out from some unknown cause, but this was quickly restored when a new fuse was put in.

On West Main street where the wires were brought down by the limb of a tree, the lines were cleared of the fallen branches and repairs were made to restore the current in that section.

The telephone company also reported considerable trouble from poles that were blown down, some of them in the city, but mostly in the outlying districts, resulting in broken wires and disabled lines.

Due to a tangle of wires where the poles were blown down in Williamantic near the thread mill bridge, the trolley company had the power shut off northerly from South Windham on the Willimantic line, so that it would be safe for men to work in clearing streets. Trolley service to Willimantic was not resumed till the 9.45 trip.

TO ELIMINATE POLLUTION FROM OXOBOXO RIVER

Definite steps to eliminate polluting materials from the Oxoboxo river in New London county, are to be taken in the immediate future, it was said by Brigadier-General Sanford H. Wadhams, director of the state water commission, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The necessary procedures for doing away with the pollution will be brought about by co-operation between the state water commission and manufacturers having plants along the river, it was said. A survey made by the commission's engineers is said to have shown that much can be done to remedy the present condition.

In explaining the situation and the work which is to be done to remedy it, Brig.-Gen. Wadhams said, "during the past summer the manufacturers located on the Oxoboxo river experienced much difficulty in their plans due to pollution of the river water. The river, which is a short one, with a considerable number of manufacturing plants along its course, represents that type of stream which may be classed as over-crowded for the reason that with the present volume of stream flow it can no longer dispose of (or oxidize) the waste which it receives. Therefore, the remedy must lie in reducing the amount of waste through introduction of the chemical and mechanical measures necessary.

MYSTIC INDUSTRIAL CO. INCREASES CAPITAL STOCK

The authorized capital of the Mystic Industrial Co., Inc., of Stonington, has been increased from $170,000 to $300,000, according to a certificate filed with the secretary of state at Hartford. Enough of the new stock will be issued at once to cover the company's indebtedness, and the remainder will be issued as the company expands, John Rossie, a director, said Tuesday. Mr. Rossie said that when the concern some time ago made several additions to the plant the capital stock had all been disposed of and it was necessary to borrow money to complete the alterations. In order to pay off the sums borrowed, he said, the directors of the concern had agreed to increase the capital stock.

The additions referred to by Mr. Rossie were small ones that were made from time to time to the main plant. They were for the most part, small structures built to house various pieces of machinery. The last addition was made about five years ago.

Mr. Rossie added that no further alterations or additions were planned for the present time, and that the capital stock remaining after the payment of the firms indebtedness would be held for future use should necessity require it.

BUILDING LOAN ASSOCIATION HAS $335,000 LOANED

Notwithstanding the severe storm on Tuesday evening there was a good attendance at the monthly meeting of the shareholders of the Norwich Building and Loan association which was held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

The treasurer's report showed the activities of the past month and report was made that the loans now amount to over $335,000. New applications for loans were received and referred to the board of management.

At the meeting of the board of management which followed, the secretary, Henry D. Johnson, reported upon the loans which had been consummated during the past month and the same were approved. Reports of committees were presented and approved.

The applications for loans were referred to appraisers and if approved will be completed as funds become available.

President E. O. Rodier was empowered to appoint a committee of five to arrange for the opening of the 24th. series on January 1st. The 1st series will mature on July 1, 1926.

MAKING RESERVATIONS FOR LEGION'S PARIS TRIP

Reservations for the journey of the American Legion to Paris in 1927 was opened Tuesday it was announced by Samuel Jennes, chairman of "On to Paris" committeed. Two years of intensive preparation for the movement of 30,000 veterans to France in 1927 has made possible the issuance of reservations covering steamship travel, housing in Paris and battlefield and cemetery tours to Legionnaires making application commencing today.

A magnificent fleet of ships selected from seven great trans-Atlantic steamship lines await the date of embarkation of the Legionnaires for the second A. E. F. Mr. Jennes says.

The number of pensions and hotels in Paris and steamships available definitely limit the number of Legionnaires who can be handled in the second A. E. F. to 30,000.

A warning was issued that Legionnaires, Paris bound, who wish to make assured a place in their state delegations should get their reservations in at once. The 30,000 available reservations have been allocated in quotas to the various states. An efficiency depository for the savings clubs of the Legion has been appointed in all the leading cities of the United States. No reservations will be made after May 15, 1927, it was announced.

Almost 15,000 coupon requests for information have already been filled out and mailed to the France convention committee, national headquarters of the American Legion, by veterans planning to make the Paris journey, it was announced. Analysis of the coupons sent in indicate the majority of veterans planning to be a part of the second A. E. F. desire a most comfortable passage, selecting a grade of accommodation costing about $250.

Information concerning reservations in the second A. E. F. will be supplied by the France convention committee, national headquarters, Indianapolis, Ind., or the France convention office of the state. Approximately $1,000,000 will be saved Legionnaires making the trip by agreement of foreign countries to accept American Legion certificates without passport visa charge.

Freeman of New London, successful in his candidacy for re-election to congress from the second district, spent $502.01 during the recent campaign, according to a statement filed with the secretary of state at Hartford. Of the total, $50 was given to the local republican town committee, and the remainder to the republican congressional committee for general expenses.

The expenses of Congressman John Q. Tilson, of New Haven, re-elected from the third district, totaled $2,266.93, the report filed by his political agent, Mayor John B. Tower of New Haven, shows.

Benjamin W. Alling of New Britain, successful republican candidate for attorney-general, spent $281, his report shows.

SETTLEMENT EFFECTED IN JEFFERS- M'SHANE SUIT

The case of Catherine Jeffers again Charles P. McShane, both of New London, which came up in the court of common pleas before Judge Charles B. Waller at New London late Monday afternoon was settled after a conference of attorneys for both sides. Attorney Thomas E. Troland appeared for the plaintiff and Attorney S. Victor Prince for the defendant.

The plaintiff sought $1,000 damages and equitable relief by having a bond for deed, alleged to have contained an error, corrected, to state the proper intentions of the plaintiff and defendant regarding the sale of property in Connecticut avenue.

The plaintiff alleged that she agreed to purchase the defendant's property for $8,500 but when she had signed the bond for deed, it was found to contain an error which brought the purchase price up several thousands of dollars. Also, she alleged, that $1,000 had been paid on account and that the defendant had retained it although the papers of sale were incomplete due to the misunderstanding regarding the purchase price.

Will Inspect State Police

State Police Commissioners Robbins B. Stoeckel of Hartford, Frederick M. Salmon of Westport and Col. Ernest L. Isbell of New Haven will conduct the annual inspection of the state police barracks and personnel at Groton this (Wednesday) afternoon. Many improvements have been made at the barracks during the past year and it is expected the commissioners will find the Groton barracks to rank with the best in the state in equipment, personnel and smartness.

The Young Mother.

The ills of infants and children should be so well known to the youngest of mothers that a reminder or a repetition of the symptoms of illness seems unnecessary, yet there are some mothers who overlook a feverish condition, a little colic, or a disposition to be irritable. If not corrected they may lead to serious sickness. And to correct them, to bring Baby back to its happy self, is so easy by the use of Castoria—a medicine prepared just for infants and children. It will regulate the bowels (not force them), aid digestion and so bring quiet and rest.

Fletcher's Castoria has been doing this for over 30 years; regulating the stomach and bowels of infants and children. It has replaced the nauseating Castor Oil, so-called Soothing Syrups, poisonous Paregoric and other vicious concoctions in the homes of true and honest mothers—mothers who love their children.

Those mothers will give their babies foods and medicines especially prepared for infants and children.

To avoid imitations always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

PREPARING TO ORGANIZE CITY PINOCHLE LEAGUE

Teams to compete for the city pinocle championship have so far been entered by Duwells, Odd Fellows Grotto, Foresters, Polishers Union and Eagles and a meeting is to be held this (Wednesday) evening at the Eagles home by the committee in charge of the preliminary work of organizing a city league. It is hoped by the committee that the Arcanum club, Moose, Colonial club, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Junior branch, Sons of Hermann, will be heard from and that all these organizations will have a representative at the meeting, because it is the intention of the committee to prepare a schedule so as to have the league start next week at the latest.

The silver loving cup to be competed for is donated by the Duwell club. Another feature of this tournament will be a banquet for all teams entering the league and playing the schedule to a finish.

The committee at this time extends an invitation to any other organization that would care to send a representative to this meeting for final action.

As soon as he learned what the trouble was, Mr. Zagaro started to remove the burning soot from the base of the chimney. There was no damage.

Makes Hair Behave But Doesn't Show!

There's a way to keep your hair just so, without any of that objectionable, "plastered-down" look. Just use a few drops of Danderine—comb it through hair, or use a Danderine-dampened towel—you'll be amazed at the way your hair then behaves, and its beautiful lustre!

MONEY IN NEW LONDON BANK FIGURES IN PROBATE TANGLE

Refusal of Sarah E. Rathburn to change her name to Sarah E. Swan, as requested in the will of Daniel Swan, who died 47 years ago, has resulted in a legal tangle in the probate court at New Haven.

For nearly half a century, Sarah Rathburn acted as executrix and beneficiary of the estate of Swan and the failure to carry out some of the terms of the will was not discovered until recently, when the executor of the estate of Sarah Rathburn, who died July 9 last, found a sum of $5,000 idle and accumulating interest since 1897 in a New London bank. The amount now totals more than $12,000.

The sum of $5,000 was ordered set aside by Swan for financial aid to his brothers and sisters should they need it. The interest on the money was to go to Sarah Rathburn as compensation for her custody of the fund. The money was deposited in the New London bank and never touched.

This is only incidental, however, to the real contest over $56,000 left by Swan to Sarah Rathburn on the condition that she change her name in his honor. This she never did.

OBSTACLES IN PATHWAY OF NEW ENGLAND INDUSTRIES

Explained in Reports of Research Committee to Delegates Arriving in Hartford For Second Conference of the New England Council—Some New England Cotton Mills Are Using Antiquated Equipment and Complicated Methods of Distribution—About 1,000 Delegates Will Attend, Representing Every Industrial Part of the New England States.

HARTFORD, Nov. 17—(AP)—Obstacles in the pathway of progress of New England industries were explained through research committee reports handed today to delegates arriving for the second conference of the New England council which opens for a two days' session here tomorrow. The committee also told of methods for overcoming retarding factors.

Summarizing the reports delegates were given these key-lines of the surveys:

In cotton dress goods some New England mills are using antiquated equipment, and complicated and outgrown methods of distribution, making sales stimulation difficult.

In the shoe industry improved selling methods are needed to enable New England plants to meet competition.

In knit goods New England is increasing plants faster than the south, retailers are buying much New England-made underwear except silk underwear, but New England-made hosiery is in a weaker position than underwear.

The research committee, however, had this to say from other angles: Style goods predominate in New England manufacture of shoes, knit goods and cotton dress goods, and if New England is to maintain its lead it is essential that constant study be made of "modern styling methods." New England also is making one-third of all shoes produced in the United States but New York and Missouri have shown the greatest growth in production in the past 15 years.

Delegates through the reports were told as to the future of industries that success or failure, depends upon executive initiative rather than on New England conditions, and that emphasis on style minimizes the importance of price to buyers of hosiery and underwear.

The reports went to delegates through A. Lincoln Filene, of Boston, chairman of the research committee, and which claimed for them that such reports were the first in the United States in an endeavor to stimulate industries of a region by getting the attitude of retailers towards the products of their territory. The reports were prepared by co-operation with the manufacturers and will be taken up for discussion at Friday's session.

The incoming delegates tonight had taken up hotel accommodations and when the session is opened tomorrow it is expected that about 1,000 will be present representing every industrial part of the New England states.

Opening of an exhibition of publicity material of the New England states communities and railroads, featured the eve of the opening of the conference. The entire main lobby of the Hotel Bond, where headquarters have been established, is given over to this display.

Leaflets, brochures, pamphlets, maps, drawings, photographs and placards describing New England's manifold activities and resources are included. Books and pamphlets descriptive of some one or another phase of New England life are heaped on tables beneath the exhibits.

PUTNAM AND WILLIMANTIC STRIVING FOR INDUSTRIES

HARTFORD, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Seven Connecticut towns and cities are included in the New England communities who hare doing something to attract and retain industry, according to a report, made public tonight, on the results of an inquiry by the New England council's committee on public relations and community organization. They are Bridgeport, Danbury, Naugatuck, New Haven, Putnam, Torrington and Willimantic.

The report follows

Bridgeport, method—Industrial bureau with paid manager seeks out industries of type considered suitable for Bridgeport, those employing men preferred. Result—has brought 11.2 per cent. of prospects interviewed, and 48 1-2 per cent. of prospects that have moved elsewhere, on expenditure of half of one per cent. of payroll increases.

Danbury, method—$175,000 industrial corporation; started building and loan association to provide better housing facilities. Result—built two buildings and attracted several concerns to city.

Naugatuck, method — Industrial committee investigates and helps. Result—three new industries located.

New Haven, method—Committee on industries. Result—at least three new factories through direct efforts, and others indirectly.

Putnam, method—Industrial committee seeking to fill vacant space; urging revaluation in hope of lowering taxes. Result—one new industry this year.

Torrington, method—New industries committee. Result—no new industries, but has assisted existing small concerns to stay in business.

Willimantic, method—Trade committee and Willimantic industry commission. Result—obtained silk and underwear factories; the corporation has been financially successful in building and renting factory space.

KING OF HOUSE OF DAVID RELEASED ON $120,000 BONDS

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Benjamin Franklin Purnell, 69 year old "king" of the strange religious colony, the House of David, sought for more than three years as a despoiler of young womanhood under the guise of religious rites is in the toils.

The gaunt, long-haired king, who in 1903 founded the colony from which it has been estimated he has derived $200,000, was taken from his sleeping quarters early today by state police, released under $50,000 bond and a few hours later re-arrested when a circuit court judge held that the bond was not satisfactory.

Later he was released on bonds totaling $120,000 on charges of criminal assault preferred by two former girl members of the colony.

It was no dashing philanderer whom the police found when they entered the colony's administration building. Instead, there was a feeble old man, hardly able to walk without assistance, a taciturn, silent man, who admitted his identity and then left what more there was to be said to his wife, "Queen Mary."

Two sisters—Ruth Bamford Reed and Gladys Bamford Rubel—made the charges which prompted a world-wide search for the man.

The girls, one 20, the other 23 years old, swore that Purnell had criminally assaulted them while they were members of the colony. "Blood purification rites" was the explanation the "king" made for the liberties the Bamford sisters charge were taken, not only with them but with other girl members of the colony.

Four thousand dollars in rewards was the lure that brought a definite tip to the authorities of Purnell's whereabouts.

ADVISES WOMEN WEAR AS LITTLE AS THEY CAN

LONDON, Nov. 17—(AP)—Men are more coddled than women when it comes to dress and it would be a great advantage if they would shed their collars and take to open necks, Professor Leonard E. Hill, noted physiologist, said today in advising an assemblage of women "to wear as little as you can."

Professor Hill, speaking on the hygiene of dress, said that the reason Gertrude Ederle and Mrs. Clington Corsen were able to accomplish their channel swims was because they had trained themselves to stand cold better than men by wearing short skirts.

"Pneumonia blouses are all nonsense," Professor Hill said. "No girl ever caught pneumonia through wearing a low blouse. It hardens her and helps her to resist such diseases."

He added that he had no objection to low necks and bare or silk stockinged legs as long as they were reasonable.

HORSE SHOW PRIZE WON BY HARTFORD WOMAN

TORONTO, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Entries by Mrs. R. J. Godman, Hartford, Conn., and J. R. Thompson, Chicago, won the two prizes today in the afternoon exhibition of the winter fair. Mrs. Goodman's prize was won in the combination saddle and harness event and Thompson's for a span of three harness ponies.

PLAN FARMERS TO MANAGE EXCESS SUPPLIES OF CROPS

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 17—(AP)—Early legislation to "enable the farmers to control and manage excess supplies of crops at their own expense, so asto secure cost of production with a reasonable profit," was demanded of congress in a declaration of principles adopted at the closing session here today of the corn and cotton states conference.

Outstanding points of the declaration are:

Indorsement of the federal farm board plan sponsored by Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois—a plan similar in principle to the McNary-Haugen bill of last winter, to create a board with power to withhold surpluses and pro-rate the cost among the producers.

Criticism of both political parties in congress for failure in the past to provide adequate farm relief.

A demand for immediate reduction in tariff duties on such basic materials as aluminum, steel and chemicals, which duties, it is charged, "afford shelter for price fixing monopolies."

A demand for a permanent program for cotton, and criticism of the plan of the president's cotton commission, to withdraw 4,000,000 surplus bales from the market as "unequitable" and a "temporary expedient."

THE BAUMES LAW IMPOSES LIFE SENTENCE ON NEGRO

NEW YORK, Nov. 17—(AP)—The teeth of the Baumes law clicked shut today on a negro butler charged with riding around for an hour in a taxicab he had driven off with while drunk. He was sentenced to life imprisonment in state prison.

After his arrest the negro, Frank Redding, pleaded guilty to attempted grand larceny and was sentenced to a year and a half. His record, presented in court at this time, showed two previous convictions for similar offenses.

After he had been sent to Sing Sing prison, however, it was learned that he had also been convicted of burglary in Swarthmore, Pa., in 1910. This brought the list of his previous felonies to three and made him subject to the provisions of the Baumes law, which makes life imprisonment compulsory on a fourth felony conviction. He was returned to court and the new sentence imposed.

QUEEN MARIE TO HAVE GUARD IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Nov. 17—(AP)—Because of animosity engendered here over the official plans for the reception of Queen Marie and her royal party next Monday, Safety Director Edwin D. Barry today ordered a guard of 700 policemen and 300 firemen formed as a permanent escort of the party during its stay here.

Opposition to the official reception plans developed at city council session Monday night when Cleveland Hungarians sought to have read a letter protesting that it is "beneath Cleveland citizens" to receive Marie as a Rumanian sovereign. Councilman Peter Witt was refused permission to read the protest letter.

JUDGE AND POLICE IN CHICAGO LIQUOR LAW INDICTMENTS

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—(AP)—A municipal judge, two police captains, and a host of police and alleged liquor keepers of Chicago were indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law.

Seventy-five indictments were returned, and identification of men and women named ranged from the secretary to Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins to beer needlers.

The indictments followed by several weeks the the return of similar writs against 79 officials, police and gangsters of Cicero, turbulent suburb on which Chicago police officials have blamed the difficulty of enforcement.

Federal officials did not reveal the nature of charges against Municipal Judge Henry M. Walker, Captain John Prendergast, who is Chief Collins' secretary, and some of the others.

The writs allege four overt acts, charging conspiracy to manufacture, transport and sell liquor and to maintain public nuisance.

Edwin Olson, federal district attorney, announced in making public the indictments that before law can be enforced "the crooks holding positions in the Chicago police department must be cleaned out."

GRANGE ACTS ON CHARGE OF LIQUOR SALES ON SHIP

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Charges that American ships opened bar outside the 12-mile limit and sold intoxicating liquors to passengers formed the basis of a resolution which the committee on resolutions of the National Grange had before it tonight.

The resolve, one of three introduced today dealing with the use of liquor, seeks an investigation by the National Grange executive committee and formal complaint to the proper federal authorities of evidence to support the accusations can be found.

Officers of the grange disclosed today that charges upon which the resolution was based were made during a closed session of the meeting while the delegates were questioning William S. Hill, commissioner of the United States shipping board, who spoke before the meeting two days ago. The grange officers, quoted Mr. Hill as saying at that time if such a thing happened "it was a clear violation of the law."

DOROTHY CARLEY HAS RETURNED TO STAGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Dorothy Martin Hillman Carley, Evanston, Ill., society girl, who "ran away" from two husbands, has returned to her first love, the stage.

She was discovered today in a new musical comedy which opened Tuesday.

Two years ago, Dorothy gave up her future as a dancer to wed Edward Hilman, Jr., son of a Chicago department store owner. She ran away from Hillman a month after the wedding and came to New York. He followed her and begged her to return to him. She returned to Chicago but a short time lat. ran away to Palm Beach. Sometime later she returned to Chicago and divorced Hilman.

After her divorce she came to New York and joined a musical comedy chorus. While in Boston with the show she met and married Harry Grey Carley. She was divorced from him two months ago.

ABANDON HOPE FOR SIX TRAPPED MINERS

HAZELTON, Pa., Nov. 17—(AP)—No hope was held out tonight by mine workers that the six men trapped in the lower level of the Tomhicken mine by a rush of water are alive.

Black creek, swollen by heavy rain, was returned to its channel today.

The creek broke from its channel yesterday and rushed into the lower level of Tomhicken before the men working there could be warned to get out.

Two hundred men worked all last night and part of today to stop the rush of water into the mine. Timber, loads of hay, great quantities of earth and trees cut down from the mountain sides were thrown into the path of the runaway water.

WARNS THAT NEW SHIPS SHOULD REPLACE OLD

NEW YORK, Nov. 17—(AP)—A warning that if the United States "is not to be removed from the seas entirely" the government must at once replace old ships by new ones of "quality" class featured a statement issued today by Captain C. A. McAllister, president of the American bureau of shipping.

"England, France, Italy, Germany and Japan," Captain McAllister said, "are all making strenuous efforts to increase the number, size and speed of their passenger and cargo vessels, but no steps have been taken for a general improvement of our merchants fleet on this side of the water."

HUSKED 252 BUSHELS OF CORN IN 80 MINUTES

FREMONT, Neb., Nov. 17.—(AP)—On a snow-swept cornfield, Fred Stanek, Iowa's champion corn-husker today won the national championship corn-husking title by shucking 252 bushels in 80 minutes.

Working like a machine, despite the handicap of snow and mud that robbed the cornstalks of their crispness, and the men of full speed, Stanke beat his nearest opponent by 3.9 bushels.

Five thousand watched the huskers.

Princess Ileana in Auto Mishap

Cried When Her Gift Car Was Forced Into a Ditch in Passing a Motor Truck on Highway.

DANVILLE, Ills., Nov. 17—(AP)—Princess Ileana of Rumania, driving a gift car from Chicago to Indianapolis was forced into a ditch in passing a motor truck at Grant Park, Ills., today, and was so unnerved and shaken up by the experience that she stopped in a physician's office at Rossville, Ill., for treatment. She had fainted at the shock.

The doctor recommended that she stop at a Danville hospital and spend the night there in recuperation, and a reservation was made for her, but an hour after leaving Rossville she had failed to appear and officials believed she had decided to proceed to Indianapolis without further treatment.

Meanwhile Prince Nicholas, driving his own car, and several other motor loads of the royal party, went on to Indianapolis, believing that Ileana was following them after the motor mishap. The last leg of the prince's journey, however, was made in a police car, his own vehicle breaking down at Waynetown, Ind., the children had planned to join their mother at Indianapolis tonight, Maria coming by train from Chicago.

FRENCH LAWYERS SEEK TO MEET GOVERNOR FULLER

PARIS, Nov. 17—(AP)—Governor Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts, who is visiting in Paris, today was sought by a group of French lawyers anxious to meet him in order to intervene on behalf of Nicolo Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti, convicted of murder in Massachusetts.

The lawyers, among whom was Jean Longuet, a grandson of the noted socialist writer Karl Marx, had signed a manifesto asking for the liberation of the convicted radicals. When they were unable to discover the governor's whereabouts they decided to draft a new petition and to send it to the United States embassy with a request that it be forwarded to Governor Fuller.

The governor spent a busy day shopping with his family and was not molested by any Sacco-Zanzetti sympathizers. He is being closely guarded by the French authorities to prevent any possible untoward incidents.

ATTEMPTED TO TRADE OFF HIS WIFE FOR A HORSE

MEILENHOFEN, Bavaria, Nov. 17—(AP)—Anton Morasch, 35, a basket weaver, faces three months in jail as a result of attempting to trade off his wife for a horse. Morasch, police said, proposed the bargain to Hermann Saamer, son of a horse dealer, saying that a horse would be much more useful than a wife. Saamer asserted he took up the proposition as a joke.

When Morasch went to the stalls and began untying the animal he had bargained for, Saamer said he protested. A fight ensued during which Morasch drew a knife and stabbed the man who he said had "violated his word."

Against Gun-Running in Central America

Secretary of State Kellogg Warns American Concern Shipping Out of Mexican Ports.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17—(AP)—A warning of American concern over Mexican gun-running operations in Central America was voiced today by Secretary Kellogg in a statement announcing recognition of Adolfo Diaz as president of Nicaragua.

The secretary made no mention of President Diaz's appeal for American intervention, which will be passed upon when it reaches Washington through official channels.

Neither was there any direct reference to Mexico, but the government is known to have information of at least five filibustering expeditions to Nicaragua and Guatemala out of Mexican ports.

Saying that President Diaz intended to offer general amnesty and cabinet posts to his liberal opponents, Secretary Kellogg expressed hope that the offer would be accepted and that it would bring to an end the Nicaraguan revolutionary condition, "which has invited interference from outside sources, a state of affairs which must cause concern to every friend of stability in Central America."

The secretary's statement was issued after Lawrence Denis, American charge at Managua, had advised the state department that formal American recognition of the Diaz government had been extended in the form of a diplomatic note.

The gun-running ships of which the government has knowledge are the steamers Tropical, Foam and Jalisco, and the schooners Star and Palonita.

It is recalled that at the time of the unsuccessful peace conference on an American war ship at Corinto, the reason given by liberal delegates for refusing to join in the naming of the provisional president was that their "Mexican allies" could not be abandoned.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN BY COUNSEL FOR ECELTICS

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 17—(AP)—Attorney W. F. D. Kilpatrick, counsel for the Connecticut Eclectic Medical society, said tonight that he expects to have ready tomorrow for presentation to State's Attorney William H. Comley, a motion for a writ of mandamus, under which revocation of licenses of hundreds of allopathic and homeopathic physicians will be sought.

The motion, now being prepared for the signature of States Attorney Comley is to be in company with an alternative writ of mandamus for the superior court.

Revision of the original motion to which States Attorney Comley objected on the ground that it is not within the power of Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state health commissioner, to revoke licenses, will affect only that portion calling upon the commissioner to take proper legal steps to prevent illegally licensed physicians from practicing, according to Kilpatrick. The revised motion will provide, Kilpatrick said, "to have Dr. Osborn request the return of the licenses because of their illegality and if they do not comply with this request within three weeks he is then to take proper legal proceedings with the respective medical boards to have their licenses revoked."

SEARCHING FOR ALIENS IN NORTHERN VERMONT

PUTLAND, Vt., Nov. 17.—(AP)—A score of armed federal and state officers beat through the woods of Pittsford, just to the north of here, today in search for eight men believed to be aliens smuggled into the country.

Officers intercepted two speeding cars, forcing one into the ditch while the other beat its way through. Two passengers in the ditched machine were captured but three others escaped into the woods.

Neither could speak English so that questioning was postponed pending the arrival of immigration inspectors from Newport. The captured automobile had Canadian registration plates.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17—(AP)—America's Thanksgiving dinner will cost about $173,000,000, it was estimated today by Miss Maple K. Johnson of the better health bureau here, some $19,000,000 more than it did last fall.

Hair dressers attribute the sudden shift to the impression among the girls that the bob is too "common" as the girls express it.

MONOPLANE DRIVEN AT THE RATE 258.873 MILES AN HOUR

Major Mario De Bernardi, Italian Army Officer, Breaks All Records in Making Four Laps Over a Three Kilometer Course—De Bernardi Also Made a New Speed Mark of 246.496 Miles an Hour Over 350 Kilometer Course.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 17.—(AP)—America's last claim to air racing supremacy was wiped out today before the spectacular flying of Major Mario de Bernardi, Italian army officer, who piloted his little red monoplane over a straightaway three kilometer course at the average rate for four laps of 258.873 miles an hour.

His speed bettered the world seaplane record for the distance, made in 1925 by Lieutenant James H. Doolittle, U. S. army, by more than 13 miles an hour. Doolittle's record was 245.713 miles an hour. The land plane record is 278.48 miles, held by Adjutant Bonnet of France.

De Bernardi, in winning the Schneider cup race last Saturday, established a new speed mark of 246.496 miles an hour for the 350 kilometer course, and ruined America's chances to gain permanent possession of the trophy. He also set up records for the 100-kilometer closed circuit at 248.189 miles an hour and the 200-kilometer closed course at 248.00025 miles.

His best speed for the three kilometer course today was 273.138 with the wind and his slowest 242.212 miles against the wind.

The test was made over a measured route off Willoughby beach and was timed by the same devices and officials who acted in the Schneider

The little Italian, dubbed in aviation circles here "the flying fascist," flew the same machine, a Macchi-Fiat, in which he won the Schneider trophy.

After his flight today he jumped from the plane, changed his clothing in a racing automobile and caught the steamer for Washington, which had awaited his belated departure to be congratulated on his Schneider victory by President Coolidge tomorrow. He did not learn of his new record until after he had boarded the steamer.

The Italian cup team will be received by President Coolidge tomorrow and congratulated on their victory for Italy. They will remain in Washington several days and then proceed to New York to embark for home on December 1. The Schneider trophy already has been packed and started on its way to Italy and the mechanics now are orating the planes. The plane in which de Bernardi set all his records will be exhibited in Paris.

MRS. JANE GIBSON MAY APPEAR IN COURT TODAY

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 17—(AP)—Mrs. Jane Gibson, "pig woman" and star witness for the prosecution, will testify at the resumption tomorrow of the Hall-Mills trial, if Special Prosecutor Alexander Simpson has his way.

Physicians at a Jersey City hospital where Mrs. Gibson has been ill for several days intimated tonight she would not be able to withstand the trip to Somerville, Simpson not only insisted she would be able to take the trip and testify but asserted he would obtain a writ of habeas corpus to make certain his star witness appeared in court.

A recess of the trial in Somerset county court was taken today to give additional strength to Mrs. Gibson.

Prosecutor Simpson expects Mrs. Gibson will be able to submit "reasonable cross-examination," if she testifies tomorrow. There is no indicaton that the state and defense will agree as to the degree of reasonableness of a cross-examination. The defense has suggested that its questioning of the woman, offered by the state as an eyewitness of the slaying of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills and Rev. Edward W. Hall, will be thorough.

CUBA AND URUGUAY HAVE SETTLED DIFFERENCES

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 17—(AP)—Cuba and Uruguay have settled their differences The Uruguayan government, through its minister at Havana, has offered an apology to the Cuban government for its delay in responding to a Cuban note, and the apology has been accepted.

The Cuban note asked Uruguay for an explanation regarding statements by Alfredo Giuni, Uruguayan delegate to the League of Nations, that Cuba's sovereignty was restricted by the Platt amendment. No answer having been received from Uruguay, the Cuban minister at Montevideo was recalled, but later was ordered to return to his post.

At the same time the Cuban minister at Buenos Aires, who, the state department declared, had not acted with efficiency when articles offensive to Cuban dignity had been published in Buenos Aires newspapers, was recalled, but his case has been taken under reconsideration.

The bet was on the Harvard-Princeton football game, and as he lost, he did his best to meet the terms of the contract, which were that he was to stowaway for Havana and purchase a bottle of Cuban rum and bring it back with him.

The latter part of the contract he now felt he could not fulfill and he is going back empty handed.

MRS. O. H. P. BELMONT IS EVADING REPORTERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Whether or not Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont "forced" her daughter, Consuelo Vanderbilt, into the now officially church-annulled marriage with the Duke of Marlborough thirty-one years ago, may never be known if it remains to be ascertained from Mrs. Belmont herself.

Today, with all New York society abuzz and church circles in Rome, London and in this country stirred by the action of the Rome nobs, Mrs. Belmont quietly evaded reporters and disappeared from the metropolis to the quiet solitude of her country home at Sans Point, Long Island.

She was "too busy," her secretary said, to be bothered by interviews or by preparing statements. On the twenty-fourth of the month she will sail for her home in France.

MEETING OF ACADEMY OF POLITICAL SCIENCE

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—America's prosperity is the offspring of installment buying, speakers told the Academy of Political Science at its annual meeting today.

Electrification of farms, farmer credit and the question of maintenance of "independent agriculture" were topics also discussed by speakers.

Professor Edward R. A. Seligman of Columbia university, introduced the theme of "installment buying as a contributor to prosperity." Other speakers concurred.

Consensus was that installment buying among small wage earners is an extension of privilege and credit similar to that which has made capital capable of dominating labor. The "prosperity wave" of today, several speakers avowed, can be traced directly to installment buying, which removes three billion dollars worth of merchandise not yet paid for.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the financial committee of General Motors, defined installment buying as "consumer credit."

America today is engaged in the "vitally important experiment of determining whether an independent agriculture enjoying the advantages and benefits of life on a level comparable with that in our cities can be established and maintained," George N. Peek, president of the American Council of Agriculture, told the Academy.

Characterizing agricultural conditions "a blot on American statesmanship," Peek urged, "we should, without further delay, through legislation make it possible for agriculture to attain economic equality with industry and labor in the domestic market."

MRS. FATALLY INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 17—Jean, five year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Surowski of 41 Brick Row, met her death almost instantaneously at 11:30 o'clock this forenoon when she ran out into the path of a heavily loaded Buick touring car owned and driven by Herbert H. Cox of R. F. D. No. 1, South Coventry, Me., near the corner of Main and Windham streets. The child was placed in another machine by Louis Rondeau of this city and rushed to St. Joseph's hospital but she died en route. Cox with his wife and child and his sister were motoring through this city on their way to Florida to spend the winter. The rear of the car was filled with bedding and clothing. The little girl was running home from the morning session of the Model school where she is a pupil, when she started diagonally across Main street and was run down despite Cox's every effort to avoid her.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson came to this city this afternoon to hold an inquest on the girl's death. Two disinterested witnesses Louis Rondeau of 308 Main street, and Arthur Ducharme of 23 Ives street, this city, who were eye witnesses to the accident, testified that Cox was driving his car at a rate of speed not greater than 20 miles an hour coming through the city and that the speed was even slower upon nearing the scene of the accident. The little girl, without a glance in either direction, started on a run across the street. Cox applied his brakes and veered his car sharply to the left but the child kept coming and was struck down by the right front headlight and fender. The two right wheels of the car passed over her body. Upon Coroner Bill's decision that there was no evidence of reckless driving or of negligence on the part of Cox, Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher withdrew a technical charge of reckless driving and released Cox of all blame. Much unnerved by the unfortunate mishap, Cox and his party made arrangements to continue the journey late in the day.

STORM DAMAGE WORSE THAN FIRST REPORTED

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 17—Additional reports of damage caused by the storm here Tuesday were coming in today. The street department employees joined the crews of the Southern New England Telephone company and the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company in clearing up wreckage and debris caused by the forty-mile an hour gale. Main street just east of the New Haven railroad crossing, which was choked with fallen poles and littered with sputtering electric wires after the storm had reached its highest momentum about five o'clock Tuesday afternoon, was cleared and opened to traffic early this morning. New poles are being installed. Sixty lines of the telephone company were put out of commission in this vicinity, affecting 250 stations of the Willimantic exchange, principally in the towns of Ashford and Hampton and several in Storrs and Columbia. (Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 17—Ora Doucette, 17 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sophira Doucette of 142 Quercus avenue, who suffered a shock when she came in contact with a live wire which had fallen to the ground on Main street late Tuesday afternoon was released from St. Joseph's hospital late this forenoon. It was determined that the shock had been comparatively slight as but a small burn appeared on the girl's ankle indicating that it had barely glanced against the wire. The feed wire of the Connecticut trolley company, carrying a voltage of about 550 volts is believed to be the one with which she came in contact although this could not be definitely determined. Miss Doucette is subject to fainting spells of long duration and it is thought that she lapsed into one of these spells when overcome by the electric shock.

Jordan of the Willimantic Community Hotel corporation, the holding company for the new Nathan Hale hotel, backed up Wednesday a statement which appeared previously in The Bulletin, that drastic action is at hand to expedite payments on the stock subscriptions. Around a garage you're bound to get hurt

CRIPPLED BY PAINFUL SWELLING IN HIS LEG

Trouble gone after few applications of simple remedy

As he came in from work in the evening, a garage worker of Shreveport, La., felt a pain in his left leg above the ankle, and the next morning it was badly swollen and worried him when walking.

"I applied Sloan's Liniment to it that night," he writes, "and the pain nearly all left. I applied it again and the next day the swelling was all gone. For all aches and pains I find nothing to beat Sloan's Liniment. I keep a bottle in the garage where I work."

Sloan's gets results because it stirs up the body's own powers to heal itself. Just put it on, and at once you can feel the fresh blood tingling through the sick tissues. Inflammation, swelling, stiffness, pain, begin to give way at once.

Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

POETRY

Progress

Steadily, steadily, step by step,
Up the venturesome builders go,
Carefully placing stone on stone;
Thus the loftiest temples grow.

Patiently, patiently day by day,
The artist toils at his task always;
Touching it here and tinting it there,
Giving it ever with infinite care
A line more soft, or a hue more fair;
Till, little by little, the picture grows,
And at last the cold, dull canvas glows
With life and beauty and forms of grace
That evermore in the world have place.
Thus with the poet; hour after hour
He listens to catch the fairy chimes
That ring in his soul; then with magic power
He weaves their melody into his rhymes;
Slowly, patiently, word by word,
Line by line and thought by thought,
He fashions the golden items of song.
And thus are immortal anthems wrought.
Every wise observer knows,
Every watchful gazer sees,
Nothing grand or beautiful grows
Save by gradual degrees.
Ye who toil with purpose high
And fondly proud result await,
Murmur not, as the hours go by,
That the speech is long, the harvest late.

Remember that brotherhood stone and true,
Builders and artists and bards sublime,
Who lived in the past and worked like you,
Worked and waited a wearisome time
Dark and cheerless and long their night,
Yet patiently toiled at the task begun
Till lo, through the clouds broke that morning light
That shines on the soul when success is won.

A Vagabond Song

There is something in the autumn that
Is native to my blood—
Touch of manner, hint of mood;
And my heart is like a rhyme,
With the yellow and the purple and the crimson keeping time.

The scarlet of the maples can shake me like a cry
Of bugles going by.
And my lonely spirit thrills
To see the frosty asters like a smoke upon the hills.

There is something in October sets the gypsy blood astir;
We must rise and follow her.
When from every hill of flame
She calls and calls each vagabond by name.

—Bliss Carman.

Reports of poles being knocked over came in from many sections of Killingly and from neighboring towns. Crews of the telephone company and the electric light company had an exceedingly busy day repairing various kinds of damage done by the storm. Up on Reynolds street a tree that was blown over Tuesday blocked the state highway and a detour around residences in that section was necessary to keep traffic moving. A window was blown in on the south side of the town hall and another on the south side of the Danielson Trust company building. LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH

Give "California Fig Syrup" at once if bilious or constipated

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless, "fruity laxative;" they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

TO HOLD EXHIBIT OF WORK BY THE BLIND

(Special to The Bulletin).

PUTNAM, Nov. 17.—Through the courtesy of the Bugbee corporation, the state board of education of the blind has arranged to have an exhibition and sale of articles made by blind people in their homes throughout Connecticut at the Bugbee store in Putnam on Thursday, November 18.

The exhibition will be in charge of Miss Susan Todd, sales manager of this board, and Miss Izetta Dellert, home teacher for the blind in this district with her guide. The articles which will be on exhibit will consist largely of baskets, serving trays, tea stands, raffia work, aprons for children and adults, towels, wash cloths, holders, clothespin bags, ironing board covers, and a variety of knitted, crocheted and sewed articles. There will also be home made candy made by a woman with impaired sight, and a variety of rag rugs which are made in a private home where the husband and wife are both blind.

The state board of education of the blind is authorized to carry on this work. Teachers are sent to the homes of the blind to teach them to make salable articles. These goods are then collected by the state and are sold at sales such as this one. The full price which is paid for an article is given to the blind person who made it. Large stores, churches and organizations in different parts of the state have co-operated generously with the state board in arranging for such sales, and the plan has worked well, and considerable money has been turned over to the aged and infirm blind in this way. Those who visit the sale will be surprised at the variety and workmanship shown in the things which will be exhibited. It is hoped that a large number of people in and around Putnam will call and view the many articles.

The meeting opened with the reading of assignments of the various town teachers for their term visiting days, each town having a separate day and a particular school to visit. The papers showed much preparation on the part of the teachers, Mrs. Lovell of Canterbury and Miss Pease of Voluntown, who gave them.

Mrs. Medbury of Grade I, Sterling Center school gave a very helpful and interesting talk on the Wilson reading method in the lower grades. She had her school material with her illustrated each step as she went along. All enjoyed her talk very much. TALKING EXTRA SESSION Already there is talk about an extra session of congress. The next session of the 69th congress is only a few days away, during which it is possible to do all the business that is required of congress, but the aim is to block action during that short session upon such important appropriation measures that it will be necessary to call a special session of the 70th congress. This is simply for the purpose of getting matters before the new congress which stand no chance of enactment before the existing congress.

Such an extra session can easily be forced by the combination of the insurgent republicans and the democrats. It is in fact already being urged by that persistent trouble maker Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who is ready and willing to do anything in behalf of his radical farm relief ideas and because he recognizes that there is no need of an extra session and no chance of one being called if the present congress does its work he urges the dispiacing of the appropriation bills until after March fourth. "This," he says, "can be easily done by a dozen senators, in spite of the wrath of the vice president, and I see no reason why it should not be favored by a majority of the old senate."

This is of course a proclamation of antagonism. He is banking of course upon a filibuster and indicates that the insurgent republicans are strong enough to accomplish it and relies upon getting the proper amount of delay in this congress and then by a combination with the democrats make the balance of the power in the hands of the insurgents put through whatever this handful desires.

The country cannot be very favorably impressed by the advance notice of such tactics. Brookhart is perhaps counting his chickens before they are hatched for the democrats may not be as much disposed to play into his hands as he may think. There's the responsibility which must be assumed for such action and the democrats have something to think about other than gratifying the insurgents by blocking the regular republicans.

RADIO RECEPTION

Since it has been determined that broadcasting stations are no longer under the control of the department of commerce, such as they were for a certain time through voluntary action for the purpose of avoiding interference, there has been evidence of a disregard by one station for the wave length of another and a better appreciation of the chaotic condition which it was claimed would result should all restrictions be eliminated.

Because of this situation and the effect upon radio there is interest in what congress is going to do at the December session relative to the radio bills which failed of action at the last session. The two measures which were intended to establish a federal regulation over radio differed in the manner in which it should be done. One called for creation of a federal radio commission to have full authority to license stations, assign wave lengths and create a radio policy. By the other there would be an advisory commission created which would be under the authority of the secretary of commerce.

There was a plea for some action in order to properly deal with the situation but congress failed. The second opportunity to act will have the benefit of the experience between sessions in which it has been shown what the absence of proper regulations ...

The folly of having stations attempting to force their programs upon the public without regard for what the public wants or what other stations are doing should be so apparent to broadcasters that they should earnestly advocate federal legislation. Certainly the listeners-in would like to see an end put to the interference and the advantages to all who have anything to do with radio seems clear enough. The desirability of getting started cannot be too strongly emphasized. The grand mixup which comes from lack of regulation is bad enough now and certain to become worse the longer existing conditions are tolerated. If neither of the bills designed to regulate radio can be adopted it ought to be possible to effect a compromise.

REFORMING THE TOMBS

Too often death is necessary in order to bring about necessary improvements and reforms. Conditions are known to be bad and yet they are tolerated for one reason or another until something serious happens. Then there is a great flurry, investigations follow and recommendations made which are to be put into effect at once just as if nothing had been known about the state of affairs until someone was killed.

This at least seems to be the situation in the Tombs prison in New York city where lax conditions prevailed to the extent of permitting three desperate prisoners to become possessed of revolvers and then to have them released from cells at the same time to go to the doctor's office only to be followed by an assault on officials in an attempted escape by which a warden and a guard lost their lives. The three who attempted escape were killed in the battle that ensued but there would have been no chance of the attempted jail delivery had restrictions prevailed which the investigation shows have been provided.

Whether the responsibility for the situation rests upon the commissioner of correction or whether others higher up must assume or share in it may be a matter of opinion, but it seems evident that there was not the proper cooperation on the part of the authorities and what too great chances were taken as the result of divided opinions and a persistence in clinging to fixed ideas as to what should be done or what should not be done, regarding the conduct of the prison.

The investigation has resulted in disclosures regarding serious laxities. There were those who entered the prison without being searched, those who were in daily contact with the prisoners and in spite of orders to the contrary prisoners were permitted to have large sums of money which could be easily employed for buying advantages and bribing those within the prison's walls.

How long such conditions would have prevailed had the escape not been attempted no one knows. Warning had been given that something of the kind might be expected but there was no change. How thorough the reform is going to be even now will be a matter of much concern for the New York authorities.

MUNICIPAL GARAGES

What must be regarded as the logical outcome of a condition which has developed since the employment of large numbers of automobiles in the conduct of city departments is the demand which has been made in Philadelphia, for a municipal garage. The Quaker city hasn't taken that step but it has been advocated and the reason for it is that the city owned cars are used too much for private purposes.

What is pointed out in Philadelphia is what is or has happened in many other cities where those who are supposed to use city vehicles in connection with their work find it convenient to employ them for pleasure driving after work hours, on Sundays and holidays which means that there is not only the wear and tear that is being charged up to the city but the expense for gasoline. The life of a machine depends to a large degree upon the use that is given it. If it is driven solely for the conduct of the city's work it is bound to give the city a far greater mileage than it would if it is used as much for the pleasure of the department employe as it is for the city.

Probably there are few cities which provide the cars for its employes with the expectation that they will be used for pleasure. It is an added burden upon the taxpayers which has no justification and if the machines are maintained in municipal garages, where there is proper supervision, there cannot fail to be decided reductions in the expense of operating them.

There are the conscientious employes who do not require such a check, but there are others who do and it is this number which has created the demand for the restriction which has been sought in Philadelphia, although it can hardly be expected that the city employes affected would be in favor of such a move.

CANADIAN IMMIGRATION

Great Britain has 100,000 coal miners who need work, there is no immediate prospect that they are going to find it at home right away, if they ever do, under the existing conditions in the mining industry and the question is what is to be done with them.

Because they are miners does not mean that they cannot do anything else, but Canada isn't willing to take such a number of miners although it is desirous of obtaining about all the farmers who apply for admission. Canada has a great opportunity for placing those who understand how and are ready to till the soil, but it is not impressed with the idea of making miners into farmers. And the same holds true regarding any other class no more closely allied to farming.

In Australia, South Africa and New Zealand selective immigration has prevailed for some time. When Canada sought it from the imperial conference in London it had the advantage of those precedents and it received favorable consideration. If Canada can pick its immigrants and not be obliged to take miners, mill workers or street workers, just because there is an overabundance of them, when it can use only farmers, it will be much better able to meet conditions existing within the dominion.

Because people can go from one employment to another does no impress Canada for it feels that if that is possible they can do it right where they are and thus not impose the burden on Canada of superintending or forcing such a change. Canada wants to meet its problem in the best possible way. Possibly it will not be able to do so and get as quick results as it desires but it apparently thinks it has trouble enough without attempting to direct the making over of workmen who may or may not be willing to go through the process.

WILBUR'S LUCKY DAY

Wilbur's mother raked his pyjamas from under the bed and gave each garment a disgusted flap as she stepped to the chest to hang them up. And there she spied Wilbur's perfectly good shoes, caked with mud and clay.

"Archibald!" she called, and followed her voice to the room where Wilbur's dad was making a Mrs Sunday morning toilet. "Are any of your shoes gone? The new ones? That explains it! I cannot think why that boy came to the table in his stocking feet. You see he wore his good shoes on that hike yesterday and hadn't cleaned them. So, after his breakfast, while you were in your bath, he slipped into yours and went off to Sunday school. And it's no use your raving, He's gone for all day with Uncle George. But will you tell me, Archibald Freeman, why we should have a 12-year-old son, who is a sloven in his room and has the manners of the gutter?, I'm utterly discouraged! After all my training!" She wiped away tears.

Wilbur's dad tried to be comforting. "Did any saloons fall like grow on your family tree? My folks are all rather long on manners. They say that kid of sister Maude's is a regular young Chesterfield."

The telephone on the chiffonier made him jump. "Hello!" he snapped. "Who? Maude! Speak of angels! Just in? Going on to California tonight? Say, Maude, do you know it's nine ... since I saw you? Got the wonderful kid along? Sure, you take a cab and come out to dinner. You bet she's right here and delighted."

It meant hustling to be ready, but when Maude and blue-eyed Freddie drove up their host and hostess stood smiling.

Sleek of hair, polished as to finger-nails, Freddie's first remark was, "Pardon me for troubling you, auntie, but where shall I hang my hat? I don't want to put it in the wrong place. Oh, yes, thank you for telling me."

("Isn't he wonderful?" Maude's eyes kept asking.)

"Uncle," said Freddie, "Which is your favorite chair? So I won't make a mistake and sit in it, you know. Thank you for telling me." Then—springing to his feet as Wilbur's mother appeared—"oh, auntie, excuse me for not standing up when you came to the door a minute ago. Or, I mean, pardon me. I know pardon is when you're sorry and excuse me is when you leave the room."

"Well, Freddie," said Wilbur's dad, comfortably seated, "when your aunt is going in and out of the room very often, she pardons me for not getting up, and I think she will you."

"Oh, no, uncle! I don't want to forget my manners. But thank you for telling me."

At dinner, Freddie's whole soul went into the handling of fork and spoon—observances of "please" and "thank you." He was flawless.

"Im sorry not to have Wilbur see Freddie," said Maude as they visited later. Though as a rule I don't care to have Freddie much with other boys. I keep him with me. Has 11, but I still give him his warm bath every night, and sometimes I rock him. Dont' I, lamb?"

"Yes, mother," said Freddie, and wondered at Wilbur's dad, who jumped up and left the room.

Good-bys were over at 5:30. Wilbur's dad and mother sat down. Each waited for the other to speak. While they waited, the front door banged open and Wilbur walked in on his hands, yelling, "See what I've learned to do!"

For 30 seconds dad's new tan shoes wobbled wildly in the air. Then down they went and up came red hair and freckles. "Gee! I've had a bully day!" said Wilbur, hugging his knees as he sat on the floor. "Only dad's shoes were too big," he added, becoming aware of a strange quiet. "Lookut—I can drop 'em off when they're laced up tight."

He gave a jaunty kick, and, to his own astonishment, landed one of dad's tan shoes squarely in mother's silk lap. The next instant he had leaped, for the shoe with a howl—half dismay and half uncontrollable mirth—and, ducking his head before the expected storm, had sprinted upstairs.

As he disappeared his breathless mother faced her grinning husband. "I don't care—it's—it's refreshing!" she declared.

"Thank you for telling me," said Wilbur's dad. And—cautiously—they laughed.—Chicago News.

NOVEMBER HEREABOUTS
FORTY SEVEN YEARS AGO

The following appeared in the Norwich Bulletin of Nov. 15, 1879. It is for present day nature lovers to tell how the wild life of this month 47 years ago differs from that of the present hereabouts:

November Notes

With the first cold wave that blows from the north some of the migratory birds commence their journey south, and by the first of November they appear here in large numbers. The fox-colored sparrows, in particular, are very numerous. They like a copse of cedars or sumac, interspersed here and there with white willows, alder and laurel, which is very inviting if located at the foot of a hill, facing the south, with open pasture grounds near bordered with dilapidated stone walls. Here they may be found busily scratching over the leaves under the walls and among the bushes.

They are seldom entirely alone. The robins keep them company, and the titmice, nuthatches and woodpeckers put in an appearance from time to time. Suddenly troops of 30 or more will alight, in a state of alarm, on the bare butternut trees, but as soon as one's presence is realized and no harm results, the birds seem to go about their business again, eagerly searching for food. Now and then several, more ventrisome than the rest, alight on a young tree very near me and warble a few sweet notes indicative of greater possibilities in the coming spring.

There is nothing more cheering and reassuring than to have these half-suppressed, melodious notes at this time of year. How suspiciously they eye me, stretching their little necks and peering out from behind the branches! I wonder if they know by look of my eye that I mean them no harm?

The slate-colored sparrows are generally within a stone's throw in the adjacent meadow or pasture ground.

The greens have slowly jaded from the landscape, and the reddish browns and ochraceous tints of the oak predominate. The brambles and green-brier vines have turned to red and orange. The grass fields reflect a yellowish light that contrasts harmoniously with the purplish hues of the distant landscape.

How welcome the wild flowers in November! Indian summer, like the warm days of early spring, is the happy occasion of their second coming. The fragrance of the violet seems as much out of place in November as the song of a sparrow; and yet how grateful we are for these innocent reminders of bygone days! It is the earliest and best flowers of the season that give us the keenest delight. While the present warm weather continues it is possible to find in blossom the bird's-foot, violet, speedwell, Houstonia, cinquefoil, common mallow, chickweed, shepherd's purse, and, with diligent search, an adventitious spray of goldenrod. If to these are added a few scarlet partridge, or orange bittersweet berries, we have material for the prettiest buttonhole bouquet of the season.

It is a good time now to transplant wild plants for winter blossoming; arbutus, speedwell, fringed polygala and wild storksbill do well; the latter will blossom continuously for months. Goodyera, or rattlesnake plantain, and spotted wintergreen look well in the house and remind one perpetually of their habitat, the woods.

Goodyera belongs to the orchis family and has very pretty white reticulated greenish leaves clustered at the root. It is always exposed for sale, together with the wintergreens, at the floral stores in Boston. Here the woods are full of it. It may be obtained by anyone willing to take the trouble to get it.

When the ninth consecutive car of the same make belonging to M. Dettling, of Del Monte, Cal., had finished its days of service, Mr. Dettling went to buy another. While inspecting various models of automobiles, his attention was drawn to an extremely archaic appearing vehicle in the showroom. Looking it over with more than a passing interest, he was amazed to find, by reading the serial and motor numbers that the car was one he had owned twenty-two years before.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Probably no Englishman of this generation has done more to foster and develop the art of music than has Sir Thomas Beecham, who, according to report from London, contemplates becoming an American citizen, being in despair over England's musical future because of the spread of radio. Sir Thomas, whose family millions came from the manufacture of pills and the world-wide advertising thereof, decided upon a musical career after graduating from Oxford. After several years in the provinces he went to London and organized a symphony orchestra. Four years later he took Covent Garden theater and gave a fine series of old and new operas, which was followed by a season of light opera at His Majesty's theater. It was Sir Thomas, too, who introduced to London the famous Russian opera and ballet which has since enjoyed remarkable success on both sides of the Atlantic.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Reddy's Keen Nose

For getting news I don't suppose
You'll ever beat a fox's nose.
—Mother West Wind.

It's a fact that Reddy Fox knows most of what is going on in the Green Forest, on the Green Meadows, and in the Old Pasture. And the reason that he knows what is going on is because he has a wonderful nose. That sharp little nose of Reddy's is busy most of the time. He uses his eyes, and he uses his ears, but he depends on his nose. And as he is forever poking that sharp little nose into all kinds of places, he finds out a great deal that he isn't supposed to know anything about.

Now, the best nose in the world would be of no use to any one who did not know how to use it. Reddy not only knows how to use his nose but he has the patience to use it, and he has the wit to understand what his nose tells him. So, when Reddy discovered just the faintest scent of Mrs. Grouse, he grinned and then settled down to the business of finding out all that his nose could tell him as to what had happened.

He felt sure that Mrs. Grouse was not dead. "If," said Reddy to himself, "Mrs. Grouse had been killed, she would have been picked up near where I found those feathers. Now this scent of Mrs. Grouse is a long way from those feathers. My nose tells me that Mrs. Grouse has been along here. It was some time ago, but there is no doubt that it is the scent of Mrs. Grouse. That means that Mrs. Grouse was hurt by that terrible gun, but that she managed to get away from the hunter and probably is hiding somewhere. Huh! What's this?"

Reddy smelled long and carefully among the leaves. The scent of grouse was very strong. It was very strong indeed. Very carefully Reddy used that sharp nose of his, sniffing all about. Presently he grunted again. "I thought so," said he. "Yes, sir, I thought so. Mr. Grouse has joined Mrs. Grouse. He has walked right over the tracks of Mrs. Grouse until all I can smell now is the scent of Mr. Grouse. But that is just as good. If he is covering up her scent with his scent, it doesn't make any difference as long as I can smell his scent. All I need to do is to follow his scent, and that will lead me to Mrs. Grouse. Wouldn't Peter Rabbit and some of the others be surprised to know that Mrs. Grouse is really alive? It ought to be an easy matter to catch her now. It will be the best chance that ever I had. But I must move gently, for I do not want her to suspect that she is being followed. She might hide somewhere where I could not get at her."

He felt sure that Mrs. Grouse was not dead

It was no trick at all to follow that trail Mr. Grouse had left behind him. Now and then it seemed to Reddy that he could smell the scent of two grouse, but he never could be quite sure. However, he didn't waste any time about it. He just hurried forward. But he was very careful about every step. He didn't step on any little twig that would snap. He didn't rustle a dry leaf. He moved like a shadow. I mean by that, he moved as silently as a shadow. And he didn't move so fast but that his eyes took note of everything in front of him and on both sides. His nose was to the ground most of the time, but every moment or two he lifted it and tested the Merry Little Breezes. Every few steps he stopped and stood like a little red statue, while he listened. Right down in his heart he hoped that he might find Mr. Grouse off his guard and so get both Mr. Grouse and Mrs. Grouse. And all the time Reddy's wonderful nose told him that he was getting nearer and nearer to Mr. Grouse, which meant, of course, to Mrs. Grouse too.

Paradise Lost and the Cook Book

"What do you learn from Paradise Lost?" asks Ruskin. "Nothing at all. What do you learn from a cookery-book? Something new—something that you did not know before, in every paragraph. But would you therefore put the wretched cookery-book on a higher level of estimation than the divine poem? What you owe to Milton is not any knowledge, of which a million separate items are still but a million of advancing steps on the same earthly level; what you owe is power, that is exercise and expansion to your own latent capacity of sympathy with the infinite, where every pulse and each separate influx is a step upwards—a step ascending as a Jacob's ladder from earth to mysterious altitudes above the earth. All the steps of knowledge, from first to last, carry you further on the same plane, but could never raise you one foot above your ancient level of earth: whereas the very step in power is a flight—is an ascending movement into another element where earth is forgotten."

Stories That Recall Others

His Full Name

Tom was visiting his aunt in a nearby town. When she was out of patience with him she would call him "Young America." Some friends calling on the aunt asked him to tell them his name.

"Shall I tell, Auntie?" he asked.

"Why, sure. Tell them your full name," the aunt said.

"Young United States," Tom replied.

What is a Unit?

The teacher was explaining the meaning of the word unit. After what was considered a clear explanation, she began to test the knowledge of the class. Picking up various objects, she asked what they were and each time received the answer, "A unit."

Finally she took from her desk an orange. "And what is this?" she asked: "A unit," was the answer.

Taking a knife the teacher peeled the orange and laid the pulp on her desk. Holding the peeling in her hand she asked, "What is this?"

The class looked confused but thoughtful. After a lapse of a little time, a hand went up. "What is it, James?" asked the teacher.

"That is the skin of a unit," assertingly.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Flag Code

Mr. Editor: In issue of Nov. 13th, one of the W. R. C. of Norwich had a letter which was pertinent, and in the main, right. But, it is always so easy to be mistaken. It is, as she says, wrong to hang a flag flat with Union any place but on the left of the observer, then says "except on the coffin of a soldier or sailor, then it is on the right". Article 13 of N. S. D. A. R. pamphlet, says, "When used to cover a casket, the flag should be placed so that the Union is at the head, and over the left shoulder."

The casket should be carried foot first. Possibly she meant it this way, it all depends whether one is an observer or observed, but to be sure you are right, the Union is placed over the left shoulder of the observed always This code is the one adopted by the American Legion, Sixty-eight organizations met June 14th and adopted the code. There is only one federal statute which protects the flag from desecration, so no law was broken in the parade, only etiquette.

Baby Auto

A baby automobile, no longer than a man is high, pulled into Washington recently and sailed up to the Capitol, the end of a transcontinental tour from San Francisco, says Popular Science Monthly. Its driver, Gus Petzel, of Alameda, Calif., was also the designer of the sturdy little machine that scooted over mountains and deserts that bothered cars five times its size.

It has a 4-cylinder air-cooled motor, nine speeds, electric lights and starter, and is equipped with airplane tires. The wheel base measures 60 inches and the car weighs only 560 pounds. It can make a speed of 90 miles an hour on the track, it is claimed, and 65 on the road. After reaching Washington the designer demonstrated that his little car could travel 52 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

It makes some men tired to do anything but go fishing.

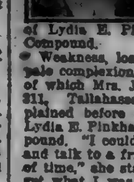
ATTRACTIVE WOMEN

If You Would Be Attractive You Must Be Healthy

A beautiful woman is always admired. There are many types of beauty. But no woman can be truly beautiful unless she is healthy. Radiant vitality is always attractive however plain a woman's features may be.



Many a woman has found her health improved through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Weakness, loss of weight, and a pale complexion were a few things of which Mrs. J. C. Taylor of Box 311, Tallahassee, Florida, complained before she started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. "I could not even sit down and talk to a friend for any length of time," she states. "I would forget what I was talking about and felt so blue." Mrs. Taylor is so pleased with the work of the Vegetable Compound that she keeps a bottle of it in the house at all times—and when it is empty, her husband makes sure that she has a new bottle. "I have regained my strength," Mrs. Taylor writes. "I can do all my housework now and I feel just fine."

DECLINES TO SET ASIDE $400 VERDICT IN AUTOMOBILE SUIT

In denying the motion to set aside the verdict of $400, which a jury gave in favor of Joseph Bella against Mrs. Kate Takmon, both of Jewett City, for injuries in an automobile accident on North Main street in this city on Jan. 6, 1926, Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court, before whom the case was recently tried, points out that the jury was justified in finding that the plaintiff was without contributory negligence and that the Tawmon machine was driven at high speed.

In his memorandum of decision, which was filed Wednesday with Clerk George M. Parsons of the superior court, Judge Brown says:

There was ample evidence to warrant the jury's conclusion that the defendant was negligent, and this her counsel does not seriously controvert. He does, however, urge that the jury was not justified in finding that the plaintiff was in the exercise of due care, and as the motion was argued, this is the ground upon which the defendant relies. In this connection, referring to the plaintiff's testimony that he looked both ways just before starting across the street where he was struck by the defendant's car approaching from his left and he did not see it coming, the defendant calls attention to the familiar principle laid down in Barber vs. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., 92 Conn., 214, that the plaintiff was either negligent in failing to see what was there for him to see, or in heedlessly stepping out in front of the approaching vehicle when he did so see it, and so as a mater of law was contributorily negligent.

The flaw in this argument is that under the facts which the jury might properly have found here upon the evidence, the above rule has no application. In the case cited the plaintiff walked out into a sleigh which was approaching in plain sight from his left on a straight street at a speed of about four miles per hour. In the principal case the jury might justifiably have concluded that the plaintiff was struck by the defendant's automobile which suddenly came around a curve 60 feet away, which obscured it from his sight when he looked, at a speed of 40 miles per hour and struck him down without warning.

It is true that one witness for the defendant estimated that there was a clear view to the plaintiff's left of 500 feet, and that the defendant's son, who was driving her car, testified that the curve was 200 feet from where the plaintiff was hit. The witness Woodworth, on the other hand, testified that the plaintiff could see but 180 feet to his left, the plaintiff that the curve may have been 100 feet north of him (on his left); and the witness Faber that it was but 60 feet. No survey or plan of locus was introduced in evidence to determine with any greater certainty what the distance in question was.

The testimony of the plaintiff's witnesses that the defendant's car came around this curve at high speed, estimated at 40 miles an hour, was strongly corroborated by the testimony of many witnesses that after hitting the plaintiff where its brakes were applied, it proceeded 140 feet more on a zig-zag course across the road, and collided with the Woodworth car further south. It is undisputed that no warning signal was sounded. At such a speed, equivalent to some 50 feet per second, under the facts the jury might well have found there to have existed, it could well conclude that the plaintiff in doing what he said he did, was struck without any contributory negligence upon his part. Nor does the fact that the defendant offered evidence contradicting some of that above referred to, warrant the court in upsetting the jury's conclusion.

The motion to set aside the verdict is denied.

ROTARIANS HAVE DISTRICT GOVERNOR FOR GUEST

Allan D. Colvin of Hartford, governor of the 30th district of Rotary International, was the guest of honor at the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Gov. Colvin delivered a very interesting message to the Rotarians when he likened Rotary to the great steel bridge, saying that every member of Rotary was a part of the structure which when united would bear great burdens.

Gov. Colvin in his talk said that Rotary was made up of simple truths, nothing complex or difficult to understand. The programme for 1926-1927 is the six objects of Rotary, all of which if practiced in the life of the business and professional man tend toward better business. Speaking of the work of Rotary in carrying out the programme, Gov. Colvin said that the various committees should function from the heart and a real interest in their subject be taken. The part in Rotary taken by the district governor is like the mechanical governor on a turbine or engine. It is his duty to keep Rotary in his district running at an even speed and make Rotary effective and the responsibility of every member of Rotary is in conveying Rotary to non-Rotarians in such a way that they cannot misinterpret it.

In answer to the question of what we may expect of a Rotarian Gov. Colvin said that, first, a Rotarian must lead a life that his presence will be welcome anywhere he goes; second, that he must be above the average in his line of business; and third, that he should take time to take an active interest in Rotary. Everyone has a definition for Rotary and all are good but th. Rotary of five years ago is not the Rotary of today nor yet is the Rotary of today what it will be five years hence. Rotary is growing and every Rotarian must grow with it. In closing Mr. Colvin said that the Rotarians should learn the simple truths of Rotary and practice them.

The meeting was largely attended, there being a number of visiting Rotarians from other clubs present. President Edwin A. Harris presided with William G. Park as song leader. Among the musical features of the programme were two solos by Frank R. Murdy and several chorus numbers by members of the club.

The business methods committee put on a sketch illustrating a point in business that causes more or less confusion. The characters of the manufacturers were taken by James E. Roantree and Joseph C. Curtis, while the character of the banker was taken by Nathan A. Gibbs. The point brought out was prompt payment and cash discount.

The meeting closed with the Star Spangled Banner.

AUDIENCE ENTHUSIASTIC AT HEARING LUCREZIA BORI

Lucrezia Bori, prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera company, opened the Connecticut college concert series in the armory at New London Tuesday evening giving a splendidly rendered programme which aroused a big audience to a degree of enthusiasm seldom if ever before witnessed in New London. To her regular programme she gave seven additions in response to the unstinted applause, including two repeated numbers.

Musical critics declared that she proved herself unrivalled among singers of her sex in ability to establish a mood and the rare and subtle use of tone color. Throughout the concert Frederick Bristol at the piano supported the singer with splendid accompaniments.

During the early part of the concert the electric lights failed for a time, leaving the armory in total darkness. Early predictions of a capacity house were not realized and a considerable number of the low priced seats remained unsold.

The sunshine of Wednesday was doubly welcome, following the near-hurricane and deluge of Tuesday. The temperature was 56 degrees in the afternoon.

BAZAAR'S CLOSING NIGHT CROWDS STATE ARMORY

Well over a thousand people crowded the armory Wednesday evening, the closing night of the bazaar held by the Woman's auxiliary of the W. W. Backus hospital. The attendance Wednesday evening far exceeded the attendance of the previous night which had been cut down by the severe rain and wind storm. D'Atri's orchestra furnished a splendid programme during the evening and as on Tuesday night dancing was enjoyed in the roped-off space in the center of the large hall.

The score or more of booths did a rushing business and were pretty well cleaned out at closing time. The affair proved most successful and the committees well pleased with the financial returns.

The list of committees and workers published in the Wednesday morning's Bulletin should have included the following:

Hot dogs and coffee—Mrs. Laura Williams, Miss Gertrude Hathaway, Miss May Hollingsworth, Leo Tumick, Dikeman Zabriskie, E. Larue Bliven, Flint Brayton, John D. Hall, J. C. Worth and E. A. Harris.

Italian booth—Mrs. Thomas McVeigh, Mrs. Joseph Burke, Miss Mary Hamill, Miss Lucy Murphy, Miss May Riley. This booth was in charge of Mercier assembly, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, with a Rialto background painted by Joseph Farrell, which was an important contribution to the completeness of the scene which the booth presented.

Street of Jerusalem committee—Mrs. Alex Pasnik, chairman; Mrs. A. H. Manes, vice chairman; Mrs. Nathan Gilman, vice chairman; Jennie Lowenberg, treasurer; Marcia Bruckner, decorations; general committee; Mrs. A. W. Curland, Mrs. D. Teichenberg, Mrs. Herman Bruckner, Mrs. Abraham Silverberg, Mrs. Simon Mandell, Mrs. Charles Jacobson, Mrs. Jacob Wechsler, Mrs. F. Herman, Mrs. Abraham Bruckner, Miss Goldie Bruckner, Miss Sadie Schwartz, Miss Hannah Curland, Miss Ida Grablefsky, Miss Miriam Goldberg, Miss Mildred Solomon, Miss Lea Adelstone.

All the committee members were enthusiastic Wednesday in their expressions of gratitude and appreciation for the helpful spirit shown by every person whose aid had been sought in putting over the bazaar.

In constructing the quaint Norwegian cottage, reproduced from a photograph taken by Mrs. Gardiner Greene while abroad, John Tracy and two assistants were painstaking in having the structure built accurately in every detail. The useful and the novel articles for sale were selected with great care by Mrs. Frederick Sayles and were disposed of to good patronage by her efficient aides. Visitors were quick to note the oddity of a tree growing out of the roof of the house, but this was exactly as Mrs. Greene had pictured the cottage.

Nearby, members from Norwich Art school interested visitors by their work in pottery, coloring tiles and the like.

In the Czecho-Slovakia booth, in the intervals between selling utility articles, Mrs. Henry E. Church gave great familiar type of "heart songs," beginning familiar type of "heart songs," beginning with Home, Sweet Home.

In the booth of Ireland, Mrs. Joseph F. Cummings chairman, there was keen competition for a number of tempting prize cakes, handsomely decorated. A variety of food stuffs added to the interest of this green and white booth, above which the symbolic gold harp of Tara was conspicuous.

The coffee stand was in charge of Mrs. C. D. Williams, A. D. Zabriskie selling hot dogs in true beach resort style.

One of the popular nooks of the bazaar was the Chinese tea room, and here again the splendid type of cooperation did much to make it the success which it proved.

Miss Catherine Bruce Isbister, the chairman who was ably assisted by Louis Ortman in the carpenter work, carried out faithfully the scheme of Chinese yellow in painting the great number of tubs in which graceful juniper trees were planted as a screen and decoration for the section. After this big work had been accomplished Miss Isbister had the generous loan of curios, banners, fittings, et al., from Mrs. Walter T. Camp, Mrs. Daniel M. Lester, Raymond B. Case and above all from Rutherford C. Plaut, who gave the use of mandarin and coolie coats, Chinese hangings, furnishings et al. The choice roses which decorated the tables were provided by Mrs. William H. Palmer. In an effort to add to the success of the bazaar generous donations were made by the Mohican store, the Cranston company, Geduldig greenhouses, R. F. Smith, George O. Hathaway, and the Far East restaurant, while Mr. Peterson, of the firm of Patterson & Peterson, proffered his valuable services to aid in the tea room.

Here, at the appointed table, Mrs. William H. Palmer in rich oriental costume, poured tea, coffee being poured by Mrs. John Jay Cisco and Mrs. Ralph H. Howe. Mrs. Albert H. Riese the vice chairman had charge of the tickets. The alert and dainty waitresses were Deborah Parker, Constance Chapman, Betty Hitchon, Catherine Hough, Emily Bidwell, Suzanne and Alice Higgins, Ruth Loring, Janet Blackstone, Betty Spear, Eleanor Painter, Barbara and Sarah Tingley, Anna Guglielmetti and Dorothy Prentice.

WOMEN VOTERS LEAGUE HAS 346 MEMBERSHIP

Miss Edna L. Tyler of New London, county chairman, gave her annual report of the county work at the meeting and luncheon of New London County League of Women Voters which was held Wednesday at 1 o'clock at the Mohican hotel, New London.

Miss Tyler's report, which gave the league membership in New London county as 346, was as follows:

"We are Seven!" is our boast this year, but unlike Wordsworth's child heroine, who persistently included several long dead brethren in her count, New London county's seven are all thriving and very much alive.

Our roll call is East Lyme, Groton, Lebanon, Montville, Mystic, New London and Sprague.

These leagues have all worked together harmoniously and efficiently and though handicapped by the loss of their county chairman in May, they have not let up in their effort to make an even better record for their county than that which won the president's cup a year ago.

The East Lyme league, under the leadership of Miss Effie Haynes, has held meetings every month with an interesting and varied program. The president attended both finance field days and the league was represented by a good delegation at the state convention.

East Lyme Pledged $85

With a membership of 48, East Lyme pledged $50 to the state, and then contributed an additional $35 toward the county deficit.

The Groton league has a membership of only 15, but it pledged $75 to the state, and after that was paid, gave the county $10 more. There were nine meetings held during the year and the league made an interesting experiment in local politics, which may have overstepped the strict limits of this league of the League of Women Voters, but which seemed warranted by requirements of the town charter. Mrs. Huddle, who has shepherded the league since its organization, refused a reelection and has been succeeded by Mrs. R. J. Whitham, our former county chairman.

Lebanon has successfully completed its first year, during which it has held 12 regular and two special meetings. It has a membership of 40, and though no pledge was made, Lebanon has given $25 toward the county's quota.

Montville League Active

With a membership of 26, the Montville league pledged $60 and then gave $40 more, making an even hundred. Twelve meetings were held during the year, and the Montville league took charge of the League of Women Voters' booth during the days of the county fair in Norwich. The league was represented at the state convention and at the fall finance field day.

Miss Gleaton devoted the month of June to organization work in New London county and it is to her credit that we are Seven.

Reorganizes Mystic League

There had once been a league in Mystic but it had voted itself out of existence several years ago, and there remained only five paid-up members at large to mark the spot where a league had died. Miss Gleaton was successful in discovering and enlisting some valuable new material, notably, Mrs. Carl Cutler, who had worked with the New York League of Women Voters.

The new league was organized in June, Mrs. Cutler was elected president and under her leadership Mystic has made remarkable progress and bids fair to be one of our banner leagues. It has already held four meetings devoted to local elections and international affairs—has a membership of 20, and has made a contribution of $25 to the county.

The Sprague league suffered last winter from the absence of Mrs. Conway, who had been its devoted and efficient president since the organization of the league.

Miss Gleaton again proved herself a first class gold digger, and in September a successful and well attended meeting was held, when Mrs. William G. Park of Hanover was elected president. The league held six meetings during the year and has made an especial study of the world court. It has a membership of 17, and made a pledge of $20 which it has paid in full.

The New London league started the year with a successful campaign which brought its membership up to 149. Three hundred and fifty dollars was pledged to the state, and $50 additional was contributed toward the unpledged county bugbear.

The New London league now has an active chairman for each of the departments of the league and has recently sent out cards to all its members requesting them to register as interested in, at least, one of these committees.

Prize Offered

Miss Luddington has offered a prize to the New London county league having the highest percentage of members who are money-raisers, which will be awarded at the county convention next May.

The New London county convention was held at Bride Brook farm, East Lyme, on May 17, when Miss Luddington explained, What is the National League of Women Voters, and Miss Marjorie Cheney exposed our ignorance of party machinery.

Three county quarterly meetings were also held, the first in November, with a report of the convention, and a talk on the world court by Mrs. Kitchelt. The second, in February, was devoted to the county and state institutions. The principal speakers were Miss Bulkeley, Miss Emily Sophie Brown, Mrs. Porritt, and representatives of the Mansfield school and hospital, and the Mystic Oral school.

In July, Mrs. Cheesman gave us her One Day Parliamentary School which was as delightful as it was valuable.

League Membership

The total league membership in New London county is 346, including ten members at large.

Aside from Miss Luddington's contribution of $1,000, which is credited to our county, we have raised $670.

The seven leagues have given $740. Individual pledges, amounting to $111 have been paid in, and $23 in dues additional to pledges.

Every league that made a pledge has paid in full; every league but one has given more than it did the year before, and every league but one has given more than it pledged.

East Lyme and Montville have been notably generous, increasing their pledges 70 percent, while Lebanon and Mystic, which made no pledge, gave $25 each. A year ago we were helped by two large gifts were were not forthcoming again and in our case, "the last hundred dollars was the hardest."

Music critics acclaim the first performance in New York of Pucini's Posthumous opera, "Turandot," with Mapia Jeritza in role, as a brilliant performance.

CONNECTICUT AGGIES WILL LOSE FIVE PLAYERS BY GRADUATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Nov. 17.—Five seniors at Connecticut Agricultural college will complete their gridiron careers next Saturday at Storrs, when Rensselaer is met by the Nutmeg Aggies in what will be the eighth and final game of Connecticut's 1926 football campaign.

They are Captain John J. Daly of Hartford, Antonio A. Longo of Danielson, Arthur Lorentsen of Naugatuck, Arthur E. Zollin of Arlington, Mass., and William K. Schofield of Waterbury. All are regular members of the Aggie eleven, and their work has contributed greatly to the success enjoyed by Coach Dole's men this year.

Captain Daly will go down in Aggie gridiron history as one of the outstanding leaders of Connecticut elevens, ranking fully as valuable in bringing Storrs football to the fore as the redoubtable "Red" O'Neill and other leaders of past seasons. Daly came to Storrs in the fall of 1923, after making an excellent name for himself in scholastic circles as a member of Hartford high school elevens. He immediately made the pivot position on Coach Alexander's freshman team, the first yearling eleven to represent the Aggies. Daly played a strong game at center the entire season, and was one of the outstanding players that enabled the Aggie cube to go through the season without a defeat.

Daly returned to Storrs in 1924 as a sophomore and eligible for varsity competition. He immediately won the center berth, and has been a fixture in that position ever since. In that season, when Connecticut tackled the stiffest schedule ever played by an Aggie eleven, the team went through the season without a defeat, had only 13 points scored against it in eight contests, and for seven straight games the goal line was uncrossed. Through the entire season, Daly's work was steady and consistent, and he played practically the entire time in every game. Thus it happened that in his first two years at Storrs, Daly played a prominent part in two undefeated seasons.

A year ago Connecticut's fortunes on the gridiron took a turn for the worse, when five of nine games were lost. Through all the reverses, however, Daly's work shone as a bright light in an otherwise drab season, and his election to the 1926 eleven was practically unanimous.

This year, the Aggies have shown to much better advantage on the gridiron, and no small share of the credit for the success enjoyed should go to Captain Daly. Starring both on the offense and defense, Daly's playing has been an inspiration to his men, one which is probably best reflected in the record of the Connecticut team to date. He has proven to be a cool and level-headed leader, and is described by Coach Dole as one of the best captains he has had to work with in his four seasons at Connecticut.

In addition to his football ability, Daly has developed rapidly as a basketball player at Storrs, and he will report with the Aggie quintet for the first practice shortly after Thanksgiving. He is also an honor student, being a member of Gamma Chi Epsilon, the honorary scholastic fraternity. He will finish the four year course in three and a half years. Daly is a brother of Maurice F. Daly, regular center on the Army eleven, and who captained the Connecticut Aggie eleven of 1922 from a fullback position.

Antonio Longo, regular left tackle in the Aggie line, is a star player who has been prevented from showing to best advantage by injuries. He has suffered so many injuries, in fact, during his grid career at Storrs, that those familiar with what the Danielson boy has had to contend with often describe him as the "Hard Luck Man of Aggie football".

Ever since his freshman year, Longo has been hampered by a knee injury that caused him to spend much of the time in the college infirmary, and prevented a regular appearance in the Connecticut lineup. This season, when he was playing by far the best game of his career the jinx persisted, and in the Maine game at Orono, his shoulder was badly dislocated. A doctor's examination at that time made it appear that Longo was all through competition for this season. Everyone in Storrs thought the same, except Longo, and two weeks later when the squad left for the New Hampshire game at Manchester, N. H., Longo was left behind. Longo was not to be denied, however, for he made a hurried trip to a Hartford specialist, who after an examination wrote out a statement to the effect that the Aggie player was in condition for competition. Armed with this, Longo made a long trip to New Hampshire by train and in time to get into the contest, which the Aggies won, 3-0. The doctor's statement was what pulled Longo through in that instance, for Coach Dole had previously believed it would not be safe for him to play. The incident is a good example of the spirit shown by the entire Aggie squad this season, and it helps to explain why the team is a winning one.

Arthur Lorentsen of Naugatuck, regular left guard, is another of the group who began their football careers at Storrs on the 1923 frosh eleven. He formerly starred with Naugatuck high, and has continued with his good work at Connecticut. In his sophomore year here, he showed up well, but as Dole had two veterans in Bitgood and Eyre he did not play regular. He did earn a place for himself in the Aggie line last year, and he has retained it through this season, playing a consistently strong game at all times.

Arthur Zollin of Arlington, Mass., who plays both tackle and guard with equal ability, captained the first Aggie frosh eleven from a tackle position. He formerly played for Rindge Technical school of Cambridge, Mass., and while a member of that eleven was chosen for the Boston Suburban league "All-Scholastic" eleven. He made his letter while a sophomore on the 1924 eleven, played regularly at tackle all last season, and at guard this year. In addition to his defensive ability, Zollin is considered by Coach Dole as exceptional lineman in opening holes for the ball carrier to gain through.

William K. Schofield of Waterbury, quarter and halfback, is not only the outstanding athlete in his class but one of the outstanding men in athletic history at Storrs. He is probably best known as a basketball star, having made the "All-New England" five for two successive years. He is captain-elect for both the Aggie basketball and baseball teams for the coming year.

Schofield has played regularly on Aggie elevens for the past three seasons, part time at halfback, but mostly at quarter. He has shown at his best in the latter position, running the team with snap and precision, using excellent judgment in the selection of plays, carrying the ball well, and taking a prominent part in the aerial game that Dole's elevens have always stressed. Schofield is an accurate tosser of forwards, and an exceptional receiver, and his work has made him an important cog in the Aggie attack.

FUGAZY ANXIOUS TO STAGE HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Firing the opening gun in a new heavyweight war, promoter Humbert J. Fugazy today entered into competition with Tex Rickard for the privilege of staging the next world's championship title.

After a conference with Gene Tunney, Fugazy revealed that the new title-holder is not under contract to box for Rickard and that he expected to promote a bout between the champion and one of his outstanding challengers next summer.

"Tunney assured me he is not bound to any promoter and that he will be glad to fight for me if I can offer the right price for his services," said Fugazy.

Rickard admitted he has no written contract with Tunney, but said that a verbal agreement had been made prior to the Dempsey fight under which he was to select the champion's next opponent. This he was proceeding to do, he pointed out, through an elimination series this winter between the leading contenders.

The competition between Rickard and Fugazy is the latest manifestation of a promotion feud starting early last summer. The latter, who obtained the use of Ebbets field for outdoor matches, put over his biggest victory by clinching the Berlenbach-Delaney light-heavyweight championship match, one of the outstanding financial successes of the season.

His activities since the close of the outdoor campaign, however, have been curtailed by failure to obtain a suitable indoor arena.

LAMBIE SAYS ASSOCIATION ACTED UNCONSTITUTIONALLY

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The action of the president of the United States Soccer Referees' association last Sunday in directing members not to officiate in American soccer league games was unconstitutional, George Lambie, past president of the association, said today. He declared that "the parent body of referees erred badly" in issuing the ultimatum after the league's refusal to grant the referees pay increases and free admission to all games.

"I wired President Booth," Mr. Lambie said today, "pointing out to him that his action in declaring the ultimatum was unconstitutional inasmuch as only three members of the executive committee attended the meeting at which it was decided to issue the ultimatum. Rule nine of the U. S. R. A., distinctly states that six representatives shall form a quorum."

Mr. Lambie expressed the opinion that "referees have been fairly dealt with by the pro league, having received an increase of fifty per cent in their fees since the opening of the season."

The boycott, given without an hour's notice, he said, could not be for the good of soccer.

He said that he felt that the rank and file of the referees throughout the country should be acquainted with the facts in the case.

BOOTH DENOUNCES THE STATEMENT MADE BY LAMBIE

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Joe Booth, president of the United States Soccer Referees' association, tonight denounced the statement of Past President George Lambie, of Boston, who averred that strike ultimatum had been unconstitutional and would not be for the good of soccer.

In answer to Lambie's intimation that the ultimatum was unconstitutional, inasmuch as only three members of the executive committee attended the meeting at which it was decided to issue the ultimatum, and that six members were necessary for a quorum, Booth declared that because the meeting was a special one and not a council meeting three executive committee men could officially pass an ultimatum.

"Furthermore," said President Booth "the strike was called solely because the American Soccer league refused to recognize our admission privilege, although a request was presented to the league, wherein it was stated that it was the opinion of the Referees' association that the referee's fee of $15 per game should be raised to $20 because of the additional duties placed on his shoulders with the recent abolition of goal judges."

CONFLICT OF DATES MAY UPSET GOLF TOURNEYS

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(AP)—A conflict in dates which threaten international competition on the links between America and Great Britain next year loomed tonight on the eve of a meeting of United States Golf association executives to arrange 1927 title fixtures.

For the first time in several years, the American open at Oakmont tentatively has been fixed for June 23, 24 and 25, a period which falls within the week already chosen for the British open. Submission of these dates by the U. S. G. A. to the Professional Golfers association for approval has indicated they are likely to be accepted tomorrow, thus forcing a showdown in the long controversy over dates with the Royal and Ancient club of Great Britain.

Conflicting dates next year would prevent another performance such as that recorded last summer by Bobby Jones, who won both championships. It also will threaten the contemplated invasion of America by a team of British professionals, who had announced their desire to participate in the American open.

ROLLER POLO LEAGUE OPENS NEXT WEDNESDAY

HARTFORD, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Announcement of playing lists and discussion of league business were the chief items of business of the American Roller Polo league club owners here, tonight.

It was announced that Homer C. Rainault, of Holyoke, Mass., had signed Fred Jean, as manager, captain and center.

The league opens next Wednesday night. Players have been ordered to report in all cities next Monday for practice. The leag e will meet again Sunday.

Applications for a franchise was received from James J. Lawlor, representing Bristol and Sam Simmons, representing Bridgeport. No action was taken on these applications.

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Randolph V. L. Miller, of Pomer, N. Y., today was elected captain of the Amherst 1927 football team. He has played guard for two seasons with the Little Three titleholders, and will be the first linesman to head an Amherst eleven since 1922.

Miller has won two letters in basketball and also is a letter man in weight events. The 1927 team will be managed by John Grant of Fairfield, Conn.

N. Y. U. GRIDERS ON WAY TO TACKLE CORNHUSKERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—New York university's unbeaten football team sped westward tonight on a two-fold mission.

Not only will Chick Meehan's warriors seek victory next Saturday against the Nebraska Cornhuskers as a fitting climax to the Violet's most successful season in gridiron history, but there also will be a defensive record to uphold. In their march to eight straight triumphs thus far, the Gotham gridders have yielded but ten points to their opponents—a feat which ranks second only to the performance of Notre Dame.

The lone touchdown against the New York team, scored by West Virginia Wesleyan, came in the final period after Coach Meehan had withdrawn many of his regulars, while the additional three points resulted from a drop kick by Zev Graham in the conflict with Fordham. Six other elevens, including Tulane, Carnegie Tech, Davis-Elkins and Rutgers, failed to cross the N. Y. U. goal line.

Realizing that a triumph over Nebraska would give their team the added achievement of scoring the east's most notable victory on foreign ground, N. Y. U. supporters point to the fact that Coach Meehan's players already have won three intersectional battles. They count heavily on the kicking of Connor and Strong, both of whom have frequently hoisted field goals over the bar this season.

Although there is little more than traditional satisfaction left for Yale and Harvard, there is no sign of waning interest in their annual struggle on Saturday, which will draw a capacity throng to the New Haven bowl, it was indicated today.

A radical shake-up in the Harvard team leaves the Crimson line-up in doubt, with Madison Sayles the only back apparently certain of starting. Cambridge reports indicate that Coach Horween may decide upon Jake Stafford as field general instead of Putnam, while Chauntey, the Crimson's talented kicker, is expected to see more action than hitherto.

Yale's position as favorite appears justified by comparative records. Against both Princeton and Brown the Eli team displayed a firmer defense and a more powerful attack than the Crimson, but in some quarters the battle was looked upon as a toss-up.

The fate of Harvard and Yale has been made a secondary consideration in the bustling communities of Easton and Bethlehem, Pa., where preparations have gone forward for the traditional struggle of Lehigh and Lafayette, Lehigh, apparently overmatched this year, has only dim hopes of victory. Twice this season, however, the Bethlehem warriors have flared up unexpectedly, coming within a single point of tying Princeton and defeating Rutgers a week ago.

WINDHAM FAVORABLE TO PLAYING THE ACADEMY

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 17.—Windham high's football management will hold in abeyance its action upon Norwich Free Academy's invitation for a post-season game in Norwich, Thanksgiving day afternoon, until after the game with South Manchester high school at Recreation park here this coming Saturday.

Coach Thomas A. Callaghan has so notified the Norwich management. The Manchester game will be played by Windham's most formidable array in view of the importance in which this encounter is held. Windham is favorable to the post-season game with Norwich on condition that there are no severe injuries suffered in the Manchester tilt that would handicap the playing in the Rose of New England. Eddie Nichols, a fast corner-on the squad will probably be the only exception to the first team regulars to enter the fray here Saturday. Coach Callaghan has found injuries, and frequent ones at that, to be his biggest drawback in moulding a 100 per cent efficient machine this year. The squad's general condition is far from being good at present.

ROCKNE CLAIMS 1926 TEAM NOT EQUAL TO 1920 AND 1924

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Notre Dame team that beat Army in the Yankee stadium last Saturday, although a leading contender for mythical football honors, is not equal to his elevens of 1920 and 1924, Knute Rockne says. "They are as competent a team," the western wizard admits, "but I haven't the individuals I had then. Gipp, in 1920, was a wonder-man, and I had Kiley at end, and Brandy, Wynne, and Mohardt in the backfield. In 1924 there were the 'four horsemen', Stuhldreher, Crowley, Miller and Leyden".

ANDERSON ENTERS PRO RANKS OF TENNIS

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Entering the professional fold today, James O. Anderson of Australia increased to an even half-dozen the total of international tennis stars who have passed from the amateur ranks in a single year. The Anzac Davis cup star follows a trail already taken by Suzanne Lenglen, Vincent Richards, Howard Kinsey, Mary K. Browne, and Paul Feret.

Organize for Coming Season

The Taftville Eagles have organized for the coming season under the management of Leodore Phaneuf with a fast and clever team. The Eagles have secured a number of stars to strengthen their team for the coming season such as Leo Thibeault of Troop 4 and Romeo La Rose of the White's All-Stars.

The Eagles have been through a few stiff practice sessions in the past weeks and are in fine shape. The lineup for the coming season includes the following: Theodore Pepin, the snappy forward will be at right; Henry Lucier, star of last year's team will be at left forward; Lionel Prive, will jump at center; Louis Chancerelle will be at right guard; Leo Thibeault will be seen at left guard; Antonio Fournier, Romeo La Rose and Mgr. Leodore Phaneuf will be held in reserve.

The Eagles would like to hear from any fast junior team in Norwich and vicinity. For arrangements get in touch with Mgr. Leodore Phaneuf, Taftville, Conn., Box 88, or call 1973-4, between 6 and 7 o'clock any evening.

No Tickets At Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Twenty five thousand dollars worth of checks for Harvard-Yale game tickets have been returned to senders, the Harvard Athletic association announced tonight, for lack of pasteboards to return for them. The Crimson allotment of tickets was exhausted a week ago.

NORMANDIN STARS AS PLAINFIELD OPENS SEASON WITH EASY VICTORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 17.—The Hartford Aetnas bowed in defeat before the scrappy Plainfield Town team here tonight at the Plainfield Community house where the Aetnas were handed a 44 to 14 set-back in a hard-fought tilt. The local boys showed much more speed than the visitors and in spite of the imposing array of stars Hartford was unable at any time to threaten the local's goal. With such well known basketers as Dissinger, Normandin, Benson, Norris and Stavliniski, veterans of last year's team, Plainfield started out strong in the opening period. In the first half Dissinger, the speedy forward, registered most of the score in the fray with Normandin next. In the second half, Martelli, the new recruit, was sent in to replace Normandin and instilled himself in the hearts of the local fans with his excellent pass work and the number of baskets caged.

The Hartford team in an effort to stem the ever-increasing score of Plainfield used every substitute available but in the final half of the second period Plainfield piled up basket after basket.

The Buddies defeated the Willimantic outfit in the preliminary game by the score of 16 to 13. With the score hinging on the extra point the Buddies in the last minute of play clinched their first game of the season against a heavier team. The summary:

PROUT ELECTED HEAD OF AMATEUR ATHLETIC UNION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Scoring a sweeping victory in a sharp conflict for control of the American Olympic organization, the forces led by the Amateur Athletic union tonight elected William C. Prout of Boston to the presidency of the American Olympic association as well as the committee in charge of this country's participation in the 1928 Olympic games at Amsterdam.

The election of Mr. Prout and other officers supported by the A. A. U. was followed by the dramatic withdrawal of opposition leaders from active connection either with the Olympic association or the Olympic committee now taking over active control.

Principal among these leaders were Brigadier General Palmer E. Pierce, president of the National Collegiate A. A., and Colonel Henry Breckinridge, president of the National Amateur Athletic federation. Their withdrawal was interpreted as an open break between the faction which they led and that of the A. A. U.

Both Brigadier General Pierce and Colonel Breckinridge had been named members of the executive committee of the Olympic association, but they immediately resigned the offices tendered them. They were joined by Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of the western conference, who also withdrew from the executive committee, and by J. Brooks Parker of Philadelphia, who had been put on the finance committee.

In deciding the main issues, the A. A. U. was supported by the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A., the United States Lawn Tennis association, the Amateur Fencers league, the National Football association and the National Revolver association, among other groups.

The opposing forces, led by the N. C. A. A. and N. A. A. F., were supported by army and navy representatives, the Y. M. C. A., and western intercollegiate conference. Despite action of their delegates in withdrawing from all offices, it was said they would not sever organization connection with the American Olympic association.

HORWEEN WILL COACH HARVARD NEXT SEASON

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Arnold Horween of Chicago, who has guided the Harvard football team this season, tonight announced that he had accepted an offer to return to Cambridge next year. Some time ago it became known that the athletic committee had offered Horween a contract for a term of years as head football coach.

Horween made his announcement at an undergraduate rally held in Harvard union to cheer the Crimson football squad which is to meet Yale in New Haven on Saturday.

More than 2,000 students took part in what was described as the greatest football demonstration in many years.

In this speech Horween said that Harvard had had many difficulties to overcome at the start of the present season, which so far has been disappointing to Crimson supporters.

"All these difficulties have now been overcome," the coach said, "for the first time this year the team will be in perfect condition at the start of Saturday's game."

No announcement was made of the line-up that will start against Yale. Two reasons were given for reserving this until Saturday. Horween, it was said, still is undecided as to several positions, and it is thought better strategy to keep the Elis guessing.

CRUICKSHANK AND WOIGHT WIN MID-SOUTH TOURNEY

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Bobby Cruickshank, New York professional, and his amateur partner George Voight of Washington, won the amateur-professional mid-south best ball golf tournament at the Country club here today with a score of 138 for the 36 holes.

Their score was five shots higher than last year when the event was captured by Leo Diegel, then Canadian champion, and his partner, Jack Davison of Boston.

The winners came from behind to nose out Cyril Walker, American open champion, and Halbert Brue of Aberdeen, N. C., who led in the morning round with a 68, and finishing with a 139.

ISAAC G. PERRY WAS VETERAN RETIRED JEWELER

Isaac G. Perry, 97, president of the jewelry firm of Perry & Stone, Inc., at New London, died at his home in Great Barrington, Mass., late Tuesday afternoon after a few months' illness due to old age. He was the oldest Mason and the oldest retired jeweler in Berkshire county, Mass. He was born in Adams, December 12, 1829, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Perry. Mr. Perry was a frail youth and the family physician predicted that he would live but a few years unless he had occupation that kept him out of doors.

His first job was that of traveling salesman for Washington Root, a Pittsfield jeweler. For seven years he drove with a horse through the Berkshire towns and did a thriving business. About 1866 he opened a jewelry store in Great Barrington from which he retired some 15 years ago.

In 1893 Mr. Perry and his son-in-law, Eben D. Stone, opened a store in New London. Mr. Perry was a member of Cincinnatus lodge of Masons and of Knights Templars of Pittsfield and of the Congregational church.

On November 9, 1859 he was married to Miss Maria A. Porter of Pittsfield, who died about a year ago. He is survived by a son, Frank of Boston, and two daughters, Mrs. Eben D. Stone of New London and Mrs. Ernest Jackson of Great Barrington.

She was the daughter of the late John Carney and Mary E. Carney of Spring street.

Attending the public schools of Westerly, she graduated from the Westerly high school in 1903. Besides her husband and mother she is survived by five children, two sisters, Mrs. Raymond Sullivan of Bridgeport, Conn., and Mrs Wilfred P. Frechette of Westerly, and a brother, John Carney, of Waterbury, Conn.

Estate of Helen C. (Maxson) Liming. First account of Washington Trust company, in guardianship of her estate, was received from Trust Officer Thomas Perry, who appeared before the court. There being no objection, the account was received, examined and ordered recorded.

At the adjourned session of Westerly probate court held on Wednesday morning before Judge Burke business was disposed of as follows:

Estate of Matthew McGrath. Attorney James J Sullivan of Boston appeared for certain legatees, the case having been continued to this date from the probate court session of Nov. 2nd. Pending the presentation of certain papers, the case was continued still.

Commander Arthur J. Card, Generalissimo Robert Hazard, Captain General David A. Lowry of Narragansett commandery, No. 17, K. T., of Westerly, together with Past Commanders Samuel Girven and Charles F. Berry and Sir Knights, James H. Blackler, William T. Stillman, George A. Sanders and Fred Harvey were motor visitors to Providence on Tuesday afternoon and evening when they attended the annual inspection of Calvary commandery, No. 13, K. T. of Providence which occurred in Freemasons hall. Westerly Highway Engineer A. L. Leon, a member of Calvary commandery, was a member of the commandery escort. Grand Commander James A. Dunn of Turners Falls, Mass., was also in attendance.

A visit was made the first of the week at Wallingford to attend a meeting of the Connecticut Charity Foundation and the journey was continued by auto to Springfield, Mass., where the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children was visited.

Workmen in the employ of the gas department of the South County Public Service company have been engaged the past few weeks in placing curb line shut off boxes on the service gas pipe leading from the street mains to the various buildings on both sides of High and Canal streets. A fire at the Rhode Island hotel block on Broad street several months ago where in the basement of the block on a gas service main refused to be extinguished and required the digging up of the service pipe in the street, showed the necessity of such shut-offs.

At the new office block at 45 High street, the highway is now being dug up to connect the building with the sewer main drain in the street. The digging there is of such a nature that the sand requires extensive shoreing up of the ditch side sto prevent caveins on the men employed there.

Westerly College club met Wednesday evening at 8 Margin street, where the hostess was Mrs. Harvey C. Perry. The speaker of the evening was the Westerly artist, Stephen Wesley Macomber, who spoke on present day art in Rhode Island. "We need your help," says Mrs. Dagmar Smith, superintendent of the People's Mission, in a written statement. "Donations of money, chickens, groceries or vegetables of any kind will be gladly received at the mission rooms. Telephone 2529 and we will call for them."

Box No. 46, of the Pawcatuck fire district was sounded Tuesday evening when rain was pouring down in torrents. It was for a fire in the Velie touring car of David Paladino of Bradford, who had just left his auto to enter the theater on West Broad street. In a short time the truck of the P. S. Barber Hose Co. was on the scene. In the meantime, chemical extinguishers had been brought from a nearby store and had been emptied on the flaming car, so that the fire was practically out when the fire truck arrived.

It is thought that the fire was caused by a short circuit, and the damage was slight.

Occurring at 7:15 o'clock a large crowd of spectators soon gathered and for a while, Officer A. R. Sheldon had a hard time to keep traffic moving on the street.

Mr. and Mrs. Job Thorp of Westerly have been visiting during the past week with Mr. Thorp's daughter in Palmyra, N. Y.

(STERLING HILL)

The Ladies Aid society of Ekonk church held an all-day meeting Friday at the parsonage with Rev. Lydia Hartig. A fine dinner was served. A comforter tied and all enjoyed the day. Committees were appointed to arrange for holding a sale of fancy articles, home made candy and to serve a harvest supper.

There was no church service on Sterling Hill Sunday; the church members united with the Baptist and Methodist churches of Moosup and listened to a fine address by Evangelist Rees, who is holding meetings every day in Danielson.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

A continuance of the slackness in building operations in Norwich would indicate that the peak of the building activity in Norwich has been reached and passed and that the winter decline is at hand. During the past month only one permit for new building in Norwich has been issued by Fire Marshal Stanton a low figure that has not been touched in the past decade. The first two weeks in October set a record for a like period but after that there was a decided falling away in the applications for permission to build. Contractors do not hope for any great amount of new building until next spring. There is considerable work in hand which should keep the contractors busy until early in January and perhaps longer.

The only large building project let out for bid during the past two weeks is the new Samuel Huntington school at Norwich Town which was awarded to Contractor P. F. Sweeney as general contractor. The heating, plumbing and electric work was also awarded to local firms so that the school will be almost entirely the work of local contractors. It is planned to start work on the new building as soon as practicable.

The work on the new bank building on Broadway is being brought along with commendable speed and the walls of the first story are practically complete with work progressing on the second story. The steel reinforcement work is being installed.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were nine sales of real estate as compared to 16 sales for the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $20,200 and $68,100.

There were eight sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 20 sales for the same week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $97,800 and $155,080.

Building Permits in State

Again, during the past week, the number of building permits issued in the Connecticut building centers covered by The Commercial Record was larger than for the corresponding week in 1925. The rate at which permits have been issued in this state has been above that for last week almost every week during the fall months. Last week there were 411 permits issued against 339 for the like week a year ago. The most substantial increases were made in the cities of Hartford, Bridgeport and Waterbury.

New London

October continued to be a month of continued increase in the number of permits issued in this city as compared with a year ago. From figures furnished by the Commercial Record the 64 permits issued by the local council during October of 1926 exceeded by seven the number granted by the council last year and by 14 the number granted by the council in 1924.

Although the value of new buildings started in Oct. 1925, was estimated at $515,250 as compared to the $256,931 represented in last month's permits, the new Garde building was included in the 1925 figures, accounting for a large portion of the amount. The value of the permits issued in 1924 was estimated at $73,790.

With 19 more permits issued by the council this week the total for this week the total for this months is brought up to 32. Six of the 19 permits this week are for new dwellings while eight are for new garages. If the average number of permits issued weekly maintained during the past few weeks is continued for the balance of the month the high total of 64 for last month will probably be exceeded.

Work has started on the alterations to the Lena building at 159 State street. Present offices of the building will be arranged to provide five complete apartments. Plans specify several partition changes together with new wiring and plumbing.

A local builder has been awarded the contract for the construction of a duplex cottage in Montauk avenue for Silas Maxson, Jr., of 233 Bank street. Private plans specify a structure 43 by 28 feet of frame construction with all modern improvements.

Work has been completed on the addition to the Jordan school. The addition comprises four more rooms for the school, practically doubling the school capacity. The contract was completed three weeks before the specified time.

The exterior work on a new cement block and hollow tile store building for Louis Margolis, is nearly completed. Plans specify a structure 28 by 14 feet to be finished for use as a store.

Work is practically complete on the exterior construction of the store building being erected for Sidney Sulman in Main street near Church street. The new building is of brick construction.

Work is nearly finished on the construction of a commercial garage in Church street for Perry and Stone. The new work is in reality an addition to the 12-stall garage located on the property of Perry and Stone now. The new work comprises a three stall section of brick construction facing the street and a two stall section of brick construction in line with the formerly erected garage facing an alley from the street. A two-story frame dwelling was razed to make room for the new sections.

A local contractor has been awarded the contract for a frame cottage to be built for E. Grann in Faire Harbour place. The new house will be 30 by 24 feet with a porch 10 by 23 feet.

Work has been started on a frame cottage in Sanders street for John T. and T. Ethel Morgan, from private plans the new house will be 24 by 30 feet.

Ground has been broken for two frame dwellings in Norwood avenue. The new houses will be 24 by 24 feet of modern design and construction with improvements. Two stone garages also will be erected.

Work has started on a frame cottage 24 by 26 feet in Kenomoc street for E. P. and Cora Dickenson. The new house will be of modern construction with all modern improvements.

Work of razing the tower on Bulkeley High school has been almost completed and work is now progressing on the alterations necessary.

Westerly

During the past week the two-story commercial building being erected by Samuel Nardone and company of brick and steel with a 75 foot frontage on Canal street and 95 foot frontage on High street, workmen began the laying of the gray brick for the second story street face wall on both Canal and High streets. The first wooden floor for the second story, in the two-story part of the building has now been laid, extending out over the cement above the rounded corner entrance. The building will be 32 feet in height from the sidewalk, having 19,000 square feet floor area with the second story for apartments.

At the light and power office building of the South County Public Service company at 45 High street, the brick side walls have now reached a point higher than the top of the Walton building in which is located the New Park hotel and adjoins the property on the north. Electricians and plumbers are engaged in installing conduits and pipes to care for that service in the building, which is covered up by the cement flooring.

Westerly Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi has issued the following zoning building permits for the second week in November:

Nov. 8. Roger F. Dunham, 15 Wells street. Two-story house, 30 feet by 20 feet on East avenue.

Nov. 9. Gabriel Civco, R. F. D. No. 2, Westerly, R. I. Two-car garage 18 feet by 18 feet at 72 Margin street.

PRO AND CON OF ZONING SYSTEM TO BE MADE KNOWN AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17.—Tomorrow evening the city council members and others who desire the information will have the opportunity to hear about the zoning system. TOBACCO SHOP THIEVES FUSSY ABOUT QUALITY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17.—The tobacco store of Stephen J. McMullen, No. 36 Bilnman street, was burglarized last night, or early this morning. The thieves did a good job for they cleaned out practically everything of value in the place, taking the best grades of tobacco and cigarettes and pipes. The plunder obtained consisted of 12 high grade pipes, 35 cartons of cigarettes, a quantity of standard pipes, and a miscellaneous quantity of smoking and chewing tobacco, together with $5 in specie, found in the cash register. Patrolman Frank Philippens was making his rounds about 1 o'clock and going to the rear of the store, found the door ajar. Upon investigating, the officer found that the door had been forced, while a pinch bar and coal chisel found close by told the story of the method employed by the thieves in gaining entrance to the place. Patrolman Philippens reported the break at headquarters and Sergeant Frank Murphy and Patrolman John Clifford were assigned to further investigate the burglary. They were unable to obtain any clues today as to the identity of the crooks, who are believed to be members of a gang that frequents Main street late at night.

The funeral of George C. Williams was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at his residence, 544 Ocean avenue, and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and acquaintances. The services were conducted by Rev. Melville K. Bailey, of Saybrook. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Florence Roberts, Mable Buzzell and Mary Mortimelli, inmates at the State Farm for Women, escaped from the institution last night and the New London police have been requested to intercept the young women, if they put in an appearance in this city. Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the drivers' licenses of John Danasowics, 142 North Bank street and Edward Bergervin, United States Coast Guard, suspended.

George Parker, 282 Connecticut avenue, today made complaint to the police, stating that several times of late an attempt has been made by thieves to burglarize his garage, corner of Broad and Parker streets. The entrance to the garage shows where the thieves have operated in an attempt to remove the lock.

An automobile owned by Russell J. Turner, 65 Jay street, was stolen last night from its parking place, Meridian street, a location where a score or more automobiles have been stolen in the past six weeks or two months. Turner parked his automobile about 8 o'clock and when he returned there he discovered it missing. Turner reported the theft to the police and the state police as well as the police of surrounding cities were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen auto.

The fleet of tugs and barges that was hung up in the lower harbor by stress of weather Tuesday, got away and west to the eastward with a fair wind this morning. It was a reminder of old times to see the craft at anchor there. Some 20 years ago it was not an unusual sight to see nearly 100 sail craft engaged in the coastwise trade at anchor there during easterly storms. Now it is a rare sight to see more than three or four vessels held, awaiting easterly blows.

Dr. Charles Kaufman, of Montauk avenue, drove his automobile to State street about 5 o'clock last night and parked it in front of the Thames club. He left the auto there about two hours while he attended bouts at the Lyceum theatre and upon his return to the auto shortly after 10 o'clock he discovered that a thief had entered the auto during his absence and had stolen a hand bag which contained a quantity of apparel. Dr. Kaufman today reported his loss to the police.

Miss Harriet Emmerich, of Connecticut avenue, has resumed her duties as clerk in the probate court, after having spent several days with friends in New York.

The condition of Patrolman Patrick Sheehan, critically ill with pneumonia at his home on Crystal avenue, is reported today as being unchanged. The officer's condition is such now that he is not allowed to receive any visitors.

There were only two cases before the police court this morning. Patrick Hanley was there for the second time this month so he was placed where he will not appear again during November. He was sent to jail to stay 30 days. When Patsy was there the 3d inst. he was given his chance, but that was wasted clemency.

Mike Robello parked his car in the space allotted to autoists on State street, but he allowed his machine to hang out so that it interfered with traffic. He was ordered into court and when he appeared he had what proved to be a good defense. He explained that he placed his car within the white lines designating a parking space and that his car was behind two others. That the machine extended out beyond the lines he was not aware and supposed he was complying with the terms of the ordinance governing parking. Judgment was suspended that he might benefit by his experience.

Frank Corcoran, after a fortnight's vacation, was back in his position as police court officer today, relieving Officer Wheeler.

The police report a season of inactivity in the past two days. They have made fewer arrests than in the same period in months.

SOLDIERS STEAL TWO CARS— UNDER ARREST IN NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 17.—Two soldiers from the New London artillery district are in serious trouble for, according to their own confessions, they are guilty of the theft of two automobiles and both thefts occurred within a space of about half an hour. The soldiers are now under arrest at Norwich, for the theft of an automobile in that city and they are wanted for the theft of another auto in this city.

The soldiers are William Radcliffe and Louis Ouillette, stationed at Fort Wright, N. Y. Radcliffe and Ouillette came to New London yesterday afternoon and in the evening they stole from Meridian street, an automobile owned by Russell J. Turner, colored, who is employed at the McKican hotel. The soldiers drove the car to Norwich, for they were on their way to Boston. In Norwich the auto became disabled because of a flat tire. Radcliffe and Ouillette decided to abandon the car and doing so, they then hunted for a substitute auto. They stole a Buick sedan that was parked on a highway and then resumed the journey to Boston. In Providence, however, the two soldiers were intercepted by the police and when questioned, it developed that they had a stolen car in their possession. The Norwich police were communicated with and an officer from that city went to Providence and brought the prisoners back to the former city in Norwich, when questioned, Radcliffe and Ouillette admitted the theft and then further implicated themselves by relating the story of stealing the New London auto and later abandoning it.

The boy is considerable somewhat wayward and about a week ago was arrested, charged with the theft of Sunday newspapers that had been left at the entrance to a Bank street store before the place was opened for business. The boy stoutly denied his guilt, stating that he received the papers from a newsboy, whose name he did not know, and with a request to sell them and if a sale was made he would be compensated. The boy at that time was placed in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. ANNOUNCEMENTS

The generosity of the school children and their parents will make it possible for us, the Family Welfare department of the United Workers, to send at Thanksgiving baskets of fruit and vegetables to those much in need of such cheer. But there will be no meat in those baskets, unless you our friends give us contributions in money.

We have 128 families on our list so we are asking for a hundred dollars. Please help us as a part of your own thanksgiving.

Contributions may be sent to the Family Welfare department, No. 9 Washington street.

One of the many efforts being put forth by the members of the McKinley Ave. A. M. E. Zion church to raise the necessary funds for the painting of the church, will be made Friday when the ladies of the Friendly Hand club, one of the auxiliaries, will hold a food sale at the church from 11 a. m. to 6 p. m. Supper will be served from 6 to 9. The patronage of the public is solicited and will be deeply appreciated.

Broadway Theater

There are five standard acts of vaudev.le artists, known wherever Keith-Albee's name is displayed as the name in stage entertainment.

Enough thrills to tingle the human spine in a "figure eight" knot! That is the concensus of opinion of astute film critics who have seen F. O. B.'s most recent melodrama, The Midnight Flyer, which opens at the Broadway theater today. Directed by Tom Forman and featuring an all-star cast this vivid romance of the roaring rails and the feud-swept mountains of West Virginia is red-blooded entertainment not recommended for anyone with a weak heart! Among its spectacular features are two head-on train wrecks, a race between a runaway train and a freight engine, steaming along parallel tracks at 70 miles an hour, and a leap from the cab of one to that of the other. Then a fight ensues in the lurching cab which will be memorable film history for a long time to come! Yet with all its exciting features, the story itself, combined by J. Grubb Alexander from two originals by Arthur Guy Empey, is cohesive, well moulded and thoroughly human in its qualities.

The news of the world in Kinograms will conclude the bill.

Palace Theater

Not in a long time has a big picture come to the local screen with such an imposing and exceptional array of screen talent as The Sixth Commandment offers at the Palace theater. In this all star cast appear William Faversham, Charlotte Walker, Edmund Breese, John Bohn, Kathlyn Martyn, J. Neil Hamilton, Sara Wood, Colt Albertson, Consuelo Flowerton and Charles Emmet Mack. The film was superbly directed by William Christy Cabanne. The Sixth Commandment has a hero who goes through a severe test of his honesty and trust in his fellowman and just when he is about to throw his character to the four winds, the girl he loves and who loves him, brings him to his senses. It is a big picture with a big cast by a big director.

William Boyd, Cecil B. De Mille's fast-rising young leading man, whose work in The Volga Boatman, won instant fame, appears in the male lead opposite Jetta Goudal in Her Man o' War, her first star picture, which comes to the Palace theater on Friday.

Boyd, whose rise has been meteoric, gained prominence by virtue of his splendid performances in The Road to Yesterday, Steel Preferred, and Eve's Leaves. Her Man o' War is unlike most war films in that the scenes are laid behind the German lines rather than in Allied territory. Jimmie Adams, Grace Darmond, Kay Deslys, Frank Reicher and Robert Edeson are in the supporting cast.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Three hundred years ago today was consecrated the great St. Peters church in Rome.

On this date, 140 years ago, the American army evacuated Fort Lee, on the Hudson river.

Forty years ago today died Chester A. Arthur, 21st president of the United States.

Governors from half a dozen states, comprising the executive committee of the governors' conference, will gather in Washington today for a meeting to decide upon the time and place for holding the 1927 session of the conference.

Representatives of commercial, agricultural and industrial organizations of the six New England states will assemble today at Hartford for the second annual meeting of the New England conference.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Vienna before the war. Bewitching, mad Vienna, with its lighthearted gaiety, its capricious disregard of the conventions; its singing and its waltzes forms the background of a charming, yet virile story. From royal palace, stately, regal and solemn, to the wine gardens of old Vienna, where love and wine and song mingle gayly, the romance of a princess grows in "The Waltz Dream," a new UFA film coming Sunday to the Breed theatre.

"The Waltz Dream" was the biggest hit of the New York theatrical season some years ago on the legitimate stage. Many companies sought vainly to secure the film rights. But Oscar Strauss, composer of the music, and Hans Mueller, who wrote the book, "Nux, the Prince Consort," felt that only a continental producer could do the theme justice. UFA, accordingly achieved the privilege of transferring it to the screen.

A lavish picture has resulted. A picture filled with sentiment and box office appeal. Previews have shown the American response to this great romance. It packs a powerful punch as a climax to the love of a princess for an Austrian officer, and the renunciation of her sweetheart by a girl of the people. It is bound to appeal to everybody, wherever played.

A cast of extraordinary talent and appeal interpret the screen version of "The Waltz Dream," which is being distributed in the United States by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Central Baptist Budget Vote

At the Thursday evening meeting of the Central Baptist church the proposed budget for the year 1927 will be presented to the church by the finance committee of the board of managers for the action of the year. This budget includes a proposed amount of $6,050 for benevolence and $19,890 for current expenses. Of this amount $1,545 is designated for religious education, $600 for the Woman's League; and thirty-five items are included in the current expense budget. In addition to the presentation of the budget, the church will also take action on the recommendation of the board of managers as to the disposition of the proceeds from the sale of Preston chapel and also consider the disposition of the legacy of Mrs. Alonzo F. Keables which has been received. Preceding the prayer meeting, at seven o'clock, Mrs. Pitt will conduct the study class on "The Second Century of Baptist Missions" to which all are invited whether they have previously attended the class or not.

Breed Theater

All the scenes with the exception of the assassination of Archduke Ferdinand and his morganatic wife are actual, authentic, and official, having been taken by the photographic sections of the armies of the Allies and Central Powers. Every branch of the service is shown in actual action—no camp or training scenes of any description are depicted.

Every scene is real.

The German scenes alone are astounding in their vastness, millions of troops goose-stepping into action, you see the kaiser beseeching, forcing, compelling his generals to obey his commands. The Austrian army in action. Remarkable aerial battles, tremendous barrage scenes, of shells exploding and of the destruction and havoc they caused. Guns of every calibre firing.

Men going "over the top."

Scenes of the rain and mud of Flanders Field, as the stretcher bearers crawl from shell hole to shell hole in their errands of mercy, unmindful of the screaming shells that are bursting all around. You see the undescribable conditions as they existed, during those never to be forgotten four years of anguish.

Possibly the most thrilling scene of all is that showing men of France, and America, shoulder to shoulder, smashing their way through the supposedly impregnable Argonne Forest, and the famous Hindenburg Line. Over 1,500,000 shells of all calibres were fired by our artillery alone before this advance was made.

Men of Purpose must be seen to be appreciated, what finer appeal, duty or loyalty could be shown to the world?

Sale For Benefit of the Blind

Miss Susan Todd, sales manager for the board of education of the blind, and Miss Isetta Dellett, the home teacher for the board in this district, with her guide, are to have charge of a sale of useful articles, made by blind people in their homes in this state, to be held in this city.

There will be on sale a variety of articles made of reed and raffia, and also aprons for children and adults, clothespin bags, ironing board covers, washcloths, rag rugs of various designs, and some made candy. Whatever price is paid for an article will be given in full to the blind person who made it.

This method is taken of helping blind people in their homes to keep their hands and minds busy, and to earn some money. The state sends teachers to the homes of the blind persons, who teach them to make useful articles. The things which are made are collected by this board and sold at sales such as this one.

MEMORY

In Loving Memory of LLOYD WILLARD PRINK
who died November 18, 1925

Three sad and lonely years have passed.
You we remember well;
We think of him in silence
No eyes can see us weep,
But deep within our hearts
His memory we keep.

More and more each day we miss him,
Friends may think the wound is healed;
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed.

(Signed),
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In Loving Remembrance of Our Dear Wife and Mother
MRS. KATHERINE WOHLLEBEN
who died November 18, 1925

A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon his love had given,
And though the body slumbers here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.

MR. FREDERICK WOHLLEBEN

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—(AP)—Pronounced reactionary tendencies developed towards the close of today's stock market on selling presumably inspired by unfavorable trade reports. These included the publication of weekly steel reviews calling attention to a further falling off in orders and the first drop in composite pig iron prices since July, a cut in mid-continent crude prices, and a sharp decline in freight traffic in the week ended November 6, which was explained, however, by the widespread observance of election day as a holiday.

The market worked upward during the early trading, largely in response to a lowering of call money rates. Trading was dull on the rally, although a few "bull" pools tried energetically to bid up special stocks in an attempt to attract a public following. Merchandise, motor, chemical, railroad textile and tobacco shares presented several points of strength, but most of the gains quickly melted away on the appearance of selling pressure. U. S. Steel common, which has sold as high as 151 3-8, broke to 147 1-8 for a net loss of more than 3 points. General Motors converted an early gain of 3 points into a small fractional loss. Case Threshing Machine broke 13 7-8 points to 141 and then rebounded to 144. Loose Wiles Biscuit broke 7¼ points to 141 on a few sales and Advance Rumely preferred fell 6 7-8 while Continental Baking A, and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe each showed net declines of about 8 points. There were a number of 3 point declines, the list including American Agricultural Chemical preferred, American Locomotive, Federal Light & Traction, General Asphalt, International Harvester, Pierce Arrow and Timken Roller Bearing.

The early run-up in General Motors was stimulated by buying for the account of "shorts" who were disinclined to pay the regular and extra dividends of $5.75 which come off the stock on Friday. Radio corporation common and preferred touched record high levels at 51 1-2 and 61 3-4, respectively. Woolworth touched 135 3-8, the highest price in nine months, on rumors of a stock dividend in December, but it was back to 131 at the close.

Rails yielded with the industrials although good buying was reported in that group in anticipation of a series of record-breaking October earnings statements. Northwestern rails received good support. Call money renewed at 5 per cent and then dropped to 4 1-2, with funds in ample supply. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodity prices moved within narrow and irregular limits. Active wheat futures yielded a fraction of a cent a bushel under pressure from traders who look for a large Argentine harvest. Cotton closed 11 to 14 points net higher on good trade buying. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices yielded 8 to 20 points.

Another sharp rise of nearly 10 points in French francs, which ruled just below 3.45 cents, featured the foreign exchange market. Norwegian krone and Italian lire also showed marked strength but Brazilian milreis were heavy.

TAFTVILLE

Two large coons which were caught Monday night by a hunting party including Jack Ely, Arsellus Dugas and "Babe" Poyerd are on display in the windows of Chip Dugas' bowling alleys on Merchants avenue.

On Friday evening, the Ladies' auxiliary, division 28, Ancient Order of Hibernians held a very successful whist party in their rooms at parish hall. The prizes were awarded as follows: First, for ladies, Miss Mary Ward; second, Miss Nellie Garvey; consolation, Miss Jeannette Senecal; first, for gentlemen, Louis Gregory; second, Louis Tetreault and consolation, James Murphy. After cards, refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Mrs. Thomas Phaten, Mrs. William J. Malone, Miss Mary Malone and Miss Margaret Nolan.

The members of the Taftville Rod and Gun club are to hold a game supper on Nov. 27, and the committee in charge is making elaborate preparations to serve a banquet that will long be remembered by the local sportsment. President Chip Dugas of the club appealed to the members to contribute one or more rabbits or squirrels, so that the committee would not be handicapped in the game line. This is the first game supper planned by the association and the indications are that it will be a very successful affair.

Motor parties across the state line find much of interest in the stretch of pines in that section of western Rhode Island called Rice City, as these trees are in such contrast to the leafless woods just now.

JURY AGAINST COLCHESTER MAN'S CLAIM THAT HORSE KICKED HIM

Mrs. Gussie Schwartz of Colchester, defendant in a suit against her for $5,000 damages by Fishel Slopak of Colchester, had a verdict returned in her favor by the jury in the superior court here about noon Wednesday after the jury had been out about two hours. Edward A. Bishop of Bozrah was the jury foreman.

Judge Allyn L. Brown charged the jury after the court session opened in the morning, the arguments by counsel having been concluded Tuesday afternoon just before court adjourned and the city electric lights went out, leaving the court house in darkness.

Slopak sued on the claim that he was kicked three times in the groin by the horse as he was driving the animal along the road on Nov. 11, 1925. At the time he claimed that Mrs. Schwartz had warranted the horse to be kind and gentle, although she knew it was a vicious animal, and he was trying it out to see whether he would buy it. The owner was willing to sell it for $20.

Two sets of witnesses presented widely varying testimony about the horse. For the plaintiff there was testimony that the horse was a kicker and on one occasion had kicked a boy off the wagon and had run away, while another witness told of going to buy the horse, which was in the Schwartz barn. When he put his hand on "top" of the horse, this witness said the horse kicked with both feet, but he took him to another barn where again the horse kicked. After this episode, the intending buyer, who had already made a partial payment, telephoned back to Mrs. Schwartz: "Listen, Mrs. Schwartz, I'm a family man with three kids and I don't want to get killed with your horse. I hear he is a kicker and I want my money back."

Another witness testified that he chased the horse out of the barn while the would-be buyer was asleep that night and the horse was left to find his way back to the owner, Mrs. Schwartz sent the money back.

On the defendant's side of the case, there was testimony that the horse was one of the quietest and gentlest of animals and was frequently driven by a little eight-year old girl. Once the horse ran away because the harness broke when a boy was hauling stone with it. Mrs. Schwartz testified that the horse kicked because a man tickled its heels with a stick and said with a smile that she would kick if she were tickled.

One of the Hebrew witnesses for the defendant came to the stand with his hat in his hand and as he held up his right hand to take the oath slipped his hat onto his head with his left. Judge Brown allowed him to keep his hat on when the witness explained that he could not take the oath without it.

Witnesses for the plaintiff were: Samuel Cohen, Owen O'Neil, Mollie Cohen, Max Cohen, Vincent Glaakowski, Odes Slopak and Harry Horowitz; and for the defendant: Beatrice Meisler, Walter W. Doubleday, John Kessler, Nathan Schwartz, Gussie Schwartz, Charles F. Brown, Joseph Gersten, Philip Meisler and Wada Policaritch.

BIBLE STUDY SESSION BY Y. M. C. A. GROUP

Seldom has there been held a more profitable period of Bible study than that held Wednesday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. when every seat at the supper table was occupied. The scripture used was Mark 6: 32-44, the miracle of the loaves and fishes, and the topic was "Jesus serving others". Among the points brought out in the study and discussion were the following: Jesus came into the world first of all to save us from our sins. He also came to serve others in every possible way, and He came to know how to die; if we live right, we will die right. No man has a moral right to live with a less purpose than to serve others; duty demands it. The multitudes followed Jesus often out of curiosity, and some for what they could get from him of loaves and fishes. It is a common saying about Jesus that "He had compassion on them". The multitude needed leadership and he gave it to them as often as he could. When His disciples asked him to send the multitudes away as they were hungry, He said, "Why don't you give them something to eat?" It was probably Philip who said, it is impossible to feed them; we have no food. Jesus said how much food have you, or how much can you find. They find a lad with his lunch, and report to Jesus that the lad has five loaves and two fishes; Jesus said bring them to me, and he proceeds to feed the 5,000 or more with this meager amount of food. The picture is as follows: A hungry multitude doubting disciples; a lad's offering a very meager supply; Jesus prays and asks His Father to bless the meager supply; the miracle of multiplication; everybody and plenty; 12 basketfuls left over; Jesus urges against waste After it was all over Jesus went into a mountain to pray. Jesus did the impossible. We can do (with His help) the seemingly impossible. We can feed the hungry about us, not only with physical bread, but better than that, we can feed the lonely lives with our warm friendship. The lad gave what he had, and Jesus wonderfully blessed his gift. Suppose the lad had been unwilling to part with his lunch on this occasion. We should be willing to give what we can in order that others may be blessed.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION BY GOVERNOR TRUMBULL

A lively sense of gratitude is not the least of the virtues. It implies an intelligent appreciation of benefits received and a proper recognition of their source. It goes hand in hand with a sure faith in God's goodness and a serene hopefulness for the future. It begets love and charity for our neighbor.

We New Englanders have traditionally endeavored to express this feeling in our annual harvest festival. In the gathering of our families we give thanks for those human ties which mean more and more as we grow older; in our feasting we recognize such material prosperity as has been our portion; in our bounty to others we symbolize in a small way the abundance with which Divine Providence has blessed us.

It is a good custom; a heart-warming, home-loving, God-fearing custom. And in the certainty that its significance is still vital to the people of this state, I designate Thursday, the 25th day of November next, as a day of thanksgiving.

Recommending that it be observed as such in the church, the schools and the home throughout Connecticut.

No man is so poor but that he has had some good gift during the past year. It is no mean boon just that one's lot has been cast in this old state of Connecticut, dedicated for a century and a half to the idea of free government. It is fair to praise God for opportunity as well as for realization. It may be that our table reflects no world wealth, but if one can hold his head high in the knowledge that he has kept faith with himself, if only one can still clasp the hand of one honest friend—he may well thank God upon his knees.

TWO GOATS KILLED BY MARAUDING DOGS

Two female goats that were tied to stakes to graze in a lot in the Greeneville section were killed by dogs Wednesday afternoon, but two other goats in the lot broke loose from their fastenings and escaped. A police dog that was found chewing on the head of one of the dead animals was captured, but it is not believed this is the dog that killed the goats.

Tony Skane of 11 Hickory street is the owner of the goats from which he milked six quarts a day and he will make a claim against the town for his loss.

UPPER MIDDLER GIRLS WIN BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

The final game of the girls basketball series was played Wednesday on the Academy field, the upper middlers in an exciting contest defeating the juniors by the close score of 7 to 6, thereby gaining the championship. Much interest in these games has been shown among the girls and they are looking forward to another basketball season in the spring.

WILLIMANTIC CONCERN IS BUYING IN THORNDIKE

Negotiations for the sale of the storehouse of the Thorndike company in Thorndike, near Palmer, Mass., to a Willimantic (Ct.) firm have all but been completed, according to M. William Holden, who has charge of the company buildings in that village. The storehouse will be devoted to the manufacture of boxes. Arrangements have been made whereby the renovation of the storehouse to fit needs of the company that is planning to take the building over, will begin December 1. The sale of the storehouse will mean one new industry for Thorndike, which suffered a bad blow when the mills closed nearly two years ago. Employes of the Willimantic firm have been there during the past week attempting to lease homes. None of the other company holdings in the village are affected by the coming sale, according to Mr. Holden.

HALF HUNDRED LISTED IN "WET" DRIVERS' RANKS

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are fifty names on the list. Three cases were appealed. Three were Connecticut drivers convicted in other states. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles.

This list includes Elmer Bissonette of New London, Edward C. McGillivrey of Norwich, James A. Camuleli, Jr., of Mystic and Walter Weber of Rockville.

SEEKS DIVORCE FOR CRUELTY AND INTEMPERANCE

Suit for divorce from Stanley Punjanski of Hackensack, N. J., whom she married May 17, 1921, has been brought in the superior court by Laura Belle Pierce Punjanski of Norwich. She alleges intolerable cruelty since the marriage day and habitual intemperance for more than a year past. She asks alimony and the custody of three minor daughters, the oldest aged three years.

The suit is returnable in December

Workingmen's Compensation

Two workingmen's compensation agreements as follows have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

S. Belt & Sons, Inc., Norwich, employer and Clarence Gwiazdowsky, 170 North Main street, employe, fractured condyle of left humerus, Sept. 11, at rate of $11.

The Ponemah Mills, Taftville, employer and Bernadette McKenzie, Germank avenue, employe, crushed second and third fingers, third finger amputated to second joint, Oct. 20, at rate of $10.

Withdrawal in Suit for Rent

Notice of withdrawal without costs has been filed with the clerk of the superior court in the suit of Atlantic Carton Co., of New York, having its place of business in Norwich, against John B. Fyans and others of Fall River, Mass., which was brought for $11,000 damages. The claim made was that the Fyans, Fraser and Blackway Co., of Fall River had failed to pay $9,500 alleged to be due as rent from May 1, 1924 to Sept. 18, 1926 for certain floor space in the Atlantic Carton Co., building on North Main St.

Bad Cold? Take "Cascarets" for Bowels Tonight

No headache, constipation, bad cold or sour stomach by morning

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver, delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

SUITS BY MOTHER AND DAUGHTER WERE SETTLED

Two suits aggregating damages of $8,000 were settled privately as they were about to go on trial jointly in the superior court here Wednesday afternoon before Judge Allyn L. Brown and a jury. One was brought by Annie M. Coffey of Occum, through her mother, Mrs. Annie Coffey, against Russell B. Starkweather of Plainfield, for $5,000 and the other by the mother against Starkweather for $3,000.

The actions arose out of an automobile accident in Norwich Town near Sacred Heart church in the early morning hours of March 11, 1926, when the daughter, who was in an automobile owned and operated by Starkweather, received injuries.

According to the allegations in the complaint of the daughter, as Starkweather was driving his machine at a high rate of speed around a curve, a machine approaching the opposite direction blinded the defendant and he, without slackening his speed, pulled off the road, operating his car into a telephone pole.

Miss Coffey, it is alleged, was riding in the front seat and was thrown through the windshield, sustaining permanent lacerations of the nose, head, face, knee and scalp and general contusions to the limbs and body and a severe and serious nervous shock to her system. The ligaments of her leg were torn, it is alleged, and she claims she will suffer permanent scars and will be lame and incapacitated.

The mother sought damages for medical care and attentions incurred for the care of her daughter, combined with loss of wages.

Trial of the suits was slated to begin at 1:45 Wednesday afternoon but after some delay beyond that time, the attorneys interested informed Judge Brown that settlements had been reached. Attorney V. P. A. Quinn was counsel for the plaintiffs and Attorney C. Hadlai Hull for the defendant.

As there are no more jury cases for this week, Judge Brown excused the jurymen until next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

John B. Griffin spent $155 in his successful campaign for reelection as state senator from the third district according to his statement.

John E. Doughan of New Haven, democratic candidate for representative from the third congressional district, received contributions of $170 and expended $458.25 during the campaign. FOR OBSERVATION PERIOD AT STATE HOSPITAL

After a hearing in the city court Wednesday morning Abraham Miller, 16, was sent to the Norwich state hospital for observation. The boy, who has no mother and whose father is at the state hospital, removed the registration number plates from a machine owned by Benjamin Tuber of No. 50 Fairmount street and threw the plates into the Shetucket river. Miller was taken in charge by the police Tuesday night. He is thought to be mentally unbalanced.

Until several days ago he has been staying at Mr. Tuber's home but was ordered out after he had made an attack on Mr. Tuber. He was taken in charge Sunday night on the suspicion that he was mentally unbalanced but was allowed to go Monday. It was while he was at liberty Monday that he took the number plates from the machine and threw them in the river. He explained his action by stating that he wanted to get square with Mr. Tuber. He appeared to be satisfied when informed that he was to be taken to the state hospital. This is his second trip there as he was committed for six months in 1924.

INDUSTRIES OF THE STATE NEED MORE CURRENT POWER

Power Committee of the New England Council Recommends That the Matter of Interstate Commerce Regulatory Power Be Taken Over by Utility Commissions of the New England States—Would Have Agreement Clause in Contracts Between Power Companies Transferring Power Across State Lines—Prompt Action Necessary, While Awaiting Court Decisions, to Keep Industries From Dying While Power Plants Are Expanding Beyond the Limits of the State in Which They Are Situated.

HARTFORD, Nov. 18.—(AP)—That the public utilities or public service commission of the New England states, acting jointly on points of issue between companies in their states, take over the interstate commerce regulatory powers of the federal government was suggested by the power committee of the New England council at the opening session of the New England conference here today.

While expressing hope of congressional action in the matter, the committee recommended that until such an act is passed by congress that their scheme be made effective by the incorporation of a clause in contracts between power companies, transferring current across state lines by which the companies agree voluntarily to submit and differences which may arise between them to the joint commission of their respective states.

The chairman, E. O. Goss, president of the Seovill Manufacturing company of Waterbury in giving the report, explained the wide differences in existing laws in the various states which tended to impede the transportation of power across state boundaries.

The report was amplified by Charles L. Edgar, of Boston, chairman of the committee, which represented the power companies in the conferences resulting in the proposed plan. W. C. Bliss, chairman of the Rhode Island public utilities commission, and Rodman Peabody, of Boston, a member of the drafting committee.

Mr. Edgar reviewed the development of power companies and told of the state laws made necessary when the companies began to serve communities outside of the single one for which they were originally organized. The same thing has occurred, he said, now that the companies are expanding beyond the limits of the state in which they are situated, new acts being necessary to take care of the greater expansion.

The time has come, Mr. Bliss said, when we should be linked together for cheaper power, he declared that it had become necessary to devise some way to keep industries from dying while waiting for decisions of courts in the matter. If the federal government fails to act to remedy the situation, then the states must make the move.

The complications of the inter-state situation were detailed by Mr. Peabody. He told of a recent incident when power of the Connecticut Light and Power company, serving Waterbury industries from Devon, went "wrong." A switch was thrown immediately in the Devon plant bringing power from the Hartford company. The latter's dynamos, staggering under the sudden load were in turn furnished with additional power from plants at Springfield, and Turners Falls, Mass. These in turn called on plants in Boston and in the Catskills of New York.

By the reserve available the wheels of factories in Waterbury were stilled only a few seconds, he said, continuing that through it all there had been no word of written contract to care for the emergency.

Illustrating the reverse, he told of a surplus of power at the Housatonic river plant occasioned by rising water. Switches were again thrown and the load of Boston steam plants was taken over by the Connecticut plant without any hot energy.

In the discussions on the report, Herbert Myrick, editor of the New England Homestead, of Springfield, asked for some consideration of the fact that power from the St. Lawrence project should be available for New England industry.

F. E. Duffy, of West Hartford, asked if the committee couldn't do something to bring about a more equitable rate for the agricultural interests. He told of the uneven rates now in force.

A rumored dissension that a member of the committee had objected to the report in its submitted form and had refused to approve it was set at naught when John S. Lawrence, president of the council, answered in the affirmative a question from the balcony if the action of the governors and the committee had been unanimous.

THREE RECOMMENDATIONS BY GOVERNOR TRUMBULL

HARTFORD, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Removal of existing barriers which have prevented the maximum development of New England was advocated by Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric company, in an address prepared by him for the second session of the New England conference. Because of a cold which settled in his throat, Mr. Young was unable to be present and his address was read by E. G. Buckland, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

The meeting which also included addresses by Governor Brewster of Maine, and Governor Trumbull, of Connecticut, was a part of a complimentary dinner in honor of the governors of five states which with Connecticut make up New England. Because of the large number of delegates and guests, the speeches were given in the Broad street high school auditorium, where the first session of the conference was held this afternoon. The dinner was given in the United Board, where headquarters for the conference was established.

Governor Brewster said that today New England is "in the hand of the rising sun." That New England is coming to regard Number 492 not a lonesome spot on a correspondent" and that New England is looking forward "to the dawn of a new day with new initiative and business vision" were the statements of Governor Trumbull in his address.

These recommendations were made by Governor Trumbull in his address. They were that New England be sold to the school children of New England; that the delegates return to their homes and use every effort to secure the co-operation of the press in presenting New England to the people of the sister states in a constructive fashion, and that the guests endeavor to bring about in their own states the creation of a state commission on advertising and publicity.

GREAT EXHIBITION OF NEW ENGLAND PUBLICITY

HARTFORD, Nov. 18.—(AP) — To stroll through the lobby of the Hotel Bond where a mass of New England publicity is on exhibition in connection with the second New England conference being held here leaves little doubt that "New England is the only place in the world in which to live." The hundred and one leaflets, brochures, pamphlets and booklets fairly screams this "fact" at visitors.

From upper Maine to lower Connecticut where "native New Yorkers" have their homes along the sound, communities have sent forth their individual claims that "here is the finest place to settle." The railroads which serve the six New England states have added their reason for existing in "beautiful New England."

"Have a real vacation: romp in Rhode Island," says an alluring poster while Maine adds its "vacation land." Clare cont., (N. H.) adds it is "the beauty town of the northern Connecticut valley," and New Bedford, Mass., "offers service unsurpassed."

"Bristol, (Conn.) the city of opportunity," features the picture service showing its "made in Bristol" slogan. Greenwich, "the gate-way of New England," New Haven, Hartford, and other Connecticut cities, Boston, Holyoke, Old Cape Ann and Gardner, Mass., al have sent their publicity.

The New Haven road with three beautiful colored posters illustrating the advantages of the sections it serves has a prominent position in the lobby while the Maine Central and the Boston and Maine have wesn planned exhibits.

GOV. TRUMBULL FLEW FOR AND RETURNED WITH GUEST

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 18.—(AP)—John H. Trumbull, Connecticut's "flying governor," left Hartford in a Fokker monoplane piloted by Leroy H. Thomson at 8 o'clock this morning, flew to Boston, where he met Gov. Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, and brought him back to Hartford in time for lunch. The two governors were due to attend the second New England conference, which opened here this morning. The trip was made in an enclosed cabin plane and both the governors expressed themselves as having enjoyed the trip greatly. Though the day was somewhat misty, and the air was cold, they suffered no inconvenience.

CAN SUPPLY MOTOR FUEL FOR THE NEXT 800 YEARS

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The vast bituminous coal deposits of the United States can supply the world's need for motor fuel for the next 800 years, according to Dr. Gustav Egloff, technical director, Universal Oil Products company, Chicago.

In making this prediction tonight at the final session of the international conference on bituminous coal at Carnegie Institute of Technology, Dr. Egloff described how he had converted tar extracted from coal into motor fuel through the medium of a cracking process.

Dr. Egloff said the motor fuel he invented would double the milage per gallon as compared to ordinary gasoline while operating a high compressor motor.

The United States has approximately 1,600,000,000,000 tons of the 3,154,000,000,000 tons of bituminous coal in the world on the basis of estimates, he asserted.

"By means of low temperature distillation of this quantity, of bituminous coal," he continued, "800,000,000,000 barrels of tar can be produced which, under cracking conditions, would yield 246,000,000,000 barrels of motor fuel of high anti-knocking properties."

CHILDREN HAD NEVER SEEN AN ELECTRIC LIGHT

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 18—(AP)—Living with their father in a ramshackle hut in the Litchfield hills, three children who had never seen an electric light, a gas jet or water running from a faucet have been found by the Connecticut Children's Aid society, according to a report made by Ralph Barrows, executive secretary of the society. Their home was within forty miles of Hartford.

The children are ten, seven and three years of age, the eldest being a girl. Given their first ride in an elevator they were filled with terror.

Mr. Barrows in picturing the existence of the motherless family, said that the children had succeeded in obtaining a meagre bit of public school learning which they had matched with difficulty during their nomadic lives.

APPEAL FOR SOLUTION OF PROBLEM OF RADIOCRAFT

BOSTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—A Boston radio station today broadcast an appeal for assistance in solving a problem of radiocraft. Here is the question:

What devices or stage properties may be used in the broadcasting chamber to convey to the unseen audience the following sounds: A man washing his face; the gurgle of beer as it is poured into a mug; a man taking a bath; a man plying knife, fork and spoon?

Station WBZI of Boston planned to broadcast next week George Paston's comedy "Feed the Brute," and claimed that all these sounds were essential to the presentation.

STAMFORD, Nov. 18.—(AP)—In an old, broken basket, wrapped in an old blanket, a fully developed male child, about an hour old, cried and cried in the local station until two women, waiting for the train, heard its wails and sought their source.

A first search of the station revealed nothing. The baggage master was called, and the three finally traced the sounds to the market basket, setting on a waiting bench in a corner.

The child was taken to the hospital, where it is expected to live. Nothing was found to identify the babe or those who had left it.

VERY FEW COLD STORAGE TURKEYS IN THE BAY STATE

BOSTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—If Massachusetts is to have turkeys during the forthcoming holiday season they must come from the fresh crop and not from cold storage warehouses. This was revealed by Herman C. Lythgoe, director of the food and drug division of the state department of health. Mr. Lythgoe's investigations have shown that there is now in cold storage in Massachusetts just one turkey for each 172 inhabitants.

Fairfield Co. After Lottery Ticket Sellers

Two Arrests Made — 25,000 Treasury Balance Tickets Are Sold in Bridgeport Weekly.

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The opening gun of a "swift, silent, relentless" war upon treasury balance lottery ticket sellers in Fairfield county was fired by State's Attorney William H. Comley today with the arrest of Clifford J. "Connie" Lewis, well known local sportsman and his brother-in-law George "Dutch" Sherwood, of this city by State Police Sergeant Frank Virelli.

Lewis and Sherwood were released shortly after arrest upon bonds of $5,000 each furnished in Lewis case by John J. Donovan, of 192 Middle street, and for Sherwood by Lewis. The men will probably face the December term of the superior criminal court upon charges of violation of section 6486 of the public acts, conviction of which calls for a penalty of $300 fine or six months in jail, or both.

It was learned from authoritative sources today that the extent of playing the treasury balance in this city has increased in the past year by such leaps and bounds that fully some $5,000 of the tickets are sold in this city weekly. In addition to the tickets which Sherwood and Lewis are alleged to have sold, there are four other types of tickets being sold in the city. The New Britain ticket of which Welch is alleged to have been the originator, the "horse-shoe," "double action and the "imperial" are some of the known tickets having a ready market here.

Lewis and Sherwood, it was stated sell some 20,000 of their type of ticket in the state, and as far distant as New Jersey. The actual profit to the originator or "boss" of any kypoe of ticket retailing to the player at 75 cents is close to 40 cents, it was also pointed out. This amount fluctuates however, due to the fact that some of the agents or pushers are paid 10 or 15 per cent on their sales.

Lewis and Sherwood, it is alleged had three types of weekly tickets selling at 50 cents, 45 cents and 75 cents each. The cash prizes were different in all of the types. In addition to this the "Connie Lewis special," a monthly ticket selling for one dollar is alleged to ave thound ready market.

At the time of Welch's arrest it was stated that he had taken a great deal more money out of this city than his tickets had ever left. It was common knowledge that previous to the advent in this city of the New Britain ticket, Lewis had the field to himself. How much this cut into Lewis alleged business is not known.

WINTER WEATHER NOW IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The second severe onslaught of unseasonably rigorous weather had blanketed the middlewest with snow and sent temperatures tumbling tonight. Another 24 hours of snow and cold was forecast.

Warmer weather prevailed today in the Atlantic states, excepting New England, and in some sections of the Rocky mountain region, but gales were blowing the central west disturbance eastward and southward, and a disturbance of lesser proportions was centered over western Montana and a new drop of the temperature had been recorded in Alberta.

Temperature of ten degrees below freezing with continuation of the snow, was forecast for the Great Lakes region tonight with a cold wave in southwestern Michigan.

Much snow was recorded in Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. Many old records were broken by snow fall of eight inches at Moline and 7.9 inches at Springfield, Illinois. St. Louis had six inches as did sections of Minnesota.

The worst drifts, in some instances five feet, were reported in Minnesota, where snow plows worked to keep traffic open. Snow plows also were used on the state highways in Illinois.

Storm warnings were displayed on all the Great Lakes.

NEW BOOK LIKELY TO CAUSE SOCIETY SENSATION

LONDON, Nov. 18—(AP)—The Whispering Gallery," a book by an anonymous author which appeared today, is likely to cause a society sensation. The author makes the claim: "My name is a household word, among European diplomats," and he deals with the most intimate incidents of the court and the private affairs of noted personages.

The author quotes King Edward VII as having said to him: "My mother (Queen Victoria), whom I greatly admired, hated me because she imagined I had hastened my father's death. I never in my life had a real heart talk with her. Toward the end of her life we were mutually obnoxious, and I never left her presence without a sigh of relief."

The author relates an incident of Queen Alexandra erasing the names of seven persons from the list to be presented at court, although she was informed they were included at King Edward's request.

Others come under the author's lash, among them Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, who says the writer, "had no sense whatever of the value of human life."

Opprobrious terms are used freely by the author in describing the former German emperor and the czar of all the Russians.

The author asserts that Cecil Rhodes, the South African magnate, told him that Joseph Chamberlain was responsible for the Jameson raid in 1895.

Dramatic Scene in the Hall Murder Case

When Mrs. Gibson Testified That She Saw Three Accused Persons at and Near Scene of Crime.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Jane Gibson came to court here today on a hospital bed to testify that she saw Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens at and near the place the bodies of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills were found on the night they were slain, more than four years ago.

From her bed, made into a witness stand, the witness said that she saw Mrs. Hall and Willie Stevens standing in front of an automobile, in De Russey's lane, near New Brunswick, before she heard shots fired, later saw Henry Stevens just before she heard shots and still later observed Mrs. Hall kneeling near the place where the witness had heard voices uttering oaths. She pointed to the defendants in the courtroom and said they are the persons she saw.

The dramatic appearance of the witness in the courtroom followed a ride in an ambulance from Jersey City where she has been a patient in a hospital for ten days. Her three hour stay on the courtroom bed was ended only after she had partially raised herself and screamed, "I told the truth, so help me God, and you know it," with a wave of her hand toward the three defendants.

She apparently suffered no ill effects from her journey and court appearance.

Mrs. Gibson's story was in many particulars the recital she has given over a period of four years, but there were some additional details today and some changes. In previous testimony she had not identified Henry Stevens as a person she saw at the scene. She had before identified Henry Carpender, cousin of the three defendants in the case on trial, which charges the murder of Mrs. Mills. Carpender, a New York broker, is in jail here under indictment on the same charges his cousins face. He came to the courtroom today to have Mrs. Gibson say that she had previously pointed him out as a person present.

The direct examination was brief less than 20 minutes, while the cross-examination required two hours and 40 minutes. The trend of the questioning by defense attorneys after the witness had been led to repeat her story of what she saw on the night of the double killing, was to draw information as to her past life. She was vague as to many details and denied that she has had more than one husband, William Easton, she said, is her only husband. She was called as a witness under the name of "Jane Gibson", but sworn as "Jane Easton." Her explanation of the discrepancy being that she took the name "Gibson" when she purchased the "Gibson Farm".

MORE ABOUT GUN-RUNNING OPERATIONS IN NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—Administration intentions as to Mexican gun-running operations in Nicaragua remained masked tonight by official silence.

President Dias' assurance that any means the Washington government might adopt to end hostilities in the Central American country would have its approval was being closely studied and there was no evidence that new instructions had yet been sent to Lawrence Dennis, charge in Managua, or Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, commanding American naval patrols in Nicaraguan and adjacent waters.

A hint that further efforts might be expected to bring peace in Nicaragua by diplomatic means, eliminating the Mexican angle of the problem, was dropped at the state department.

A specific inquiry as to whether the American embargo on arms shipments to Nicaragua might be raised and the Diaz government afforded an opportunity to equip itself from American sources, drew a blunt refusal to comment, in that connection it was pointed out, however, that while the other Central American governments took similar action in concert with the American embargo, the Mexican foreign minister had replied to official notification on the subject that he would take the embargo question under advisement.

NAT'L GRANGE RECOMMENDS LEASING OF MUSCLE SHOALS

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 18—(AP)—After a two year debate, the National Grange tonight adopted a resolution recommending the leasing of Muscle Shoals to a responsible company making the best offer and complying with conditions designe dto benefit agriculture. The contest over the question required the only roll call of the meeting and was decided by a vote of 27 to 21.

It was the decision of the delegates that "the best interests of agriculture and the nation will be served by the leasing of Muscle Shoals to the responsible company making the best offer and agreeing to manufacture a high grade fertilizer material, carrying not less than 40 per cent plant food, and waiving all royalities and carrying the terms and conditions set up by congress, and in full compliance with the terms of the national defense act of 1916 in the manufacture of nitrates for fertilizer in time of peace and the production of explosives in time of war."

33 INDICTED IN NEW YORK AS MEMBERS OF RUM RING

Among the Men Indicted Are Thirteen Members of the Coast Guard and a Former Department of Justice Agent—19 of Those Indicted Are Already Under Arrest—The Ring is Charged With Operating Its Own Vessels Between Canadian Ports and Rum Row.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—(AP)—Indictments charging 33 men—13 of the members of the coast guard—with operating a rum fleet between Canada and the United States were returned by the federal grand jury today.

The "master minds" of the rum fleet, the indictments charge, were the brothers Edward and Frank Costello with offices in Lexington avenue. Their arrangements are said to have been made for disposal of the cargoes of the rum runners.

The Costello brothers and several others named in the indictments were mentioned in the first indictment of William V. Dwyer, so-called "king of New York bootleggers," who operated another gigantic rum ring.

The indictment alleges that the men indicted directed operations of a fleet of their own vessels that plied between Canadian ports, St. Pierre, Miquelon, and Rum Row.

Nineteen of those indicted are already under arrest, including the Costello brothers and members of the crews of Coast Guard cutters 126 and 192.

Some were released on bail.

Beside the Costello brothers, the principals in the alleged organization, according to Assistant United States Attorney William E. Stevenson were C. Hunter Carpenter, who was in charge of the sub-headquarters at Hempstead, L. I.; Philip J. Coffey, described as the pawnbroker and briber of coast guardsmen; and W. L. Van Dyke, a Canadian and part owner of one of the boats.

The indictment charges that the rum ring, upon one occasion paid as much as $2,700 to Fred J. Lewis and William R. Hughes, at that time coast guardsmen on Coast Guard cutter No. 126. The payment was said to have been made at Montauk on October 23, 1925.

The activities of the rum ring date back, the indictment charges, as far as 1922, and ran continuously to and including part of 1926. A number of vessels employed to convey liquor from St. Pierre, Miquelon to Rum Row are named in the overt acts included in the indictment. One of the vessels named was the steamer "Vincent A. White."

It was charged that liquor purchased by the alleged conspirators was transhipped at Rum Row to contact boats, landed on Long Island for trucking to New York. Some of the contact boat transference, it is set forth, was actually accomplished by Coast Guard boats the crews of which had been enlisted in aid of the ring by some of its emissaries. In one case, according to the indictment, coast guardsmen, named in the indictment, were bribed.

SUGAR PRICES AT NEW HIGH LEVELS FOR SEASON

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)— Raw and refined sugar prices jumped to new high levels for the season today on heavy buying influenced by reports that President Machado of Cuba would exercise his power to bring about a further restriction in Cuban production. Cuban raws sold at the 6 cent level and the price of refined product jumped from 5.70 to 6.10 cents a pound.

Unofficial reports from Havana indicated that the Cuban output for 1926-27 would be limited to 4,500,000 tons, as compared with 4,887,000 in 1925-26 and 5,120,000 tons in 1924-25. The grinding season in Cuba ordinarily begins around the first of December, but President Machado already had taken steps to limit the current output by issuing a decree several weeks ago preventing such operations before Jan. 1. The nature of the latest limitation was not revealed.

The prospect of a smaller crop created an enormous demand for raw sugar, with refiners competing with each other for available supplies. Sales on the advance amounted to fully 350,000 bags. The strength in the raw sugar spot market created considerable excitement on the floor of the New York coffee and sugar exchange, where trading is conducted in raw sugar features. Prices which ordinarily fluctuate within a range of 3 or 4 points, advanced 11 to 13 points, with the day's sales reaching the record-breaking figure of 181,000 tons.

GERMAN AGENTS CLEAN UP FRENCH CHAMPAGNE STOCKS

RHEIMS, France, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The champagne stocks of France have never been as low as at present. They have emigrated to Germany. Taking advantage of the depreciation of the franc as compared with the mark in German wine agents have practically cleaned up the market, paying special attention to the so-called "best years."

The great wine houses with headquarters here are no longer able to fill the orders they receive from Paris and other cities in France, Chateau Margaux, this year's vintage, is selling in casks for the equivalent of 60 francs per bottle and the vintages of 1911 and 1914 have completely disappeared.

The Belgians also have conducted extensive raids upon the French wine cellars but they show a marked preference for Burgundy instead of champagne.

Wine bought this year at its very source costs more than even in the banner days of the business when the United States and Norway were "wet" and Russia provided a great market for the commodity.

BROADCASTING TO THE WILDS OF BAFFINLAND

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 18.—(AP)—About one sixty-fourth of a second was required to transmit the sound of an orchestra and human voice from a Vancouver broadcasting station to the wilds of Baffinland by radio, but it has taken more than five months for a letter telling about the reception to reach here from that remote corner of Canada.

Late in May officers of the Royal Canadian mounted police outpost at Ellsmere island picked up a radio program broadcast from Vancouver and on the following day a letter was written to the station announcing the fact. The letter was borne out of the frozen north by dog-team, snowshoe messenger, motor stage and train.

Programs broadcast from Vancouver have also been picked up recently by receiving apparatus as far south as New Zealand, some 13,000 miles away.

ANOTHER PARDON GRANTED BY GOV. "MA" FERGUSON

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 18.—(AP)— A full pardon was granted today by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson to William Lester Crawford, young lawyer and member of a well known Dallas family, under a two to five year sentence for having shot and killed Paul O'Day, another young and well known lawyer.

Crawford had served none of the sentence, as appeals and legal motions on file until Wednesday had stayed beginning of the sentence.

The pardon brought the number of clemencies granted by Governor Ferguson to 2,595, according to latest available figures, which is said to be a record for any Texas governor.

KING OF HOUSE OF DAVID UNDER SURVEILLANCE

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 18—(AP)—Weakened by illness after his fourth arrest within two days, "King" Benjamin Purnell rested tonight at Shiloh while the state of Michigan kept an eye of surveillance on the movements within the colony of the House of David.

Purnell was carried to court late today on a stretcher by six of his aides for arraignment on charges of statutory assault brought by a former woman member of the cult. He furnished $5,000 bond and was returned in an ambulance to Shiloh. Bonds for the captured leader now total $128,000.

Officials took precautions to guard state witnesses after Mrs. Bessie Woodworth, leader of the raid by state troopers in which Purnell was taken, had appealed to Prosecuting Attorney George E. Bookwalter for protection. Mrs. Woodworth, former colony member, had been called to the cult headquarters to see her mother, reported "dying." When cult leaders learned Mrs. Woodworth was to be accompanied by an officer, they refused her admittance.

"If the House of David doesn't stop trying to pull fake stuff, I'll arrest everybody in the colony for obstructing justice," said Bookwalter. The move to bring Mrs. Woodworth to Shiloh, Bookwalter declared was an "attempt to monkey with state witnesses."

BOATSWAIN DENIES CHARGES OF CREW AIDING RUM-RUNNERS

BOSTON, Nov. 18. — (AP) — Boatswain Marcus Haley, former commander of the coast guard patrol boat 243 took the stand in his own defense at a naval court martial today and made a general denial of charges that he and members of his crew aided rum runners they were sworn to circumvent.

Contradicting the testimony of previous witnesses, Haley said he knew nothing of any sales of liquor by members of the patrol boats crew. He declared he had never received any money from any body except his coast guard salary, and denied having made payments to members of the crew.

Haley admitted that on one occasion he had taken on board his vessel the captain and radio operator of the British schooner I'm Alone, known on this coast as a rum runner, and made no entry of the fact in his log. The reason for failing to enter the incident he said, was that he had reported it to the coast guard base.

The boatswain denied a story told by other witnesses that on one occasion the 242 had loaded a liquor cargo and delivered it at Plymouth. He said he had never seen ale aboard the 242, and contradicted previous witnesses who said he had drunk some ale on the vessel.

TURKISH WOMEN REBUKED FOR WEARING LONG SKIRTS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18.—(AP)—While women all over the world are being censured for wearing their skirts too short, the women of Karahissar, a town in the Turkish interior, have just been officially rebuked for wearing theirs too long.

The prefect of the town, upon ascertaining that over twenty-six yards of material were used by the women of the district to make their traditional flowing gowns and that the over-modest ladies were in the habit of wearing three such garments one on top of the other, has peremptorily ordered a change in style in the interest of national economy.

The Constantinople Press suggests that it would be well if Turkish women as a whole would strike a happy medium between the three dresses worn by the women of the interior and the "third of a dress" now affected by the stylish ladies of Angora and Constantinople in emulation of their western sisters.

WASHINGTON SKEPTICAL OF HUERTA'S STATEMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—Informed officials here took a highly skeptical view tonight of Adolfo de La Huerta's announcement in Los Angeles that more than 30,000 men were in revolt against the Calles government in Mexico and had declared themselves for de La Huerta. Official advices from Mexico and the border do not reflect any such situation in that country.

Aside from the Yaqui Indians outbreak, with which the Mexico City government has been dealing, the Washington government has not been informed of any developments in Mexico foreshadowing a serious uprising.

INDUSTRIES OF THE STATE NEED MORE CURRENT POWER

Power Committee of the New England Council Recommends That the Matter of Interstate Commerce Regulatory Power Be Taken Over by Utility Commissions of the New England States—Would Have Agreement Clause in Contracts Between Power Companies Transferring Power Across State Lines—Prompt Action Necessary, While Awaiting Court Decisions, to Keep Industries From Dying While Power Plants Are Expanding Beyond the Limits of the State in Which They Are Situated.

HARTFORD, Nov. 18.—(AP)—That the public utilities or public service commission of the New England states, acting jointly on points of issue between companies in their states, take over the interstate commerce regulatory powers of the federal government was suggested by the power committee of the New England council at the opening session of the New England conference here today.

While expressing hope of congressional action in the matter, the committee recommended that until such an act is passed by congress that their scheme be made effective by the incorporation of a clause in contracts between power companies, transferring current across state lines by which the companies agree voluntarily to submit and differences which may arise between them to the joint commission of their respective states.

The chairman, E. G. Goss, president of the Scovill Manufacturing company, of Waterbury, in giving the report, explained the wide differences in existing laws in the various states which tended to impede the transportation of power across state boundaries.

The report was amplified by Charles L. Edgar, of Boston, chairman of the committee, which represented the power companies in the conferences resulting in the proposed plan. W. G. Bliss, chairman of the Rhode Island public utilities commission, and Rodman Peabody, of Boston, a member of the drafting committee.

Mr. Edgar reviewed the development of power companies and told of the state laws made necessary when the companies began to serve communities outside of the single one for which they were originally organized. The same thing has occurred, he said, how that the companies have expanding beyond the limits of the state in which they are situated, new acts being necessary to take care of the greater expansion.

The time has come, Mr. Bliss said, when we should be linked together for cheaper power, he declared that it has become necessary to devise some way to keep industries from dying while waiting for decisions of courts in the matter. If the federal government fails to act to remedy the situation, then the states must make the move.

The complications of the inter-state situation were detailed by Mr. Peabody. He told of a recent incident when power of the Connecticut Light and Power company, serving Waterbury industries from Devon, went "wrong." A switch was thrown immediately in the Devon plant bringing power from the Hartford company. The latter's dynamos, staggering under the sudden load were in turn furnished with additional power from plants at Springfield, and Turners Falls, Mass. These in turn called on plants in Boston and in the Catskills of New York.

By the reserve available the wheels of factories in Waterbury were stilled only a few seconds, he said, continuing that through it all there had been no word of written contract to care for the emergency.

Illustrating the reverse, he told of a surplus of power at a Housatonic river plant occasioned by rising water. Switches were again thrown and the load of Boston steam plants was taken over by the Connecticut plant without any lost energy.

In the discussions on the report, Herbert Myrick, editor of the New England Homestead, of Springfield asked for some consideration of the fact that power from the St. Lawrence project should be available for New England industry.

F. E. Duffy, of West Hartford, asked if the committee couldn't do something to bring about a more equitable rate for the agricultural interests. He told of the uneven rates now in force.

A rumored dissension that a member of the committee had objected to the report in its submitted form and had refused to approve it was set at naught when John S. Lawrence, president of the council, answered in the affirmative a question from the balcony if the action of the governors and the committee had been unanimous.

THREE RECOMMENDATIONS BY GOVERNOR TRUMBULL

HARTFORD, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Removal of existing barriers which have prevented the maximum development of New England was advocated by Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric company, in an address prepared by him for the second session of the New England conference. Because of a cold which settled in his throat, Mr. Young was unable to be present and his address was read by E. G. Buckland, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

The speaking which also included addresses by Governor Brewster, of Maine, and Governor Trumbull, of Connecticut, was a part of a complimentary dinner in honor of the governors of five states which with Connecticut make up New England. Because of the large number of delegates and guests, the speeches were given in the Broad street high school auditorium, where the first session of the conference was held this afternoon. The dinner was given in the Hotel Bond, where headquarters for the conference was established.

Governor Brewster said that today, New England is "the land of the rising sun;" that New England is coming "to regard Bunker Hill not a monument, but as a cornerstone," and that New England is looking forward "to the dawn of a new day with ever loftier mansions rising upward to the skies."

Three recommendations were made by Governor Trumbull in his address. They were that New England be sold to the school children of New England; that the delegates return to their homes and use every effort to secure the co-operation of the press in presenting New England to the people of the sister states in a constructive fashion, and that the guests endeavor to bring about in their own states the creation of a state commission on advertising and publicity.

GREAT EXHIBITION OF NEW ENGLAND PUBLICITY

HARTFORD, Nov. 12.—(AP) — To stroll through the lobby of the Hotel Bond where a mass of New England publicity is on exhibition in connection with the second New England conference being held here leaves little doubt that "New England is the only place in the world in which to live." The hundred and one leaflets, brochures, pamphlets and booklets fairly scream their "facts" at visitors.

From upper Maine to lower Connecticut where "native New Yorkers" have their homes along the sound, communities have sent forth their individual claims that "here is the finest place to settle." The railroads which serve the six New England states have added their reason for existing in "beautiful New England."

"Have a real vacation: romp in Rhode Island," says an alluring poster while Maine adds its "vacation land." Claremont, (N. H.) admits it is "the beauty spot of the northern Connecticut valley," and New Bedford, Mass., "offers service unsurpassed."

"Bristol, (Conn.) the city of opportunity," features the picture service showing its "made in Bristol" slogan. Greenwich, "the gate-way of New England," New Haven, Hartford, and other Connecticut cities, Boston, Holyoke, Old Cape Ann and Gardner, Mass., al have sent their publicity.

The New Haven road with three beautifully colored posters illustrating the advantages of the sections it serves has a prominent position in the lobby while the Maine Central and the Boston and Maine have great planned exhibits.

GOV. TRUMBULL FLEW FOR AND RETURNED WITH QUEST

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 18.—(AP)—John H. Trumbull, Connecticut's "flying governor," left Hartford in a Fokker monoplane piloted by Leroy H. Thomson at 8 o'clock this morning, flew to Boston, where he met Gov. Ralph O. Brewster of Maine, and brought him back to Hartford in time for lunch. The two governors were due to attend the second New England conference which opened here this morning. The trip was made in an enclosed cabin plane and both the governors expressed themselves as having enjoyed the trip greatly. Though the day was somewhat misty, and the air was cold, they suffered no inconvenience.

CAN SUPPLY MOTOR FUEL FOR THE NEXT 800 YEARS

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The vast bituminous coal deposits of the United States can supply the world's need for motor fuel for the next 800 years, according to Dr. Gustav Egloff, technical director, Universal Oil Products company, Chicago.

In making this prediction tonight at the final session of the international conference on bituminous coal at Carnegie Institute of Technology, Dr. Egloff described how he had converted tar extracted from coal into motor fuel through the medium of a cracking process.

Dr. Egloff said the motor fuel he invented would double the mileage per gallon as compared to ordinary gasoline while operating a high compressor motor.

The United States has approximately 1,900,000,000,000 tons of the 3,154,000,000,000 tons of bituminous coal in the world on the basis of estimates, he asserted.

"By means of low temperature distillation of this quantity of bituminous coal," he continued, "800,000,000,000 barrels of tar can be produced which, under cracking conditions, would yield 240,000,000,000 barrels of motor fuel of high anti-knocking properties."

541 AUTO ACCIDENTS IN THE STATE LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Records for the number of automobile accidents in one week in November and the number of persons killed in such accidents, were established in the state during the week ending November 3, according to a report made today by the statistical division of the motor vehicles department.

During the week there were 541 accidents, of which 326 were in fourteen cities. This is one of the largest totals ever reported during a single week and is the greatest number recorded in a week in November. Eleven of the accidents were fatal, taking a toll of twelve victims. This approaches the state record of fourteen victims, made during the week ending October 17 of this year and is also the greatest number for the month of November.

Last year during the corresponding week there were 323 accidents, 290 of which were in the fourteen cities, while eight persons were killed in seven fatal accidents.

Hartford again has the worst record of any city there having been eighty six accidents during the week as compared with forty nine in New Haven. The totals in the other cities were as follows: Waterbury 40, Bridgeport 39, New Britain 30, Greenwich 15, Meriden 15, New London 13, Stamford 13, Norwich 8, Middletown 8, Danbury 5, Norwalk 4, Rockville 4. CHILDREN HAD NEVER SEEN AN ELECTRIC LIGHT

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Living with their father in a ramshackle hut in the Litchfield hills, three children who had never seen an electric light, a gas jet or water running from a faucet have been found by the Connecticut Children's Aid society, according to a report made by Ralph Barrows, executive secretary of the society. Their home was within forty miles of Hartford.

The children are two, seven and three years of age, the eldest being a girl. Given their first ride in an elevator they were filled with terror.

Mr. Barrows, in picturing the existence of the motherless family, said that the children had succeeded in obtaining a meagre bit of public school learning which they had matched with difficulty during their nomadic lives.

APPEAL FOR SOLUTION OF PROBLEM OF RADIOCRAFT

What devices or stage properties may be used in the broadcasting chamber to convey to the unseen audience the following sounds: A man washing his face; the gurgle of beer as it is poured into a mug; a man taking a bath; a man plying knife, fork and spoon?

Station WHDH of Boston planned to broadcast next week George Paston's comedy "Feed the Brute," and claimed that all these sounds were essential to the presentation.

STAMFORD, Nov. 18.—(AP)—In an old, broken basket, wrapped in an old blanket, a fully developed male child, about an hour old, cried and cried in the local station until two women, waiting for the train, heard its wails and sought their source.

A first search of the station revealed nothing. The baggage master was called, and the three finally traced the sounds to the market basket, setting on a waiting bench in a corner. The child was taken to the hospital, where it is expected to live. Nothing was found to identify the babe or those who had left it.

VERY FEW COLD STORAGE TURKEYS IN THE BAY STATE

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—(AP)—If Massachusetts is to have turkeys during the forthcoming holiday season they must come from the fresh crop and not from cold storage warehouses. This was revealed by Herman C. Mr. Lythgoe's investigations have shown that there is now in cold storage in Massachusetts just one turkey for each 171 inhabitants.

Fairfield Co. After Lottery Ticket Sellers

Two Arrests Made — 25,000 Treasury Balance Tickets Are Sold in Bridgeport Weekly.

BRIDGEPORT, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The opening gun of a "swift, silent, relentless" war upon treasury balance lottery ticket sellers in Fairfield county was fired by State's Attorney William H. Comley today with the arrest of Clifford J. "Connie" Lewis, well known local sportsman and his brother-in-law George "Dutch" Sherwood, of this city by State Police Sergeant Frank Virelli.

Lewis and Sherwood were released shortly after arrest upon bonds of $5,000 each furnished in Lewis case by John J. Donovan, of 193 Middle street, and for Sherwood by Lewis. The men will probably face the December term of the superior criminal court upon charges of violation of section 6486 of the public acts, conviction of which calls for a penalty of $300 fine or six months in jail, or both.

It was learned from authoritative sources today that the extent of playing the treasury balance in this city has increased in the past year by such leaps and bounds that fully some 25,000 of the tickets are sold in this city weekly. In addition to the tickets which Sherwood and Lewis are alleged to have sold, there are four other types of tickets being sold in the city. The New Britain ticket of which Welch is alleged to have been the originator, the "horse-shoe," "double action and the imperial" are some of the known tickets having a ready market here.

Lewis and Sherwood, it was stated, sell some 5,000 of their type of tickets in the state, and as far distant as New Jersey. The actual profit to the originator or "boss" of any type of ticket retailing to the player at 75 cents is close to 47 cents. It was also pointed out. This amount fluctuates however, due to the fact that some of the agents or pushers are paid 10 or 15 per cent on their sales.

Lewis and Sherwood, it is alleged, had three types of weekly tickets selling at 50 cents, 65 cents and 75 cents each. The cash prizes were different in all of the types. In addition to this the "Connie Lewis special," a monthly ticket selling for one dollar is alleged to ave thound ready market.

At the time of Welch's arrest it was stated that he had taken a great deal more money out of this city than his tickets had ever left. It was common knowledge that previous to the advent in this city of the New Britain ticket, Lewis had the field to himself. How much this cut into Lewis alleged business is not known.

WINTER WEATHER NOW IN THE MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The second severe onslaught of unseasonably rigorous weather had blanketed the middlewest with snow and sent temperatures tumbling tonight. Another 24 hours of snow and cold was forecast.

Warmer weather prevailed today in the Atlantic states, excepting New England, and in some sections of the Rocky mountain region, but gales were blowing the central west disturbance eastward and southward, and a blizzard, of lesser proportions was centered over western Montana and a new drop of the temperature had been recorded in Alberta.

Temperature of ten degrees below freezing, with continuation of the snow, was forecast for the Great Lakes region tonight with a cold wave in southwestern Michigan.

Much snow was recorded in Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. Many old records were broken by snow fall of eight inches at Moline and 7.9 inches at Springfield, Illinois. St. Louis had six inches as did sections of Minnesota.

The worst drifts, in some instances five feet, were reported in Minnesota, where snow plows worked to keep traffic open. Snow plows also were used on the state highways in Illinois.

Storm warnings were displayed on all the Great Lakes.

NEW BOOK LIKELY TO CAUSE SOCIETY SENSATION

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(AP)—"The Whispering Gallery," a book by an anonymous author which appeared today, is likely to cause a society sensation. The author makes the claim: "My name is a household word, among European diplomats," and he deals with the most intimate incidents of the court and the private affairs of noted personages.

The author quotes King Edward VII as having said to him: "My mother (Queen Victoria), whom I greatly admired, hated me because she imagined I had hastened my father's death. I never in my life had a real heart talk with her. Toward the end of her life we were mutually obnoxious, and I never left her presence without a sigh of relief."

The author relates an incident of Queen Alexandra erasing the names of seven persons from the list to be presented at court, although she was informed they were included at King Edward's request.

Others come under the author's lash, among them Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, who says the writer, "had no sense whatever of the value of human life."

Opprobrious terms are used freely by the author in describing the former German emperor and the czar of all the Russians.

The author asserts that Cecil Rhodes, the South African magnate, told him that Joseph Chamberlain was responsible for the Jameson raid in 1896.

Dramatic Scene in the Hall Murder Case

When Mrs. Gibson Testified That She Saw Three Accused Persons at and Near Scene of Crime.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Jane Gibson came to court here today on a hospital bed to testify that she saw Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens at and near the place the bodies of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills were found on the night they were slain, more than four years ago.

From her bed, made into a witness stand, the witness said that she saw Mrs. Hall and Willie Stevens standing in front of an automobile, in De Russey's lane, near New Brunswick, before she heard shots fired, later saw Henry Stevens just before she heard shots and still later observed Mrs. Hall kneeling near the place where the witness had heard voices uttering oaths. She pointed to the defendants in the courtroom and said they are the persons she saw.

The dramatic appearance of the witness in the courtroom followed a ride in an ambulance from Jersey City, where she has been a patient in a hospital for ten days. Her three hour stay on the courtroom bed was ended only after she had partially raised herself and screamed, "I told the truth, so help me God, and you know it," with a wave of her hand toward the three defendants.

She apparently suffered no ill effects from her journey and court appearance.

Mrs. Gibson's story was in many particulars the recital she has given over a period of four years, but there were some additional details today and some changes. In previous testimony she had not identified Henry Stevens as a person she saw at the scene. She had identified Henry Stevens' cousin of the three defendants in the case on trial, which charges the murder of Mrs. Mills. Carpender, a New York broker, is in jail here under indictment on the same charges his cousins face. He came to the courtroom today to have Mrs. Gibson say that she had previously pointed him out as a person present.

The direct examination was brief, less than 20 minutes, while the cross-examination required two hours and 30 minutes. The trend of the questioning by defense attorneys after the witness had been led to repeat her story of what she saw on the night of the double killing, was to draw information as to her past life. She was vague as to many details and denied that she had more than one husband, William Easton, she said, is her only husband. She was called as a witness under the name of "Jane Gibson", but sworn as "Jane Easton." Her explanation of the discrepancy being that she took the name "Gibson" when she purchased the "Gibson farm".

MORE ABOUT GUN-RUNNING OPERATIONS IN NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Administration intentions as to Mexican gun-running operations in Nicaragua remained masked tonight by official silence.

President Diaz' assurance that any means the Washington government might adopt to end hostilities in the Central American country would have its approval was being closely studied and there was no evidence that new instructions had yet been sent to Lawrence Dennis, charge in Managua, or Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, commanding American naval patrols in Nicaraguan and adjacent waters.

A hint that further efforts might be exerted to bring peace in Nicaragua by diplomatic means, eliminating the Mexican angle of the problem, was dropped at the state department.

A specific inquiry as to whether the American embargo on arms shipments to Nicaragua might be raised and the Diaz government afforded an opportunity to equip itself from American sources, drew a blunt refusal to comment. In that connection it was pointed out, however, that while the other Central American governments took similar action in concert with the American embargo, the Mexican foreign minister had replied to official notification on the subject that he would take the embargo question under advisement.

NAT'L GRANGE RECOMMENDS LEASING OF MUSCLE SHOALS

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 18.—(AP)—After a two year debate, the National Grange tonight adopted a resolution recommending the leasing of Muscle Shoals to a responsible company making the best offer and complying with conditions designe dto benefit agriculture. The contest over the question required the only roll call of the meeting and was decided by a vote of 27 to 21.

It was the decision of the delegates that "the best interests of agriculture and the nation will be served by the leasing of Muscle Shoals to the responsible company making the best offer and agreeing to manufacture a high grade fertilizer material, carrying not less than 40 per cent plant food, and waiving all royalties and carrying the terms and conditions set up by congress and in full compliance with the terms of the national defense act of 1916 in the manufacture of nitrates for fertilizer in time of peace and the production of explosives in time of war."

33 INDICTED IN NEW YORK AS MEMBERS OF RUM RING

Among the Men Indicted Are Thirteen Members of the Coast Guard and a Former Department of Justice Agent—19 of Those Indicted Are Already Under Arrest—The Ring is Charged With Operating Its Own Vessels Between Canadian Ports and Rum Row.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—(AP)—Indictments charging 33 men—13 of the members of the coast guard—with operating a rum fleet between Canada and the United States were returned by the federal grand jury today.

The "master minds" of the rum fleet, the indictments charge, were the brothers Edward and Frank Costello with offices in Lexington avenue. Their arrangements are said to have been made for disposal of the cargoes of the rum runners.

The Costello brothers and several others named in the indictments were mentioned in the first indictment of William V. Dwyer, so-called "king of New York bootleggers," who operated another gigantic rum ring.

The indictment alleges that the men indicted directed operations of a fleet of their own vessels that plied between Canadian ports, St. Pierre, Miquelon, and Rum Row.

Nineteen of those indicted are already under arrest, including the Costello brothers and members of the crews of Coast Guard cutters 126 and 193. Some were released on bail.

Besides the Costello brothers, the principals in the alleged organization, according to Assistant United States Attorney William E. Stevenson were C. Hunter Carpenter, who was in charge of the sub-headquarters at Hempstead, L. I.; Philip J. Coffey, described as the pawmaster and briber of coast guardsmen; and W. L. Van Dyve, a Canadian and part owner of one of the boats.

The indictment charges that the rum ring, upon one occasion paid as much as $2,700 to Fred J. Lewis and William R. Hughes, at that time coast guardsmen on Coast Guard cutter No. 126. The payment was said to have been made at Montauk on October 31, 1925.

The activities of the rum ring date back, the indictment charges, as far as 1923, and ran continuously to and including part of 1926. A number of vessels employed to convey liquor from St. Pierre, Miquelon to Rum Row are named in the overt acts included in the indictment. One of the vessels named was the steamer "Vincent A. White."

It was charged that liquor purchased by the alleged conspirators was transhipped at Rum Row to contact boats, landed on Long Island for trucking to New York. Some of the contact boat transference, it is set forth, was actually accomplished by Coast Guard boats the crews of which had been enlisted in aid of the ring by some of its emissaries. In one case, according to the indictment, coast guardsmen, named in the indictment, were bribed.

SUGAR PRICES AT NEW HIGH LEVELS FOR SEASON

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)— Raw and refined sugar prices jumped to new high levels for the season today on heavy buying influenced by reports that President Machado of Cuba would exercise his power to bring about a further restriction in Cuban production. Cuban raws sold at the 3 cent level and the price of refined product jumped from 5.70 to 6.10 cents a pound.

Unofficial reports from Havana indicated that the Cuban output for 1926-27 would be limited to 4,500,000 tons, as compared with 4,387,000 in 1925-26 and 5,120,000 tons in 1924-25. The grinding season in Cuba ordinarily begins around the first of December, but President Machado already had taken steps to limit the current output by issuing a decree several weeks ago preventing such operations before Jan. 1. The nature of the latest limitation was not revealed.

The prospect of a smaller crop created an enormous demand for raw sugar, with refiners competing with each other for available supplies. Sales on the advance amounted to fully 350,000 bags. The strength in the raw sugar spot market created considerable excitement on the floor of the New York coffee and sugar exchange, where trading is conducted in raw sugar features. Prices which ordinarily fluctuate within a range of 3 or 4 points, advanced 11 to 13 points, with the day's sales reaching the record-breaking figure of 181,000 tons.

GERMAN AGENTS CLEAN UP FRENCH CHAMPAGNE STOCKS

RHEIMS, France, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The champagne stocks of France have never been as low as at present. They have emigrated to Germany. Taking advantage of the depreciation of the franc as compared with the mark in German wine agents have practically cleaned up the market, paying special attention to the so-called "best years."

The great wine houses with headquarters here are no longer able to fill the orders they receive from Paris and other cities in France. Chateau-Margaux, this year's vintage, is selling in casks for the equivalent of 60 francs per bottle and the vintages of 1911 and 1914 have completely disappeared.

The Belgians also have conducted extensive raids upon the French wine cellars but they show a marked preference for Burgundy instead of champagne.

Wine bought this year at its very source costs more than even in the banner days of the business when the United States and Norway were "wet" and Russia provided a great market for the commodity.

BROADCASTING TO THE WILDS OF BAFFINLAND

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 18.—(AP)—About one sixty-fourth of a second was required to transmit the sound of an orchestra and human voice from a Vancouver broadcasting station to the wilds of Baffinland by radio, but it has taken more than five months for a letter telling about the reception to reach here from that remote corner of Canada.

Late in May officers of the Royal Canadian mounted police outpost at Ellesmere island picked up a radio program broadcast from Vancouver and on the following day a letter was written to the station announcing the fact. The letter was borne out of the frozen north by dog-team, snowshoe messenger, motor stage and train.

Programs broadcast from Vancouver have also been picked up recently by receiving apparatus as far south as New Zealand, some 13,000 miles away.

ANOTHER PARDON GRANTED BY GOV. "MA" FERGUSON

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 18.—(AP)— A full pardon was granted today by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson to William Lester Crawford, young lawyer and member of a well known Dallas family, under a two to five year sentence for having shot and killed Paul O'Day, another young and well known lawyer.

Crawford had served none of the sentence, as appeals and legal motions on file until Wednesday had stayed beginning of the sentence.

The pardon brought the number of clemencies granted by Governor Ferguson to 3,595, according to latest available figures, which is said to be a record for any Texas governor.

KING OF HOUSE OF DAVID UNDER SURVEILLANCE

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 18—(AP)—Weakened by illness after his fourth arrest within two days, "King" Benjamin Purnell rested tonight at Shiloh while the state of Michigan kept an eye of surveillance on the movements within the colony of the House of David.

Purnell was carried to court late today on a stretcher by six of his aides for arraignment on charges of statutory assault brought by a former woman member of the cult. He furnished $5,000 bond and was returned in an ambulance to Shiloh. Bonds for the captured leader now total $125,000.

Officials took precautions to guard state witnesses after Mrs. Bessie Woodworth, leader of the raid by state troopers in which Purnell was taken, had appealed to Prosecuting Attorney George H. Bookwalter for protection. Mrs. Woodworth, former colony member, had been called to the cult headquarters to see her mother, reported "dying." When cult leaders learned Mrs. Woodworth was to be accompanied by an officer, they refused her admittance.

"If the House of David doesn't stop trying to pull fake stuff, I'll arrest everybody in the colony for obstructing justice," said Bookwalter. The move to bring Mrs. Woodworth to Shiloh, Bookwalter declared was an "attempt to monkey with state witnesses."

BOSTON, Nov. 18. — (AP) — Boatswain Marcus Haley, former commander of the coast guard patrol boat 242 took the stand in his own defense at a naval court martial today and made a general denial of charges that he and members of his crew aided rum runners they were sworn to circumvent.

Contradicting the testimony of previous witnesses, Haley said he knew nothing of any sales of liquor by members of the patrol boats' crew. He declared he had never received any money from any body except his coast guard salary, and denied having made payments to members of the crew.

Haley admitted that on one occasion he had taken on board his wife, the captain and radio operator of the British schooner I'm Alone, known on this coast as a rum runner, and made no entry of the fact in his log. The reason for failing to enter the incident, he said, was that he had reported it to the coast guard base.

The boatswain denied a story told by other witnesses that on one occasion the 242 had loaded a liquor cargo and delivered it at Plymouth. He said he had never seen ale aboard the 242, and contradicted previous witnesses who said he had drunk some ale on the vessel.

TURKISH WOMEN REBUKED FOR WEARING LONG SKIRTS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18.—(AP)—While women all over the world are being censured for wearing their skirts too short, the women of Karahissar, a town in the Turkish interior, have just been officially rebuked for wearing theirs too long.

The prefect of the town, upon ascertaining that over twenty-six yards of material were used by the women of the district to make their traditional flowing gowns and that the over-modest ladies were in the habit of wearing three such garments one on top of the other, has peremptorily ordered a change in style in the interest of national economy.

The Constantinople Press suggests that it would be well if Turkish women as a whole would strike a happy medium between the three dresses worn by the women of the interior and the "third of a dress" now affected by the stylish ladies of Angora and Constantinople in emulation of their western sisters.

WASHINGTON SKEPTICAL OF HUERTA'S STATEMENT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18—(AP)—Informed officials here took a highly skeptical view tonight of Adolfo de La Huerta's announcement in Los Angeles that more than 20,000 men were in revolt against the Calles government in Mexico and had declared themselves for de La Huerta. Official advices from Mexico and the border do not reflect any such situation in that country.

Aside from the Yaqui Indians outbreak, with which the Mexico City government has been dealing, the Washington government has not been informed of any developments in Mexico foreshadowing a serious uprising.

COMMUTERS TRAIN TO BE RESTORED ON MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 15.—Greeted by a salvo of several applause the commuter's train No. 111 of the New Haven railroad will be restored to its morning schedule run from this city to Hartford next Monday morning, November 17. Announcement to this effect was made by railroad officials Thursday. The train was discontinued September 15th, after many years of operation. The train leaves Willimantic at 7:10 a. m. and offers accommodation to some 75 or more local commuters and several in Andover who are employed in Hartford and vicinity; in addition to this restoration a train leaving Hartford for Willimantic at 5:15 p. m. will also be returned. The New Haven railroad discontinued the two trains upon acquiring possession of the bus line between this city and Hartford. The officials felt that to maintain both the bus line and train was an unnecessary duplication of service over the same route. Local business men joined commuters in petitioning for restoration of the trains. The petition was heard before a hearing of the public utilities commission held in this city by Commissioners Elwell and Higgins.

Miss Dorothy Sylvia Dehade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Dehade of 46 Maple avenue was married to John J. Tormey of Conantville in St. Mary's church at eight o'clock Thursday morning. Rev. J. J. Shallow, the pastor was the celebrant of the ceremony and the nuptial high mass. Raymond Dehade as best man and Miss Rose Haddad as maid of honor were the attendants. The bride wore a gown of pink georgette with a large picture hat and she carried yellow chrysanthemums. Her gift to her maid of honor was a vanity case. The groom presented his best man a gold stickpin. The wedding reception was held at the home of the bride. Relatives and friends present came from New York, New London, Middletown, Willington, Counantville and South Windham; Mr. and Mrs. Tormey are spending their honeymoon in New York. They will reside in Conantville. Mr. Tormey is employed at the Max Pollack Manufacturing company in Conantville. For traveling the bride wore a gown of blue georgette with hat and coat to match.

In the presence of many friends and relatives the funeral services for Edward Freemont Whitmore were held at the First Congregational church house at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock officiated. Two solos were rendered by the Imperial quartet, Edwin F Cross, Arthur L. Clark, Claude W. Ide and Leslie Nichols. Burial was in the new Willimantic cemetery where the committal service was conducted by members of Willimantic lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. E. The acting officers were P. D. Donohue Valentine L. Murphy, Roy W. Downer. James F. McGlone, Gerard E. Loiselle, John E. Buck and Jeremiah Lennihan The bearers were George H. Elliott, Frank M. Lincoln, James B. Fullerton, Louis H. Arnold, Zepherin Coutu and Herbert T. Clark. There were many floral pieces in evidence. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

Willimantic has taken another short but effective step of progress through the installation of adequate electric traffic signals which will protect traffic at the blind corners of Church and Valley, North and Valley and Walnut and Valley streets. The board of aldermen upon recommendation of the police committee have purchased two triple-light signals one of which was suspended from a yard arm of a telephone pole at the Church street-intersection The signal is about 25 feet above the street level. The signal weighs 81 pounds. The generally adopted signals of red for stop, amber for caution and green for motion are flashed. There are automobile owners who have traveled to some extent through strange cities who are skeptical about the success of the overhead signal. Unless a driver, especially of a car with a sun visor, is looking for such a sign and has a neck like a giraffe, it is likely that it will not be seen. This is even more applicable in the case of visitors. These skeptics justly point to cities like Bridgeport and Hartford which found it necessary to eliminate the over-head signal for a more suitable type. However, the police committee did not recommend a purchase without a thorough investigation and it is possible that no trouble will be encountered.

The evening school for non-English speaking adults is going forward this year with a good deal of success. There are 18 beginners and 16 advanced pupils. The school meets Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in Bacon academy building, from 7:30 to 9:30. That the people appreciate the opportunity to go to school is evidenced by the fact that attendance has been almost perfect since the opening of the school about a month ago. Miss Cronin and Miss Himmelstein have been doing very excellent work as teachers of these classes.

The schools in the first district have a very large registration this year, particularly in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. These rooms are particularly crowded. DANIELSON

NEW CHARTER FOR DANIELSON IS COMPLETED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 12.—Having completed the draft of a proposed charter revision for the borough of Danielson, former Warden Walter Anderson will submit it to the special committee of the borough of which he is a member within a few days. It is understood after complying with the necessary legal processes this charter will be submitted to the electorate at a special borough meeting and, in all probability, will receive confirmation in the 1927 session of the legislature. The charter draft that Mr. Anderson has made involved a great deal of research, co-ordination and occupied much time. It constitutes a splendid example of public service.

Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., the past three years an assistant to the pastor of St. James' church, left Thursday afternoon for Montreal, en route to his new post at Estevan, Saskatchewan. Many were those who wish him God's graces and blessings on the eve of his departure, and many were the souvenirs tendered him as testimonials of the affection in which he is held here. Father Richards will be a pastor at Estevan and will have a curate.

The Americanization exhibit in the town was a success beyond the fondest hopes of those who so painstakingly planned it. Closing Thursday evening, it attracted hundreds of people during the three days it was held. So great was the rush of attendance Wednesday night that it was necessary to close the doors of the town hall against numbers of others who wished to come in. Again on Thursday evening there was a large attendance and great enjoyment. This exhibit and its attendant features were truly worth the effort that made it possible.

Miss Beatrice Alma Pellett has the distinction of winning fourth prize in a nation-wide contest that has been conducted during the past year by banks that maintain Christmas club departments. The task was to write a scenario dealing with Christmas club savings and the saving of money generally. Many thousands of contestants entered from all parts of the United States. Of all their scenarios Miss Pellett's was rated fourth best and she received an award of $100 through The Danielson Trust company. Starting two in that Danielson should have two winners in the limited list of those receiving awards, Miss Emma A. Burbank's scenario winning 37th place.

Again this year, there are not to town students who would like to attend Killingly high school if they can make arrangements to help them stay here. Principal Ernest R. Warren mentioned on Thursday one girl from out of town who would willingly work in some family for her board in order to have the advantages of a course of study at the high school.

Slowly and laboriously, on rainy days, half-holidays and when there have been other opportunities to do so, one Danielson man has accumulated five tons of coal, enough to heat his home all winter, by picking up pieces that have rattled off cars along the railroad right of way. He has been getting pickings since early last spring, a bag at a time. Getting the coal involved a great deal of walking and hard work lugging it home, but there is a saving of about $40 involved.

A marriage in St. Mary's church at Putnam Monday was that of Miss Yvonne Houle of that city and Roland Hubert of Danielson, Rev. Adrian Dykemans performing the nuptial ceremony and being celebrant of the mass. The couple will make their home in Danielson.

CHAS. A. TILLINGHAST BUYS TATEM PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 13.—Charles A. Tillinghast is the purchaser of the J. B. Tatem and Son handle manufacturing company property at Putnam, at an auction arranged by Attorney L. A. Wolsard, referee in bankruptcy. The property bid in by Mr. Tillinghast, resident here for years and long a well known lumber manufacturer, includes the buildings on George street, their machinery and other equipment and the stock of lumber on the premises. Mr. Tillinghast's bid was $3,900. A stockhouse owned by the concern and located near the tracks of the New Haven road in Putnam yards, this building mortgaged for $3,500, was sold to Arthur Tillinghast of Plainfield, he bidding $100 for the equity. These sales are subject to confirmation by the superior court, and there is to be a hearing relative to the matter on Nov. 29.

The Tatem company flourished for years as one of the most successful manufacturers of handles, golf sticks, hockey sticks, etc., of any such concern in the east. Of late years many plants of this nature have moved out of New England to southern states, to be near the source of the special lumber supply used in their operations.

The Putnam plant that Mr. Tillinghast stands to come into ownership of is of modern construction and well equipped, having been built only a very few years ago to replace another plant that was destroyed by fire.

Through a change in dates, the usual Thanksgiving period offering to the Day Kimball hospital will be made this year on Dec. 7 and 8. This is an offering in which Killingly and Brooklyn participate liberally each year.

Sustaining a broken arm when he fell from the running board of a truck, Leslie Beecher of Brooklyn was taken to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam.

A few here have been fortunate enough to obtain tickets for the Yale-Harvard football game to be played at New Haven Saturday.

John Z. LaBelle of Baltic is the Killingly member of the newly elected board of directors of the Windham County Farmers' association.

There is little change in the condition of Mrs Theodore Fulton, who has been seriously ill at her home on Academy street for some time.

Another chance to see the Connecticut Aggies football team in action will be taken advantage of Saturday by numbers of Danielson people. The presence of two Danielson boys on this team, Williams and Longo, makes its activities of special interest here.

In browsing through provisions of the old charter of the borough, it has been found that there is authority therein to compel property owners to keep chimneys in their buildings cleaned, a provision long since forgotten.

This afternoon the first of the heavy motor traffic always incident to the playing of a Yale-Harvard game in New Haven will begin to move from Massachusetts and Rhode Island

OLD NEWGATE PRISON

Generally, it is believed, the announcement that old Newgate prison will be preserved as a landmark and Revolutionary relic with a modern setting will be received with approval.

There has been some question just what would become of it inasmuch as it was necessary to auction it off in order to settle the estate which owned it, and it can be appreciated that there are those who would have welcomed a decision that it would be wiped out completely in order to have it gotten out of sight and thus out of thought entirely. Such people, of course, shudder at the thoughts of what it was and and seem unable to attach any importance to it as a relic of the past. They don't like relics and therefore think that others should neither have them nor show an interest in them.

But the preservation of old Newgate neither means an approval of such a place as a prison, nor the sanctioning of what took place there in the years long since gone. It is simply a case of furnishing the original as an illustration of what featured the past instead of relying upon descriptions, and to a great number of people such a place has an especially strong attraction.

There is a decided contrast between old Newgate, Connecticut's first penal institution, and the state prison at Wethersfield. Ideas have changed in the 133 years since the abandoned Newgate copper mine was converted into a prison. But there is nevertheless interest in being able to get first hand information and see what there was in the beginning.

Were there any good reason for blowing up and closing up this old prison there could be no very strong objection raised. There is little or no chance for development in that locality but there is a strong desire among the curious to get a look at that famous place whenever opportunity permits, and the action of the new owner means that such are going to have a chance to satisfy their curiosity. It is far preferable that such a landmark should be preserved for the information of those who are interested in such things than to rely upon pictures or wax models to tell those of the future what really existed in the dark past.

IMMUNE TO DANGER?

As the result of a conference between engineers and a hearing before the transit commission it has been agreed that "additional practical safety devices should, and will be, installed promptly" at Long Island grade crossings in which the Atlantic avenue branch of the Long Island railroad is concerned.

This is a wise decision for there isn't a crossing at grade but what should have adequate warning signals for the protection of the public. It would be even more gratifying if it could be promised before the transit commission that those using the public highway at grade crossings would respect these warnings wherever encountered.

The responsibility at grade crossings it not one sided. By all means should the transportation lines indicate to the highway users that a crossing is ahead by means of signs and in most instances reinforce this warning by flagman, gates, bell or light, but at the same time those who are using the highway and are going to cross railroad tracks should give heed to the danger which is involved and be prepared to furnish that degree of self protection which these warnings are intended to direct.

It is the wild and reckless use of grade crossings that is responsible for many of the crossing accidents and fatalities. Within a few days at a Long Island grade crossing, a crossing which is recognized as a bad one, the driver of an auto failed to show any respect whatever for the signals that were set against her, drove on in face of the crossing tender's effort to stop her with the result that the car was just on the track when the locomotive crashed into it, distributing the machine and humanity along the rails and of course causing several deaths. The only trouble in that instance was that the driver was unwilling to stop, didn't recognize or didn't intend to heed danger signals.

Whatever is done in the way of establishing warnings for drivers of that class may or may not produce results. It is just such cases which accentuate the menace which the highway users are to their own safety.

NEW YORK'S NEW LAW

It is difficult to imagine a law to which no one would take exception. There are those who feel that it is too severe or that it is not severe enough and in other instances there are those who think they should be permitted to interpret it according to their views and others who immediately take steps to bring about changes which they consider necessary.

This is demonstrated in connection with the Baumes law recently effective in the state of New York which calls for the imposition of life sentences upon those who by their acts are noted in the law as habitual criminals. It doesn't leave the discretion open to the purposes of the court as to whether the four offenses which make him an habitual criminal were really serious enough to call for a life sentence, but is mandatory.

This means that an early test of the law in the higher courts is going to be made. Without a doubt the law was drawn up as it has been for the purpose of overcoming the evils which have existed in the past, where courts have exercised far more leniency than the issues warranted. Instead of bringing about a respect for law and a decrease in crime the leniency has done just the opposite, so much so that the laws have become less and less effective. Thus apparently the purpose of the Baumes law was to make it impossible for judges who are given to too much leniency to yield to the wheedling to which they are in many cases subjected.

It may seem that four convictions carrying sentences ranging from 60 days for burglary to five years for assault do not warrant imprisoning a man for life, and yet it is perfectly evident that such an individual has it within his own power to prevent any such sentence. The law in fact makes him understand what he faces if he has got three black marks against him, and if he is a menace to the public in general, and unwilling to keep out of crime, it is fair that the public should get the protection to which it is entitled.

The Baumes law was enacted to meet a serious crime situation. Things were going from bad to worse and even those who feel strongly that those convicted of crime should be given a chance to reform must realize that it cannot go on forever, and that three chances are more than the average individual needs to keep out of the paths of crime.

GEORGIA'S GOOD WORK

The state of Georgia has repeatedly stood at the head of the list of states whose citizens indulged in that deplorable practice of lynching. Because of evidences which indicate that state authorities are actively opposed to such lawlessness and getting the support of the people it has been necessary to take our hat off to that state. It has dropped back out of that conspicuous position as leader. Lynching hasn't entirely disappeared in that state but it has decreased, and now it is interestingly disclosed that the leader of a lynching party, indicted with 15 others for the killing of another man, has pleaded guilty and been sentenced to prison for life. Others are expected to follow the course which he took as their leader.

There is nothing extraordinary about this affair other than it has taken place in what was once the worst commonwealth for mob rule. It represents a much different situation than prevailed a few years ago, but it must impress the citizens of that and other states that, through just such handling of lawless mobs will there be brought about a greater respect for the law.

Georgia in bringing the lynchers to justice, in indicting and presenting for trial those who participated as well as those who led the mobs, is setting a fine example. It indicates that the effects of the better sentiment of the state is being felt and that lynching is really being discouraged instead of encouraged. If Georgia hands out life imprisonment for every leader of a lynching party there'll be fewer lynchings in Georgia. Georgia has reason for feeling that a new era is at hand.

HEALING THE BREAK

An effort is to be made to patch up the broken relations between Harvard and Princeton. There's no certainty that it'll succeed and perhaps those who have instigated it are not sanguine of a favorable outcome, but they apparently believe it is worth while to try and knock off the rough edges which have been left from the abrupt rupture.

Because of the feeling that has been existing and developing for some time the difficulty of patching up relations is emphasized. Perhaps it is best that the athletic relations be ended for such a time as is necessary to get rid of the bad blood, give each university a chance to come to grips with representatives of other institutions and as the result come to a greater appreciation later on of how much more important it is for them that agreements and rivalries be resumed for the future. Frequently it is the case that such breaks, diplomatically brought about without friction, have been desired only to find after the experience has been had that the results were not as beneficial as expected and restored relationships have become cemented more firmly than ever.

It is apparently time to put to a test that old saying that distance lends enchantment. There is evidence that the boiling among the athletic bodies of the two institutions has not been as it should have been for some time. The possibilities of patching them up after what has transpired seems slight. There have been breaches of this kind before and others may follow but invariably time heals the wounds, and we have no doubt such will be the case in this particular instance and thereby be a greater appreciation of each other thereafter.

THE HIGH PRICE

When Gwen Mitchell came to Perryville she came with the feeling that her life was over, that all she had later. It was a desolate waiting for Great Silence. Mrs. Jacobs accompanied her. Mrs. Jacobs had neither kith nor kin of Gwen, who had neither, but she was a faithful friend on whom Gwen's mother had trusted and in whom Gwen herself found infinite comfort.

Mrs. Jacobs had come ahead of Gwen and made things ready. She rented the old Hamlin place with its wonderful, neglected yard and shabby, roomy house, and to it she brought the furniture, rugs, draperies and books from the city house which Gwen was never to need again. For it had been Gwen's idea to get away from the old things into the new, where she could fight better if unobserved.

When the house was ready Gwen came. They carried her upstairs to the great front door.

It was a lonely winter even with plenty of reading, a victrola, plants and the gentle ministrations of Mrs. Jacobs. Neighbors came tentatively, but they did not see Gwen.

"You talk to them, Jake"—she called Mrs. Jacobs. "Jake"—"but don't ask me to. I can't. I want to be alone."

The winter went slowly. Gwen, lying on her bed at night and on the couch by day, fretted and rebelled and secretly stormed at the trick life had played her. One moment she had been running down a long flight of stairs, glad, happy, radiant with every delightful prospect of life, the next she lay shattered far below where a high heel had flung her. It had happened at the college where she was just finishing her last year.

It was in March that Gwen was driven out of her room by the collapse of the ceiling plaster. It came down with a crash one night, filling the room with dust and lime, barely missing Gwen's bed. Mrs. Jacobs took Gwen to her own room and made arrangements to have the damage repaired. But that would take time, and in the meantime Gwen must find another room. The only one that seemed to answer all requirements was the tower room.

The tower room was really two rooms in one; the first room was of the ordinary square type, but bulging out from it was another, much smaller room, circular, and with windows which looked down the valley, out upon the hills, into the top of a great maple. Mrs. Jacobs placed Gwen's couch in the great window and there, by day, she took up her station.

Then she was thrust into the very world from which she had thought to withdraw forever. She saw the school children passing in troops, and after a little the bitterness engendered by the sight of their freelimbed grace wore away and she began to tap on the pane and wave to them. She learned to know her neighbors—little Mrs. Prince, who took her two babies to air every morning; old Mrs. Conrad with her market basket; Miss Alverson, who was forever polishing her front windows, and Miss Alverson's collie that romped over the whole neighborhood. In no time at all these people and more like them became personalities with which Gwen had some acquaintances.

And people began to know Gwen. The schoolchildren looked for her eagerly as they passed and left arbutus and violets for her. Others brought custards and jelly and Mrs. Prince brought her babies. Gwen found that she could not resist babies.

The high place, she called the tower room, little realizing that it was to prove a high place in very truth, the high place to which her soul had ascended from the deep valley of despair and despondency.

Gradually her health improved. The pallor left her face, the shadows lessened beneath her dark eyes, the hollows above her collarbones began to fill out.

"Seems to me I ought to be doing something," she told Mrs. Jacobs one day. "Haven't you something I can do?"

Mrs. Jacobs brought her a table cloth to darn and Gwen toiled over it earnestly.

This first task led to others. She found that Bonny Heath, whose mother washed for a living, was backward in school, so she had him come in for an hour every day that she might teach him. She began to discover needs everywhere in the town and to minister to them, reading books and magazines to shutins, of making little gifts to those who suffered for cheer.

That was a wonderful summer for Gwen there in her high place. There was so much to do, so much to think about that she had no time to think about herself.

At the edge of fall Dr. Saltus, the great specialist, came out from the city to see Gwen. He had never lost sight of her case.

"You are 50 per cent stronger in every way," he declared. "My dear girl, I am glad to tell you that you have graduated from your couch and may now adopt a chaise longue, even a wheel chair. Of course you must go very carefully, you understand that. But in time—in time if you keep on as you have begun—" He swung his eyeglasses on his finger and smiled into her expectant eyes. "In time you are going to walk again," he promised.

It was three years longer before Gwen could walk as she wished, but the time was full of hope and happy business and loving human contacts.

"It does seem," she told Mrs. Jacobs "as if every good thing in the world has ascended to me there in my high place. But—" she added gravely, "suppose there had been no high place in this house."

Mrs. Jacobs smiled understandingly.

"The Tower room did not matter," she said. "The high place, my dear, was in your soul."—Detroit News.

BAD COLDS LEAD TO MANY COMPLICATIONS

Dowell Gann, Pr. M. D., Little Rock, Ark.

Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

This is the time of the year when one may expect to develop a cold. A cold may lead to pneumonia, pneumonia to death.

Appendicitis is not a serious disease but the complications that develop when it is neglected are serious. Likewise a cold is not a serious disease but its complication, pneumonia, is one of the leading causes of death and takes a toll of 150,000 people in the United States each year. One out of every seven people who develop pneumonia die from the disease or one of the diseases which develop from it.

If death should not ensue following one of these conditions the lighting power of the body may be so lowered that tuberculosis or some other dreadful disease may develop, producing death in a dreadful sort of way. The old adage "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is particularly applicable to this disease.

A cold is an inflamation of a mucous membrane and may affect any part of the body lined with this kind of tissue but is more often seen in the nose, throat, or chest. Colds are evidences of improper living. They are unnecessary and more loss of time than any other disease.

Take plenty of exercise, eight hours sleep or more, wear light underclothing. Keep the body clean. Do not allow it to become chilled or to cool off too rapidly when warm. Do not ever indulge in any thing to the extent of weakening the body and you will not have a cold.

Colds are often the forerunner of contagious diseases such as influenza, measles, whooping cough, scarlet and typhoid fever, diphtheria, and small pox. When permitted to carry on without care they sometimes affect the middle ear. This condition if neglected may form a brain abscess and this complication is almost always fatal. Being of such a serious nature when neglected, a cold should receive a physician's care. Protect your family and the people with whom you may come in contact. Do not cough, sneeze, or expectorate in the other fellow's presence. If not preventable cough or sneeze into your handkerchief and later destroy it or see that it is sterilized properly before coming in contact with any other person or again being used by yourself.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Code of the Flag

Mr. Editor: I would like to say to L. M. H. that in regard to our flag being carried that in the parade on Armistice day, that while she says it is only a breach of etiquette and no law to prevent it, I do think it was disgraceful the way one organization carried it, as they carried it so loose that it surely must have touched the ground, at different times. I have a code of the flag which was adopted by National Flag conference, Washington, D. C., June 14-15, 1923 and it says "Do not carry the flag flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free." This flag code was drawn up by the American commission of the American Legion for the sole purpose of showing the proper way to display the national colors. The code has been broadcast throughout the land but there still continues to be parades in which the flag is used incorrectly and instances where downright desecration occurs through ignorance. Only through concentrated effort can the mass of our people be shown the right from the wrong.

Another thing the code says is "Do not drape the flag over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle, or of a railroad train or boat. When the flag is displayed on a motor car, the staff should be affixed firmly to the chassis, or clamped to the radiator cap." Automobiles were seen with our flag draped over the hood on Armistice day. One more thing I wait to ask is, Why do so many churches have the flag hung up wrong in their Sunday school rooms? I have found three different Sunday schools where the flag was hung up with the Union to the right as they faced it. Now surely our children are taught in public schools that the Union should be to the left, and then when they see it hung up differently in Sunday school, what are they going to think?

I hope anyone who sees our flag hung up wrong will kindly see that it is changed, and put up right.

TRAFFIC

By the Albert Russel Erskine Bureau for Street Traffic Research, University of California, Los Angeles

One of the most far-reaching and inclusive programs of traffic control ever effected in the United States is soon to be undertaken in Chicago, where plans are under way to bring the entire Chicago metropolitan area under a single unified system of regulation.

That the program is one of the largest ever attempted is indicated by the fact that the area embraces a population of more than four million people and includes portions of two states, six counties, 50 cities with a population of more than 2,500 each, and 109 towns and villages.

For the past ten months this area has been the subject of an intensive scientific traffic survey instituted by the Albert Russell Erskine bureau for street traffic research under the direction of Miller McClintock, a nationally known traffic engineer and director of the Erskine bureau, recently endowed in Harvard university for the purpose of studying the increasingly complicated aspects of street congestion.

"More than 120,000 vehicles a day pass between Chicago and the six counties included in the metropolitan area, and approximately 150,000 vehicle movements a day are exchanged between Chicago and immediately adjacent communities," said Mr. McClintock, commenting on the movement to unify the area's traffic control. "Nothing short of chaos and congestion can be expected if each of these hundreds of thousands of drivers finds himself operating under a different system of control every time he crosses a political boundary. Unification of a method of traffic control throughout the Chicago area will help all concerned,—the communities now troubled with traffic problems and the motorists who pass through these communities."

Mr. McClintock points out that safety and convenience on the streets and highways depend on orderly use and orderly use depends on general understanding and obedience to fixed rules of operation. Then a primary requirement for traffic relief in a metropolitan area is to be found in a basic code of street use designed to lessen congestion and accidents and reduce friction and conflicts. The qualities or factors of a good traffic code are outlined briefly by Mr. McClintock as follows:

"The code must be simple. People do not have time nor the inclination to memorize a lot of laws and rules if it must be enforceable. It must be comprehensive and in conformity with the natural requirements of traffic. Flexibility is another factor found in a good traffic code as street conditions often change rapidly so the code must be adaptable. It must be based upon facts regarding street use as the day of haphazard methods of street control are gone. Traffic regulation is a science. Finally, a traffic code must be balanced. There should be a delicate and accurate adjustment between the requirement of people to move over the streets and maximum safety of use."

That these qualities are workable ones is indicated in their success in Los Angeles and its adjacent suburban territory where a traffic code designed by Mr. McClintock along the above lines is now in effect. According to the data compiled by Los Angeles before and after the installation of the code accidents have been reduced 38 per cent and street capacity increased up to 50 per cent through the operations of the code.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Poetry

Poetry is the flower of literature, the most perfect utterance of the human mind in no other of his works does man so nearly approach the Divine, so that in every age the poet has been regarded as the inspired mouthpiece of God. The prophet was the forth teller not merely the foreteller and his message commanded attention and respect as coming from a power above the speaker. Whatever may be said to the contrary there still remains the fact that the greatest and noblest thoughts which have ever occupied the mind of man have found their highest and most permanent expression in poetry, the outward form of which differing from the language of daily life is at once the accompaniment and indication of the dignity of a great idea.

Wordsworth calls poetry the breath and finer spirit of all knowledge. To the question, "what is a poet?" he replies, "He is a man speaking to men; a man, it is true, endowed with more lively sensibility, more enthusiasm and tenderness, who has a greater knowledge of human nature, and a more comprehensive soul than are supposed to be common among mankind. To these qualities he has added a disposition to be affected more than other men by absent things as if they were present."

Gas in the Stomach is Dangerous

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

NEW MIDWAY BRIDGE WILL SPEED UP ENGINE COALING

Construction of a new coal bridge at the Midway yards, which will greatly facilitate the refueling of New Haven railroad locomotives, is being pushed along at a rapid rate and will be in operation early in December. The bridge is of concrete construction, over five tracks and is being constructed at a cost of between $30,000 and $40,000. It is designed so as to permit the coaling of five locomotives as many tracks at the same time, electrically-lighted and operated and is so arranged that one man can direct operations in each instance.

Instead of cutting off the engines and moving them a distance of 500 feet to the coal hopper, as was formerly the case, the locomotives are to be run directly under the bridge and the coal tender immediately filled with coal by electrically operated devices. At the same time the locomotive boilers are filled with water and the time required for the entire operation is reduced from an average of 35 minutes to an average of seven minutes per engine.

RED CROSS APPEAL IN ANNUAL ROLL CALL

The parting message of Judge John Barton Payne, the chairman of the central committee of the American Red Cross, to that society, on leaving for a world tour was: "Don't believe that your war is over. Wherever there are human beings there is your objective. We must and shall carry on." The call to individual service in penetrating to every place which needs the peacetime activity of the Red Cross is addressed to every American citizen who feels a pride in his Red Cross; who realizes that President Coolidge spoke for his countrymen when he said that the Red Cross "takes the heartbeats of humanity and transforms them into concrete acts for the alleviation of misery and suffering."

The broad grant from congress in the charter of 1905 is there today, as it was in war time. As president of the Red Cross, Mr. Coolidge tells the people that they must realize the serious duty imposed in the obligation "to carry on measures for preventing pestilence, famine, fire, flood and other calamities. That duty is inescapable, and the engagements of civil life can be so concentrated as to release to anyone from personal service in and individual support of the work of the Red Cross.

This solemn truth calls for a reemphasis—calls for a reenlistment of forces, especially of those who, believing the "war to end war" was for "the duration of the war" have been absorbed into the engagements of civil life and have fallen back. The American Red Cross has no reserve corps. Its membership is active, in peace and in war. It cannot surrender; neither can it demobilize. Its symbol stands for a life of volunteer service to humankind.

This is a time when every American is entitled to know what his Red Cross is accomplishing; why in peace it must continue its work, and why its essential industry appeals in an expression of human sympathy.

The Red Cross relief organization has recruited for instant action a first-line reserve of experienced disaster workers available at all times—unpaid until called to active duty; has assembled a second-line reserve of experienced and trained workers who are similarly employed by other agencies; has coordinated a regular Red Cross staff of 70 men and women, all trained disaster workers.

Individual attention to disabled ex-service men is a home service of continued and expanding development. Instead of the expected rapid decline, the multiplicity of legislative enactments has called for larger activity and made the problems of the veterans more involved and more difficult to handle.

The enrollment of Red Cross nurses who, under federal law, are reserved in the Army Nurse corps is 42,802, these nurses serve also, upon request, the navy, the U. S. public health service and the veterans bureau. In time of a national emergency, the enrolled Red Cross nurses, as reservists, are inducted into active duty with the military arms of the nation.

Nurse instructors in home hygiene and care of the sick, numbering 1,141 during the year conducted classes in every state (except two) and in Alaska, attended by nearly 60,000 women and girls.

Expenditures of $366,323.27 included approximately $454,000 spent by chapters in public health nursing service represents another branch of the activities of the Red Cross.

Cooperative relations with federal and state agencies, schools and universities, and work on typical Indian reservations characterize forward steps taken by Red Cross in nutrition service.

Twenty thousand juniors and seniors completed the Red Cross first aid course during the past year, a very considerable addition to the growing army concentrating to hold back the upward trend of life losses due to increasing power driven vehicles on streets and highways.

With 102,076 members, the Red Cross Life-Saving corps may be credited with an "associate reserve" of a million. For every person who stands the test at least ten aspirants failing to make the grade become better swimmers.

The fact that more than 3,000 chapters are officered by volunteers stands as high tribute to the fine spirit of citizen and woman who, without thought other than serving their communities through the Red Cross, are giving of their best in time, in work, and in values. In practically every county of the United States our volunteer groups find that deeper compensation which lies in service to others.

The Junior Red Cross is a voluntary organization through which the children and young people find opportunity for self-expression, the motive which it brings into any class room appeals to the imagination and will of the children in such a way as to transmit knowledge into action; it is a free spirit which quickens the life of the whole school in which it is organized" this is the answer as to what the Junior Red Cross is, from educators gathered for international conference in Paris.

The Red Cross touches intimately every domestic activity with the sensitive wires that radiate over leagues of land and sea, orienting the work and achieving results that give cause to be satisfied that the Red Cross is through these operations adding strength to the development of a world-embracing peacetime service.

To maintain an efficient readiness to answer every call for help, the American Red Cross must have the material and moral support of Americans. Mr. Herbert Hoover has delared ten million members is the logical strength of the Red Cross in the United States. During the roll call campaign, upwards of 3,500 chapters will invite all citizens to gather in membership under the symbol of their Red Cross. As secure as the nation, the American Red Cross keeps step with the onward march of our people, dedicated to service. It is a privilege to march with it and on this basis alone the Norwich chapter makes its appeal for members.

SERMON ON IMMORTALITY BY PARK CHURCH PASTOR

Preaching at a recent service at Park Congregational church, from the text, Job 14, He heareth the World up: as nothing, the pastor, Rev. Dr. S. H. Howe, affirmed impressively in faith in immortality, resting upon the inspired word, "He that believeth in me shall never die."

In substance Rev. Dr. Howe spoke as follows:

These words of the soft revival the amazing crudities of ancient thought, the stolid ignorance of the ancient mind. They thought the world was a flat disc and that from its edges one could leap off into space. They knew nothing of the rotundity of the earth, its sphericity, its revolution on its axis, its satelliteship. They believed in its centrality to the rest of creation and that the heavenly bodies were its satellites circling daily about it. They knew nothing of gravitation, the laws of winds and tides, nothing of its latent forces, nothing of its undiscovered storehouse of forces which we have harnessed and put at our service, nothing of the fires of the sun stored in our mines, nothing of the potencies of steam or electricity and what not of which we have learned the existence and labor-saving uses of. And nature kept silence with silent sphinx-like lips—waiting for the footsteps of the discoverer. Nature is silent. Pascal, and Carlyle after him, was awed by the silences of nature. The heavens declare the glory of God; but their voice is not heard to this day. The stars move swift as light but without sound. The sun rises and sets, the constellations move in space without sound or voice uttering their secret. But all this is a parable of the spiritual forces. The supreme realities are suspended on nothing, unseen and inaudible. The flight of thought, the soarings of the imagination, the deep emotions of the heart make no material record and leave no trace. Faith and hope and love rest on no physical basis. The fruits of the spirit are grown in invisible gardens, unseen, inaudible. Nobody sees or hears the growing faculties of a soul. Nobody knows the verdicts of your conscience, the uprise of your winged aspirations. An invisible and inaudible faith and love and obedience build a soul into the image of goodness. Character takes on the white snows of the eternal purity and nobody sees the rising temple or hears the sound of axe or hammer in the rise of building. The whole spiritual life hangs upon no material supports. God is unseen and Christ is invisible and there are no visible cords of union, but the pull and drawn are irresistible.

Your friends and mine have been going into the great silence and no voices come back, and there is no touch of the vanished hand, and you wonder if you will find them and the old dear relationship. You are tempted to doubt, and knowledge shrinks to a tremendous thread—but that hairlike thread is your better moments become a palpable thing. No hand can break, and you know you shall find them in unshivered humanity and after a few more clock-strokes and you will be with them forever and aye.

We know not what we shall be, but we know that we shall see Him as He is, and know them in His safe-keeping. And the old saint, it uttering his crude conception of nature, was uttering unconsciously a great truth. All our best and deepest life is hung upon nothing, but that nothing is the pillar of everlasting strength. The great realities are invisible and inaudible. They rest on immoveable bases which cannot be undermined.

And there is that deep cry for personal immortality, "If a man die shall he live again?"—it seems to hang upon nothing. We see the near spans of this bridge shot out over the torrent of mystery, but the connecting and continuous spans—they seem thrust out over nothing. No travelers have returned. But the cry of heart and brain is answered by the law of the correlative. The universe is sane, and the longing and the demand must find their answering correlative. The bridge spans the chasm and we can hear the shouts of victory from those who have crossed. The connecting spans stretch across, ending at the gates of the city of gold. "He that believeth in me shall never die," and on this great promise we pillow our heads.

DISLOCATED SHOULDER FALLING FROM STEPLADDER

Falling from a stepladder at the Greeneville fire station Thursday morning about 10.45 o'clock, Fireman John Lynch, a member of the crew of Engine No. 3, dislocated his shoulder. He was taken to the Backus hospital where the shoulder was set in place. Dr. John W. Callahan attended him.

The stepladder was in poor condition and was being held in place by one of the firemen while Mr. Lynch was standing on it. For some reason or other the attention of the fireman holding the ladder was drawn elsewhere for a moment and the ladder collapsed.

BOZRAH WILL HEAR DEER KILLING CASE

A deer killing case that is of much interest in Bozrah is to be tried out this (Friday) evening at 7:30 in the town hall there, when Charles Cole of Bozrah will be presented on the charge of killing a deer about Nov. 1. Attorney V. P. A. Quinn will preside in the justice's court.

Mr. Cole states that he shot the deer in self defense when it charged at him in the highway, of which he gave notice to Robert Chappell, county game warden, who told him to cut up the deer and distribute it among his neighbors.

Shortly afterwards Deputy Game Warden Watson appeared, conducted an investigation and asked Justice John J. Sweeney and Grand Juror Jeremiah P. Allen to issue a warrant for Cole, but they declined to prosecute as their investigation convinced them there was no case. Later the deputy game warden got Game Commissioner Tilcomb to issue a warrant for Cole's arrest.

It is claimed that the deer in question turned out to be one that was caught young in life and kept by Thomas McGrath of Lebanon. Throughout the locality it had always been considered vicious and the neighbors were often afraid to go near it. Evidently the animal broke loose on the night in question and was running wild about the locality.

The annual thank offering meeting of the Wesleyan guild of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church was held in the Sunday school room Thursday evening at 7:30 with a business meeting conducted by the president, Mrs. Albert Boardman. In the programme which followed, under direction of Mrs. J. Harlow Graham, two readings, Our Concert and The Garden of Eden, were interestingly given by Miss Isabel Shearer, and a sketch, The Love Gift, was well rendered by the Misses Evelyn Wheeler, Ruth Purvis, Grace Murphy, Myrtle Browning and Mary Boardman.

Mrs. Graham gave a report of the missionary meeting this week at North Grosvenordale, which she attended with Mrs. Boardman and Mrs. Mary Smith.

GILLOU MAKES REPLY TO AMERICAN CRITICISM OF FRENCH TENNIS PLAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Answering American criticism of French tournament tennis conditions, Pierre Gillou, non-playing captain of the tricolor Davis cup team, has informed the French Tennis federation that it has little to learn from America in the organization and conduct of its championships, according to a translated report in the current issue of American Lawn Tennis.

Referring to "violent attacks" in certain American publications," Captain Gillou says that "luxury is wanting" in the West Side club, scene of America's leading net fixtures, that the shadow of its courts late in the afternoon is "annoying," and that the only interesting detail he observed was a "bar in the locker room where non-alcoholic drinks are served."

The "violent attacks" mentioned by the French team leader included editorial comment on American lawn tennis describing the over-ruling of linesmen by the umpire, after adverse demonstrations by the galleries, and the absence of foot-fault judging. Playing conditions prevailing on the Riviera during the invasion of Helen Wills and later during the European tour of Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey also occasioned comment.

Taking up the question of courts, the translated report observes that "the grass is of bad quality and even the turf on the 'stadium courts', which are about 500 meters from the locker rooms, is uneven. There is no number upon the courts and no provisions for spectators. When it is warm the public is in a veritable furnace, which has the aspect of a Roman arena."

Expressing the view that the "scattering of the American championships" was very harmful to the finances of the United States Lawn Tennis association, M. Gillou estimated in the report that the French team would have received $4,000 more had the challenge round Davis cup matches been staged at the West Side club rather than at the Germantown Cricket club of Philadelphia.

"This sum," the report continues, "represents almost half the total expenses of a team of six persons from New York to Paris and return."

Picturing American fans as not conducting themselves "very well," M. Gillou says that "the women utter piercing cries while the ball is in play, and it is customary to applaud expiditedly the winning of a game by a player if he receives a double fault, should he happen to be a favorite of the crowd.

Favorable comment is made of the work of American umpires and linesmen. "There decisions are given promptly and are almost always correct and never disputed," M. Gillou found, "except at times by the only Tilden."

In conclusion, Captain Gillou expresses the view that Americans still "have much to learn from the English, who are the least who ought to serve us as models."

CRITICS BEGINNING TO DOPE OUT ALL-AMERICANS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Eastern football critics sharpened their pencils today for final scrutiny of outstanding All-American team candidates.

Games of the next ten days offer their last opportunity for observations with several of the teams including Yale and Harvard, dropping the curtain this week. There will be at least five major struggles on the subsequent Thanksgiving day card, however, with Pennsylvania and Cornell, Brown and Colgate, Pittsburgh and Penn State, Columbia and Syracuse, West Virginia and Washington-Jefferson coming to grips.

New York observers will have their first and last chance on Saturday to view Georgetown's 236-pound guard, Babe Connaughton, as the Hilltoppers go into action here against Fordham. The contest also will mark the final appearance of college molekins of Zev Graham, clever Fordham quarterback, while Sturbahn, Yale guard, who was given an All-American ranking by many critics last year, will play his farewell agame against Harvard.

Two wingmen of Brown, Broda and Towle, whose play has received favorable comment, still have two more games ahead, but final appearances will be made on Thanksgiving day by another pair of star ends when Thayer of Pennsylvania leads his eleven against Cornell and Vic Hanson flies up with Syracuse against Columbia.

The mid-west will have a chance to look over a few eastern candidates in their curtain games. All Lassman, of N. Y. U., described Foster Sanford of Rutgers as one of the best linemen he has seen in years, makes his final bid for seasonal honors against Nebraska on Saturday. One week later, Army and Navy look at Chicago in a game which will find Harry Wilson, veteran back, and Born and Daly, Army linemen, vieing with Wickhorst, Navy tackle, for places in the All-American spotlight.

Carey, Cornell lineman, Mike Wilson, Lafayette back, Amos W. and J. fullback, Butler, Pennsylvani center, and Carr, Syracuse back, are only a few of many other outstanding players who are griding themselves for the final drive.

PRO FOOTBALL DOES NOT HOLD PUBLIC AS COLLEGE GAME

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—(AP)—"Professional football never will have the hold upon the American public that the college game has," said Bill Roper, Princeton coach today. Roper spoke at the luncheon in honor of the University of Pennsylvania football team.

"The college players go into the game and give everything because of their sentiment for their alma mater," said Roper. "The professionals play for money, and players will do more for sentiment than they will for any material gain."

Touching on the recent break between Harvard and Princeton, Roper said, "It was an ill wind that blows nobody good," and mentioned the game arranged between Pennsylvania and Harvard.

YALE SOPH LOSES TICKETS FOR GAME

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Eleven tickets to the Yale-Harvard game were advertised as lost by a Yale sophomore this afternoon. If the student does not regain them he faces the same situation as many others of an extreme scarcity of the pasteboards.

Word came here that a specific number of tickets were available at Harvard and a check to cover the tickets at face value was sent. A message was returned that the price of the tickets would be $18 each.

YALE IS READY FOR HARVARD CLASH SATURDAY

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Hoben was back in right halfback position on the Yale varsity in today's signal drill and running-back practice, emphasizing the uncertainty existing as to how the Blue backfield will line up for the start.

Although Noble is almost certain to start at left half, it is generally believed that Brice Cudwell, early season star, who has been on the bench with a broken ankle since a few days before the Dartmouth game, will displace Noble at least long enough during the contest to earn his "Y". As for the other halfback position, there is little indication where Hoben, a sophomore, Foote, a junior, or Falling, a senior who started against Princeton, will be chosen.

The Harvard squad is scheduled to arrive early tomorrow afternoon, and will go directly to the bowl for a two-hours' practice. The Crimson men will then go to Derby for the night, while the Blue team takes over the bowl for a light signal drill.

The probable lineups for the game, as given out by the rival managements, follow:

Yale		Harvard.
Scott, le		le, Strong
Richards, lt		lt, (Capt.) Coady
Sturham, lg		lg, Simmons
Look, c		c, Gamache
Webster, rg		rg, Stewart
Benton, rt		rt, Pratt
Fishwick, re		re, Meadows
Bunnell (Capt.) qb		qb, Putnam
Noble, lhb		lhb, French
Foote, rhb		rhb, Sayles
Kline, fb		fb, Miller

The Blue and Crimson second teams will meet Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock on Freshman field, in their annual game.

HARVARD LINE PLAYERS NAMED BY HORWEEN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Harvard undergraduates turned out in force today to give the Crimson eleven a final cheer before the Yale-Harvard game at New Haven Saturday, the objective contest of the season for the participants.

Headed by the University band the students marched from Harvard square to the stadium, and there the team ran off a few plays for their benefit.

Two complete backfields are available, but the odds appeared tonight to be on the so-called "new backfield," which figured in today's workout. This is made up of Stafford, quarterback; Eben Clark and Guarnaccia, halfbacks; and Sayles, fullback. The reserve group consists of Putnam, quarter; Chauncey and Miller, halfbacks; and French fullback.

The squad will leave Boston at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning for New Haven, going immediately after their arrival in that city to the Yale bowl, where the team will work out at 2:30 o'clock. After the practice the team will go by bus to Derby where they will remain until noon on Saturday.

M'GRAW TO REBUILD ENTIRE NEW YORK TEAM

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The World's Champion Cardinals are not an outstanding club and must fight every inch of the way to retain the National league title next year, in the opinion of John J. McGraw.

Outlining reorganization plans which he believes will put the Giants back in the thick of the 1927 race, the veteran New York manager today indicated his belief that the Pittsburgh Pirates would be a harder team to beat than the men of Rogers Hornsby.

McGraw expressed the view that the Pirates' chances of regaining the bunting wood depend in a large measure on the condition of Shortstop Wright and Bush's ability "to straighten out Pittsburgh's pitching staff."

The Giant pilot said he would depend largely on his veteran stars, shifting Frank Frisch to third base and Lindstrom to second. He anticipated the acquisition of Al Devormer and Al Cummings would bolster up his catching staff, while he forecast better pitching from Greenfield, Fitzsimmons, Barnes, Ring and McQuillan. He also hold forth hope that Henry, a former Brooklyn southpaw, and Bentley would strengthen the hurling corps.

Young, Mueller, Lebourveau, Moore and several youngsters, he said, would have to fight it out next spring for the outfield.

MORGAN AND DUANE CLASH THIS EVENING

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Tod Morgan of Seattle, Wash., and Carl Duane of New York today were pronounced fit by state athletic commission inspectors for their 15-round junior lightweight championship battle tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden. Both weighed under the class limit of 130 pounds.

The bout will mark Morgan's third defense of his crown in New York since he lifted the mantle from the shoulders of Mike Ballerino almost a year ago.

Morgan rules an eight-to-five favorite.

HART PROTESTS VICTORY OF BRUINS OVER CANADIANS

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Cecil Hart, manager of the Canadians, National Hockey league club, today filed a protest with Frank Caldegs, president of the circuit, asking that the 4 to 1 victory of the Boston Bruins over his team in Boston Tuesday be "thrown out owing to the terrible conditions under which it was played."

Jail Hill Accepts Challenge.

The Jail Hill Trojans will play the Hurricane on the Academy campus on Sunday afternoon at 2.30. The Trojans lineup is: Sullivan and Gillan, ends; Buah and Matthiews, tackles; Gautier and Brown, guards; McCarthy, center; Carparili, full back; Krohn, right half; Tombart, left half, and Brock, quarterback. Average 130 pounds. Answer through Bulletin if game is accepted.

McPHAIL ELECTED CAPTAIN OF DARTMOUTH ELEVEN

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Robert McPhail of Arlington, Mass., today was elected captain of the 1927 Dartmouth football squad. McPhail, a member of the junior class, has alternated as regular halfback and quarterback for two years. Through much of this season McPhail had been acting captain because injuries kept Captain Newman Horton from several games. McPhail is also a varsity hockey player.

Eddie Collins to succeed Tris Speaker as Cleveland pilot and Speaker to take over the Boston Red Sox reins, is the latest whisper among baseball men. Fans also hear that Ty Cobb, deposed Detroit leader, is seeking to buy a controlling interest in the Boston American club.

TAFTVILLE BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS THANKSGIVING WITH SO. MANCHESTER

For the opening game on Thanksgiving afternoon Manager Raymond of the Taftville Celtics has booked the fast Cheney Bros. team of South Manchester in what should be one of the best attractions in this part of the state. Every basketball fan who has followed the record of this team knows they have without a doubt one of the fastest teams in South Manchester.

The South Manchester team will lineup as follows: Faulkner at right forward, with Pentland of the famous Co. G team of South Manchester at left. Wiley or Cervini will jump at center with Anderson and Summerick of last year's St. Mary's team as guards. Barrett and Madden will act as substitutes and will be ready to jump in if needed. Manager Hunt of the South Manchester team is so sure of victory that he is bringing his team to Taftville on a win or lose guarantee. Not to be outdone by the South Manchester manager, Manager Raymond has gone out and secured two of the fastest semi-pro players in this section, Normandin, former Emerald flash, and now playing with the Plainfield Town team, and without a doubt one of the fastest forwards in the game today, will play at right forward. Coady of last year's Baltic team, will be seen at one of the guard positions.

The Taftville team will lineup as follows: Normandin at right forward; Robbie Gauthier, the find of the Taftville team last season, will be Mondi's running mate at forward, Lester Pingree will jump around in center, and with a little more experience should be among the best; Walt Coady of last year's Baltic team, and one of the best defensive players in this section will be at left guard, while the other guard position will be divided between Ray Yerrington and Enos Eccleston. These boys can well take care of their end of the battle and should give a good account of themselves. So it is up to the fans in this vicinity to turn out and help the local boys to support one of the fastest basketball teams that has ever represented the village and who are bringing nothing but the best in the state to display their wares against Taftville.

Rowing Practic Ended at Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Fall rowing at Yale, for all crews except the freshman 150-pound and heavy crews, ended this afternoon. All crews will be called on January 2 for winter practice. The two freshman crews will continue work at the harbor until Thanksgiving recess.

NO APPOINTMENT YET OF YALE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Appointment of an athletic director at Yale university will not be made until late in the college year and the vacancy made by the resignation of John T. Blossom remains open for someone, it was stated by authority today. The athletic association, it is understood, has not taken up the matter of filling the vacancy or discussed the question of whether the office shall be continued.

A number of names have been discussed by alumni and some of them have received alumni support in an informal way.

Leo Reise, who in the past has played professional hockey with the Saskatoon and Hamilton teams, is expected to be with the new professional team in Niagara Falls this season.

GILLOU MAKES REPLY TO AMERICAN CRITICISM OF FRENCH TENNIS PLAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Answering American criticism of French tournament tennis conditions, Pierre Gillou, non-playing captain of the tricolor Davis cup team, has informed the French Tennis federation that it has little to learn, from America in the organization and conduct of its championships, according to a translated report in the current issue of American Lawn Tennis.

Referring to "violent attacks in certain American publications," Captain Gillou says that "luxury is wanting" in the West Side club, scene of America's leading net fixtures, that the [illegible] of its courts late in the afternoon is "annoying," and that the only interesting detail he observed was a "bar in the locker room where non-alcoholic drinks are served."

The "violent attacks" mentioned by the French team leader included editorial comment on American lawn tennis describing the over-ruling of linesmen by the umpire, after adverse demonstrations by the galleries, and the absence of foot-fault judging. Playing conditions prevailing on the Riviera during the invasion of Helen Wills and later during the European tour of Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey also occasioned comment.

Taking up the question of courts, the translated report observes that "the grass is of bad quality and even the turf on the 'stadium courts', which are about 500 meters from the locker rooms, is uneven. There is no number upon the courts and no provisions for spectators. When it is warm the public is in a veritable furnace, which has the aspect of a Roman arena."

Expressing the view that the "scattering of the American championships" was very harmful to the finances of the United States Lawn Tennis association, M. Gillou estimated in the report that the French team would have received $4,000 more had the challenge round Davis cup matches been staged at the West Side club rather than at the Germantown Cricket club of Philadelphia.

"This sum," the report continues, "represents almost half the total expenses of a team of six persons from New York to Paris and return."

Picturing American fans as not conducting themselves "very well," M. Gillou says that "the women utter piercing cries while the ball is in play, and it is customary to applaud excitedly the wining of a game by a player if he receives a double fault, should he happen to be a favorite of the crowd.

Favorable comment is made of the work of American umpires and linesmen. "There decisions are given promptly and are almost always correct and never disputed," M. Gillou found, "except at times by the only Tilden."

In conclusion, Captain Gillou expresses the view that Americans still "have much to learn from the English, who are the least who ought to serve us as models."

CRITICS BEGINNING TO DOPE OUT ALL-AMERICANS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Eastern football critics sharpened their pencils today for final scrutiny of outstanding All-American team candidates.

The contest also will mark the final appearance of college moleskins of Zeh Graham, clever Fordham quarterback, while Sturhahn, Yale guard, who was given an All-American ranking by many critics last year, will play his farewell agame against Harvard.

Two wingmen of Brown, Brods and Towle, whose play has received favorable comment, still have two more games ahead, but final appearances will be made on Thanksgiving day by another pair of star ends when Thayer of Pennsylvania leads his eleven against Cornell and Vic Hanson lines up with Syracuse against Columbia.

The mid-west will have a chance to look over ra few eastern candidates in their curtain games. Al Lassman, of N. Y. U., described Foster Sanford of Rutgers as one of the best linemen he has seen in years, makes his final bid for seasonal honors against Nebraska on Saturday. One week later, Army and Navy lock at Chicago in a game which will find Harry Wilson, veteran back, and Born and Daly, Army linemen, vieing with Wickhorst, Navy tackle, for places in the All-American spotlight.

Carey, Cornell lineman, Mike Wilson, Lafayette back, Amos W. and J. fullback, Butler, Pennsylvani center, and Carr, Syracuse back, are only a few of many other outstanding players who are griding themselves for the final drive.

PRO FOOTBALL DOES NOT HOLD PUBLIC AS COLLEGE GAME

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—(AP)—"Professional football never will have the hold upon the American public that the college game has," said Bill Roper, Princeton coach today. Roper spoke at the luncheon in honor of the University of Pennsylvania football team.

"The college players go into the game and give everything because of their sentiment for their alma mater," said Roper. "The professionals play for money, and players will do more for sentiment than they will for any material gain."

Touching on the recent break between Harvard and Princeton, Roper said, "It was an ill wind that blows nobody good," and mentioned the game arranged between Pennsylvania and Harvard.

YALE SOPH LOSES TICKETS FOR GAME

NE WHAVEN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Eleven tickets to the Yale-Harvard game were advertised as lost by a Yale sophomore this afternoon. If the student does not regain them he faces the same situation as many others of an extreme scarcity of the pasteboards.

Word came here that a specific number of tickets were available at Harvard and a check to cover the tickets at face value was sent. A message was returned that the price of the tickets would be $12 each.

YALE IS READY FOR HARVARD CLASH SATURDAY

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Hoben was back in right halfback position on the Yale varsity in today's signal drill and running-back practice, emphasizing the uncertainty existing as to how the Blue backfield will line up for the start.

Although Noble is almost certain to start at left half, it is generally believed that Brice Cudwell, early season star, who has been on the bench with a broken ankle since a few days before the Dartmouth game, will displace Noble at least long enough during the contest to earn his "Y". As for the other halfback position, there is little indication where Hoben, a sophomore, Foote, a junior, or Falling, a senior who started against Princeton, will be chosen.

The Harvard squad is scheduled to arrive early tomorrow afternoon, and will go directly to the bowl for a two-hours' practice. The Crimson men will then go to Derby for the night, while the Blue team takes over the bowl for a light signal drill.

The probable lineups for the game, as given out by the rival managements, follow:

Yale.		Harvard.
Scott, le		le, Strong
Richards, lt		lt, (Capt.) Coady
Sturham, lg		lg, Simmons
Look, c		c, Gamache
Webster, rg		rg, Stewart
Benton, rt		rt, Pratt
Fishwick, re		re, Meadows
Bunnell (Capt.) qb		qb, Putnam
Noble, lhb		lhb, French
Foote, rhb		rhb, Sayles
Kline, fb		fb, Miller

The Blue and Crimson second teams will meet Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock on Freshman field, in their annualgame.

HARVARD LINE PLAYERS NAMED BY HORWEEN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Harvard under-graduates turned out in force today to give the Crimson eleven a final cheer before the Yale-Harvard game at New Haven Saturday, the objective contest of the season for the participants.

Headed by the University band the students marched from Harvard square to the stadium, and there the team ran off a few plays for their benefit.

Two complete backfields are available, but the odds appeared tonight to be on the so-called "new backfield," which figured in today's workout. This is made up of Stafford, quarterback; Owen Clark and Guarnaccia, halfbacks; and Sayles, fullback. The reserve group consists of Putnam, quarter; Chauncey and Miller, halfbacks; and French fullback.

The squad will leave Boston at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning for New Haven, going immediately after their arrival in that city to the Yale bowl, where the team will work out at 3:30 o'clock. After the practice the team will go by bus to Derby where they will remain until noon on Saturday.

M'GRAW TO REBUILD ENTIRE NEW YORK TEAM

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The World's Champion Cardinals are not an outstanding club and must fight every inch of the way to retain the National league title next year, in the opinion of John J. McGraw.

Outlining reorganization plans which he believes will put the Giants back in the thick of the 1927 race, the veteran New York manager today indicated his belief that the Pittsburgh Pirates would be a harder team to beat than the men of Rogers Hornsby.

McGraw expressed the view that the Pirates' chances of regaining the bunting would depend in a large measure on the condition of Shortstop Wright and Bush's ability "to straighten out Pittsburgh's pitching staff."

The Giant pilot said he would depend largely on his veteran stars, shifting Frank Frisch to third base and Lindstrom to second. He anticipated the acquisition of Al Devormer and Al Cummings would bolster up his catching staff, while he forecast better pitching from Greenfield, Fitzsimmons, Barnes, Ring and McQuillan. He also held forth hope that Henry, a former Brooklyn southpaw, and Bentley would strengthen the hurling corps.

Young, Mueller, Lebourveau, Moore and several youngsters, he said, would have to fight it out next spring for the outfield.

MORGAN AND DUANE CLASH THIS EVENING

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Tod Morgan of Seattle, Wash., and Carl Duane of New York today were pronounced fit by state athletic commission inspectors for their 15-round junior lightweight championship battle tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden. Both weighed under the class limit of 130 pounds.

The bout will mark Morgan's third defense of his crown in New York since he lifted the mantle from the shoulders of Mike Ballerino almost a year ago.

Morgan rules an eight-to-five favorite.

HART PROTESTS VICTORY OF BRUINS OVER CANADIANS

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Cecil Hart, manager of the Canadians, National Hockey league club, today filed a protest with Frank Calder, president of the circuit, asking that the 4 to 1 victory of the Boston Bruins over his team in Boston Tuesday be "thrown out owing to the terrible conditions under which it was played."

Jall Hill Accepts Challenge.

The Jall Hill Trojans will play the Hurricans on the Academy campus on Sunday afternoon at 2.30. The Trojans lineup is: Sullivan and Gillan, ends; Bush and Matthiews, tackles; Gaptier and Brown, guards; McCarthy, center; Catparill, full back; Krohn, right half; Tombari, left half, and Brock, quarterback. Average 120 pounds. Answer through Bulletin if game is accepted.

Duke Univ. Announces Dates

Durham, N. C., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Dates for games with the Naval Academy at Annapolis next October 23 and with Columbia University at Durham were announced today by Duke university officials. Time of the Columbia game has not been definitely determined.

McPHAIL ELECTED CAPTAIN OF DARTMOUTH ELEVEN

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Robert McPhail) of Arlington, Mass., today was elected captain of the 1927 Dartmouth football squad. McPhail, a member of the junior class, has alternated as regular halfback and quarterback for two years. Through much of this season McPhail had been acting captain because injuries kept Captain Newman Horton from several games. McPhail is also a varsity hockey player.

Eddie Collins to succeed Tris Speaker as Cleveland pilot and Speaker to take over the Boston Red Sox reins, is the latest whisper among baseball men. Fans also hear that Ty Cobb, deposed Detroit leader, is seeking to buy a controlling interest in the Boston American club.

TAFTVILLE BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS THANKSGIVING WITH SO. MANCHESTER

For the opening game on Thanksgiving afternoon Manager Raymond of the Taftville Celtics has booked the fast Cheney Bros. team of South Manchester in what should be one of the best attractions in this part of the state. Every basketball fan who has followed the record of this team knows they have without a doubt one of the fastest teams in South Manchester.

The South Manchester team will lineup as follows: Faulkner at right forward, with Pentland of the famous Co. G team of South Manchester at left, Wiley or Cervini will jump at center with Anderson and Summerick of last year's St. Mary's team as guards. Barrett and Maddew will act as substitutes and will be ready to jump in if needed. Manager Hunt of the South Manchester team is so sure of victory that he is bringing his team to Taftville on a win or lose guarantee. Not to be outdone by the South Manchester manager, Manager Raymond has gone out and secured two of the fastest semi-pro players in this section, Normandin, former Emerald flash, and now playing with the Plainfield Town team, and without a doubt one of the fastest forwards in the game today, will play at right forward, Coady of last year's Baltic team, will be seen at one of the guard positions.

The Taftville team will lineup as follows: Normandin at right forward; Rabbit Gauthier, the find of the Taftville team last season, will be Mondi's running mate at forward, Lester Pingree will jump around in center, and with a little more experience should be among the best; Walt Coady of last year's Baltic team, and one of the best defensive players in this section will be at left guard, while the other guard position will be divided between Ray Yerrington and Enos Eccleston. These boys can well take care of their end of the battle and should give a good account of themselves. So it is up to the fans in this vicinity to turn out and help the local boys to support one of the fastest basketball teams that has ever represented the village and who are bringing nothing but the best in the state to display their wares against Taftville.

Rowing Practic Ended at Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Fall rowing at Yale, for all crews except the freshman 150-pound and heavy crews, ended this afternoon. All crews will be called on January 4 for winter practice. The two freshman crews will continue work at the harbor until Thanksgiving recess.

NO APPOINTMENT YET OF YALE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Appointment of an athletic director at Yale university will not be made until late in the college year and the vacancy made by the resignation of John T. Blossom remains open for someone, it was stated by authority today. The athletic association, it is understood, has not taken up the matter of filling the vacancy or discussed the question of whether the office shall be continued.

A number of names have been discussed by alumni and some of them have received alumni support in an informal way.

Leo Reise, who in the past has played professional hockey with the Saskatoon and Hamilton teams, is expected to be with the new professional team in Niagara Falls this season.

THE PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCTS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

High prices everywhere from Dan to Beersheba,—except on the farm.

High prices for clothes and for boots and for rents and for ribbons and for gewgaws and for almost everything else,—except for the foodstuffs raised on the farm.

High wages for labor in shops and in mines and on railroads and practically everywhere else,—except for the farmer who produces the most absolutely essential supplies for the race.

That's about the economic condition of things, just at present.

That's the outcome of our present system of "biz business."

That's the perfect flower of our transportation and distribution muddle,—which it would be libellous to call a "system," so unsystematic and anarchic is it.

That's the best which the acutest intellects of a business world which plumes itself on its keenness and sharp-sightedness and efficiency have been able to do for the fundamental industry, on the fruits of whose labors all other industries live.

It's no wonder to me that the farmers of the west are disgruntled and envious and inclined to bitterness. There is no evidence that they're any worse off than the farmers of the east or the south. They happen to be a bit the loudest in their reprobation of a situation which is one-sided and lop-sided and unfair, all over the country. Also, they seem to show a little less common sense in their falling for the demagogic absurdity that government can make them prosperous by law. These are the chief differences between the vociferous west and the less noisy but equally uncomfortable east, so far as the farm situation is concerned.

As a matter of fact we farmers, all of us, from Maine to New Mexico, from Connecticut to California, are being pushed farther and farther out of the little end of that horn of plenty which President Coolidge and Secretary Hoover and some others are so fond of pointing to with pride.

While business is booming and manufacturing is increasing and railroads and steamships are making money and the calls for luxuries are growing more and more insistent, the farmers business of producing necessities is hardly marking time. It certainly is not making gains.

While mechanics and miners and transportation workers are getting wages of from $8 to $18 a day,—and all the time striking or threatening to strike for more,—the working farmer on a small eastern farm who gets a dollar a day in net wages, after paying interest and "overhead" and taxes and the hired man, has the right to consider himself lucky. This, though his work is quite as hard, holds him for longer hours, and is basically more essential than any work of any other laborer.

Last year it was the wheat and corn farmers of the west who were in the deepest trouble. Thy had produced bumper crops,—and then couldn't sell them just because they were so plentiful. "The market," which is simply an aggregate of pride-fixing combinations and trade agreements and "gentlemen's understandings" and plain greed for unearned gain,—the market saw its chance to play one overflowing granary against another and knock down the value of both—to its own profit. Because Hank and Hiram had whacking crops which they were anxious to dispose of, the market's agents got Hank to underbid Hiram, and then Hezekiah to underbid Hank, and Heman to underbid Hezekiah and then back to Hiram with the smooth assertion that they could get all they wanted at half his price and he could take that half of nothing.

So far as I am informed, there was nothing criminal or illegal about this: it was simply sharp "business" practice. And it worked,—worked to the enrichment of the speculators and the impoverishment of numerous farmers of the corn and wheat belts.

This year, they are reported to be doing somewhat better. But the cotton producers of the south, who have turned out a bigger and better cotton crop than usual are now going through the same "eat-em-alive" process. Just because they have for sale rather more cotton than usual of rather extra quality, they find "the market" unwilling to take the fibre, except at a ruinously low and unremunerative price.

The consumer doesn't need to be a Solomon of wisdom or a Sherlock Holmes of detective ability to have noted that the price of cotton goods hasn't fallen in proportion to the cost of their material. What the cotton-grower loses he does not gain. The difference is all absorbed by the various handlers and toll-takers between the cotton plantation and the retail counter. Just as there was no appreciable saving, last year, to the buyers of flour and bran and gluten meal and cracked corn, etc. What the producer lost didn't benefit the consumer. It went into the pockets of the middlemen who stood between.

The first week of this November was named "Apple week." It was intended to be devoted to the development of a keener appreciation of the apple as a fruit and a wider use of it as a food. According to my New York paper "National Apple week has brought an unusual supply of all varieties to the New York market. The crop has been a bumper one in most localities and the price of good eating apples as well as of cooking apples is lower than since before the war. The Jonathan, the Delicious, the Wealthy and the McIntosh are priced at five cents each or in some places at eight for 25 cents. Greenings are selling at three quarts for 25 cents, at four pounds for 15 cents, and at $1.50 a bushel, according to where you shop. Spitzenbergs are offered at one Queensborough stand at 50 cents a dozen."

Let the son who is clever at arithmetic figure out for himself and you at these prices about what a barrel of apples would have cost a New York city buyer during apple week, when a special "drive" was on and prices were advertised as "bargains."—A bushel of apples weighs about 4 pounds and a barrel contains approximately three bushels.

Then, having arrived at the New York market figure, read this Associated Press dispatch from Martinsburg, West Virginia:

"Unable to sell Berkeley county's million-barrel apple crop, even at prices generally admitted to be profitless, fruit growers have started to give their product away.

"A tank of sweet cider has been set up in the public square here and free cider along with ripe eating apples are dispensed to Martinsburg's 16,000 residents as well as tourists and visitors, who are taking full advantage of the opportunity.

Now Martinsburg is about 80 miles from Washington, with direct rail communication. It is a little farther from Baltimore and Philadelphia. It is about 250 miles from New York city, also with direct rail communication. Of course you and I don't know what the transportation charges are on a barrel of apples from Martinsburg to New York city. But neither of us believes for a minute that they amount to $4.50 on a barrel of Greenings. Both of us believe that, if such a barrel of Greenings sells for $4.50 in New York city, it ought to be and actually is worth more than a "profitless" price to the grower and picker in West Virginia. If he doesn't get something more than a "profitless" price, it is because he isn't being given a fair deal and an even chance.

I recall being in Albany, N. Y., some years ago, and hearing how automobiles, touring across Wayne county in that same state, saw peaches by the carload rotting out in the ground because the growers were offered only 15 cents a basket for them, picked, sorted, basketed and delivered at the station. The wholesale fruit dealers of Albany were demanding $2.75 and $3 a basket for peaches on that very day. Yet Wayne county is only 175 miles west of Albany, on the line of the big N. Y. Central railroad, with fast and cheap freights. It was absurd to suppose that the cost of transportation required one-tenth of the price demanded in Albany. Nevertheless the peach-growers were offered less than one-eighteenth of the Albany wholesale price.

Where did the rest go? Draw your own conclusions.

It isn't only in wheat and corn and apples and cotton and peaches that the producer is being short-changed. With the exception of butter and eggs and perhaps one or two other products, for which he gets a decent proportion of the consumer's price, he is compelled by "the market" to sell most of his crops at what is variously estimated from a quarter to a third of their ultimate selling value. He must take this beggarly pittance or see his crops rot on his hands.

It is no wonder that he is discontented, soured, sullen. It is no wonder that his boys don't want to stay on the farm and be subjected to such lifelong inequity. It is no wonder that his resentment affords fertile soil for demagogues to sow therein the seeds of socialistic, impractical, revolutionary tendencies. It IS a wonder that in the face of all, so many farmers keep their heads comparatively clear and their hearts comparatively clean.

At the same time it is a cause for regret that more of them do not see, in the adoption of a cooperative buying and selling policy, at least one promising solution.

So long as "the market" can play one farmer against another, it can empty the pockets or cut the throats of both. Two thousand years ago, the policy of the old Roman conquerors was "Divide et impera." Put into idiomatic English that means, "Keep your enemies from combining and lick 'em separately, one by one."

"The market" is bigger than any one farmer. But it isn't big as a combination of all farmers would be. So long as one over-individualistic farmer is ready to cut his neighbor's throat in competition, just so long "the market" will be perfectly willing to drink the blood of both.

It's a too reducing form of phlebotomy. That method of blood-letting has been discarded in surgery. It might well be eliminated in farm-selling.

GOOD HEALTH NECESSARY

Many Busy Women Owe Their Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing.

Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in great factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Unionall factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

"STAGGERED" GROWTH OF BACTERIA HELPS

Why do some bacteria start to grow later than others when placed in a different but favorable environment? However much scientists argue over the reasons, this unaccounted for fact is of very great importance. For this property, which is called dormancy, plays an important part in the body's resistance to infectious disease.

It has been suggested variously by bacteriologists that some temperamental bacteria individuals do not recover from the shock of being transferred to strange environment, even if it is auspicious enough for the common herd to grow in, that some have thicker walls than others, and that some cells suffer from what is technically known as "heat inhibition" when transplanted to a new medium for growth.

In a paper in the Journal of Infectious Diseases, Victor Burke and two collaborators at the State College of Washington cover the situation by saying that dormancy is probably due to a combination of all these factors.

This temperamental behavior on the part of some bacteria, the paper continues, is of importance to man because it cuts down the chances of infection by reducing the number of organisms that would otherwise start growing in the body all at once. Since the bacterial cells begin to multiply at different times the body has an opportunity to initiate defensive reactions before the cells all develop. If enough of them remain dormant a sufficiently long time they will be excluded by the white corpuscles before serious development takes place.

FOREIGN STUDENTS FLOCKING TO FRANCE

So great has been the increase in the number of foreign students in Paris since the World war that, in several colleges, they exceed those of French nationality. The Lycee Michelet, for example, has students from 28 foreign nations. It is recognized that the presence of foreign students is all for the good, the intercourse of the native youth with them being instructive while French culture gains disciples among young men who one day will be called on to fill responsible positions in many countries. Nevertheless, the Syndicat des Professeurs des Lycees is faced with a language problem. Many of the foreign students, owing to their imperfect knowledge of French, are not only handicapped, but give their teachers extra work. Two professors propose that the students referred to be obliged to take preliminary courses in French before being admitted to the regular classes of the college.

Regenerating Leather

A young Scottish chemist is said to have invented a process for regenerating leather, so that the product, which he calls "ceymal," is hardly distinguishable from real leather, and is about half the price of ordinary hide.

According to the inventor, the leather is ground up to a fine powder and then made into a fine tough dough with a small quantity of binding substance. The coloring materials are then added, and the paste calendered on to a strong backing of cloth. The inventor, whose name is not given, has not taken out a patent for his process, as he is of the opinion that the secret is best kept by himself.

HE FORECASTS EPIDEMICS JUST LIKE THE WEATHER

"Health observatories," from which forecasts will be sent out, have been established in the 44 largest cities of Illinois by Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, who adapted the idea from the government weather bureau.

Each station, says Popular Science Monthly, is supplied with a weekly statement showing the number and location of all reported cases of contagious disease in its territory. With this information, the local health officer can determine the danger and take steps to overcome it.

Epidemics are no longer mysterious outbursts that spring out of nowhere and disappear just as suddenly, Dr. Rawlings declares, in announcing the opening of these observatories; they are recurrent disturbances like weather changes, that can be predicted with reasonable accuracy.

Mixers Hold Record

There were 270,045 women between 35 and 44 years of age who became mothers in 1924 in 23 states, according to the department of commerce. The total number of children ever born to these mothers was 1,708,927, which was an average of 6.7 per mother and the total number of children living was 1,450,634, or an average of 5.3 per mother.

Considering only mothers between 35 and 39 years of age, those who were the wives of coal mine operatives had the highest average number of children (7.4) and the wives of chemists, dentists, physicians, metallurgists, assayers and technical engineers the lowest average number of children (3.3 each). The highest number of children living (6) appears for the wives of coal mine operatives, and the lowest average number of living children (2.5) for the wives of dentists and technical engineers.

WHAT WOULD NAPOLEON DO ABOUT DRESSES OF TODAY?

It is said of Napoleon that he did everything possible to put a break on the license of women's dress prevailing in France under the Directory. One evening Josephine was surrounded by a group of ladies whose dresses were very low.

Napoleon found a way of intimating to them that they must dress with greater modesty. He had more and more wood put on the large fire in the drawing room, so that the room became like a furnace and everybody was dripping with perspiration. Josephine protested and then Napoleon took another piece of wood and throwing it on the fire exclaimed. "But don't you see that your friends are naked."

But even this was not enough for Napoleon, and he began to eliminate from the official receptions all ladies who were too bold in their dress.

Plant's "Cold Light"

Light without heat, long an ideal of scientists, is achieved by a plant which shines in the dark, the fungus known to botanists as Agaricus melleus, and sometimes found in decaying wood. This efficient organism was described in a paper presented before the Optical Society of America by Dr. W. W. Coblenz and C. W. Hughes of the Bureau of Standards.

In the course of their study of the kind of light given out by this fungus, commonly called "fox fire," and also that of a small shellfish called Cypridina, which also shines in the dark, photographs were made with a spectroscope, which analyzes the light. It was found that the illumination from the fungus was just within the limits to which the eye is sensitive.

It did not contain any of the longer heat waves or the shorter ultra-violet waves which are present in sunlight, though they cannot be seen by the eye. The spectrum of the luminous shellfish was similar, but did not contain so much red light, while that of the firefly, it was stated, contains little blue or red, and is mostly yellowish.

Growth Made Audible

By translating the growth of a plant into sound or light, two research students at the University of Pennsylvania have been able to measure just how much the roots develop from second to second, says Popular Mechanics. The instrument used is a sensitive "ultra-micrometer," and principles governing the operation of an ordinary radio set have been adapted to the task. Every fan knows that a change in the relation of the condenser plates will produce a corresponding alteration in the surge of current.

This fact has been adapted to the measurement of the growth in a special "radio set" so arranged that the root of a plant is made to press down on the crossbar supporting one of the condenser plates. The resulting changes are heard through an ordinary pair of headphones, a series of oscillations which can be counted with the aid of a stopwatch, provided they are within the range of the human ear. Metals are tested with this apparatus in much the same way, substituting the piece under observation for one of the condenser plates.

Aviator's Guide

Following a suggestion of the Army Air Service, the Standard Oil Co., of California, recently ordered the names of towns and cities to be painted on the roofs of its warehouses, as a guide to aviators, says Popular Science Monthly. The names will be painted in 12-foot letters, so that a pilot can ascertain his location at a glance.

Alaska now has a game commission to conserve and increase its fur and game resources.

SETS PRECEDENT ON AUTO RENTERS LIABILITY

The decision which Judge Arthur F. Gilis gave in the superior court in Bridgeport this week holding renters of automobiles responsible for damages caused by those who hire them and drive the cars will govern a case which is pending in the common court in Hartford. In the case of Harry Zieky of Wapping against the Daniels-U-Drive Auto Renting company, Inc., of Hartford, raising the same question as that in the Bridgeport case, counsel agreed to await the outcome of the case.

In an Associated Press dispatch Judge Ells was quoted as saying:

"If persons voluntarily engage in the business of renting to irresponsible persons instrumentalities which continually cause injury to large numbers of innocent persons, it is not especially unfair that they should be compelled to make good the damage."

The judge's remarks were made in overruling a demurrer filed by counsel of the Standard Auto Renting System of Bridgeport, named in a suit filed by Julia H. Shaller of Flatbush, N. Y. The plaintiff claimed that on Aug. 16, 1925, between Saybrook and New London, an automobile operated by her husband, William H. Shaller of Essex, was struck by one operated by Elias L. Segal of New London and owned by the Standard Auto Renting System. The woman was injured and had a nervous shock, she claims.

Moscow First in Cats

Moscow is about 12th among world cities as regards population, but based upon the number of pussy cats it is first in the world. Statisticians—in this case dog catchers—show that Moscow has 750,000 cats. Nevertheless, rats cause damage aggregating $2,500,000 in Moscow every year and about $250,000,000 in the entire country. This figure compares with $50,000,000 in France, $75,000,000 in England and $100,000,000 in the United States.

HINTS FOR THE MOTORIST

Copyright, 1928, by The International Syndicate

One Spare Tire Or Two?

UNDER FAVORABLE CONDITIONS one can carry a single spare tire and rim and "get away with it," without much likelihood of long and annoying delays on the road from punctures or blowouts.

Tire Troubles Come In Flocks

But the proverb that "misfortunes never come singly" seems to apply with particular force in the domain of tires and every experienced motorist knows that tire difficulties come in "bunches." The single spare is inadequate to meet more than one tire trouble.

When One Spare Is Not Enough

Two spares should be carried as a precautionary measure when conditions are unfavorable in any of the following respects: When any of the tires that are in use are old or known to be in any way unreliable. When one is to drive where there are service stations only at long intervals and where telephones are scarce. When no tire tools, spare tubes and pump are carried or when no one in the car has the strength or skill to dismount and mount casings on rims. When one hasn't a supply of ready cash with which to buy a new casing and to pay for emergency tire service.

Reliable Spares The Only Worthwhile Kind

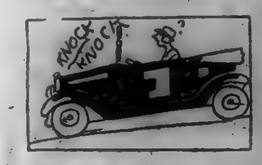
Speaking of spare tires, they are a very poor recourse indeed, if they are so far gone that they won't last but a few miles before they blow out or if their inflation has been so long neglected that they have lost all their air.

"DEAD" CELL IN BATTERY

S. A. G. writes: I have a six-volt battery, one cell of which tests "dead" in a few days after the battery has been fully charged. Can this cell be improved by adding more acid to it? We also have a twelve-volt battery, one cell of which will not charge higher than 1200. What is wrong with it?

Answer: Adding acid to the defective cell of the six-volt battery will do no good and probably will do harm. The trouble with it probably is that it is internally short-circuited and its charge escapes through the short-circuit. Having it washed out and new separators put in should remove the trouble. Let your battery man advise you whether this is worth doing. From what you tell us, there is nothing necessarily wrong with the cell of the twelve-volt battery. If you will have the acid strength in all its cells equalized, they will all probably give equal gravity readings.

LOOSE TIMING-GEARS?



G. M. writes: The engine of my ——— car knocks, the noise being especially noticeable when it is idling. When the car is headed a little downgrade, it seems somewhat louder and when I throw off the switch, the knock seems to be a double one. All bearings have been taken up, the wrist-pins are in good shape, the pistons are not worn and the rings are all right. What is the cause of this knock?

Answer: Perhaps it may come from loose timing gears, as they are usually particularly noisy during idling and capable of making a double knock when the engine rocks on compression, at stopping. A sounding-rod applied to the front end may enable you to decide if the knock is there or not. The key or keyway of one of the timing gears may have worn so as to have considerable play, or some of the gear-teeth may be defective. End play of the crankshaft or camshaft may also be the cause of this noise. Let us know if you still fail to find the trouble.

REAR AXLE GREASE LEAK

H. J. F. writes: Grease is thrown out of the right end of the rear axle of my ——— car, onto the brake band, although I have had the axle apart, have installed new felt washers, several times and never fill the axle housing too full of lubricant. What can you suggest? One of the mechanics proposes drilling a hole in the under side of the axle-tube near the outer bearing, through which excess grease can drain away. How about this?

Answer: As a last resort, you might have the suggested hole drilled in the housing, but with everything right, you ought not to get this escape of grease. Are you sure that the roller-bearing at this right wheel is adjusted properly. If it is loose, so that there is considerable end-play of the axle shaft, the felt washer could hardly be expected to prevent escape of lubricant. When you had the axle apart, did you have the right axle-shaft wiped perfectly clean before putting it back. If not, grease would probably follow out along it, even though a new felt washer had been put in. Are you sure the escaping grease comes from the axle-housing and not from the supply fed to through the bearing grease cup. Maybe you have been turning down this grease cup too freely.

JUNK DEALER BLAMED FOR STATUE THEFTS

After the disappearance of the nineteenth of 20 bronze-sized statues that formerly adorned the Krasnye Verota (red gate), the Moscow police have absolved the homeless children of responsibility for the mysterious thefts and have arrested a junk dealer.

The gate, which might be called a triumphal arch, stands where five streets intersect. It was a barbaric landmark of Moscow and red in color long before the Bolsheviki revolution was dreamed of. It was built in 1742 by Prince Ukhtomsky for the festivities during the coronation of Czarina Elizabeth, daughter of Peter the Great. When the statues which adorned it began to disappear, the police accused the homeless children, but never discovered an urchin with a 25-foot statue under his arm. Now the police say a junk dealer has been removing one statue a week and breaking it up to sell as old junk. This is more plausible.

WESTERLY

BURNING TAR BARREL CAUSED BELL ALARM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 18—Box No. 35, Beach and Elm streets, was sounded about 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning when someone saw the heavy black smoke arising from a burning tar barrel near the old car barn off Beach street, on the town property now occupied by the Westerly highway department. All three pieces of fire apparatus left the Union street station, only to find that their services were not needed. This makes the second time the fire department has been called to the old trolley car barn when a tar barrel was burning. On returning to the station house the ladder truck of the Alert Hook and Ladder company had trouble in making the Union street grade, but in a short time Driver McFarland had the long truck back in the truck room.

This (Thursday) evening at 7:30 o'clock in the council chamber of the Westerly town hall will be held the adjourned council hearing on the adoption of a Westerly building code, which a council committee, consisting of Rogers E. Trainer, Peter Nardone and Harry H. Coleman, have had under consideration for the past nine months or more. At the last council hearing on the subject a number of points were left open for further consideration. At that time also a number appeared who did not agree with the placing of such an ordinance in effect and a long time was taken up with the consideration of some minor questions. It is expected that this hearing will be largely attended by builders, contractors, carpenters, plumbers, masons, electricians and other allied trades.

On Wednesday and Thursday evenings large and interested audiences attended Hotsy Totsy, a minstrel show presented in the new Immaculate Conception parochial school auditorium, corner of Dixon and High streets, by the Girls' Dramatic club of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Tuneful melodies, colorful costumes and bright stage effects combined with excellent talent to make the show a decided success in every respect.

Special entertainers who received much applause were, Alfred Haven, magician, and Eddie Brown, comedian.

The production was staged under the direction of Miss Rose M. Bannon, assisted by George P. Chapman and Mrs. James Jessop. Miss Jessie Hughes was musical director.

The cast included the following: Mose, Mary Spellman; Aunt Liza, Rose Adimari; Jane, Madelyn Sutcliffe; pickaninnies, Mary Turo, Thomas Murray, Josephine Bruss and Betty Crandall; benes, Wanda Dabrowski, Eleanor Daley and Catherine McCormick; tambos, Mary G. Driscoll, Dorothy Sullivan and Dorothy Lenihan; soloists, Olga Gervasini, Mary Lynch, Julia Sullivan, Gertrude Mayhew, Minnie Norgne Josephine Bruss, Betty Crandall, Madelyn Sutcliffe and Rose Adimari; debutantes, Mary Dolan, Mary Panciera, Lena Lynch, Flora Giordano, Dorotta Walsh, Philamena Accolina, Evelyn Foley, Margaret Foley, Clara Fraquelli, Concettina Fraquelli, Helen Mullen, Mary Mullen, Florence Rocco and Evelyn DeRocco.

Rev. Adelbert Yeomans, of Haverhill, Mass., special representative in charge of Americanization work will deliver an address before Everyman's Bible class at the Broad Street Christian church this Friday evening. There will also be two or three other speakers. Not only members of Everyman's class, but representatives from other classes affiliated with the South County federation, are expected to attend the meeting.

Following an illness of but few days, the death of Mrs. Lillian Broadfoot, widow of James T. Broadfoot of West Warwick, and formerly of Westerly, occurred at her home there the first of the week.

She is survived by a son, Henry Broadfoot, and two daughters, Misses Mary and Lillian Broadfoot.

Following the death of her husband some years ago, Mrs. Broadfoot and family moved to West Warwick where they have since made their home.

No session of the November term of superior court for Washington county was held on Thursday at the court house at West Kingston, as there was no representative present from the attorney general's department and no civil cases on the Kingston trial calendar were ready for trial.

As many petit jurymen as could be reached by Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell were notified not to appear and the next court session is set for Monday of next week at the Kingston courthouse.
